Trustees of the Public Library presented their estimates for carrying on the central library and the various branches, and they were duly warned by the Committee on Public Library that they must make their figures as low as possible, and they gave as the bottom figures $123,000, which will be found on page 66 of Document 28. That, sir, was the estimate of gentlemen of the quality and reputation for business sagacity and understanding of the needs of the Public Library which the Trustees are conceded, on all hands, to possess. Those were the bottom figures necessary to carry on the Public Library in a respectable and decent manner, creditable to the city and for the usefulness of those who enjoy it. That estimate came before the Committee on Public Library, and as retrenchment is particularly in fashion this spring, the committee took a hand at it. First, the trustees retrenched; then it went to the Committee on Public Library and the Committee on Retrenchment; and I beg you to notice, sir, the direction in which they made the retrenchment. The Committee on Public Library reduced the estimate for salaries from $73,500 to $71,500; that is, they took off $2000 from the estimate for salaries. It should be explained that the estimate for salaries in the trustees' estimate was at the same rate as the salaries were paid last year, conceded by all who have examined them to be considerably below the salaries paid in other departments in proportion to work done. The Public Library Committee cut off $2000 from the salary item: that is the point I want to make. They did that under pressure brought to bear from one or two members of the Retrenchment Committee, who chanced to be on the same committee, as well as from their own judgment, and they did it in anticipation of conformity to it by the Retrenchment Committee, their report not having been made. Now, then, when this estimate, reduced from $125,000 to $121,000, comes before the joint special committee, they treat it just the same as they did the other matters that came before them. They were not present, possibly, with one exception, at the meeting of the Committee on Library, and I don't know whether it was before them that the reduction estimate made by the Public Library Committee of $2000 was taken especially off from the item of salaries, and all the other items were passed. They took it—as you will see on page 3 of Document 40—they took it and reduced the amount already reduced off salaries by the amount which the Retrenchment Committee reported the salaries ought to be reduced: that is, $2784 in addition. So you will see that, instead of reducing $2874 off salaries, as would be expected under the operation of the retrenchment order, they have really reduced off $4874, if we pass this item as it stands.

Now, Mr. President, it was fully examined by the Committee on the Public Library, and a good deal of time was spent both at the Public Library and at City Hall in examining into the matter. It should be well understood by all of us that the expenses of the Public Library are not only incurred for the maintenance of the central library, but for the large number of branches, constantly increasing; one at the South End is quite imminent. I think it quite probable that in a short time that will be established. That has been before the Council and referred to the Library Committee, which, perhaps, I am not at liberty to speak about now. The fact is, if we reduce the aggregate amount to be appropriated for the maintenance of the Public Library so much as this report contemplates, we shall seriously impair the effectiveness of the Public Library this year and impede the action of the trustees, and we shall be held by and by to vote an additional appropriation. I have called attention somewhat in detail to what I consider to be an accident, so to speak, in the reporting of the item as it is here. The item of salaries had already been reduced in the Public Library Committee, and it is reduced again by the amount proposed in the joint special committee's report. The amendment contemplates the restoring the amount to that recommended by the trustees and the Public Library Committee, but allowing to stand the reduction which the Retrenchment Committee reported, and which this joint special committee seem to have had in mind, not, however, supposing the amount had been reduced.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The expenditure for salaries last year was $68,410; now they ask an increase of salary of about $5000, making $73,500. Now, supposing this entire reduction of $4,000 is taken entirely off the salaries, it will still leave them $69,000, where last year they had but $68,000. That is to say, while they are obliged to reduce about $3000, according to the salary order, they still have $1000 more for salaries than they had last year, which gives them a margin of $4000 better than they had last year. Now, while I have no desire to cripple the library or undervalue it, I believe this margin of $4000 will cover all extra expenses of bookbinding, all extra help they may have for the year, and will carry on the library in an efficient manner.

Mr. Sampson—The gentleman from Ward 21 [Mr. Pratt] is right. The only reduction made by the committee is that covering salaries, and that had been covered before. I hope the amendment will pass.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I can't help but pass a word or two in reply to the gentleman from Ward 3 [Mr. Webster], to his statement about the increased amount asked for salaries this year, and I wish to make two corrections in his remarks. One is that the amount as it stands is $4000 additional to what was appropriated last year. The amount asked for by the trustees was $4000 more than last year. That was reduced $2000 by the Committee on the Public Library, so that if this passes as it is now, as the figures stand in this report, evidently not by intention of the special committee, it will be allowing a less amount than was voted last year for salaries. But, sir, it was well understood by the Library Committee, of which the gentleman is one, and I am surprised to hear him put the matter in the light which he has—it was well understood by every member of the Library Committee that no addition to any salary was sought or asked for by the trustees, and no addition to any salary of any employe of the Public Library was contemplated in the estimate presented by the trustees and passed upon by the Library Committee. The addition of $4000 which was asked for by the trustees, but which they did not get, was not to increase the salaries already paid, but to pay additional salaries, which had been found necessary during the last year to incur the payment of. It was found that books had been running behindhand in the matter of binding, and that many had to be rebound; that pamphlets had to be bound in large numbers; that certain acquisitions to the library had to be bound, and that the Public Library itself could do the binding in a better, more substantial and more economical manner by doing it at its own bindery, and in order to do it, it made a difference of three binders in the library. Well, the salaries of expert binders amount to quite a large item. It was also found necessary in one or two branches to employ additional help. The $4000 was added after a careful estimate of what was necessary to pay for the additional help required. This figure of $73,500 for salaries, including the binder's department, was figured in this way, as I was informed by one of the trustees: The average monthly pay roll for the last two or three months of the expiring year per month, was taken and multiplied by twelve. They saw no reason why the amount required should be less per month than it was during those months. They did see reasons why it might be more, but they simply took the amount of the monthly pay roll at the time they made the estimates and multiplied it by twelve and asked for that. Now, considering the fact that this is evidently a mistake, and that the only reduction intended by either committee was in the matter of salaries, I think every one will see it is but just to the public library that this amendment of $2000 additional should be added.

The amendment was adopted.

Schools and Schoolhouses—$1,544,520. Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I would like to ask for information whether the amount for school instructors included in that item, $1,115,520, is the amount asked for by the School Committee, and if not, what the reasons were for its being reduced.

The President read a communication which he had received from the School Committee protesting against the proposed reduction of the estimate for school expenses, and called attention to pages 71, 72 and 73 of City Document No. 28.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I would like to ask some member of the Committee on Public Instruction to state reasons why such an enormous reduction should be reported on the item referred to. If any member of that committee would be kind enough to give us the information, I think we could vote more intelligently.

Mr. Pearl of Ward 1—Will the gentleman please repeat his question? I did n't understand it.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I asked if some member of the Committee on Public Instruction, or gentleman familiar with the facts, would explain the reasons why the Committee on Public Instruction reported so large a reduction on the item for salaries of school teachers—the reduction amounting to nearly $125,000 below the amount asked for by the School Committee. I think for so large a reduction in such an important department some reasons should be given, and I should be very glad to give them.

Mr. Pearl of Ward 1—I am not prepared tonight to answer the question of the gentleman. It was the unanimous opinion of the committee, at the time, I well remember, that there should be that reduction, and we so reported.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—I would state for the information of the gentleman that of this reduction of $123,208, the amount reduced on the regular salaries of the teachers was $73,780. That is on the regular corps of instructors. There was also made a further reduction on music teachers, drawing teachers, evening-school teachers, French teachers, German teachers, deaf-mute teachers, military-drill teachers, etc., amounting to $21,850, making $95,630. The committee asked for $113,300 for incidentals, and $100,000 was voted them. The salaries of officers were reduced from $57,350 to $51,000; a reduction in janitors' supplies and fuel of $8000 was reported, and so on; but of the whole amount of reduction $73,780 was on the regular teachers. The committee in making this reduction estimated that there would be this year a reduction in the salaries generally in the City Hall and elsewhere. I think the chairman of the School Committee stated last year that they were prepared to make the reduction, and if the reduction had been made in other places the School Committee was prepared to make a reduction in the salaries of teachers of the public schools; and, as I have said, the committee estimated that the reduction would be made this year, and hence cut down the appropriation in this way.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—If I understand the communication from the School Committee, I believe it represents, or claims, I don't know for what reason, that the Council can't fix the salaries of the school teachers, and apparently claims that the School Committee may employ teachers and require the city to pay this amount in spite of any rates of the Council. I don't know whether there is any foundation for that claim, but I should hope we should not undertake to do anything we had n't a legal right to do, and should not take any position which would result in our finding in a later period of the year we had n't appropriated by $125,000 enough to meet our necessary expenses. I simply should like to inquire whether any gentleman is prepared to state as to the legal position of this matter, and whether the School Committee can fix the salaries in spite of the protest of this branch.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I understand by the ordinances the School Committee have authority, and are the proper persons to establish the salaries of the teachers.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—The gentleman is correct in thinking that the Council has no right, as I understand it, to fix the salaries of school teachers. We have, however, the right to state the sum the School Committee can appropriate, and in getting at that sum we have, of course, a right to take the School Committee's estimate, and figure out on a basis of the number of teachers employed what they think to be right to give them; then the committee can take this sum and expend it in eight months or ten months. They can keep the salaries just where they are if they wish, but, according to the statement of the chairman of the board, they were prepared last year to make this reduction in case it had been made in the other employes of the city.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I think the ordinances go further than the gentleman just preceding me has said. Section first of the ordinance in regard to the salaries of teachers says the School Committee shall have power to contract with them and determine the amount of their respective salaries.

Mr. McGaragle—I don't think we are fixing the salaries. We say we will give them so much money in round numbers to pay the running expenses of the school. If they want any more money they have got to come back to the City Council for it. We are not interfering in any way here with them at all.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—That is precisely the idea which I had supposed would prevail in regard to that item. If we pass it as it stands, we may say to the School Committee, "You will have to carry on the schools with that," but they can dispose of it as they please. Now what has been the result of reduction heretofore? The School Committee have endeavored to carry on the schools economically. I believe the schools are carried on with the employment of as few teachers as is practicable to carry on the schools efficiently. But I pass by that point for a moment. On looking at page 70 of this document number 28, I find that the School Committee in presenting their estimates stated that these estimates presented by them, as compared with those of last year, show a reduction of $47,050 already, before it comes to this City Government. The estimates of last year, 1876-77, were reduced $47,050, showing an aggregate amount of reduction of $94,100 in the two years. Now, Mr. President, we don't come to this matter as it was during the war, as it was five years ago, as it was when rents were higher and living dearer, as has been talked here. We come to it with a reduction to the extent of $94,100 in two years in the amount appropriated for the schools. Now, the committee also append to their report this statement, and coming from the source it does, it is entitled to great consideration: "The committee present these figures and state that these amounts are actually required to carry on the schools as at present constituted." Now, Mr. President, after the School Committee have been adjusting things for the last two years, to make a smaller sum of money go over the ground in supporting our public schools, we come and ask them to reduce about $125,000 still further. Now, I submit that the point is just this: It will be what the gentleman on my left [Mr. Coe of Ward 23] has very well said, that the committee will have a certain sum with which to maintain the schools during the year. They will find that that will be sufficient to maintain the schools as they are now for a certain part of the year, and then they will have to shut them up, or else they will find that it will be sufficient to maintain a certain number of schools, and if they provide for them they must shut up the rest, or else they will find that they can run the same number of schools by turning out a number of teachers and so they will undertake to run, instead of sixty scholars to a teacher, 160 scholars to a teacher; or else they will find that instead of good, faithful, intelligent teachers now getting six or seven hundred dollars, or eight hundred dollars a year, they will have about five hundred dollars, and those who are getting larger salaries in proportion. Now, Mr. President, when it comes to a matter affecting our public schools, which are the pride and boast, and justly so, of all Boston citizens wherever they go in this country or in foreign countries, when it comes to taking off $100,000 or more, below what the School Committee has given us as bottom figures, I say we ought to stop and consider well before we pass an item like that, and we do it, if we do it, in the face of the protest of the School Committee. Now, whether wisely or not, it has come down to us from our ancestors, from the founders of this municipality, that the School Committee shall have the provision for the maintenance of the public schools. The School Committee are to determine the qualifications and the compensations of the teachers employed in the public schools. The School Committee are to have the control of the public schools, all except voting the appropriations. From time immemorial we have had a good School Committee. We choose at large citizens of knowledge, ability and character, to represent us on the School Board of the city of Boston, and I submit that their judgment is entitled to respect in this chamber or anywhere else; and when they come to us with a report that shows on the face of it a reduction of $94,100 in the last two years, notwithstanding the increase in the number of schools, notwithstanding the constant increase in the number of pupils instructed in those schools, notwithstanding that very fact would tend toward increase in the expense of supporting the public schools, yet they show us a good, bona fide reduction of nearly a hundred thousand dollars in the last two years, and then say they can't carry on the schools for any less—when we undertake to reduce the appropriation $100,000 further, we strike a blow at the public schools.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—I should like to have the Council understand this matter. The School Committee say in their report, "The committee present these figures and state that these amounts are actually required to carry on the schools as at present constituted." That is, with the salaries of the teachers employed in the public schools as they are, and as they have been for the last two or three years. It provides for no reduction. Now, Mr. President, we can, of course, vote here to give the committee all they ask, and if we do not there will be no change in the salaries of the teachers in the public schools; or we can vote to give them the amount the committee allow them, and in order for a perfect conduct of the schools they will be obliged to cut down the pay of the teachers, and this reduction will provide for the reduction of the teachers all the way from five to ten per cent. That certainly is not a large reduction. It is not nearly as heavy a reduction as has been made in other departments here and carried through by the Retrenchment Committee. I simply state this point, so that gentlemen of the Council may understand it exactly. About $100,000 of this reduction is grounded upon salaries; the rest is reduction in fuel and incidentals of various kinds.

Mr. Spenceley—The gentleman just up stole all my thunder, but I have a word or two to say. The gentleman opposite [Mr. Pratt of Ward 21] says the committee have already cut down $47,000. Now I understand, sir, that this cutting down, as he calls it, does not come from the salaries, but simply from the consolidation of schools and the discharging of a number of teachers. As the gentleman last up [Mr. Coe of Ward 23] has said, it does n't touch the salary of any of the school teachers. On page 68 are the salaries paid the officers, and it is just the pay they have been receiving for the last five or six years, and it seems to me, sir, that we can afford to cut these men down five or ten per cent. The salaries in City Hall have been cut nearly double what we are asked to give these teachers. In 1861 these head masters were getting $1800 a year, and were obliged to have charge of the school and also to teach a particular class in their own rooms. Now, as I understand it, they have to be at the schoolhouse two hours in each day, and that all the rest of the time they can be in their offices, receiving company. I say that we can afford to reduce those teachers. I don't know, but I think the gentleman from Ward 21 [Mr. Pratt] said some of the Public Library officers would resign if their pay was cut. We have n't heard of any resignations so far. I tell you these men will not resign. They will stick to their places, and we will get just as good a school, and just as able masters as we have got today, because the salary of $3600 that we propose to pay them, in these times, is a good salary, and I don't believe our schools would be any less than they are now in the point of efficiency, by any reduction which we may make in reference to our teachers as the committee has reported.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—I don't understand that there is any motion before the Council to reduce salaries. It seems to me there should be, if that is what we are trying to do. For one I am in favor of a reduction in our school expenses, for I think the teachers can afford to work for less than they do.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—We cannot fix the salaries of the teachers; that is entirely with the School Committee. And furthermore, if we give the amount of money that is called for in this report of the committee, and it is not enough to pay the salaries, it makes no difference. The city of Boston has got to pay, whether there is an appropriation or not. The only redress I believe we have is, that after a certain time the City Council has authority to shut up the schools or pay the amount of salaries that they may have agreed to pay. That is the way I understand the statute provides.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The Chairman of the School Committee said before the Committee on Retrenchment—he gave his opinion very plainly and decidedly, as the record I think will show—that in case it was determined to move a general reduction of salaries, he had no idea that their department would object to it in the least. He thought they would meet us half way in the matter, and do about as we did. They had proposed to do the same thing last year, but because we did n't do so, they did n't do it. They reduced the number of teachers a good deal, but not their salaries. Now, taking him right at his word, supposing he wants to reduce about the same as we have done, this reduction now seems very reasonable. You take the list of salaries which the Committee on Public Instruction proposed should be paid, taking them as a basis, and if these salaries are not all liberal compared with the salaries we are now paying in City Hall, then my judgment is entirely at fault. If we cannot save $100,000 in the school expenses then there is no use talking about economy anywhere in the city of Boston. These salaries are large. I believe that the reductions proposed by this Committee on Instruction can be carried out, and if they wish to do as they say they do—meet us half way in the matter of retrenchment—there will be no difficulty whatever in paying good salaries and still saving this amount. Now, this idea that if we don't give them enough money they will run the schools but six months or so in the year—the fact is they do run them but seven or eight months. The teachers work about half the year, and the rest is vacation. They can't have any more money than we appropriate, and if they pay the teacher his salary in six months and give him six months' vacation the money goes all the same. It makes no difference whether school keeps six months or seven or eight, so long as the money is paid. They do get a vacation, compared with which no other department may be said to have any vacation at all. I believe this plan is reasonable for saving $100,000; and if that retrenchment can't be made here, I will be very glad to undo what we have done in the way of retrenchment and leave things as they were.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I believe the school masters and teachers of Boston don't receive very large salaries at present. The gentleman from Ward 19 [Mr. Spenceley] says that the masters are not supposed to devote more than two hours a day to their schools. I think if he should devote a little time to look into it, he would find different. The masters of the grammar schools are supposed to be at the schoolhouses at a quarter before nine o'clock, and devote the whole time of school hours to the general supervision of the school in their charge. They are supposed to devote from two to three hours a day with their own class; they are obliged to do it under the new rules, and I believe most of the grammar-school masters in Boston are very valuable men, and that they are not overpaid. I believe, likewise, the citizens of Boston, if a vote was taken tomorrow, would not scrimp the School Committee in their appropriations. I think money laid out for public education is laid out to the very best advantage. I have been a pretty close observer of the school system, and I find that whenever we have reduced the appropriation, instead of making a general reduction, the committee dropped so many teachers. I know this from actual knowledge, and the consequence was that in some thickly-settled districts of the city they put fifty-five or sixty scholars into a room. The result of it was that none of these scholars could receive just attention. It is impossible for a lady teacher to take fifty-five scholars and give them the individual teaching which is necessary. I believe that every dollar taken from the appropriation for school purposes is a loss to the city.

Mr. Pratt—It has been suggested that no amendment was offered. I had proposed to offer an amendment of $100,000 additional to this item. That would bring it up to the amount asked for by the School Committee; but as I think the prevailing disposition is retrenchment, I will therefore offer this amendment to the total amount of the item for school instructors. As the Auditor is kind enough to state that the amount of reduction is $73,000 on the item of instructors, and as I understand it covers the salaries of teachers and instruction of the schools, aside from the hired officers, etc., I therefore make my amendment to read $73,000 additional to that item, and therefore additional to the total sum in the appropriation. I think there are two aspects of this case which ought to be considered. One is that we are asked for a certain amount by the School Committee, and they are gentlemen qualified and elected for the special purpose of taking care of the public schools; and therefore their request is entitled to respect. I do not know what higher authority we will be guided by, unless we have made as much investigation as the members of the School Committee have made. The other aspect of the case is that evidently on the face of this document a reduction of the small salaries is contemplated; or else the shutting up of the schools during a certain time of the year or the dropping of a certain number of schools. Either you have got to shut up the schools for a part of the time, or you have got to reduce the pay of these teachers. Now, Mr. President, I have great respect for what gentlemen say who are accustomed to the prices paid for labor and the duties required of employes of business men. But I ask them also to consider the actual hours employed by the school teachers, and the actual duties and qualifications required of them. Why, sir, we require years of preparation and study before allowing them to come into a school to teach; we require a certain standard of character and versatility of genius for school teaching, and a certain amount of education; and then we require such an expenditure of energy not called for in any other calling. These teachers who receive $750 a year have to teach from forty-five to seventy scholars, look after their behavior, attainments and ability to learn, and take them along in a course that will make them creditable to the institutions of the city. And we ask the school teacher to spend his days, evenings and Sundays and vacations in preparing himself for his duties in the schoolroom. If you examine the successful teachers, I venture to say you will find that they do not devote merely six hours a day in the schoolroom; but they spend not only their evenings and Sundays, but their vacations in qualifying themselves for teaching the more advanced classes; and when you get up to the higher grades, you find these teachers, whom you begrudge a two-months' vacation, so exhausted that they need it to acquire that vitality necessary in the business; or else they spend it in the pursuit of literary and scientific attainments to fit them for their duties. When we place upon teachers the responsibilities we do, it is no more than reasonable that they should be paid a fair amount. When you compare these labors and responsibilities with those of others, I say their salaries are small enough. I move to make the amount the same as called for by the committee.

On motion of Mr. Day, the main question was ordered.

On motion of Mr. Danforth the yeas and nays were ordered on Mr. Pratt's amendment and it was rejected—yeas 6, nays 49:

Yeas—Messrs. Cox, Danforth, Fraser, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Sibley—6.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Blanchard, Brown, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Coe, Cross, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, O'Donnell, Pearl, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Reed, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Ruffin, Sampson, Swardon, Spenceley, Stone, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—49.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Beeching, Blodgett, Briutnall, Crocker, Fagan, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Jackson, Mullane, O'Connor, Pope, Roberts, Shepard, Souther, Thompson, Thorndike—16.

An amendment offered by Mr. Spenceley to the order laying a tax, so as to make the rate of interest charged on unpaid taxes eight per cent. instead of ten, was lost.

The orders (as amended) making an appropriation and laying a tax of $9,757,258 were passed, as were also the order requiring the revenue from liquor licenses to be turned into the treasury, and the resolve requesting the Overseers of the Poor to make a reduction in the pay of the employes in that department.

Subsequently a motion to reconsider by Mr. Howes, hoping it would not prevail, was lost.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

A request was received from the School Committee for repairs on the Adams School. Referred to Joint Committee on Public Instruction. Sent up.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

By Mr. Vose of Ward 24—Petition from residents of Ward 24 that a playground be laid out in that section of the city, and suggesting various lots of land for the purpose. Referred to the Joint Committee on Common and Public Grounds. Sent up.

By Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—Petitions of Mary McCann and L. Lepiere, for compensation for injuries received. Referred to Committee on Claims. Sent up.

By Mr. Warren of Ward 25—Petitions of residents of Ward 25 for a base-ball ground near Allston station. Referred to Committee on Common and Public Grounds. Sent up.

ORCHARD PARK.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 submitted a report from the Joint Standing Committee on Common and Public Grounds of leave to withdraw on the petition of Joseph Kuhns to be paid for damages caused by a change of grade in Orchard park. Accepted. Sent up.

CREW OF FIRE BOAT.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2 offered an order—That the Committee on Fire Department be requested to report to the City Government what, if any, reductions have been made in the pay and allowances of the crew of the fire boat William Flanders. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

ACCUMULATION OF SINKING FUNDS.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I hold in my hand an order which I wish to introduce, in order that we may obtain from the City Auditor an estimate to show the exact figures which I intimated in my remarks at an earlier hour which would be made by adopting a different rate of interest in estimating the accumulations of the Sinking Fund. It seems to me desirable that we should have the figures in authentic shape from the Auditor, so that the Council might take any action upon them later in the year if they think desirable. It is simply an order to obtain information that we may act upon if we see fit.

Mr. Crocker offered the following:

Ordered, That the Auditor be requested to furnish to the City Council an estimate of the amount of appropriation that would be required to be made the present year for the payment and redemption of the city debt, if the rate of five instead of four per cent. were taken as the proper standard of accumulation of interest; also, an estimate upon the same basis of the amount by which the old Sinking Fund and the Consolidated Street Improvement Fund exceed the smallest sums which, with their accumulations, would be sufficient to meet at maturity the debts which these funds were intended to provide for.

Read twice and passed. Sent up.

EMPLOYES IN WATER DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 submitted a report from the Committee on Water, representing that by the terms of the order establishing the salaries and employes of the Water Department, no persons can be employed in that department except such as are specifically enumerated in said order, and mechanics and laborers. In order to carry on the work of the department it is necessary that provision should be made for the employment of persons in other capacities than are set forth in said order, and the committee request the passage of an order—That section 14 of the order establishing the salaries of the officers and employes of the Water Department, passed March 27, 1877, be amended to read as follows:

"Sect. 14. The Boston Water Board, with the approval of the Committee on Water, may designate the number of engineers, overseers, mechanics, laborers and other persons who shall be employed in the Cochituate and Mystic Water departments, and shall with like approval, establish the salaries of the persons so employed."

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—Does this include the Sudbury River works?

Mr. Fraser—It includes everything that comes under the contract of the Water Board, Sudbury, Cochituate and Mystic.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent up.

OLD SOUTH CHURCH.

On motion of Mr. Day of Ward 4, the order to oppose legislation to authorize the city to expend money to purchase the Old South Church was taken from the table and indefinitely postponed, Mr. Day stating that the action of the Legislature had made it unnecessary to pass the order.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Swardon of Ward 10.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

APRIL 16, 1877.

FREE FERRIES.

A petition was received from W. A. Simmons, Collector of the port of Boston; the Warren Steamship Company, by Warren & Co., agents; the Leyland Steamship Company, by Thayer & Lincoln, agents; the Cunard Steamship Company, by James Alexander, agent; the Boston & Albany Railroad Company, by D. Waldo Lincoln, Vice President; the Eastern Railroad Company, by A. P. Rockwell, President; the National Dock and Warehouse Company, by La Fayette Burr, Treasurer, and 361 merchants of Boston, for free ferries between East Boston and the city. The petitioners say—

To the Honorable the Mayor, Aldermen and Council of the City of Boston—The undersigned, merchants and others engaged or interested in the Foreign Shipping Trade of Boston, hereby petition your honorable body that the tolls presently charged on passengers and carriages of all kinds, using the ferries plying between the city and East Boston, may be made free to the public; and respectfully offer the following reasons in support of this petition, viz.:

REASONS.

1. South Boston, Charlestown, Cambridge, Chelsea, and all places accessible to the city via the Milldam, have the use of bridges for this purpose, which are maintained at the public expense and for the general benefit of the community, free of any toll upon passengers or carriages.

2. It would seem to be only just to East Boston to put it upon the same footing as these other sections of the city, in this particular.

3. There are now thirty thousand people (30,000) residing in East Boston, to whom it is a hardship to pay tolls upon these ferries every time they cross the harbor. The people of the island are largely employed in the city, and the burden of the tolls presses heavily upon their earnings.

4. The water frontage of East Boston is largely used (as it is admirably adapted) for shipping purposes. Three-fourths of the cargoes landed from incoming, or loaded into outgoing vessels engaged in the foreign trade of this port, are handled at East Boston; owing to the elevator, railroad, wharf and warehouse accommodations which have been provided there for this business. Your petitioners submit that the enterprise of the railroad and shipping companies, and wharf and warehouse proprietors, who have ventured to provide these facilities, deserves protection and encouragement, and that the goods which they handle should, by means of free ferriage, be put upon a par with goods landed from or loaded into vessels at the city proper.

The cost of the tolls and the additional cost of teaming to and from East Boston, is used as an argument with shippers and consignees to induce them to discountenance the landing or shipment of their goods at East Boston. Your petitioners respectfully urge the claims of East Boston upon your protection in this important particular. The natural advantages of East Boston for shipping purposes should be developed to the utmost extent, in the interests of the growing trade of the port, and the disadvantage of its isolation from the city by the waters of the harbor should be as far as possible lessened, by removing the charge of ferriage, and thus placing goods landed on each side of the harbor on an equal footing as respects public charges.

5. The abolition of the tolls for ferriage will popularize East Boston as a place of residence, thus enhancing the value of real estate there, and also bringing into requirement for building, trading and commercial purposes the large area of territory beyond East Boston, including Breed's Island, Winthrop, and North Chelsea, which has hitherto been but sparsely occupied. The rapid progress which has been made in developing this territory, recently, indicates that its taxable value to the city will yet be very great.

Your petitioners believe that the abolition of the tolls on the ferries between the city and East Boston will accelerate this result; but they rest their petition mainly on the broad ground that it will be a great public benefit.

Alderman Gibson presented petitions of members of the Board of Trade in favor of free ferries.

Referred to Joint Committee on the Ferries. Sent down.

SEWER HEARINGS.

Hearings were had on orders of notice of intention to construct sewers in Eagle street, East Bosdoing, using that discretion that the Committee on Licenses are supposed to use in the licensing of these vendors.

Alderman Clark—I will withdraw the motion to refer, but I hope the order will lie over one week, for I am not prepared to vote upon it.

Alderman Wilder—I have no objection to the order lying over for one week. I do not wish to force any action upon it. I believe it to be a question of importance and one that has been very generally discussed outside of this room for the last three or four weeks. It is well known, at least I am informed, that the city is already defendant in one or more suits that have been brought in cases of this kind, and that is a question that has an important bearing. I believe that the minds of the gentlemen are already made up on it. At the same time I have not the slightest objection to its lying over. I don't want any hasty action upon it.

Alderman Gibson—I hope it will lie over one week, and I move that it be specially assigned to next Monday, at five o'clock. I should like to look over it again, as I am not thoroughly posted about the matter of these stands.

The matter was specially assigned to five o'clock on Monday next.

FOURTH OF JULY.

An order came down for a committee of eight to arrange for a celebration of the next Fourth of July, at an expense not exceeding $10,000, with a substitute providing for a committee of one from each ward, with the President of the Common Council, and such as the Board of Aldermen may join, the expense not to exceed $20,000. Both orders having been referred to the Retrenchment Committee by the other branch, the question was on concurrence in the reference.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If I may be permitted to change the order, I would move to insert that the Retrenchment Committee be the committee to disburse that money. The Common Council seem to have so much confidence in the Retrenchment Committee and in the judicious manner in which they disburse this money, that I would move to amend the order by saying that the Committee on Retrenchment shall be the committee to arrange for the celebration.

The Mayor—The question is upon concurrence in the reference to the Retrenchment Committee.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Then I hope the Board will non-concur.

Alderman Clark—It seems to me to be the proper committee to refer this subject to. If it is a question of appropriating thirty thousand dollars I shall oppose it. We appropriated thirty thousand dollars for celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of our independence, and I should hope that in the future we shall spend a less amount. I am willing that the Retrenchment Committee should be the committee to arrange for celebrating the next Fourth of July, but not at an expense of thirty thousand dollars. I hope it will be referred to the Retrenchment Committee, and that they will report what is necessary to expend. But before passing the order I want to know how much is to be spent this year. I believe that a moderate amount is necessary, but I think we should not spend twenty or thirty thousand dollars. I believe that ten thousand dollars is as much as we should spend in celebrating the next Fourth of July.

Alderman O'Brien—It appears to me that the committee who are to consider this matter ought to be the committee who are to spend this money. As the Alderman says, I think the Committee on Retrenchment have shown themselves very competent and capable of taking charge of any duty that the City Council imposes upon them, but it is not certain that the Committee on Retrenchment, after considering this matter, will have the expenditure of this money. You make us the Committee on the Fourth of July Arrangements, and then we will tell you what money we want, and show the city how to expend it, and you can give us what money you please. But I don't believe in referring it to the committee unless you put the other authority upon us. It is well known that the gentleman who proposed this matter in the other branch is desirous of obtaining a reputation as a joker. He thinks he has done good service for the Retrenchment Committee—and he has, for he has enabled us to pass our retrenchment bills. It is well known that the Committee on the Fourth of July have the hiring of several large halls, and the gentleman is desirous of having one of those halls for the purpose of showing his peculiar faculty of joking; but if that gentleman is desirous of showing his peculiar faculty of joking, he ought to hire a hall himself. I think this matter ought to be indefinitely postponed. I shall move that it be indefinitely postponed.

The motion to indefinitely postpone was carried.

Alderman O'Brien offered an order—That a committee of five on the part of the Board of Aldermen, with such as the Common Council may join, be a committee to make arrangements for the celebration of the Fourth of July next, at an expense not exceeding $15,000.

Alderman Clark—I move to amend by making the sum $10,000, and that the committee be the Retrenchment Committee.

The question was put on the larger sum, and the Board refused to make the sum $15,000.

Alderman Burnham called for a division of the question, and the Board voted to make the sum $10,000, and to make the committee the Retrenchment Committee. The order as amended was then passed—yeas 12, nays 0. Sent down.

Alderman Clark submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Common, etc., on petition of Samuel N. Brown, Jr., et al., that the lot of land between Huntington and St. James avenues be laid out as a public street or square. That they believe if the said lot were converted into a public square it would be a great improvement to the locality in question, and they would recommend that if it is conveyed to the city free of cost it be accepted and put in order. The committee are of opinion that until the lot is conveyed to the city no action is necessary on the part of the City Council. Accepted. Sent down.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The report and amended orders making specific appropriations for the next financial year, and for laying a tax to meet necessary expenditure (City Doc. No. 40, amended) were considered among the papers from the Common Council.

The order making the appropriations was read, and the Mayor announced that he would read each item separately, and if no amendment was offered or objection made the item would be considered passed.

Discussions occurred and amendments were offered as follows:

Public Institutions—$518,440. Alderman Thompson—I do not like to have this report go through without some explanation, and I do not like the Committee on Public Institutions to be ignored. The amount is so small and the state of the market has changed so much that I do not know that I shall insist upon the action of the committee being adopted by this Board. But I do think that when a committee spends a good deal of time investigating these items some considerations should be paid to them. I find that the committee recommend a reduction of six thousand dollars in the estimate for the House of Industry by taking $4500 off from the item of subsistence. That I would not now advocate in consequence of the present state of the market in regard to flour and breadstuffs and perhaps other things that might be required. But there is another item of five hundred dollars for the agricultural department, and I think, if the Board desired, it could be reduced, for if I remember right, there is a sufficient amount for the present year and over. Then the medical department was reduced $500, on account of the pauper children being removed from there to Marcella street. Then there is $500 for water that the directors asked for, the same as last year; but there has been a reduction in water. But the amount is so small that I will pass by the other institutions till we come to Marcella street, and there the committee could not have fully considered the amount of salaries. The amount appropriated for salaries in the Marcella-street institution is $6000, and the committee reduced this $500. But the Committee on the Auditor's Estimates and the other branch have given the directors all that they asked for, except the slight reduction of salaries made. I merely wish to call attention to these facts, because I do not want the committee who have made this report and made those reductions wholly ignored. I don't propose to offer any amendments, because the amount I would reduce now is not more than $2000.

Public Library. Alderman Thompson—There seems to have been some misunderstanding in regard to the appropriations for salaries at the Public Library. The Retrenchment Committee reduced the salaries $2874, and I think that was on the basis of last year's appropriation, when the trustees asked for $79,000. This year they asked for $73,500, an increase in consequence of the library. The Committee on the Library voted that they would allow all the trustees asked for, with the exception of $2000 reduced on salaries, which made the amount $71,500, and a further reduction was made by taking off the amount that the Retrenchment Committee reduced the salaries. That explains the discrepancy which arose between the committee on the Auditor's estimates and the action of the Council.

Alderman Burnham—I was about to make the same remarks that the Alderman opposite has made. I had my attention called to it by the President of the Board of Trustees of the Public Library in a letter in which he expressed the wish that the amendment adopted in the other branch should pass this branch, and gives as one of the principal reasons that through some misunderstanding the salaries reported by the Committee on Retrenchment were those paid on May 1st, 1876, and not the salaries at the present time, and include the binders added to the force during the year, and which even now are insufficient for the work to be done. It seems to me that it is proper that we should concur in the amendment of the other branch, and make the amount $2000 larger.

Schoolhouses, Public Buildings. Alderman Thompson—In this item I suppose is included the new houses and new building, and we can reduce it $20,000. There is an appropriation of $80,000 for the Washington Village schoolhouse, and I think the contract has just been made for $49,000. The architect tells me that $15,000 or more will be sufficient to complete and furnish that schoolhouse, which will leave in the treasury $15,000 which can be transferred to the appropriations for schoolhouses this year. Then again there is the estimate of $50,000 for the schoolhouse in the Allston District.

Alderman Fitzgerald—$40,000.

Alderman Thompson—It is fifty in the Sherwin District.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Forty in the Brighton and fifty in the Sherwin District.

Alderman Thompson—The architect tells me that it can be reduced ten thousand dollars. Since the city has been so fortunate in making the contracts for new schoolhouses, he is satisfied that ten thousand dollars can be taken off from that appropriation without risk; and it occurred to me that we could reduce the other appropriation twenty thousand dollars by reserving the amount after completing this schoolhouse, and, if in order, I would move a reduction of twenty thousand dollars in the item of schoolhouses, public buildings, by making it $113,000, instead of $133,000.

The amendment was adopted.

Subsequently Alderman Fitzgerald called attention to the matter, and explained that the reduction should have been made upon the specific amounts appropriated for those objects, and on his motion the last-mentioned vote was reconsidered, and he explained that the appropriation for schoolhouses, public buildings, was for repairs on the schoolhouses and not for the erection of new buildings.

The items in the appropriation for new schoolhouses were then amended on motion of Alderman Thompson, in conformity with the suggestion of Alderman Fitzgerald, by reducing that for the Allston Schoolhouse to $30,000 from $40,000, and that for the Sherwin District from $50,000 to $40,000.

Paving, and the Back Bay Streets and Avenues. Alderman Clark—I move to reconsider the vote whereby the appropriation for paving was fixed at eight hundred and fifty thousand dollars. I desire that because I wish to make an amendment to the appropriation.

The reconsideration was carried.

Alderman Clark—I desire to state to the Board that I have at all times considered that $850,000 was too small an amount to be devoted to that department for the present year; and I make the motion to amend at this time from this fact. It is well known that Commonwealth avenue, West-Chester-park street and Huntington avenue are accepted streets of the city, and that in 1871 an agreement was made between the City of Boston and the Boston Water Power Company that upon the completion of Huntington avenue, West-Chester-park street and Commonwealth avenue, the city would accept those streets as public highways and proceed to build suitable iron bridges across the railroads, also immediately put the streets in proper order for public travel. I would call the attention of members of the Board to City Document 83, which you will find upon your desks, of the year 1871, in which it says—“Ordered, That in case N. C. Munsou, within two years, will construct or cause to be constructed and graded to an elevation of not less than eighteen feet above mean low water, the following street and avenues, viz.: Commonwealth avenue, two hundred feet wide, from its present termination to its junction with the proposed extension of West-Chester-park street; Huntington avenue, one hundred feet wide, from Boylston street to Camden street; and West-Chester-park street, from the Boston & Providence Railroad to Beacon street, according to a plan of ‘lands on the Back Bay,’ numbered one, made under the direction of Jonathan Preston and others, commissioners, dated Dec. 6, 1864, and shall convey or cause to be conveyed said avenues and street to the city of Boston, and shall release and procure to be released to the city all claims by all persons affected thereby for damages on account of the grading of said avenues and street to said grade, or to any higher grade which may be found necessary or expedient to carry the same over the said railroad or over the Boston & Albany Railroad by means of bridges, including all land damages as well as all damages for the sloping of the earth upon abutting lands which may be necessary or expedient in maintaining said avenues and street at grade eighteen, or any increased grade, as aforesaid, or for so increasing the grade in order to cross said railroads; and also securing to the city the right so to have the earth slope as aforesaid without any retaining wall or bulkhead to support the same so long as may be necessary in order to maintain said avenues and street at their full width; then the city will pay to said Munson, or his assignees, the sum of $300,000, and will proceed forthwith to construct suitable iron bridges over said railroads, for public travel, and will keep said avenues and street in safe condition for public travel from the time said grading shall have been completed, and said deeds and releases given, until they are accepted or laid out as public streets, and the city will assume and pay all assessments for betterments on account of such laying out or acceptance of said street and avenues within the limits above named.”

Now, in the latter part of 1875 those streets were graded up to grade 18, and releases satisfactory to the City Solicitor and to the Board of Aldermen were obtained, and the City Council voted to pay the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, less some twenty thousand dollars to pay for such slight variations as might be necessary to correct any grades—it was about two hundred and sixty-five thousand dollars—to the Boston Water Power Company for those streets; and the streets were accepted as public highways of the city. Immediately after the streets were accepted as public highways of the city, the city proceeded to construct the bridges over the Providence and Boston & Albany railroads at West-Chester-park street, at an expenditure of something like one hundred or one hundred and fifty thousand dollars—I forget the precise amount. Those bridges were substantially completed late in the autumn. The grade of the streets has been raised to both approaches of the Providence and the Albany railroads, and West-Chester-park street extended from Columbus avenue to Beacon street in order for public travel, with the exception of such necessary work as may be necessary in macadamizing and furnishing gutters, etc. Commonwealth avenue is in the same condition, and in about thirty days the bridge over Huntington avenue will be completed and in order for public travel. As I understand it, there has been no appropriation made for putting either of these avenues in order; and at the earnest request of a large number of parties interested in that property, and also for the purpose of having those avenues open to public travel, the Joint Committee on Streets gave a hearing to those parties last Friday evening—when a good many gentlemen, taxpayers and citizens, appeared before the committee, and among them were some of those who purchased and contracted for land on the Back Bay immediately after the passage of the agreement between the city and Norman C. Munson, and the value of the land they purchased was seventeen hundred thousand dollars. Upon the strength of that agreement Huntington avenue was laid out. Among those gentlemen present were Peleg W. Chandler, Franklin Haven, George O. Shattuck, Mr. Avery, Colonel Russell, Governor Rice, who is one of the trustees for a large piece of property, F. G. Dexter and S. G. Lothrop, who is trustee for a large property and the representative of the Suffolk Savings Bank, who is interested in the land. They represented to the committee that they were anxious to put their lands into the market and that they propose to do so as soon as the streets are in order; that they had paid into the city treasury over a hundred thousand dollars in taxes on property on the left side of the avenue, and that as much has been paid in on the right side, and a large amount of taxes has been paid in, of course, on property on West-Chester-park street extended and on Commonwealth avenue. Now, the committee, after hearing the arguments of the parties in favor of this project, and after considering the fact that there was an express agreement by the city that when these avenues were completed and accepted the city would proceed forthwith to put them in order for public travel, and from the fact that we had already expended a large sum in building two splendid bridges—probably the finest in the State—over West-Chester-park street, and they considered the fact that every inhabitant on Commonwealth avenue had put in a petition for the Committee on Paving to have that avenue put in order and in travelling condition, and that West-Chester-park street is a great thoroughfare from the southern portion of the city to the Milldam, and also from South Boston and Dorchester, and that it will take the travel which Dartmouth street now takes; and the committee came to the unanimous conclusion that the appropriation for paving should be increased $150,000. That only makes the appropriation the same as it has been in years past, and in my opinion the sum of $850,000 is no more than it should be for the general work that comes before that committee. I know it is hard times, and that we must keep the appropriation as low as possible; but we must remember that there is no department from which poor men receive so much as the Paving Department, and I think that about two-thirds of the appropriation went for labor last year; and we know that a large amount of the work on the avenues can be put out to the laborers. Those facts require no argument. It was the unanimous opinion of the Committee on Streets that the paving of those avenues should be asked for, and that it was best to ask for it in the Board of Aldermen. I would state that the Committee on Paving—

Alderman Robinson—What is the penalty in case it is not done? Can the city be indicted?

Alderman Clark—That is a legal question. It is unquestionable that, in case of an accident the city can be indicted; but whether there is any forfeiture in case the city did not do it, is not for me to determine.

A large number of prominent citizens and heavy taxpayers came before the committee and urged that it was a matter of good faith and legal obligation on the part of the city to put West Chester park, Huntington avenue and Commonwealth avenue in suitable condition for travel. It appeared at the hearing, and was shown by the testimony of several of the gentlemen present, that in 1871 a conference was held by representatives of the city, the Water Power Company and a number of prominent gentlemen. These gentlemen proposed to invest large sums of money in the development of the Back Bay, if some concerted action could be taken with a view to the uniform development of the whole territory. It was agreed by the Water Power Company that they would convey the fee of these avenues to the city and fill the same to grade 18 if the city would pay $300,000 and would agree that on the completion of the filling of the avenues that it would proceed forthwith to build the necessary bridges and put the avenues in suitable condition for travel. The capitalists interested in the development of the Back Bay agreed that if this were done they would make the contemplated purchases of territory abutting on the avenues and proceed forthwith to fill the adjacent territory. The city therefore passed an order in accordance with this agreement, which was approved by the Mayor, Nov. 27, 1871. On Dec. 9, 1871, a large purchase of lands on Huntington avenue was made in the faith of this order, which involved an outlay of nearly $2,000,000. Other purchases and improvements followed.

The Boston Water Power Company, the assignees of Munson, finally completed the locations and street named in the order of Nov. 27, 1871, and in 1875 the city accepted the same and paid the sum named in the order (less certain deductions agreed upon). West Chester park was laid out as a public highway in 1873; Huntington avenue and Commonwealth avenue in 1875. The abutters on these avenues joined in making the required releases to the city to carry out the aforesaid contract.

The parties before the committee claimed that everything had been done on the part of all the parties except the city; that they would never have undertaken the development of this large territory and expended so much money in the filling of the same, if they had not believed that the city would put these avenues in suitable condition for travel as soon as they were completed, as it agreed to do in the order of 1871. That they have increased the taxable property of the city by several million dollars, and that all this outlay of money is useless to them until the city fulfils its portion of the agreement. Certain parties on one side of Huntington avenue represented that they had paid to the city nearly one hundred thousand dollars in taxes since their purchase on the faith of this order. As these avenues have been laid out as public highways for more than a year and a half, the committee also call the attention of the Board to the legal obligation of the city to put them in suitable condition, the city being liable to indictments if they remain in their present condition.

The committee also believe that these avenues will be main arteries for travel as soon as completed.

Those are the facts, and as one of the members of the Committee on Streets, I believe that no investment can be more judiciously made, for as soon as those avenues are completed it will induce building in that section, and thereby increase the taxable property of the city. There is quite a number of houses uncompleted there now, and several others are contemplated. The members of the Paving Committee were invited to attend the meeting of the Committee on Streets before referred to, but two of them could not attend. This is a matter which the Joint Committee on Streets has had charge of, and therefore they were called together to hear the statements which those gentlemen had to make, and it was expected that the report would be made to the Council last Friday evening, instead of to the Board of Aldermen. I should hope that the Board of Aldermen would make this additional appropriation of $150,000 to pave these Back Bay streets and avenues in accordance with an agreement made between the city of Boston and Norman C. Munson, or his assigns, and which was approved by the Mayor Nov. 27, 1871.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It seems to me that it is rather an unusual way of getting streets paved. I do not see why my friend from South Boston should not ask for an additional appropriation to pave Ninth street, or why some member of the Council who is interested in another part of Ninth street should not move that $10,000 should be appropriated for that street; or why my friend from Charlestown should not move an amendment of ten thousand dollars to pave a street in Charlestown; or why the Alderman from the West End should not move $10,000 to be applied in that section of the city. If the city of Boston is obliged to keep the public streets in repair, and is indictable for not doing it, I do not see any special reason why Huntington avenue or Commonwealth avenue should be any more favored than Commercial street out to Dorchester and all the other avenues there that they are asking to be paved. People who buy land on streets not thoroughly repaired do so under the impression that at some time the city of Boston will pave and grade those streets and make them more eligible to people who desire to build there. I presume that the owners and abutters on Ninth street think they are unfairly dealt with, because they do not have a special appropriation for paving and grading that portion of the city; and I have no doubt they could use as excellent an argument tending to show that that street should be made an exception to the other parts of the city as these avenues are proposed to be made. My objection is to passing a specific appropriation for that specific purpose, and for that particular section of the city any more than for any other sections of the city. I have no doubt that the grading and paving of those streets ought to be done; the only question is whether the whole of it ought to be done this year. It seems to me that it is settling an important question in five or ten minutes.

Alderman Clark—I take it that the general labors and repairs and the necessary paving of new streets are all estimated in the appropriation which the committee have asked for, and that the repairs on the various streets at the South and West Ends and in Charlestown have been considered by the committee, and that they have included those estimates in the appropriation asked for. But this is asking for an appropriation to carry out an agreement which the city made in 1871, and which has, I presume, been overlooked by the Committee on Paving. It is asking for an amount to do something which the city has agreed to do, and which it is bound to do. This work was commenced in the latter part of 1875 by the building of those bridges immediately after those streets were accepted by the city. A much longer time was given to the contractors than ought to have been given them, and had they been completed by the last of August or first of September, very likely a special appropriation would have been asked for to go on and commence the work upon the streets last year. But this is simply carrying out an agreement and is to continue a work already commenced. We have accepted and paid for those streets, and West Chester park is to be an enormous thoroughfare immediately upon its completion; there is no doubt about that. Commonwealth avenue is now completed to West Chester park, and when it is put in good condition it will be a great thoroughfare as well as ornament to the city of Boston. I have no doubt a good many new houses will be commenced there during the present year even, or during next year at the farthest if this work is done. It is not asking for a special appropriation to repair any particular street; it is simply asking for an appropriation to carry out a bargain and agreement which the City Council entered into in 1871, and to continue work already begun under that agreement. We have already commenced the building of the bridges, and have raised the approaches to those bridges. In my opinion the Paving Department cannot do what is necessary to be done to those streets with the appropriation of eight hundred thousand dollars, including the taking care of Charlestown and the North, West and South ends and all the other ends of the city, and which I believe it is necessary to do. I therefore ask to make the paving appropriation one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Alderman Fitzgerald—My objection is to the manner in which it is put in here. It is practically deciding in five minutes on the expediency of grading those avenues. Although I am a member of the Committee on Paving, this is the first time that I have heard of it, and I know nothing about them. It is deciding in five minutes on the expediency of ten per cent. of the entire paving appropriation; and that is why I object to it. If it is necessary to pave West Chester park, we can consider that as we are going to consider all the other streets of the city. The appropriation can be made, or $75,000 can be added to the paving appropriation, for I think that will be large enough this year, and we can consider whether that amount of money should be spent there. It may not be necessary to expend that amount, and it may be more necessary to spend seventy-five thousand dollars in some other locality. We do not specify what streets shall be paved in the general appropriation that we pass; and that is why I object to this. I think it ought to be considered by the Committee on Paving, and if it is necessary to spend $150,000 in that section I shall vote for it when the time comes. I object to putting it in for a specific appropriation for a particular object that I know nothing about. We simply know that a certain agreement has been made between the city and other parties—not the parties who are asking this; they are not the parties who had anything to do with the agreement any more than I have. I suppose they bought land there under the impression that the city of Boston would pave the streets, and I suppose the city ought to do something towards putting those streets in order, in accordance with that agreement. I do not object to the appropriation, but I do object to deciding in five minutes upon a subject about which I know nothing.

Alderman Thompson—This matter has been called to the attention of the Committee on Streets since the last meeting in consequence of no appropriation having been made for putting those avenues in order. As much as I regret the necessity for increasing the appropriation bill, I certainly look upon this matter as one justly due to the gentlemen interested in this property. They do not ask to have these streets paved, but to have them put in order for travel, macadamized, and the gutters paved. West Chester park is completed, with the exception of the finishing. It is in passable condition now. It requires macadamizing in order to protect people who travel over the avenue. This agreement was made in 1871, when everything was in the full tide of prosperity, and when it was proposed to make more land in that section of the city; and certain parties proposed to fill that land if, after it was filled, the city would put those avenues in order. This document which I hold in my hand was approved by the Mayor on the 27th of November, 1871. On the strength of the pledge of the city's faith in that document, Mr. Munson went to certain citizens and said, Here is a tract of land; we have the pledge of the city that those avenues shall be completed in a certain time. Those gentlemen went forward and purchased seventeen hundred thousand feet of land, paying for it a dollar a foot in cash, or its equivalent at that time. As soon as that was done the assessors taxed these gentlemen for the full price of the land. On the following May they were taxed $1 a foot on the land, which amounted in taxes to some $20,000 or thereabouts. It is only within a few years that the price has been reduced to eighty cents; and we all know that the land is worth nothing like that. At the same time we all know that the city has received that amount in taxes on the land that those people own, and to much of which there is no approach, because the agreement made by the city has not been carried out. But the city is not at fault. One reason why it has been delayed was because of the great fire, when everything was put off, and of course those citizens did not expect that that portion of the city would be looked after first. Then came the panic and there was another unavoidable delay. Now West Chester park has been completed, and also Commonwealth avenue, and those gentlemen have come forward and say they want this agreement carried out. It is a matter of justice that those gentlemen ask for. As I said, I regret the necessity of increasing the appropriation bill; but I say it is right for the city to do this. It is doing the thing that the city is obliged by its agreement to do, and carrying out an agreement made in good faith. In consequence of this agreement, all the lands in that section appreciated, and for which the owners were taxed. We have West-Chester-park street and Commonwealth avenue built, and are we going to leave them in that condition the rest of the year? We all know that West-Chester-park street will probably be travelled over as much as any other street. The Alderman asks if the city is liable for indictment. I understand there has been a case in South Boston where a street remained uncompleted for two years, and the courts decided that the city was liable for indictment if it did not go forward and complete the street and put it in proper condition. Those people do not ask for this on the ground of favor, but as a matter of justice. I have spent a great deal of time in investigating this matter. This agreement was the cause of the sale of 1,700,000 feet of land at $1 a foot. It seems to me we are obliged in good faith to put those streets in good order, and I believe that now is the time to do it. I would also suggest to the Alderman who made the motion that he amend it by providing that the appropriation of $150,000 shall be for this specific purpose and for nothing else.

Alderman Clark—I accept the amendment.

Alderman Fitzgerald—How have they got at these estimates? The Committee on Paving know nothing about it. How have they figured the amounts necessary to do this work?

Alderman Thompson—I will answer that. The attention of the Committee on Streets was called to this document, and to the necessity of the city acting in good faith in carrying it out; and they said this is a matter which the Committee on Paving should attend to. But it was stated that it had to be acted upon on Friday night by the Council, or tonight, in order to get it through; consequently the Joint Committee on Streets and the members of the Paving Committee on the part of this Board were invited to be present and take part in the hearing. But the members of the Paving Committee had a hearing, or rather two members of the committee had a hearing on the Police Committee, and consequently could not appear. Although the Committee on Streets have as much as they can attend to, ordinarily, yet they consented to act in this matter. After investigating this matter and finding that the city was pledged to do this thing by the agreement entered into in 1871, the Superintendent of Streets was sent for and consulted in regard to the matter; and he said it will take so many feet of this, and so many feet of edgestones, and thus and so, and he could not give any estimate less than fifty thousand dollars for each of the three avenues. That is how we arrived at that amount. Although it is important that this appropriation should be made, yet if that amount is not required why, of course, it will not be spent there, and it can be used in some other section of the city and be transferred for that purpose. But I look upon it as a necessity that the city has got to meet, and as an act of justice to the citizens who have been paying taxes to the amount of a hundred thousand dollars. There is one particular tract of land that sold for seventeen hundred thousand dollars, and the taxes that the city has already received on that land amounts to nearly one hundred thousand dollars; and that is land on Huntington avenue, with no manner of approach to it. The property is over there and they can do nothing with it. They simply say, You put your street in order so that we can make our land available and sell it. One gentleman said to me, If you or any other gentleman will so come forward and take my share in this for fifty thousand dollars, I will leave it; but do what you can to pledge the city to carry out its agreement. I hope the Board will do so.

Alderman Clark—I withdraw the motion to add to the paving appropriation, and now move that a separate item be added to the appropriation bill of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, to be expended upon Huntington and Commonwealth avenues and West Chester-park street.

Alderman Burnham—I have, in common with many other members of this Board, spent a great deal of time and anxious thought upon this matter of decreasing the appropriation bill, and it has been a query in my mind whether in some matters we were not taking a course that is hardly justifiable; and I would say, now that the appropriation for paving and grading streets is before us, that I am in favor of increasing the appropriation and that I think it should be made one million dollars. The appropriation was $950,000 last year, which was a decrease from the year before, and now it has been cut down a hundred thousand dollars more.

Mr. Chairman, I believe this reduction in the appropriation for paving streets is economizing in the wrong direction. I only see one true course in regard to streets, paving, bridges, and such like things to be, to annually repair the wear of the past, gradually to consummate what has been wisely begun, and in some degree reach forward to the growing wants of the future. Now, I believe we all admit that we must keep our repairs up to a standard as high, at least, as this: spend annually a sum sufficient to keep our streets, paving, bridges, building, Common and squares, sewers, etc., as good at the close of the year as at the beginning. I call this a self-evident proposition, and in that direction have nothing more to say. As to the growing wants of our city, I believe it is wise to meet some of them by present appropriation—in these days of business depression I would not say all, but a certain class. If wants exist that are inevitable things, if future development will without any question require their being supplied, they are worthy of our consideration now; and I do not see any force in the assertion that there is not an immediate present need, and therefore the business prostration of the hour should lead us to give them the go-by. As I see it, it is unthrifty to push on to the future what should be done now. It is a false economy, that, under these circumstances, sets aside, for the time being, things which must soon be done, and therefore I distrust the spirit that is at work today. If I understand it, this kind of economy adopted, continued in, is likely to paralyze us altogether. It is the kind that kills all enterprise. This kind of economy is worse than worthless—it loses today by putting off that which must be done at a time near at hand, and can be done now with the greatest saving, to be done when it must, somewhere in the future, at a greatly accumulated cost. Is it not evident that streets already begun must be finished?—if partially graded must the not be fully constructed? Shall we cease to pave our worn-out streets? Shall we cease to extend our sewers in new territories, or to further consider our project of intercepting sewerage? Shall we not build schoolhouses when needed, because of the business prostration of the hour? This intelligent Board cannot give other than the right answer—a belief in the future forbids it. I am not ashamed to make my record that I believe in the future; the present darkness to me already heralds a coming day. I say it needs no prophet's vision to behold Boston's name and interests spanning the present dark hour and reaching over to future light. And here let me say emphatically, that future is to be cared for by this Board of Aldermen as truly as is the present; in spite of weak-kneed croakers, Boston will not go to seep just yet; nor will she long stand still; neither will she go backward and die out altogether. On the contrary, her march is onward to the goal of a higher rank among the cities of these United States. No city has better vantage ground, and you all know it, and the country knows it. The inherent energy of Yankee pluck, though dormant today, is sure to waken to life and activity. Our modes of doing may change. There will be changes in our industries, but our demands for commerce and domestic manufactures are to exceed the past. Five years ahead will differ only from five years ago in the intensity that shall mark the next swing of the business pendulum. Yes, Mr. Chairman, I assert it again, the call of this hour is to believe in the future of Boston. Our capitalists have learned—a bitter lesson, by the way—that the dazzle of the investments toward the setting sun, that are now so shrunken and depleted as to nearly paralyze all enterprise, was only glitter, and that the real lies nearer home. Our next outlook will not be toward railroads in the far West. When this business paralysis gives place to health we shall have our line of railroad North and West, via Hoosac, to Ontario, and South and West, via Poughkeepsie Bridge, to the coal and petroleum and the wheat fields, and these, as well as the vast beef and pork products of the mighty West, will come to Boston—come to us because, everything else being equal, business always chooses to itself a course toward the shortest and most level line, and the best harbor for the outgo to the Old World; and we shall take, for the same reasons, the returning commerce that is to supply a vast importing want of our inland States. Is not, then, Mr. Chairman, our course of action in regard to improvements that reach the future somewhat clearly defined? and shall we not say, if improvements calculated to develop foreshadowing wants are today found to be justifiable; if these improvements can be done today at the minimum cost; if they involve immediate benefit to the people, and are calculated to accelerate business in the present and future; if these consequences will follow our act, that act cannot be in the wrong direction. Let us at least not take the backward track. To appropriate for these needed improvements the same amount as heretofore is only holding our own at best, but to appropriate less is a manifestation of a want of pluck which looked back upon in the near future will bring a tinge of shame that this Board of Aldermen of the city of Boston had so little faith in Boston.

I believe it is wise to make this additional appropriation, although I do not believe it should be made by a special appropriation.

Alderman O'Brien—If we pass an appropriation for $850,000 for paving, I see nothing to prevent the committee from making this improvement if it is actually necessary, and if it exceeds in importance all the other improvements that come before that committee. Why this Paving Committee should have so much money every year is something that I do not exactly understand. We tonight went to work deliberately and cut down our appropriations for schools and schoolhouses, and now we say that the paving of our streets exceeds so much in importance our schoolhouses, and that we cannot cut down that appropriation, but it must be kept up to the very highest possible appropriation that has been made for years. I say that in this great depression of business, when people find it hard work to pay their taxes, every department of the City Government should be cut down, the Paving as well as the School Department. The Sewer Department, for instance, two years ago, asked for $300,000; last year, owing to the depression in business, they asked for only $200,000; and this year, owing to the depression in business and to the fact that taxes are so hard to pay, we ask merely for $150,000. Are our streets more important than our sewers, that the Paving Department must be kept up to the very highest point? I do not see why, if this work is necessary, it cannot be done out of the $850,000. There is nothing in the matter before us now that would prevent the Paving Committee from doing that work out of the $850,000. They do not give us any schedule of the streets they are going to grade or put in order. You appropriate this money, and they recommend from time to time what work they want to do; and I believe it will be a very proper inquiry for that committee to make if this work does not exceed in importance almost any other work that comes before them, and if they report to this body that it does, and ask for $150,000 to do it, I shall certainly vote for it, and have it come out of the general paving appropriation. But why we should increase our appropriation now I do not understand; and I do not believe in it. I hope it will pass just as it is recommended by the committee.

Alderman Thompson—In answer to the Alderman's inquiry why this appropriation should be made, I think he understands from his experience here why it should be increased. He knows quite well that last year $950,000 were appropriated for paving, and it is all gone now.

Alderman O'Brien—I would correct the gentleman. The appropriation for paving last year was $900,000.

Alderman Thompson—And $50,000 were transferred to that appropriation; and we all so rejoiced that there was a surplus during the winter with which to employ poor persons in removing snow. Now, sir, if there is any committee that should be provided with means it is the Committee on Paving, because we know how dependent a great many people are for labor, and how they come here for the city to employ them. The Alderman speaks of the case of the School Department, and asks why they should not be reduced. Why, sir, they have reduced their appropriation this year. They asked for $1,707,000, and the committee of which I have the honor to be a member took the liberty of reducing it $123,000, and mainly in the salaries of teachers; but, as I said before, and regret exceedingly, that that action has not been agreeable to the School Committee. While I am up I wish to correct a statement made a while ago in regard to our schools. I said it cost the city of Boston a hundred per cent. more for salaries; I should have said the expense of maintaining the schools of Boston was a hundred per cent. more than in any other city in the United States, and I have that from an ex-member of the School Committee and this Board, who has all the statistics, and if it is desirable to show them it can be done.

Alderman O'Brien—The Alderman certainly misunderstood me. I meant to say that we had reduced the appropriation for every department—for schools, for public buildings, for sewers—and now we say that this Paving Department transcends all other departments so much that we cannot reduce it a dollar. I believe there is more chance for economy in that department than in any other department in the City Government. I believe that the appearance of the streets of Boston is better, and that they are better taken care of today than the best streets of New York, Philadelphia or Baltimore; and if we desire to save money, I believe that is the very department to save it in. If we turn our attention during the coming year merely to the repair of streets, I believe we should be just as well off at the end of the year as we are now, and that our streets would be in better condition than the streets of any other leading city in the country. I assert the fact here that we expend too much money on our streets. I do not believe there is need of paving every street in the city of Boston, and some time during the past week I have thought I would stand up here and advocate a reduction of this appropriation of $850,000; but when these new schemes are brought forward, I think the Paving Committee can do this work, if it is necessary, out of that sum, if we pass this order as it is.

Alderman Clark—The appropriation for paving has been reduced a hundred thousand dollars. It stands at $850,000, instead of $950,000 last year. It is a very liberal reduction for the Paving Department. I believe that the Alderman [Alderman O'Brien] introduced an order into this Board which if carried out will very largely add to the expenditures of the department, namely, watering all the principal thoroughfares at the expense of the city. I believe it a very judicious order, and that it is right and a good thing to do, and I shall vote for it when it comes before the Board; but that adds to the expenditure of the Paving Department, and certainly it does not look towards economy if you pile upon them such orders as the sprinkling of the highways and byways of the city. It would not take less than $150,000 a year. Now, I do not understand that there has been any curtailing in the means of educating the children of the city. I understand from the chairman of the Committee on Public Instruction that by the letting out of certain contracts about $20,000 less will be required than was expected. But the appropriation for paving has been reduced a hundred thousand dollars from last year, and we ask for a hundred and fifty thousand dollars to carry out an agreement made in 1871 to put certain streets and avenues in order when they were raised to grade 18 and accepted by the city. It has nothing to do with the appropriation for the Paving Department. It can go into the appropriation for paving if the Board see fit, for I am willing to trust it to that committee, although I think a special appropriation for that purpose would look better and sound better to the public if it was said that the Committee on Paving had asked for $850,000, and that the city to carry out an agreement entered into in 1871—which was a very wise agreement, and which has increased property so that the city has received $100,000 for it in taxes, which shows that it was a wise agreement for this City Council to enter upon. I am very glad to know that it is considered—and I am perfectly well aware of the fact that it is so considered all over the country,—that the streets of Boston are kept in a cleaner and better condition than those of any other city. I am very glad to know it.

Alderman O'Brien—I don't mean to stand up here and oppose this improvement; but I believe that the Committee on Paving can make this improvement out of their appropriation. The gentleman last up has alluded to the order that was put in to water the streets. It was put in more for the economy of the matter than anything else. It was put in for the Committee on Paving to consider and ascertain whether it would not be a saving to the city of Boston to water the road beds of the main thoroughfares instead of having them blown away every summer affecting the health and comfort of our citizens.

Alderman Burnham—I am very glad to hear the gentleman on the opposite side of the Board speak of his confidence in the Paving Committee and say that he has no desire to make a special appropriation of this $150,000, because I can most heartily vote for the additional appropriation for paving, while I could not as heartily make it a special appropriation. I think the proper way is to make this appropriation and leave it in the hands of the Paving Committee to make those improvements. It is well known that there are petitions before the Board for the paving of other sections of the city. It may be that the demand for them will be stronger than that for the completion of Commonwealth avenue. There is one petition signed by many heavy taxpayers which has already been referred to the committee, for the paving and grading and fixing the street from Congress-street Bridge over the new territory recently filled on the north side of the harbor. Now, it may be possible that it would be for the interest of the city that that should receive the attention of the Committee on Paving. I could mention other sections of the city where similar improvements are petitioned for. It may be we might not want to spend $150,000 in this one direction. I am glad that the standard of our streets is to be kept up, and I believe that we need this amount this year, and should grant it; but I hope the amendment will simply be that we should increase the paving appropriation $150,000.

Alderman Robinson—I have not taken any part in this debate. The Committee on Paving were animated with a spirit of economy when these estimates were made. If we had listened to all the petitions and demands for paving and repairs on streets, instead of asking for $900,000—which has been cut down $50,000—we should have asked for a million and a half, if not more. But we were animated by a spirit of economy, to let that go which was not absolutely necessary, considering the depression of the times; and we asked for $900,000. There was not a single thought entered our minds that it was necessary to build any of those avenues spoken of to-night. I knew nothing about it until Saturday, when some persons mentioned that Governor Rice and other distinguished gentlemen, whose names have been read here tonight, had made an agreement, which has been presented by the Committee on Streets. I asked afterwards the chairman of the Committee on Streets about it, and saw this document for the first time. But I want to say that the appropriation of $900,000 asked for by the committee was the very smallest possible amount with which they could keep the streets in repair, and it had no connection whatever with this work. If that is deemed necessary to be done, the appropriation will have to be increased on that account, and if any portion of the people desire new improvements, the committee cannot possibly do justice to the city and get along with less than $850,000; and then a great many things will be laid aside which are necessary to be done.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope the impression will not go abroad that this Board has made an appropriation of $150,000 to satisfy any gentlemen. There is no agreement between the city of Boston and those gentlemen coming here. There is no more agreement between those gentlemen and the city than there is between any other gentlemen whose lands are upon a street that is not macadamized. They are here simply to appeal to our sense of what they consider fair play. There was an agreement between Mr. Munson and the city of Boston, and under that agreement they claim that the city of Boston should do certain things; but so far as they are concerned there is no agreement between them and us. It is simply whether public travel and convenience, and not simply the private convenience of those who own land, demand that something should be done in that locality. I think myself that public convenience demands that something shall be done on West Chester-park street, which is newly built. I believe a great many carriages will pass over it out Beacon street and to the Brighton road, which is a short way to get there for the people at the South End; and that is why I shall vote for it, if at all, and not because there is any agreement between those gentlemen and the city of Boston. I have no doubt that those gentlemen who bought seventeen hundred thousand dollars' worth of land did so with the idea that this should be done to accommodate them. The principal reason I shall vote for this is because public travel and public convenience require it, but I do not think that it will require $150,000 this year.

Alderman Robinson—Will the gentleman state who these assignees of Mr. Munson are?

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Boston Water Power Company were the assignees, and they bought that land on speculation. I respect that desire which makes them wish to speculate in Back Bay lands, and they undoubtedly did so with the idea that the city of Boston would do these things; but up to this time the city of Boston has not thought it necessary. No bridge had been built across that street then, but now it is connected and there is some reason why they should come to the city and ask that the street be put in order for public travel. I think that a part of it should be done at least, but I think $150,000 this year is a little too much; a part of this amount could well be expended for this. If the gentleman opposite would make his amendment $100,000 I think we could accomplish all we want this year.

Alderman Thompson—I did not quite finish my speech when the Alderman opposite interrupted me a little while ago. My friend on the right has answered the question that it will require this additional $150,000 out of the usual course, and I was going on to say that it is estimated that these gentlemen paid seventeen hundred thousand dollars for seventeen hundred thousand feet of land, which at fifty cents a foot amounts to $900,000, and consequently at a dollar a foot it would amount to double, though I only rise for the purpose of asking my friend to make an amendment that the appropriation for paving be increased to a million dollars.

Alderman Clark—I withdraw the amendment for the specific appropriation, and move to amend the paving appropriation by increasing it to $1,000,000.

Alderman O'Brien—I would like to ask why the Committee on the Auditor's Estimates reduced the appropriation from $900,000 to $850,000?

Alderman Slade—I was one of that committee, and can answer the question in a very few words. The motion was made and carried without any reason given at all. I opposed it very strongly, and protested against cutting it any lower than was asked for; therefore I am in favor of putting it back. If we add $100,000 to the appropriation we can get along very well.

Alderman Clark—In answer to the Alderman from Ward 21 [Alderman Fitzgerald], I admit that there is no agreement between the city and the gentlemen who came here and asked that those streets be put in order, but the agreement was made between the city and Norman C. Munson, and was passed by the City Council and proved by the Mayor, Nov. 27, 1871, and there is an express agreement that if certain things are done by Norman C. Munson, the city would do certain other things—that is, put the streets in order for public travel. Now, the city did proceed immediately to put the streets in the condition that they agreed to, by building the bridges and other things last year, and this appropriation is asked for simply to go on and carry out the agreement which the city entered into at that time. There was no agreement made with those parties on Huntington avenue and West Chester-park street, but the agreement was made between the city and Mr. Munson, and that agreement should be kept in good faith.

Alderman O'Brien—Did Mr. Munson ever fulfil his part of the agreement?

Alderman Clark—Mr. Munson did fulfil his agreement to the letter. He raised those streets up to grade 18; they settled, and he raised them again, and at the time of their taking by the city, a deduction was made of some $30,000, on account of the fact that Huntington avenue had settled and was not fully up to grade 18.

Alderman Robinson—Did the city pay $300,000?

Alderman Clark—The city paid $265,000 to the Boston Water Power Company, instead of $300,000, as agreed to.

Alderman Fitzgerald—So far as the Committee on Appropriations were concerned, they cut down the appropriation for paving because, I presume, the greater part of them were under the impression that the city could do less paving this year than in former years. While $850,000 is appropriated, it is not specified for any particular street. If the Committee on Paving were to report the amount necessary to be done—taking the petitions before them as a guide—they would ask for $2,000,000. Now, the Committee on Paving, without looking into any specific street, or the wants of any particular section of the city, have asked for $850,000 for paving, leaving it to the future to determine what streets that money shall be expended upon. Huntington avenue and West Chester park could well come in for a part of this amount. It seems to me that a hundred thousand dollars will be sufficient to meet all the wants of Huntington avenue and West Chester park for the present.

Alderman Gibson—It seems to me that these avenues ought to be put in proper repair. Probably every gentleman knows how the surface of the street crumbles and washes and blows away before the edgestones are set and watercourses laid; this season it may not be necessary to do any more, and it seems to me that now is a good time to do it, when everything is so cheap. This expenditure will undoubtedly bring many improvements on the property, and the city will receive some return for it in taxes.

Alderman Clark's amendment was adopted.

City Hospital—$120,000. Alderman Slade—Before finally passing this order, I wish to call attention to the appropriation for the City Hospital. The trustees asked for an appropriation which they say is necessary for sanitary reasons. I had the pleasure of going to the City Hospital and examining every part of it, and I am satisfied that they ought to have this extra $5000, which has been cut off. I think every dollar spent in the hospital is spent as economically as it is in the power of man to do it. The servants of that institution are paid lower than in any institution I have ever seen. Last year they dug out from under one of the wings an immense amount of sewage that has caused a great deal of annoyance to the inmates of the building, and which was said to be almost unbearable. They have got one wing commenced, and now the other wing is commenced and is in as bad condition as the first one was; and they say it cannot be continued without this appropriation was made. I think they ought to have it. If I did not think so, I would not advocate it. I hope this Board will add the $5000 they ask for, and which the Committee on the Auditor's Estimates cut off. I am not one of the Committee on City Hospital, and I would a great deal rather this motion would come from that committee. I think any member of this Board who would go there would say it is necessary.

Alderman O'Brien—The Committee on City Hospital examined this matter and thought the appropriation should be made as reported by the trustees; and why the Committee on the Auditor's Estimates made this reduction I cannot understand, except from the general impression that the City Hospital is very expensive. I am convinced that it is a great charity, but at the same time it is a very expensive one, but if they are going through with the work I cannot see very well where the appropriation can be reduced.

Alderman Slade moved that the appropriation be made $125,000.

Alderman Thompson—This matter was carefully considered by the Committee on the Auditor's Estimates, and several gentlemen gave their opinion in regard to it, and they thought it could be put off this year. On the representations made in the committee, I voted to strike it out, and it would be very inconsistent in me now to vote on the other side. I don't know but this institution is conducted economically; I only know that the gentleman at the head of it, when he represented the city of Charlestown, was the most expensive man we ever had in connection with our affairs.

Alderman Clark—I am very glad of the opportunity to vote to increase this appropriation $5000. I voted in committee against cutting it down. I believe it is right that they should have it. I believe with the gentleman [Alderman Slade] it is one of the most benevolent institutions in the city of Boston, and that it is most economically conducted. I regret that my friend from the Bunker Hill District [Alderman Thompson] should have so poor an opinion of the President of the institution [Mr. William H. Kent], under whose management the expenses have been reduced $1.50 per head.

The amendment was adopted.

Widening and Extension of Streets—$125,000.

Alderman Clark—I wish to call the attention of the Board to the fact that the appropriation for Laying Out and Widening Streets was reduced $75,000. It seems to me that that is a tremendous reduction, as it places the Street Commissioners in a position to make no improvements whatever, even though they are absolutely necessary. It seems to me that it ought to be increased to $200,000 at least. Much of this money will be required to pay for streets already laid out. For instance, if a party in South street, the widening of which the city is committed to and has appropriated $40,000 for widening at Summer street, desires to commence building, and gives notice of his intention, he will be notified that he must set back his building in order to give a part to the city to widen the street to sixty feet. If this amount of money is put into the hands of the Street Commissioners, it would not allow an improvement of that kind. Notice has been given of intention to build on Chauncy street, where the city inaugurated a policy of widening by taking land of the Sears estate. With so small an appropriation the Street Commissioners would not be able to carry on such work as is absolutely necessary. I should oppose any large expenditure in street improvements unless it would be by a loan. I should not wish to put in the tax levy a large amount to be spent upon widening streets this year; but at the same time they should not be cut down to less than $100,000. I move that the appropriation be fixed at $200,000—the amount they ask for.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope that motion will not prevail. The Alderman was a member of the Committee on Appropriations, and I think he will remember that we cut down the appropriation to $100,000, and he afterwards got it raised a little. My impression is that we should have no more street widenings this year, or for some time to come. We have spent $22,000,000 in widening streets during the past few years, and I think it is time to stop. We have appropriated this money to meet expenses which the Alderman says must be met, and the committee were decided in the opinion that no more money should be spent in widening streets.

Alderman Clark's motion was lost.

Police—$841,300. Alderman Slade—I don't rise to make a motion, but if the Board will allow me to make a single statement, I wish to say that under the head of police there are fifteen special officers for the bathhouses. The Committee on Appropriations are of opinion that these officers should be appointed for four months, and they have taken out of the estimates of the Police Committee the sum of $490. I ask to have that placed on the appropriation for Public Baths. Unless some money is given to the Department of Public Baths we cannot employ these special policemen, because there is not a cent appropriated. I urged it in the Committee on the Auditor's Estimates. I give the Board this warning, that unless this appropriation is made for that purpose I don't see how the public baths can be carried on.

Alderman Thompson—I can tell the gentleman how to get out of that, and that is by simply coming to the Board of Aldermen and requesting the Board to direct the Chief of Police to detail so many officers.

Alderman Robinson—They can get good men for the bath houses at $2.50 a day, and there is no reason why this expense should be charged to the Police Department.

Alderman Viles—As chairman of the Committee on Baths, I am informed by those who have been on the committee, that $25,000 is as little as that department can be run with. We shall call on the Police Department for good men; we don't want poor men there. We don't want an antediluvian, because he would soon get cleaned out.

Alderman Robinson—The policemen cannot be well spared at the bath houses during the summer when the police force are taking their vacations.

The several orders in the appropriation bill were passed as amended, and also the order levying a tax for the ensuing year.

A motion to reconsider by Alderman Thompson, hoping it would not prevail, was lost. Sent down.

BOATS UPON THE PUBLIC GARDEN POND.

Alderman Fitzgerald presented a petition from F. A. Splaine, requesting a hearing on his petition for leave to place boats on the Public Garden pond. The petitioner represents that the Committee on Common has given the privilege to a person who is an agent for others, while the petitioner himself has several times offered to pay for the privilege.

Alderman Clark—I move that that petition be indefinitely postponed.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope no action of that kind will be taken upon the petition. It was given to me to present, and I don't know anything about it. Unless there are good reasons for it, I should hope that it would not be indefinitely postponed, as it was directed to the City Council.

Alderman Robinson—That petition was before the Committee on Common and Public Squares, and we had a full hearing. Mr. Splaine made a statement before the committee, and the party who lets the boats also made a statement in the presence of that gentleman, and he stated entirely contrary to what is said in that petition. He stated that some years ago a gentleman formerly a member of this Board, loaned him money and assisted him to buy his boats, and that he owns them now himself. Taking the two men, Mr. Paget was the better man, and he received the right to put boats upon the Public Garden.

Alderman Clark—The Committee on Common have prepared a report giving Mr. Splaine leave to withdraw. He has been an applicant for that position two or three years, and has been patiently heard by the committee; and every year he has been given leave to withdraw by the unanimous vote of the committee. The party who is running those boats did borrow money from a gentleman to buy them, and he has paid for them. He is a poor, sickly man, almost in consumption, and one reason urged against him was that he went South to spend his winters. He cannot stand the rigors of this climate; but last summer he was not able to earn money enough to go South. I have seen some squibs in the newspapers, and I think I saw one in the Post, that was incorrect. The parties came before the committee with counsel, and they gave Mr. Paget a patient hearing; and Mr. Splaine asked permission to be present, and was present. It was stated in the papers that he asked to be present and was refused. Mr. Splaine was present at the hearing given Mr. Paget, and Mr. Paget was not present at the hearing given to Mr. Splaine. Mr. Paget was put under oath, so that the committee might know that his statements were true. Two years ago the same attempt was made to deprive him of this privilege, and we remember a petition from almost every man, woman and child that he be allowed to continue to run boats in the pond, and the institution on Berkeley street sent in a petition, sent by the managers, who stated that he had been very kind to the children there, and they thanked him for the uniform courtesy that he bestowed upon them. It is a clear case of an attempt by Mr. Splaine to deprive a poor, honest man of his business that he has enjoyed many years; and the statement in regard to other parties owning boats is false in every particular.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the petition was placed upon file.

Alderman Clark submitted a report from the Committee on Common, stating that after giving a full hearing on the petition of F. A. Splaine for leave to place row boats upon the Public Garden pond, they recommend that the petitioner have leave to withdraw. Accepted. Sent down.

SOUTH BOSTON RAILROAD.

Alderman Burnham—There is a matter upon our table which has laid there six weeks, and it is doing injustice to the section in which I live. I move to take from the table the order for the thirteenth location of the South Boston Railroad Company, giving them the privilege of running their cars to the northern depots, and hope that it will be acted upon at the present time.

Alderman Thompson—I rise to a point of order—that the gentleman is out of order, as motions, orders and resolutions have not been called for.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted a report, which was acted upon, and the discussion was resumed.

Alderman Burnham—I hardly think the gentleman on the opposite side has been courteous to me. Motions are often made under the call for reports of committees. I hardly like to be crowded off in that way, though I am willing to give way until the reports of committees are all in, and then I shall bring up this matter.

Two reports were submitted and acted on, and Alderman Thompson offered an order, but was called to order by Alderman Clark, on the ground that motions and orders had not been called for, and the Mayor ruled the point well taken.

The Mayor called for motions, orders and resolutions, and some routine business was transacted, and Alderman Burnham again moved to take from the table the thirteenth order for the location of the South Boston Railroad Company.

Alderman Thompson—I rise to a point of order. The reports of committees are still in order.

The Mayor—The Chair has called for motions, orders and resolutions; the reports of committees have passed.

Alderman Burnham—I do not intend at this late hour to detain the Board. My motion is that the order be taken from the table.

Alderman Thompson—I move that that motion be laid upon the table.

Alderman Burnham—I do not think that is a right motion to make.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I raise the point that that motion is not in order.

The Mayor ruled Alderman Thompson's motion out of order.

Alderman Burnham—My motion was that the order be taken from the table.

Alderman Thompson—And I moved that that be laid upon the table.

Alderman Fitzgerald—How can a motion be entertained to lay upon the table what is on the table already.

Alderman Burnham—If the Alderman from Charlestown will withdraw his motion I will move that the order be specially assigned to next Monday afternoon.

Alderman Thompson moved to adjourn. Lost.

Alderman Burnham renewed the motion to take the order from the table.

Alderman Thompson moved to table the motion to take from the table.

Alderman Fitzgerald raised the point that no such motion was in order, and the Chair ruled it out of order.

Alderman O'Brien—I call for the question. If the gentleman's [Alderman Thompson] motion is not in order, the question now before us is upon taking the order from the table.

The Mayor—The Chair waited to see if an appeal would be taken from his decision.

Alderman Thompson—I hope that motion—

Alderman Fitzgerald—I raise the point of order that no discussion is in order upon the question of taking from the table.

The Mayor ruled the point well taken, and was about to put the question, when Alderman Thompson said: I hope the motion will not prevail, and—

Alderman Fitzgerald again raised the point that no discussion was in order, and hoped they would not deal with this like boys, but that they would come to a vote upon it, as it was getting late.

The Mayor—The Chair thinks this is not a debatable question, if the Board insists upon having the rule enforced.

The motion to take from the table was declared carried.

Alderman Thompson called for the verification of the vote by yeas and nays, and the result was verified—yeas 10, nays 1—Alderman Thompson voting nay.

Alderman Thompson moved to adjourn. Lost.

The Chair read the order and it was put upon its passage.

Alderman O'Brien—This question has been before us a long time. I believe every member of the Board understands it, and I now call for the previous question.

Alderman Thompson—There is no previous question here. I desire to call the attention of the Board to the phraseology of this order, and would like an explanation. The order reads as follows: [The Alderman read the order.] The order is different from any other one ever passed. The words "subject to the provisions of law, and until otherwise ordered by the Board of Aldermen," are omitted. Now if this order is passed and this right is given to the South Boston Railroad Company, it is irrevocable and cannot be rescinded. It is out of the hands of the City Council. The provisions usually incorporated in orders of this kind have been left out. There is no doubt about the mistake, and before it is put upon its passage gentlemen had better look into the subject a little more carefully, and I would therefore recommend that the order be recommitted to the Committee on Paving, that this correction may be made. You will see when the order is passed, it is out of the hands of the Board of Aldermen and we have no control over the corporation in this connection.

Alderman O'Brien—Are not all the horse railroad tracks under the control of the City Government, under any circumstances?

Alderman Thompson—I understand not, unless there is a provision of law authorizing it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope that motion will not prevail. It was drafted by the Committee on Paving and by the Superintendent of Streets, and it is correct. It is useless to say to this Board that the Board of Aldermen have no control over the tracks of any corporation to whom they give a license to run their cars in the streets of the city. The statutes of the Commonwealth give us that right, and if the gentleman has no other objections to offer, and if he thinks he can make that ordinance better, let him offer an amendment. It is only done to make delay. The people of South Boston are suffering for this accommodation. The Committee on Paving reported weeks ago and the question should be decided here, so that the people of South Boston and the railroad corporation will not be kept upon the rack here week after week. If we intend to grant this location, let us do it, and let the people know it. If the gentleman has an amendment, let him offer it. This order was drafted by the gentleman who has drafted all the orders for locations for horse railroads for several years past.

Alderman Thompson—There are other reasons why this order should not be passed, but this was the reason which in my opinion the Board should consider first. The words "subject to the provisions of law and until otherwise ordered by the Board of Aldermen" are incorporated in every other order passed by this Board, and they are left out in this case. It was placed in other orders by the City Solicitor, and as this order appears now, it is imperfect and should not be passed without those words. Mr. Mayor, some month or six weeks ago, when this question came up, the South Boston and Middlesex railroads appeared here with their petitions. The South Boston Railroad desired to go to the northern depots, and it was proposed and agreed here that if they went there the Middlesex road would go around into Beach street and Federal street upon the tracks of the South Boston Railroad to the Old Colony Depot, and the South Boston road would not object to that, and neither would the Middlesex Railroad object to it. The petition of the Middlesex road for that location has been before the Paving Committee ever since that time. I don't understand why the committee do not report. It will be remembered that the president of the Metropolitan Railroad spoke of this agreement as a marriage between the two roads, and on that suggestion it was recommended that the two orders should go through together, and that the two roads should have the same rights. That was the understanding and agreement between these two roads, and I don't understand why the petition of the Middlesex Railroad should be kept back and this order be reported upon and passed, thereby giving the South Boston corporation the privilege of the business over the Middlesex and Metropolitan roads without an equivalent. That is one of my objections to the passage of this order at present and until the two orders can go through together. But, Mr. Mayor, the reason why the South Boston Railroad objected to the Committee on Paving making their report in regard to the Middlesex location—and I am very sorry that the Committee on Paving should be subject to the dictates and restrictions that the South Boston corporation has put upon them, that they are not at liberty to make a report upon a petition from citizens and an independent corporation, without the consent of the South Boston Railroad corporation, who will not consent until the Middlesex Railroad take up their curve that goes around from Lincoln street into Beach street, and that is why this order is kept back, and that is why the Committee on Paving is siding with the South Boston corporation at the expense of the Middlesex corporation and the citizens at the northern section of the city. The Middlesex Railroad desired to use this location granted them a year ago, and which they could not use until a month ago on account of the injunction of the courts; and now they are requested to take up this curve so that all the cars which pass into Washington street from Charlestown and Somerville and the northern part of the city shall be obliged to go around into Federal street and return by way of Beach street. Now, sir, it seems to me that that is a very unjust thing, and it is very unjust to require this corporation and the citizens of the northern section of the city, who have equal rights with those of South Boston, to be compelled to go out of their way into Federal street on Sundays when they desire to reach the section of the city in which are all the churches and museums, and that section of which we have heard so much about the people of Roxbury desiring to get. You will require the people of Charlestown to come down Washington street and go around to the Old Colony on Sundays, when there is n't a passenger there and no business, simply for the purpose of getting to Boylston street in the direction of these churches. I wish the Board to consider that fact, because it is a great injustice to the citizens of that section. I don't know why we should be compelled to go to that section of the city because there is a little jealousy between these two corporations. Why should n't we have the same privilege to go to the churches that other sections have? Then I think the Board should consider the fact that the Middlesex company have the privilege of running only twelve cars an hour, and their only desire was to run one line by the United States Hotel and seven cars around Federal street; and on Sunday they would not run any of their cars into Federal street, but they would all go around the United States Hotel. Now, sir, the South Boston Railroad Corporation, by some rule or order that has passed, this Board can run any number of cars on Tremont street. They can run twenty-four cars an hour, and I presume they do run from twenty-four to thirty cars. And not only that, they have a special grant to run up Washington street to Milk, and they are not restricted in the number of cars they run there; while here comes the Middlesex corporation, wanting to run five cars around the United States Hotel, and this restriction is put upon them, and simply because they don't want to take up their track. Now, sir, without any reference to the Middlesex and without caring for their interests particularly, I speak for the interests of the citizens where I reside, and who are compelled to go to Federal street every time they want to go to Boylston street. They want the same privileges that other sections of the city have, and for that they should not be carried out of their course every time they come into Boston. I wish the Board to consider these facts. It seems to me a clear thing that the Committee on Paving—

Alderman Fitzgerald—I raise the point of order that the gentleman is not talking to the question. He is talking about the location of the Middlesex Railroad, and he has talked upon that question for the last twenty minutes. It is not the question before the Board.

Alderman Thompson—I was giving my reasons why this order should not be passed. It was that this corporation has all these privileges—and if we remember all the arguments that the corporation made when it came here with tears in its eyes and told how many cars they were running and how few passengers they have—when they can run on Tremont street with no passengers in their cars simply because they have more cars than they require; and how the Middlesex corporation is taking away their business and passengers, and how they are unable to pay dividends; but he did n't tell you that the stock of this Middlesex corporation is selling twenty-five per cent. below par, and the South Boston fifteen per cent. above par; he did n't tell you anything about that; and this company have n't run down to Lincoln street thirty days by the Boston & Albany Depot, and yet the counsel of the South Boston comes here and tells you how his corporation is sufferer. Now, I think as a matter of justice that this order should be re-committed, properly drawn and presented here by the Committee on Paving, because it is clearly an omission or mistake on the part of the committee or their clerk, for you cannot find a single order that has been passed by the city for the last three years that is made out as this has been. I hope the motion to recommit will prevail.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I should not have arisen to speak upon this question, but the Committee on Paving are accused of being in the interest of one corporation as opposed to another. Now, sir, that is false. I want to say in justification of the committee of which I am a member—

Alderman Thompson—I will ask the member—

Alderman Fitzgerald—Mr. Mayor, I refuse to give the gentleman the floor or allow him to ask any questions.

Alderman Thompson—Under the rule of the Board I have the right to ask for a question.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Under the rule he has occupied enough time in discussing the Middlesex Railroad location, which is not before the Board, and I want to say something about the South Boston, which is the question before us. This question has nothing to do with the Middlesex Railroad. If those corporations had private arrangements among themselves, which the committee did not recognize, and if the Middlesex Railroad got beaten, so much the worse for the Middlesex Railroad. We do not take advice from the counsel of the Middlesex Railroad. The committee did not do it, and if the gentleman has had at his ears a mentor in the shape of counsel for the Middlesex road—

Alderman Thompson—The gentleman is out of order. He is making allusions to myself which are entirely untrue.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is true, sir. I saw him.

Alderman Thompson—Not while I was speaking.

Alderman Fitzgerald—You would have made a better speech if you had been let alone. The Alderman has occupied his entire argument in connection with the Middlesex Railroad, and it can be met now. Our reasons for postponing the order on the Middlesex Railroad location have nothing to do with the location of the South Boston Railroad. They have as little to do with each other as the poles or the antipodes. I know they have something to do with each other in the minds of the gentlemen who belong to the railroad corporations; but so far as the Committee on Paving are concerned, any bargain, private or public, made between these rival corporations we have nothing to do with, and we do not care about them. Our question is simply whether public interest required the allowing of the South Boston Railroad to go down from Cornhill to the depots, and we reported that it was expedient. The Alderman said that within the past three years no such order has been reported. Here is an order of a similar kind. [The Alderman read the order granting a location to the Metropolitan Railroad Company on Columbus avenue.] There is nothing about "in accordance with law," because the law specially provides for it, and it is a matter of statute regulation. There is no need of referring to the statute, and if we do not refer to it, it does not make the order any the less binding. The statute says we shall have certain rights over every railroad track in this city, and it is not necessary to specify that in the order. The Alderman opposite has been talking for the last half-hour upon the Middlesex Railroad track and the right of that company to go to the Old Colony depot. That question is not before the Board. We have not reported upon it yet. He seems to be thoroughly conversant with everything we do in the committee. I do not know how he finds it out.

Alderman Thompson—From your chairman.

Alderman Fitzgerald—When we report on the petition for the Middlesex Railroad Company to go to the depots will be time enough to discuss the question, but we do not know and do not care anything about the private arrangements which take place between the South Boston and Middlesex railroads.

Alderman Thompson—I made a statement that this petition of the Middlesex Railroad Company was kept back by the Committee on Paving, simply because the South Boston Railroad Company required that their curve should be taken up. I make that statement, and I will prove it, for I have it from the Chairman of the Committee on Paving, that if the two corporations could agree, they would report in favor of the Middlesex company's petition. Now, sir, that is the reason why I object to this order passing now. The chairman of the Committee on Paving and the counsel for the South Boston Railroad have both told me that if the Middlesex company would take up their curve the committee would make the report, and the chairman of the committee has told me that until they would agree the committee will keep that petition back. These are the facts and they cannot be gainsaid, and the counsel for the South Boston Railroad would not deny it if he were here. Now, sir, it seems to me that this matter should be considered—this granting the South Boston Railroad Company the right to run over the tracks of the Middlesex corporation, I don't care so much for the Middlesex Railroad Company as I do that the people of Charlestown should be required to go around to Federal street on Sundays every time they want to go to Boylston street. It is an unjust thing. I don't object to the South Boston Railroad having this thing if they will carry out this agreement made before members of this Board. But, as I said before, when you consider the Middlesex corporation have the right to run but twelve cars an hour through Tremont street, and they wish to run five cars out of these twelve around the United States Hotel without any restriction. In regard to the order, I have the fact from Mr. Healy, the City Solicitor, who says that no order should be passed by this Board with the words "subject to the provisions of law and until otherwise ordered by the Board of Aldermen" omitted. Are the Board of Aldermen going to pass the order without that provision, when the City Solicitor says they should n't? Mr. Mayor, there is a great deal more to this than appears upon the surface, and what I regret most is that the Committee on Paving should be "bulldozed" into this thing. They talk about not taking sides with one corporation against the other. It is n't so; they do take sides. They have kept back that petition with a view of compelling the Middlesex corporation coming to the terms proposed by the South Boston Railroad. The Alderman says it is n't so. The chairman of the committee says he left me and the counsel of the South Boston Railroad to come together with the expectation that we could agree. Why should n't that question come here on its merits as well as this? The Alderman says the question before the Board is whether the South Boston Railroad Corporation shall have the right to run their cars over the Middlesex tracks to the northern depots. The Middlesex corporation have petitioned for the right to run to the several depots, and why should they not have that right? And it is answered simply by the fact of the restriction made by one corporation against the other.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I shall not allow members of this or any other board to insinuate that the members of the Paving Committee are partial or prejudiced.

Alderman Thompson—I did not insinuate; I said it boldly.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I will go further—the statements of the gentleman opposite [Alderman Thompson] about the Paving Committee are false from beginning to end; and if there be any feeling in favor of one corporation as opposed to the other, it must be evident to this Board that that feeling is not with the Committee on Paving, but with the gentleman opposite, who has just sat down. Our committee dealt with this matter before this question came before us at all with regard to laying the tracks down at the South End. We met it and dealt with it as we dealt with every question that came before us; and the charge that we are influenced by the South Boston Railroad Company, and that we are in favor of that company, as opposed to the Middlesex Railroad Company, is utterly false; and I repeat it again, utterly false. We had decided upon that question before it came before us. I don't know what the chairman of the committee has told the Alderman. The Alderman must have taken a wonderful amount of interest in the whole affair—more than he did in any other question. If the people of Charlestown are anxious to go to Boylston street, there is no need of their going to Federal street. They have the right to go to Temple place if they please.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman has not stated correctly. They have no right to go through Temple place.

Aldermen Fitzgerald—Not now?

Alderman Thompson—Not now.

Alderman Fitzgerald—They must go either one way or the other.

Alderman Thompson—The must go around through Beach street. The other location has been revoked.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I would state that what has been done with the petition of the Middlesex Railroad Company has no connection with this question; and what the Alderman says has no foundation. He does injustice to the committee, and what he says is all for buncombe.

Alderman Thompson—I raise the point of order that the gentleman has no right to assume what are my motives.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The gentleman has no right to make the charges against the committee he does.

Alderman Thompson—I will sustain them. The Alderman does not meet often enough with his committee to know what they do.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If it were after dinner, I should attribute the speech of the gentleman opposite to something charitable; but as it is, I must say his language is unwarrantable, undignified and unworthy a member of this Board. That is all I have to say. I shall not argue this question any more.

Alderman Robinson—In regard to some of the remarks that Alderman Thompson made in reference to the Committee on Paving, I would state that we listened patiently to the remarks of the presidents of the companies when the agreements were made between the parties, and at our first session we entered into a careful consideration, and we intended to introduce an order. But we had another meeting and they discussed the question pro and con, and gave precisely their reasons for and against, and the committee again came to precisely the same conclusion; I said to myself, as chairman, why cannot they agree upon that little point? It has no reference whatever to the order for the South Boston Railroad Company going to the North End. It was only a question of agreeing upon a little piece of track in Beach street. I said, it seems to me that the gentlemen representing the intelligence of the roads can agree upon that. I was told there was some difference between Mr. Powers and Mr. Dean, and that they were not on speaking terms. Well, I happened to meet my friend, Alderman Thompson, and I thought that if the pleasant countenances of those two gentlemen could meet together they might agree, and I proposed it. The matter was all explained here before the Board of Aldermen, and I and my associates supposed it was understood that the Middlesex road should take up that little curve in their track which would enable them to put three or four cars in the way of the South Boston road and take passengers away from them. We all thought it was in accordance with the agreement made here, and after the second meeting the committee came to the same conclusion.

Alderman Slade—In order to make this order entirely satisfactory, I move that the following words be inserted: "Subject to the provisions of law and until otherwise ordered by the Board of Aldermen."

Alderman Thompson—After the explanation of the Committee on Paving, substantiating everything I have said in regard to the Committee on Paving, that the petition of the Middlesex Railroad Company has been in the hands of the committee six weeks or two months; and yet I am told it is false; and because I make those statements I am unworthy to reply to. I don't know whether I am or not. What I said I will substantiate; and I want to see it denied. Now, I want to know why this petition is kept back? Why don't they report? What is the objection? Why don't they report and let it take its course with this order in favor of the South Boston Railroad? That is what I want to know; I don't see any harm in that.

Alderman O'Brien—I would ask if there is any injustice in this location that the South Boston road ask for? I believe there has n't been a member of this Board who has stood up here tonight and said that the South Boston road are asking for any more than they had a right to ask for. I believe that is the question before us, and we ought to deal with and act upon it, and either vote down or pass the order. When the Middlesex road comes before us, I believe we will be justified in doing precisely the same with them. If they ask only for what is right and just it will be granted. But we are not now acting upon the Middlesex matter, but the South Boston matter is before us. I think it is a waste of time to be discussing the Middlesex petition. I believe we ought to pass this order, because it is just and right; and when the Middlesex Company comes before us and asks for what is right, I believe the Board will also grant it.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman forgets the reason I give why it should n't be passed tonight. It was agreed to by the corporations that the two orders should go together; and another is, I have been told, the Middlesex petition cannot be reported until that road or its representatives comply with the wish of the representative of the South Boston road, and there is my authority. [Pointing to Alderman Robinson.]

Alderman Robinson—If it is on my authority, I don't recollect saying anything of the sort. I only desire them to agree. It had no reference to the agreement.

Alderman Thompson—What is the difference between them?

Alderman Robinson—The difference is in regard to a curve, the taking up of which myself and my associates considered was the agreement between the two corporations. I have said to myself I would not call up the matter on the table and should not vote for it.

Alderman Slade's amendment was adopted.

Alderman Thompson—Have n't you said to me you would n't report on the petition until the Middlesex road agrees to take up that curve?

Alderman Robinson—No, sir; I don't think I said that, but that I was in hopes you would agree; and I used all sorts of means to get you to agree.

Alderman Thompson moved to lay the order on the table. Lost.

Alderman Thompson offered an amendment in the form of an order granting the location asked for by the Middlesex road to allow cars to run to the Old Colony depot.

The Mayor ruled that the amendment was out of order, not being germane to the question.

Alderman Thompson offered an amendment—"Provided, that the South Boston Railroad Company shall run not more than twelve cars an hour through Boylston and Tremont streets."

Declared lost.

Alderman Thompson doubted the vote, and the Board divided—1 for, 8 against.

The order granting the location was passed, and a motion to reconsider by Alderman Burnham was lost.

SUPERINTENDENTS OF BRIDGES.

Alderman Thompson submitted a report from the Committee on Bridges, nominating the following-named persons for Superintendents of bridges partly controlled by Boston:

John E. Pickett, Superintendent of Cottage Farm Bridge.

John Galvin, Superintendent of Neponset Bridge.

Albert O. Hawes, Superintendent of Granite Bridge.

Daniel S. Lawrence, Adam Bowley, Superintendents of Chelsea Bridge.

William Norton, Superintendent of Cambridge Bridge to North Harvard street, Western-avenue Bridge to Cambridge.

A. D. Henderson, Superintendent of Western-avenue Bridge to Watertown, North Beacon-street Bridge.

The report was accepted and said nominations were confirmed.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,
APRIL 19, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Report of reference to Committee on Public Lands of petition of Jacob F. Kraus, to be paid for damages to estate 330 Tremont street by change of grade. Accepted in concurrence.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of James Brennan, to be paid for injuries from an imperfectly secured coal-hole cover; and of T. A. Splaine, for leave to place row boats on Public Garden pond. Accepted in concurrence.

Report of no action necessary on petition of S. N. Brown, Jr., et al., that the lot of land between Huntington and St. James avenues be laid out as a public street or square. Accepted in concurrence.

Report and order to convey to John J. McNutt a certain portion of land on Wareham street. Order read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order to cancel bond of James Fitzgerald for certain land on Hanover street, and to issue new agreements therefor to James and Thomas Fitzgerald. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

CERTIFICATES OF FIREMEN.

A report came down with an ordinance to amend an ordinance to establish a Fire Department in regard to certificates to firemen.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I move that it be referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I hope this matter will not be referred to the Committee on Ordinances. It is simply an old custom that we want to revive. It has been the custom for many years, with the exception of the two past years, to give these certificates to firemen who have served in the department seven years. During the last year the City Clerk thought it not just in order for him and the Mayor to sign these certificates, because the Fire Commissioners knew who these men were who had served seven years, and not the Mayor, as the appointment had formerly gone out from the Mayor; and therefore he refused to sign them. It is a certificate saying that a man has served seven years, a diploma such as many of us receive from societies to which we belong. It seems to me that as it is a simple matter it is well enough to go as it is, and not worth a special reference to the Committee on Ordinances. It carries no authority with it, and is merely a memento of service.

Mr. Thompson—I have no objection to the passage of the ordinance; but I observed that the chairman of the Committee on Ordinances was not cognizant of the fact that an ordinance was before the house, and I made the motion as a matter of routine, knowing that it is the ordinary custom for such ordinances to be considered by the Committee on Ordinances before their passage.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I was attending to something about the Second Assistant Assessors when this matter came up. It seems to me, as the gentleman said, that all ordinances should go to the Committee on Ordinances before they are passed. I have no objection to this measure; but the Committee on Ordinances are to see that all ordinances are in proper shape, and I hope it will be so referred.

Mr. Spenceley—I wish that the Committee on Ordinances had attended to their duties, for we find the ordinances terribly mixed up. This is an old ordinance revived; that is all; and I did not know it required a reference to the Committee on Ordinances before it was carried into effect. I have no objection, if there is anything to be arranged so as not to conflict with the statutes, as so many of the ordinances do. I have no objection to referring it to the committee.

The ordinance was referred to the Committee on Ordinances. Sent up.

EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS.

Executive communications came down for concurrence in the appointment of Park Commissioner, Member of Board of Health and Member of Boston Water Board.

The President read the communication appointing Charles H. Dalton Park Commissioner.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I move that the confirmation of these appointments be by a yea and nay ballot separately.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Has that been the custom in relation to Park Commissioner? I believe that appointment has generally been confirmed by a viva voce vote; unless there is some good reason given for going into a yea and nay ballot I shall object to it.

The President—Unless the Council decide otherwise, it will be by a viva voce vote.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I have no objection if the gentleman desires it.

A yea and nay ballot was ordered to be taken on all the appointments, with the following result:

Park Commissioner—Charles H. Dalton. Committee—Messrs. Pearl of Ward 1, Wilbur of Ward 20, Barry of Ward 22.

Whole number of ballots.....	64

Mr. Dalton's appointment was confirmed in concurrence.

An election was ordered. Committee—Messrs. Pope of Ward 14, Crocker of Ward 9, McDonald of Ward 12.

Mr. Peabody was declared elected in non-concurrence. Sent up.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The appropriation bill (City Doc. 40) came down with sundry amendments, which were read by the President.

On motion of Mr. Sampson of Ward 17, it was voted that the amendments be acted upon separately.

City Hospital. Insert $125,000 instead of $120,000.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I trust the Council will concur with the Board of Aldermen in this amendment. This appropriation was reduced in the Committee on the Auditor's Estimates, but upon further investigation it is shown that that amount will be absolutely required for the hospital this year.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I simply want to say in regard to the City Hospital that I do not believe we have an institution run more economically than it is at the present time; and I hope the Council will concur with the Board of Aldermen in this addition of $5000 to the appropriation. We need every cent of it, and I think it will be judiciously spent.

The amendment was concurred in.

New Schoolhouses. Grammar Schoolhouse, Allston District, insert $30,000 instead of $40,000; and Primary Schoolhouse, Sherwin District, insert $40,000 for $50,000.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I trust the Council will not concur in that amendment. The estimates were made very closely, and the Alderman [Alderman Thompson] who had the alterations made in the other branch informs me that he did so under a misapprehension, and that the amounts named in the bill will be required for these schoolhouses.

The amendments were nonconcurrent in.

Paving and Grading Streets. Insert $1,000,000 in place of $850,000.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I trust that we shall not concur with the Board of Aldermen in making the sum $1,000,000; but I move as a substitute that we separate the item of $1,000,000, so that $150,000 shall be appropriated for the specific purpose of completing West Chester park, Commonwealth avenue and Huntington avenue; and that $850,000 be appropriated for paving and grading streets.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I would offer an amendment that the entire appropriation be spent at the South End.

The President—The Chair thinks that amendment is irrelevant.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 18—I would suggest a further amendment by having all the money spent in Ward 8.

Mr. Flynn—I hope the substitute will not prevail and that the Council will concur with the Board of Aldermen, for this reason: In 1871 the City Government entered into a contract with the Boston Water Power Company and other landholders on that territory, that company giving to the city millions of feet of land in streets by the payment of $300,000, and the city of Boston agreed that when the streets were built up to grade eighteen and delivered to the city, the city would keep them up to grade and in proper repair. The city also agreed to build two bridges, one over West Chester park, which is already completed, and another on Huntington avenue, which is about completed. On the other side Mr. Munson and the Water Power Company have done their part, according to the terms of the agreement printed in City Document 83, which is on the desks of the members; and, therefore, all that they ask is that the city fulfil its part of that contract by putting those streets in order for public travel, so that the abutting owners can build on the line of the streets. All they want you to do is to fulfil your part of your contract, which the city of Boston is bound to do. By the amendment coming from the Board of Aldermen it is proposed to build those avenues up to grade, and I hope the amendment to put it into a specific appropriation will not prevail.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I hope the substitute will prevail, for I am in favor of carrying out this contract and of appropriating $150,000 for that specific purpose. It seems to me that the appropriation had better be made specifically for that purpose, for, even if the whole territory is not completed this year, the remainder of the appropriation will be held over next year and applied for that purpose. If we appropriate $850,000 for paving and $150,000 for this purpose, it will amount to the same thing.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—If the Council will only pass the appropriation to carry out the city's part of the contract, I have not the slightest choice as to how it is done. I only want the city to fulfil its part of the contract with the parties on those streets. I have no objection to the substitute, after the explanation.

The substitute was adopted and the amendment as amended passed.

The total amounts in the appropriation bill and in the order laying a tax were then amended in accordance with the above adopted amendments. Sent up.

SECOND ASSISTANT ASSESSORS.

A certificate was received of election of Second Assistant Assessors. An election was ordered.

On motion of Mr. Sibley of Ward 5, it was voted that the committee to collect and count votes consist of six.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—With the permission of the Council I would like to make a short statement. In Ward 18 Samuel P. Oliver was the unanimous choice of all the representatives from that ward, and they were a unit in that matter. Since the last meeting I understand that some one has introduced a ballot in favor of a candidate known to no one in that ward, and, so far as I know, one who has had no experience. It seems singular to me that persons outside should dictate to a ward who shall be its assessor. It is something decidedly novel and unique in the history of this Council.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2 said he had been requested to state that Mr. Hartnett of Ward 2 is not a candidate.

Committee—Messrs. Coe of Ward 23, Mowry of Ward 11, Roberts of Ward 4, Blanchard of Ward 21, Hibbard of Ward 17, Upham of Ward 24.

On motion of Mr. Sibley of Ward 5, a recess of thirty minutes was taken, at the end of which the committee reported as follows:

Sent up.
Later in the session, just after action on motion to reconsider the rejection of Mr. Keith's appointment, Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 offered an order—That the Committee on the Judiciary be requested to obtain from the City Solicitor his opinion whether the validity of the election of Assistant Assessors for the present year is affected by the failure to comply with the provisions of section 4 of the ordinance in relation to taxes.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 moved to lay the order on the table.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 18 raised the point that Mr. McGaragle was not in his seat.

The President ruled the point well taken.

The order was passed. Sent up.

FOURTH OF JULY.

An order came down for the Retrenchment Committee to arrange for the celebration of Fourth of July at a cost of $10,000.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 offered as a substitute an order—That a committee consisting of his Honor the Mayor, the Chairman of the Board of Aldermen, the President and eight members of the Common Council, with such as the Aldermen may join, be a committee to make arrangements to celebrate the one hundred and first anniversary of the Declaration of American Independence; the expense attending the same, not to exceed the sum of $15,000, to be charged to the appropriation for Incidental Expenses.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the subject was specially assigned to 8½ P. M. next Thursday.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order for an expenditure of not exceeding $2000 additional for grading and curbing certain squares on Commonwealth avenue. Passed in concurrence.

SINKING FUNDS.

A communication was received from the Auditor of Accounts in response to the order of April 19, inst., in regard to the difference in the amount required to be taxed this year for the Sinking Funds if the accumulations had been computed at five instead of four per cent.

Appropriation Required at five per cent.

Burnt-district Sinking Fund.....	$138,970.00
New Sinking Fund.....	246,800.00
Cochituate Water and Sinking Fund.....	166,327.00

Total appropriation required as per five per cent. estimates.....	$552,097.00
Old Sinking Fund, excess by the same basis of calculation of five per cent.....	$885,287.71
Consolidated Street-improvement Sinking Fund by the same basis of five per cent..	315,180.79

The preceding estimates are based, as the four per cent. estimates were, upon paying the debt at par in currency as it becomes due; while of the debt now outstanding in round numbers, $43,000,000, the amount of $19,980,290.53 is to be paid in gold at maturity, and of these gold loans $11,090,120.13 are payable in London.

Sent up.

STONY BROOK NUISANCE.

The following was received from the Board of Health:

In compliance with an order of the City Council, passed on the 10th inst., requesting the Board of Health to examine the cellars and dwellings along the borders of Stony Brook in Ward 23, we beg to state that the premises have been examined with the following result: On Lamartine, Washington, Boylston, Keys and Green streets, Boylston, Union, Greenwood and Brookline avenues, we found over one hundred dwellings whose cellars were flooded during the recent high state of Stony Brook to the extent of from two inches to three feet of water in depth, which remained in said cellars from two or three days to three weeks. The evidence showed that the same condition of the cellars occurred whenever the brook had suddenly been raised. From the examination made and the evidence obtained, we are satisfied that of 124 dwellings examined, at least 100 cellars were flooded as above stated by the high state of Stony Brook. It is a well-established fact that wet cellars and damp dwellings are prejudicial to health, and it is the unqualified opinion of the Board of Health that the recent and present condition of the above-mentioned cellars and premises was and is such as to jeopardize the health of those living over them, and that some remedy against the evil should be applied.

Sent up, on motion of Mr. Brown of Ward 23.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

By Mr. Vose of Ward 24—Petition of O. H. Weed for leave to enlarge a wooden building in the rear of Culvert street. Referred to Joint Standing Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Sent up.

By Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—Petition of Benjamin F. Bean for release of a tax title held by the city. Referred to Joint Committee on Claims. Sent up.

INSPECTION OF OYSTERS.

Mr. Roach of Ward 7 offered an order—That the Board of Health be requested to inspect the oysters arriving at this port, opened, from Virginia and other places, as great complaint has been made in regard to them, and it is said that in many instances the sale of them has been injurious to health. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

DORCHESTER SCHOOLHOUSE WINDOWS.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21 inquired if the Committee on Public Buildings are about ready to report upon altering the windows in the Dorchester schoolhouse, referred to them some time ago.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I think the committee have passed upon that, and it was voted to alter the windows. I don't know the reason why the order has n't been introduced here.

MANAGEMENT OF THE FERRIES.

Mr. Pearl of Ward 1 offered an order—That a joint special committee, consisting of five members of the Common Council, with such as the Board of Aldermen may join, be appointed to investigate the statements which have appeared in the public prints relating to the management of the East Boston Ferries. Read twice and passed.

Mr. Pearl moved that the Committee on the Ferries on the part of the Council be the joint special committee on the part of the Council.

The motion was declared carried.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 doubted the vote.

Mr. Pearl explained that the two members of the Ferry Committee on the part of the Aldermen are also members of the Board of Directors; but the members on the part of the Council are familiar with the subject and therefore he thought it would be proper to have them on the special committee.

The motion was lost—11 for, 26 against.

REJECTION OF MR. KEITH'S APPOINTMENT TO THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 moved a reconsideration of the vote whereby the Council refused to confirm the appointment of James M. Keith as a member of the Board of Health, hoping it would not prevail.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved to specially assign the subject to 8½ P. M. next Thursday.

Declared lost. Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 doubted the vote, and called for the yeas and nays, which were ordered.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved the Council adjourn. The President put the question, and was in doubt.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 called for the yeas and nays on solving the doubt, and they were ordered.

The motion to adjourn was lost—yeas 26, nays 34.

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Loughlin, McClinsky, McGaragle, Morrill, O'Connor, Pearl, Roach, Vose, Warren—24.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Felt, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Kidney, McDonald, Mowry, Nugent, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Sampson, Sibley, Smardon, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—34.

Absent or not voting—Blodgett, Brintnall, Cox, Fraser, Ham, O'Donnell, Pope, Ruffin, Shepard, Sonther, Thorndike, E. R. Webster—12.

The President—The question is upon the special assignment.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I think we voted upon that. The Chair decided that motion, and the gentleman from Ward 13 called for the yeas and nays on the question of reconsideration.

The President—The yeas and nays were taken on the adjournment.

Mr. Crocker—He called for the yeas and nays on reconsideration, and moved to adjourn and called for the yeas and nays on that; and now we have got to take the yeas and nays on reconsideration.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I called for the yeas and nays on the motion to assign. The question does not now come up on the motion to reconsider, but my motion to specially assign is before the house, and on that I called for the yeas and nays. I believe that is the question before the house.

The President—That is as the Chair understands it.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I only wish to state my recollection of the facts as they occurred in order. The motion to specially assign was put once and declared by the Chair to be lost. Following upon that the gentleman from Ward 13 called for the yeas and nays and they were ordered. Then he [Mr. Flynn] made a motion to adjourn, on which he again called for the yeas and nays, and they were taken. The only question then being the reconsideration, the gentleman called for the yeas and nays upon that.

The President—The yeas and nays have not been put upon the motion to specially assign.

The yeas and nays were again ordered on the special assignment.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 moved that the further consideration of the subject be indefinitely postponed.

The President ruled the motion not in order.

The motion to specially assign was lost—yeas 27, nays 32:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cross, Dee, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, O'Connor, Pearl, Pratt, Reed, Roach, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—27.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Doherty, Felt, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Sampson, Sibley, Smardon, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—32.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blodgett, Brintnall, Cox, Fraser, Ham, Mullane, O'Donnell, Pope, Ruffin, Shepard, Souther, Thorndike—12.

Mr. McGaragle moved the further consideration of the subject be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 moved the previous question.

Mr. McGaragle—The previous question on what?

The President—On the question of reconsideration, and it cuts off the motion to indefinitely postpone.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 called for the yeas and nays, and they were ordered on the motion for the previous question, which was about to be put, when Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved to adjourn. The President put the question, and was in doubt. Mr. Duggan of Ward 12 and Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 both called for the yeas and nays.

The Chair said the call for the yeas and nays was out of order, as the vote had not been declared, and the Chair was about to call on the Council to divide.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Are the yeas and nays in order on solving the doubt?

The President—The Chair is about putting the question

The question was put by a division.

The President—The motion is lost—28 for, 31 against.

Mr. McGaragle (interrupting as the President was declaring the vote)—For the purpose of verifying the vote I call for the yeas and nays.

The President—The Chair had declared the result—28 for, 31 against.

Mr. McGaragle—I believe I have a right to call for the yeas and nays to verify any vote.

The President—The Chair had declared the vote.

Mr. McGaragle—I called for the yeas and nays before the vote was declared. I did not hear it declared.

The President put Mr. McGaragle's motion for the yeas and nays, and they were declared not ordered.

Mr. McGaragle doubted the vote, the Council divided, and the yeas and nays were ordered.

The motion to adjourn was lost—yeas 28, nays 31:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, O'Connor, Pearl, Pratt, Reed, Roach, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—28.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Felt, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Sampson, Sibley, Smardon, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—31.

Absent or not voting—Blodgett, Brintnall, Cox, Fraser, Ham, Mullane, O'Donnell, Pope, Ruffin, Shepard, Souther, Thorndike—12.

The question then recurred on ordering the main question.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved that the matter be laid upon the table.

The question was put, and the Chair was in doubt.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 called for the yeas and nays on solving the doubt.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I rise to a point of order. These motions are made for a dilatory purpose.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I would like to inquire how the gentleman [Mr. Spenceley] knows that they are for a dilatory purpose.

Mr. Barry of Ward 14—I rise to a point of order.

The President only is entitled to decide that question, and not a member on the floor.

The President—The question is upon the motion to lay upon the table, on which the gentleman from Ward 13 has called for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered and the motion to table was lost—yeas 28, nays 31:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, O'Connor, Pearl, Pratt, Reed, Roach, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—28.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Felt, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Sampson, Sibley, Smardon, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—31.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blodgett, Brintnall, Cox, Fraser, Ham, Mullane, O'Donnell, Pope, Ruffin, Shepard, Souther, Thorndike—12.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 16 moved that the Council adjourn.

Mr. McGaragle—On that question I desire to be excused from voting.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—On that I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I would like to have the gentleman [Mr. McGaragle] state his reason for being excused.

Mr. McGaragle—I don't know that there is anything that compels me to assign my reason for not voting. If there is, I am perfectly willing to state it.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 read the sixty-second rule, as follows:

"Every member who is present when a question is put, if not excluded by interest, shall give his vote, unless the Council, for special reasons, shall excuse him. Application to be so excused on any question must be made before the Council is divided, or before the calling of the yeas and nays; and such application shall be accompanied by a brief statement of reasons, and shall be decided without debate."

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—Are these dilatory requests in order upon a motion to adjourn?

The President—The gentleman asked to be excused from voting on the motion to adjourn.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—As I understand it, the gentleman did not ask to be excused until the yeas and nays were called for.

The President—They had not been ordered.

Mr. McGaragle—I think I asked at the proper time.

The President—The question is on excusing the gentleman from Ward 8 from voting.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—And on that I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the President again stated the question to be on excusing Mr. McGaragle.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—In accordance with our rules is not the gentleman obliged to give his reasons?

The President—The Chair decides that under the rule the gentleman should give his reasons.

Mr. McGaragle—I understand the rule to say a person may be excused on account of personal motives. I have a personal interest in not voting.

Mr. Mowry called attention to Rule 62, and the President read it.

The President—Does the Chair understand the gentleman from Ward 8 to give any reason?

Mr. McGaragle—I was interrupted while the reading was going on, and did not hear the rule. I am not familiar with it, and ask to hear it read again.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Mr. President, I would like to call your attention to what has taken place, the evident intention of the parties being to defeat the motion now pending, by dilatory motions or attempting to get sufficient members from the room to leave us without a quorum. I ask the President to make a ruling whether those motions are not made for a dilatory purpose, and, if so, to overrule them. I ask that the Messenger be sent for the members in the anteroom.

The President—Debate is not allowed on this motion.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I rise to a point of order. The application to be excused must be made before the Council divide, or before the call for the yeas and nays. His application was not made until after the yeas and nays were called for.

The President—The yeas and nays had not been called for when the gentleman from Ward 8 asked to be excused.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I rise to a point of order. The reasons given by the gentleman from Ward 8 why he should be excused from voting were plainly frivolous, and show that his motion was intended to delay business, and ought not to be further recognized, especially as the gentleman himself has already left the hall, for if we excuse him he would not be here to vote.

The President—The Chair is inclined to believe the motion was intended to be frivolous, but as it was made it must be put to the Council.

The question on excusing Mr. McGaragle was about to be put, when Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 asked for a roll-call of the house to ascertain if a quorum was present.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I would ask whether that is not a dilatory motion, as the gentleman who makes it has been trying himself to get gentlemen out of the Council Chamber to delay action.

The President—There are forty-one members present and the Chair declines to have the roll called.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 asked for the yeas and nays on the request of Mr. McGaragle.

Mr. Sampson—I raise the point of order that the gentleman [Mr. McGaragle] is not in the room.

The President—The Chair rules the point not well taken.

The call for the yeas and nays on excusing Mr. McGaragle was lost.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved to adjourn.

Mr. Crocker raised the point that the motion to adjourn was not in order while taking the question on excusing the gentleman from Ward 8.

The President—A motion to adjourn is always in order.

Mr. Howes—The motion now before the House is on adjournment, and how can that same motion be made?

The Council refused to excuse Mr. McGaragle from voting.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 moved the previous question.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved to adjourn. Lost. The main question was ordered.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I ask for a call of the house to ascertain whether a quorum is present. I believe any member has the right to call for a roll call of the house to ascertain whether a quorum is present.

The President—There are forty-one members present, and the roll call would be dilatory.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—That is the count of the Messenger, as I understand. There is no official count by the President. I ask for the decision of the Chair upon that point.

The President—The Chair decides that there are forty-one members present. The question is upon the motion to reconsider.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—On that I think I called for the yeas and nays, and they were ordered.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. Thompson—I would state that I made that very point, that the gentleman called for the yeas and nays on the motion for consideration and he denied it, and said he called for the yeas and nays on the motion to assign. The Chair took the question on the motion to assign.

The President—That is the recollection of the Chair.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—My recollection is that I did call for the yeas and nays, and I think the record of the Clerk will show it; and I also called for the yeas and nays on the motion to adjourn. I called for the yeas and nays when the gentleman made the motion. I ask for the Clerk's record.

The President consulted with the Clerk, and said, "The Clerk has no such record."

The question on reconsideration was put, and before it was declared Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 asked, "Would it be in order to call for the yeas and nays to verify that vote?"

The question on ordering the yeas and nays was put and before it was declared Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 doubted the vote.

The Council refused to order the yeas and nays. The motion to reconsider was lost.

SALARY OF INSPECTOR OF PROVISIONS.

The rule was suspended on motion of Mr. Daforth of Ward 10, who submitted a report from the committee (on the request of the Board of Health), recommending the passage of an order—That the salary of the Inspector to be appointed by the Board of Health, in accordance with the provisions of chapter 144, acts of 1876, shall be at the rate of $1500 per annum, beginning with the date of his appointment and continuing until otherwise ordered.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 moved to lay the order on the table for one week.

Lost.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent up

INSPECTOR OF LIME APPOINTED.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 offered an order—That Daniel Higgins be and he is hereby appointed an Inspector of Lime within the limits of this city.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—Is that a proper order to be introduced here? Does not the appointment lie with the Mayor?

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The statute says those officers may be chosen, but the ordinance does not provide how. By the advice of the Clerk of the Common Council and the City Clerk I introduced it here, and I consider their authority as final.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent up.

RULES AND ORDERS.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 offered an order—That the Committee on Joint Rules and Orders be requested to consider and report if any and what changes should be made in the present rules and orders of the City Council.

Referred, on motion of Mr. Clarke, to the Committee on Joint Rules and Orders. Sent up.

EAST BOSTON FERRIES.

An order came up for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the public charges relative to the past management of the East Boston Ferries, and Messrs. Thompson, Mowry, Roberts, Blodgett and Upham having been appointed on the part of the Council—

Alderman Gibson offered an amendment, that said investigation be public, and the directors of the ferries are directed not to make any change in the office of clerk, superintendent, or master mechanic until the further action of the City Council.

Alderman Thompson—I suppose there is some reason for offering this amendment. It seems to me we should not interfere with the directors in their management of the ferries without good and sufficient reason.

Alderman Gibson—The object of the amendment is to retain those men in their positions, so that they can have a fair investigation, while all parties are in a position to await the result. I know of no other object it has in view. Of course parties could be discharged while this investigation was going on. I, for one, go for having those men thoroughly investigated, and let them be judged by the facts that are produced. I know that when one ceases to be a member of a body he ceases to be amenable to that body. I believe that everything should remain as it is, and let those parties who are to blame suffer the consequences, let it be the clerk, the superintendent or the directors. It don't matter to me where the fault is. If it is the officers, let them be discharged; and if it is the directors, let us discharge them.

Alderman Thompson—I don't object to the investigation being public. It seems to me that that is quite proper, in view of the representations that have been made in the public prints; but I do not see why the City Council should be called upon to take an interest in any difference which may exist between the directors of the ferries. It seems to me that the Directors of the Ferries should have the same powers that the other boards have had. If in the opinion of a majority of that board a change should be made in any of the officers, they should be at liberty to make that change. I know nothing of the merits of this controversy; but at the same time I think the City Council should not be called upon to take any part in the management of the ferries. The City Council have elected good men for the management of the ferries, of whom the Alderman himself is one, and I do not see why we should make any change in the internal arrangement of the ferries. Therefore I propose that the matter should be left as it is, so far as it relates to changes and in the appointments to be made. I ask that the question may be divided, and that the question be taken upon that portion which requires that the investigation be made public, and upon that portion which restricts the action of the Board of Directors. I don't think it is proper to restrict them under the circumstances.

The Mayor ruled that the amendment was not susceptible of division, and put Alderman Thompson's motion in the form of an amendment to strike out all after the word "public."

The motion of Alderman Thompson was declared carried. Alderman Gibson doubted the vote; the Board divided, and the amendment of Alderman Thompson was carried—7 for, 4 against.

The amendment was declared adopted, and the question was put upon the passage of the order as amended.

Alderman Clark—I understand that the question has not been put upon the amendment offered by Alderman Gibson, that no employes shall be discharged until after the hearing.

The Mayor—The amendment was hardly susceptible of division, and the Chair suggested that Alderman Thompson should make his motion in the form of an amendment to strike out all after the word "public," and that is the proposition which was put to the Board.

Alderman Clark—Then I have voted unintelligently, and I move a reconsideration. I propose to vote for the amendment offered by the Alderman from East Boston as a whole. I understood the motion to be that the question be divided, and that the two parts be voted upon separately.

The reconsideration prevailed and the question was again put upon Alderman Thompson's amendment. The Mayor was in doubt, the Board divided—3 for, 8 against—and it was declared lost. The question then recurred upon the amendment of Alderman Gibson.

Alderman Thompson—I do not think the Board fully understand this question. The Alderman on my right [Alderman Slade] thinks it interferes with the investigation. The amendment I wanted was that the City Council should not interfere with the directors. It seems to me rather queer that the City Council should elect a Board of Directors and then pass an order interfering with them in the internal management of the ferries, which will be the case if the Board passes this order. After this investigation takes place, if it does not result to the satisfaction of some members of this Board, the City Council will be asked to designate the parties who shall fill the subordinate offices there. It seems to me it is entirely out of place for this Board to interfere with the management of the ferries. We might with the same propriety go to the Directors for Public Institutions and say that they shall make no changes without the consent of the members of this Board. We should have thought of this matter before filling the vacancies in the Board of Directors. It is certainly inconsistent for us to go out of our way to dictate to the Board of Directors, and if not out of order I move a reconsideration of the vote whereby the Board reconsidered my amendment.

Alderman Gibson—I am surprised that the Alderman desires to throttle this thing. Here are certain things reflecting on those men which have been written in the papers. All we ask is that the golden rule be adopted. We want everything square. I have had the honor to be one of the directors of the ferries ever since the city purchased them, except a few months. My term expired in this board in January, and I was re-elected in May. Now the newspapers have said that certain things were true, and we want them investigated and we want to see if they are true. Now if there is any one who desires to make a statement in regard to it, let him do it. The papers give the impression that there is some corruption somewhere, and we want to check it. We are all held responsible for the money which the taxpayers contribute to the support of the Government. We are expected to know where it goes and how it goes. I do not want to interfere with any department, but when charges are made we should be direct in our duty if we did not give them a thorough investigation.

Alderman O'Brien—It appears to me that this investigation will cover a considerable period of time—several weeks, and perhaps a month. If you tie the hands of the Directors they will have no control over the employes. They could not dismiss a man, even for a misdemeanor. I think it is rather a serious matter to take the control of the ferries out of the hands of the directors. I do not know that you can do it by a simple order, for you cannot pass an order that conflicts with an ordinance. This matter is placed in the hands of the directors of the ferries by an ordinance of the city, and this Board cannot pass an order contradicting an ordinance. You cannot take it out of their control. I believe that the men should have a public hearing, and I shall vote for that with pleasure; but I doubt if you can pass an order taking this matter out of the hands of the directors of the ferries without repealing the ordinance.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman at my left [Alderman Gibson] quite misunderstood my motives, or misrepresented me; I do not think he intended to misrepresent me. I want the fullest investigation; but I do not want the directors whom we elect to manage the ferries to have their subordinates in such a position that they cannot control them, as that certainly would be the result of passing this amendment. I have no idea that the directors desire to make any changes while this investigation is going on. I do not believe that they will. When the members reflect upon this matter, I think they will vote to reconsider. I will thank the gentleman to inform me how any frothing will occur by this motion.

Alderman Gibson—All I ask is that all parties shall be held in the harness during this investigation. We have got a little trouble with the master mechanic and the clerk, and the superintendent, and we want to keep them in the harness till this investigation is ended. I want to know what those parties have had to do with writing for the papers. We want to know where the fault lies. We must have somebody to hold responsible for it.

Alderman Thompson—Do I understand the Alderman to say that if the investigation does not substantiate the charges that he would have those parties retained whether the directors desire them or not?

Alderman Gibson—If the Alderman desires to anticipate my judgment, I would say that if those charges are not sustained, and if those parties prove to be true to the interest of the city, that I think they should be retained.

Alderman Thompson—Provided the directors are opposed to retaining them?

Alderman Gibson—Yes, sir, I would retain them there under the circumstances. That is my view every time, no matter if he is, the humblest man that walks the streets, or the highest; when this matter has been investigated, if this clerk shows that he has done his duty, he should be sustained.

My motto is to stand by the weak as well as the strong.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If the object of the Alderman opposite be to retain those whom the Board of Directors do not wish to be retained, or to dismiss those whom we wish to have them dismissed, then the proper way to do that would be to repeal the ordinance giving power to the directors of the ferries and retain the power in our hands. If the directors have arrived at that state that they cannot be intrusted with the management of the ferries and with the selection of their own officers, then the sooner we get rid of them the better. I don't know anything about the true inwardness of this case except as I saw it in the Boston Globe, a letter on one side from a director, and another letter on the other side from some one connected with the ferries. Now if the gentleman's proposition prevails, and all those parties are exonerated, we shall have to retain all those parties. I should object to that. I doubt if we should pass an order like that whether it would be binding upon the Directors of the East Boston Ferries, who have authority by the ordinance to assemble on the first Monday in May and elect a clerk who shall not be a member of the board and they may fix his salary, and may make such rules and regulations for the government of the ferries as they may deem expedient. Another section of the ordinance transfers all the powers and duties which the Legislature has given to the city of Boston in regard to the ferries to the Directors of the East Boston Ferries. Now, how can any mere order, which has not been referred to a committee, destroy the efficacy of this ordinance which gives them that power. You may call it an order, but it is tantamount to a repeal of that clause of the ordinance. How can an order of that kind, passed without a suspension of the rule, be binding upon the directors, and prevent them from discharging any person from that place without giving any excuse for it. If we have no confidence in the directors of East Boston ferries, and if there be such internal confusion among them as would prevent them from doing their duty, the better way would be to repeal all the sections of the ordinance giving them that authority. But so long as you let them remain, I think you had better not instruct them. But most of all I object to what the Alderman says, that if these parties are exonerated, that they should be kept in their places whether the directors wish them or not. They should have power to select whom they please, just as we have the right to select assessors and discharge them without a reason.

Alderman Gibson—The gentleman who last took his seat was chairman of the Retrenchment Committee, and they cut down the pay of the employes there, but I heard nothing about repealing the ordinance to do that. This is a similar case. If we had authority to do that, we certainly have authority to do this. I do not pretend to cope with the gentleman on law and upon the ordinances, but according to his own statement he certainly has violated the ordinances of the City Council.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Committee on Retrenchment reported ordinances repealing every ordinance which came in conflict with every ordinance which they reported. Such a charge as that cannot be laid upon us.

Alderman O'Brien—I will read from the fifteenth rule for the information of the Board:

"No order or vote which is not in the form of an ordinance shall have the effect to amend, suspend or repeal any ordinance."

That is a joint rule, and any order we pass here tonight cannot amend, suspend or repeal any ordinance.

Alderman Thompson—I would call the attention of the Board to the fact that before the directors can act the matter has got to come before the City Council for action. I do not think the Board is going to do that. The effect of the order is to make the City Council take sides in this controversy one way or the other. That is what I want to avoid. I know nothing about it, one way or the other. I have confidence in the Board of Directors, and I want to trust the whole matter to them.

Alderman Wilder—It seems to me that this is a matter that ought never to have come here at all. We have a very efficient Board of Directors who are acting under the ordinances of the city, and if they have got into some private differences among themselves, whereby they have got into the newspapers, I do not believe it is our business to help them unsnarl the matter. I myself have perfect confidence in the Board of Directors to run the ferries properly and to settle any differences that may come between them. If they are abused in the newspapers I believe they are capable of giving back as good as is sent. I move that the whole subject be indefinitely postponed.

Alderman Gibson—This order did not come here by any action of the Board of Directors, but it came from the other branch, and I did not know any way to get rid of it. I wanted to keep all those parties in the harness, and I wanted every person implicated to have a golden opportunity to clear himself. That is all I ask. I may have asked for it in the wrong way, but I would like to have it put so that each individual who has been referred to by the public journals shall be heard, and that all the facts shall be laid before the public. I have nothing behind the curtain, and I do not propose to have anything. I want a simple act of justice done to those men.

Alderman Wilder—I hope that all those parties will have justice done them. It only appears to me that the directors of the ferries are the proper body to bring this matter before. I do not believe this is the proper place to bring such matters. The City Council has other business to attend to, and I do not believe that they have any business in this case. With the full confidence that final justice will be done to all parties by the directors, I move that this matter be indefinitely postponed.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman on my right is anxious to have this matter have a full and fair investigation. It has been submitted to a joint committee, and I have no doubt when that committee is appointed it will be fully and fairly investigated. The investigation has nothing to do with the retention of everybody in their offices. It is presumed that every member of any fair-minded committee will investigate it fairly; but to tie the hands of the directors in their management of the ferries seems to me to be out of place.

The Mayor ruled that the amendment takes precedence of the motion to indefinitely postpone.

Alderman Clark—I would suggest that the order be amended that the parties now employed shall not be discharged during the investigation, instead of until further action by the City Council.

Alderman O'Brien—I would suggest that the order be further amended so that the directors be requested not to discharge the parties; for I feel confident that this Board cannot order the Directors to do so and so. We might request them to do so and so.

Alderman Clark—I accept the amendment.

Alderman Clark's amendment was adopted.

Alderman Wilder—I move that the order be indefinitely postponed.

Alderman Clark—I hope the subject will not be indefinitely postponed. As I understand, this order was introduced by a member of the Common Council, who is also a member of the Board of Directors of the ferries, and one of the parties charged with having done acts which it is said he ought not to have done. He has asked for an investigation, and it seems to me to be nothing more than courteous than that we should permit him to have an investigation, and an opportunity to prove himself upright and honest. Therefore I hope the order will not be indefinitely postponed.

Alderman Thompson—I should like to know what the investigation has to do with his amendment. The investigation is going on, as I understand. The member who introduced the order, I understand, suggested that the investigation be made by the Committee on the Ferries; but a special committee was appointed in its place. I think that the indefinite postponement of the order is the most proper action. I ask for the yeas and nays.

Alderman Clark—I do not understand the matter as the Alderman from Charlestown does. The investigation cannot go on till this committee is appointed. If this order is indefinitely postponed the committee cannot be appointed and the investigation cannot go on.

Alderman Thompson—I would like to have the ruling of the Chair upon that. The amendment is that when this investigation is held it shall be thus and so. I am in favor of the investigation, and I understand that the question before the Board is upon the indefinite postponement of the amendment offered by Alderman Gibson.

Alderman Wilder—No, sir; the whole subject.

The motion to indefinitely postpone the whole subject was lost—yeas 2, nays 10—Aldermen Fitzgerald and Wilder voting nay.

Alderman Thompson—I move that the order of ferred by Alderman Gibson be indefinitely postponed as amended.

The Mayor—The Chair rules that the Board has voted to incorporate that into the order.

The order as amended was passed. Following is the amendment as adopted and incorporated into the order:

“Said investigation to be public, and the Directors of the Ferries are hereby requested not to make any change in the office of clerk, superintendent or master mechanic until the investigation is closed.”

The Mayor appointed Aldermen Fitzgerald, O'Brien and Dunbar as said committee on the part of the Board.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It seems to me that it has been my misfortune to be put upon investigating committees, in whichever branch of the City Council I happen to be. I should prefer that some one else should ferry this matter over. This investigating is rather an unpleasant thing and I would rather some one else would perform the duty. I think I have had my share.

Alderman O'Brien—I would suggest that the gentleman's experience makes him a very competent member of such a committee.

Sent down.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The orders making specific appropriations for the next financial year, and for laying a tax to meet necessary expenditure (City Doc. No. 40), came up with the following amendments:

1. Restore the appropriation for new schoolhouses to $96,500.

2. Add to paving appropriation of $1,000,000 the clause, “that $150,000 of the said sum be set apart as a special appropriation for completing West Chester park, Huntington and Commonwealth avenues.”

3. Alter total of appropriations to $10,277,258, and alter total of tax to $8,145,404.

Alderman Fitzgerald—In regard to the amendment to the appropriation for a primary schoolhouse, Sherwin District, I would state that—I know it as chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings—we will have, after completing the Andrew Schoolhouse, some $12,000 at least, and that amount can be transferred to the appropriation for new schoolhouses. In the Sherwin District our estimates were based on a twelve-room schoolhouse; but the schoolhouse insist that they shall have only a ten-room house, as they think that is quite sufficient for any primary schoolhouse. If we build even a twelve-room schoolhouse we shall not require this amount, and by the transfer from the appropriation for the Andrew District we shall need only $40,000 at most to be raised by taxation to meet the necessary wants of the schoolhouses. I move that we concur with the Council in all the amendments to the appropriation bill except that, and that we insist upon that. I speak of that because I know of what I speak. I understood that in the other branch the Alderman opposite [Alderman Thompson] was given as the authority for raising the amount. The City Architect tells me he had not sufficient time to explain the whole matter to him, and I have no doubt the chairman of the Committee on Public Instruction will agree with me in insisting upon that and in concurring with the Council in all the other amendments.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman is correct in his statements about the forty thousand dollars being sufficient. I thought the other evening, when I advised the amendment, that it would be passed by this Board, and that would be an end of it. But there will be a surplus in the treasury from the Andrew School Fund, after completing the building, and the city can with safety make the reduction proposed by the Alderman.

The motion of Alderman Fitzgerald was adopted, and the Board concurred with the Council in all the amendments except that relating to the Sherwin District Schoolhouse. The total amount of the tax levy was made to correspond with the amendment. Sent down.

THE LICENSING OF FRUIT AND OTHER STANDS IN PUBLIC STREETS.

The Board took up the special assignment for 5 P. M., viz.: Consideration of order to revoke all licenses for street stands, and for the immediate removal of said stands.

Alderman Wilder called for the yeas and nays on the passage of the order.

Alderman O'Brien—The present order is so sweeping, including as it does all kinds of street stands, without regard to the article sold, it appears to me that it would be an injustice to adopt it, and when adopted it would be still greater injustice to enforce it. It may be contrary to a strict construction of the statutes to allow street stands, but there is some doubt about it, and the poor people who earn a living in this way should have the benefit of the doubt. There are a great many laws and ordinances that are not enforced to the letter, and this may be one of them. Smoking in the streets is not allowed by law, but is now a very common practice, and any attempt to enforce it would be met with a decided opposition, perhaps even from the Alderman who offered this order. Railroad corporations cannot block up the streets more than five minutes at a time, with cars or engines, unless at a penalty of $100, but according to the testimony of the Alderman from the Charlestown District, this law is constantly violated by the railroads at the North End, and any attempt to enforce this penalty would seriously interfere with the movement of freight and our export trade. Projecting steps are contrary to the statutes, but thousands of them are allowed to exist. Bow windows and porticos are not allowed to project more than one foot, but still thousands of them exceed this limit. Goods, wares and merchandise cannot be placed on the sidewalk more than one foot, but still goods, wares and merchandise are displayed on all our leading retail streets far beyond this limit, and it looks to me more like business to see such displays. No empty boxes, barrels or hogsheads can be placed on the street for more than five minutes without subjecting parties to a fine, but I never heard of any fines being collected, and it would be very inconvenient to business men to enforce it. No lumber, iron, coal, hale, box, trunk, crate, cask or package of any kind of goods is allowed on the sidewalk for more than five minutes, but enforce this law and there is scarcely a wholesale house in Boston but would rise up in arms against it, as it would almost prevent them from doing business. When we attempted to pass an order looking to the enforcement of this law, last year, one of the largest fruit dealers in the city made the remark to me that he would have to move to New York if such restrictions were enforced, as it would almost prevent him from doing business. There is no large house in the fruit trade but is compelled to place more or less goods on the sidewalk, and boxes of oranges and lemons, bags of nuts, bunches of bananas, crates of peaches and other fruit are to be found in front of their stores from morning to night, and for my part I like to see this display because it looks more like business, as though there was some life to trade. The wholesale boot and shoe trade, the grocers, the flour dealers and all large houses in almost every department of trade are compelled to violate a strict construction of the laws against street obstructions, and for my part I should like to see the law violated even more than at present, because it is an indication that business is active, and increased activity in business is precisely what we want. I merely call attention to these facts to show what we are coming to if we remove all street stands, because to be consistent we ought to enforce the law against all obstructions. Enforce all our laws and ordinances to the letter, and it would make it very uncomfortable for business men to do business.

At the same time, the dealers in fruit who occupy stores and pay taxes have good reason to complain of the present state of affairs. If the business were confined exclusively to the poor there would be very little or no objection to street stands, but it has become of such magnitude that capitalists are now in the business, and some of our street vendors are no longer mere retailers, but compete with our largest jobbers in the purchase of fruit, frequently buying from fifty to one hundred boxes of oranges at a time, and sometimes even a larger amount. With no rent and no taxes, they can afford to sell cheap, and unless this business is placed under more stringent regulations, stores devoted exclusively to the sale of fruit will have to be given up. Capitalists, who have no stores, who pay no taxes, who never intend to become citizens, supply many of the prominent street corners with all the fruit that is sold, interfering with the business of the regular dealers, and these men ought to be reached if possible. No one person should be allowed more than one stand, and no one should be allowed to sell fruit on the street who has accumulated any considerable amount of money. These permits should be given only to the poor, and if this is done I believe there will be no complaint.

The present order, however, is altogether too sweeping. It interferes with newspaper stands, and it is a great convenience to suburban to be able to purchase a newspaper when on their way to steam or horse cars. The peach trade is increasing quite rapidly. Large quantities are received by steamship and railroad in the season, and this trade requires a rapid distribution. Put a stop to street stands and it appears to me that the peach trade will have to suffer. It will interfere with just what is wanted during the peach season—a rapid distribution; and I don't see how we will be able to dispose of this crop without the assistance of street stands and street venders. The supply of grapes is also rapidly increasing. Grapes are no longer only a luxury for the rich, but the low price at which they are sold places them within the reach of the poor. We have not only become large manufacturers of wine, but the supply of grapes from California, from the West and from neighboring States is immense, and street stands and street venders place the crops in the hands of consumers at very low prices. This crop also requires a rapid distribution, and the enforcement of this order will interfere with it. Under this order chestnut venders would have to take their departure, and I don't see what we could do with the chestnut crop were it not for these little roasters that are to be found on every corner in the season of chestnuts, inviting the passer-by to invest a few cents. Now, in trying to drive lemons and oranges from our streets—and this fruit appears to be the objective point—you also force everything else with it, and this, it appears to me, will do more injury than good. The fruit trade that requires a rapid distribution will be sure to suffer, and the poor people who earn an honest penny in this way will also be sure to suffer. If any abuses have crept into the business let us get rid of the abuses without driving all the poor people from our streets. There is no large city that can afford to dispense with these aids in the distribution of our perishable crops.

To remedy the complaints as much as possible, without interfering materially with the present order of things, permits should only be granted to persons who are known to be poor. In order to interfere as little as possible with the regular dealers, who hire stores and pay taxes, no permit should be granted on any street, say within one hundred feet of any dealer. If the present order is rejected, I intend to offer an order with this limit, which, it appears to me, will protect the fruit dealers who occupy stores, and will give ample opportunity to street venders to do business.

With our present rapid communication, the whole fruit crop of the country is within our reach. The movement of this crop gives employment to our steamers and railroad lines and to thousands of our people. It requires a quick movement to dispose of it, and we cannot dispense with any of the aids that assist a rapid distribution, if we wish to compete with other large cities for the sale and distribution of this crop.

This matter has previously been before the Board. A well-considered report, made in September, 1874, closed with the following remarks:

"All permits granted by the committee are subject to revocation at any time on notice from the police, and as soon as any well-grounded complaint is made, showing an obstruction to public travel, or an improper use of the privilege, it is withdrawn. In reply to the complaints of fruit dealers who hire permanent places of business, it may be said that the sale of fruit from stands in the public streets and grounds, or by persons going about from house to house, has been permitted from time immemorial. The statutes do not require pedlers of fruit and provisions to have a license. Persons who have places of business to sell these articles do so with the full knowledge of what they have to compete with, and so long as the legitimate use of the streets is not seriously interfered with they have no just cause for complaint. In most instances, as appeared in the public hearing given by the committee, the complainants themselves occupy a portion of the public way, in front of their shops, for the display and sale of their stock. The committee see no reason for changing the policy which they have heretofore pursued in regulating street venders, and they are, therefore, of opinion that no further action is necessary upon the subject."

This report was accepted, and shows the feeling of the Board in 1874 on this matter.

Alderman Robinson—I am extremely happy to agree with my friend, Alderman O'Brien. As a member of the License Committee I should have been as ready to vote on this matter at our last meeting as I am tonight, and should have voted the same way. Notwithstanding the astute arguments of the counsel for the petitioners it appeared to me that they could not be deemed of very great weight. He brought no evidence, but said there was no law to authorize this Board to grant permits to these fruit venders who had their little stands on the tit bits of the street, and therefore we were going contrary to law, or that we were breaking laws in so doing. I am no lawyer, and I failed to see what law we were breaking; there may be some legal point in it that my friend Fitzgerald can clear up; but I did not see, if there was no law against it, how we could be breaking any law. I know nothing about legal questions, but there is one sentiment of justice implanted in the heart of every man that leads him conscientiously to draw correct conclusions of right and wrong, which should be the basis of all law as well as the guide of a man's acts, no matter in whatever situation or position in life he may be placed, if he can look in the glass and confront that face before him boldly and honestly without flinching, he is right and feels satisfied with himself, for he knows well that though he may deceive others he cannot deceive that face that confronts him. Now, what law do we break in granting these permits? Not God's law, for the law of the Almighty constrains us in the way of charity, and these poor men and women who sell fruits on the corners of the streets are our fellow creatures—the humblest of them all is of equal importance in the eye of Omnipotence as he who may occupy the most exalted rank in life. We do not break the law of man, otherwise the able gentleman would have told us what law it was. It must therefore be the law of selfishness; but selfishness, though once in awhile commendable and necessary, should not be the governing motive of a civilized and enlightened community, nor should we be actuated by it, more especially when it would tend to deprive a poor class of people of one means of obtaining an honest living—the vending of fruit in the streets cannot be deemed other than honest.

It was urged that the shopkeepers who sell fruit have a right to the whole of the fruit trade, because they pay taxes and store rent; and all the signers of the petition, and dealers to the number of 1800, are voters. And a gentle hint was thrown out that if the chairman of the License Committee had an eye squinting ever so little towards the office of mayor some years hence, these were the men to please. For these poor Italians were not voters. Moreover they slept three in a bed, did not buy any dry goods, were content with the cast-off clothing given them by those more fortunate in life, and as soon as they succeed in raking and scraping together one thousand dollars or so by denying themselves, they return to Italy to live in affluence for the rest of their lives. Well, let it be so. We cannot regard them even then in any other way than a benefit to the public, and if they do the public good, why should the public complain? If, while they scrape this thousand dollars together, they enable the public generally to obtain the fruits of our own and foreign lands at a very much reduced price, why should we complain? If, notwithstanding they sell oranges and bananas brought thousands of miles cheaper than our own apples and pears raised among us or in the vicinity of the city are sold, and still gather by dint of sleeping three in a bed a few hundred dollars, why should Bostonians complain if they do take those few hundreds to Italy and revel in luxury among the fleas of Naples for the rest of their lives? It is their affair, not ours.

A vessel arrives loaded with oranges—a fruit that an enterprising merchant has sent thousands of miles to obtain—employing a vessel with her crew several months in the business; sometimes two or three arrive at the same time. Now, the shopkeepers or dealers can only take a portion of this fruit, how much I cannot say; but I will presume one-third part—that part being selected to keep the longest time without decaying. The other two-thirds must be sold at once or otherwise it rots, and does no one any good. These poor people come in and buy it at a less price, perhaps, than the dealers, after the wants of the latter have been supplied. It has to be sold at a very small profit. It is ripe, and the venders cannot afford to hold on for large profits and have it rot on their hands, hence it is sold very low. We all buy it of them as we pass; and those of us who take the cars for the suburban wards, or the environs of the city, would hardly think of going into a store to buy unless by the quantity or for the purpose of buying fruit of a more choice character. Therefore our families would be deprived of some delicacies they now enjoy.

In peach time, short it may be, but I am told that some forty car loads arrive daily on the average in the height of the season. The grocers and dealers can only dispose of ten. The street vendors take the other thirty, and we revel in the luxury of a happy enjoyment of what nature in our own country gives us in so bountiful a manner, by being enabled to buy it at a moderate price on account of these very street vendors. If it were not for them no railroad companies would put on special fruit trains to bring it in fresh every morning, and that which we so much like would have to be sent elsewhere for sale.

I do not believe, gentlemen, that the sale of nuts or fruit in the streets, of any kind, by the street vendors injures the sales by the shopkeepers. What is bought in the streets is outside and irrespective of that which the large dealers sell to regular customers or country trade. I cannot believe that the sales of the street vendors interfere in any great degree with the sales of the grocers or those who pay rent for stores. We profess in Boston to be the most enlightened city in the universe—the Athens of America—the hub of all creation. In every large city of Europe, also in our own seaboard cities, we find this same class of people selling fruit, sometimes flowers, occasionally small wares of every description—such people are incidental to large cities. No one elsewhere, I am informed, ever dreams of putting a stop to the traffic; but here in our own city of Boston—one of the most beautiful in itself and its surroundings that the sun shines upon, a city renowned for its wealth and for the liberality of its citizens, the high character of its institutions and the high-toned benevolence of all—a body of men said to be the bone and sinew of the city, as many as eighteen hundred of them, come before this Board with a petition, and back that petition up, not with evidence, but by a very astute lawyer, and ask that these poor people, who are trying to earn an honest living in the streets, and who benefit the public at the same time, be deprived of their occupation, and that their permits be revoked, because they prevent the regular or larger dealers from making satisfactory profits or the larger profits of former times, and which they could make again were it not for these poor people—Italian, Irish, German, or whatever their nationality may be—prevent them. Why, gentlemen, it makes us think worse of human nature. I cannot believe that any considerable number of our own citizens would do such a thing. I cannot think that any considerable number of these eighteen hundred bone and sinew wish for it. It is contrary to humanity. In this most respected city of our free republic, blessed and sometimes chastened by our Almighty Creator, in times past showing whom God loveth he chasteneth—I say in this city to attempt to do what the monarchical nations of the Old World would not think of attempting to do, nor could do if they so wished—would seem to indicate that republics in some instances are more uncharitable than monarchies. It is said that republics are generally ungrateful, but let not cities oppress the poor.

It was said by the learned and able man who appeared as counsel for the petitioners—who, by the way, I never had the pleasure of seeing or hearing before—that these people go home when $1000 or so were gathered, and live in Italy in affluence the rest of their days, eating macaroni and sometimes drinking wine. It should have been drinking wine and sometimes eating macaroni. No poor man in Italy, even those who break stones on the highway, thinks of eating a meal without his wine. No matter whether it is radishes, bread, macaroni, potatoes, polenta (which we call mush), that makes his meal, the wine always comes in—but such wine, when vinegar would be the proper name; yet it is enjoyed and is a necessity of the climate. We profess to be the country of the world where the oppressed will find protection, and where the poor and needy can find a welcome and a home, and generally an occupation whereby an honest living can be obtained. We have no right to complain of their going back to their own country. It is their right. Our own people go and return in the same manner. In almost every part of the habitable globe where money is to be made a live Yankee may be found trying by indomitable energy to make his fortune, whether it is building railroads in Russia or Spain; whether as bankers in London, Paris, or in German cities; whether it is raising sunken ships at Sebastopol, or raising wool in South America; whether it is mining in Mexico or shipping tea from China or Japan; whether it is exploring the interior of Africa, or commanding armies for the viceroy of Egypt; whether it is collecting ivory at Zanzibar, or carrying the Bible to the benighted heathen in Asiatic countries; whether it is gathering the figs of the Mediterranean sold there by the street vendors, or digging gold in Australia, our own people are found in every city, town or locality where it is supposed money is to be made. And I much doubt if among them any great number can be found who do not look ahead to some day when they can return to their own land, to enjoy the fruits of years of toil, energy and labor, among their relatives and early friends, in spending judiciously their ample fortune they shall have amassed. It is true that many do not return, but the fault lies in themselves. Americans are not satisfied with any thousand dollars, nor will they sleep three in a bed from choice; a dogged determination to acquire a large fortune keeps them at their post too long. Ideas of Americans are higher than selling fruit in the streets. The intermixture of races in their blood gives them the high qualities of energy, perseverance, shrewdness and determination to conquer a position or achieve greatness wherever they may go; generally they all make their mark, be it for good or for bad. We never hear of their being interfered with by foreign governments. It may be that they hold positions of too much importance; but, however, we never hear any of our friends who have lived in foreign lands complain of bad treatment, or of having been interfered with in any occupation they may have followed of an honest nature. The amount of money brought home by those who come back far exceeds that which these poor Italians take away with them, and they spend it liberally also. It would take a great many Italian street vendors to take away what a Peabody has spent in his established institutions in this country, and which money was amassed in another land. Many Americans may die abroad—death comes upon all alike—but the United States is where Americans are born, where they all wish to die, but while they live they desire to fill the world with their renown and authority. Boston has furnished her quota of these energetic men; has derived much benefit from the labors of absent citizens. Why should such an order as that offered be passed, to deprive a few hundred poor people of an honest way of earning a living? Why should the public be deprived of the benefits derived from their vending fruit at a low price? If there are any abuses in the licenses let them be rectified, but do not pass an order to sweep all rights away. I move the indefinite postponement of the order.

Alderman Viles—While I shall vote to remove the fruit stands from the streets, I will merely reply to one or two assertions made by the Alderman last up. He said the fruit stands make no difference in regard to the sale of fruit in the stores. That is not so. I have been in a grocery store for twenty years, and we used to keep all kinds of fruits in their seasons—Malaga grapes, oranges, strawberries, bananas, etc.; but for the last ten years I have not kept any of those articles, for the reason that people on the street undersold me, and our fruits rotted on our hands. I shall not vote to remove them, for it is pretty hard to prevent a poor man from getting a living. I know that the street stands are demoralizing to the fruit stores on our street, and it is so all over the city.

Alderman Robinson—I bow to the ideas of Alderman Viles, for he probably knows more about this matter than I do. I simply made it as a casual remark, and if I am wrong I am corrected. I had supposed that the sale of fruit on the street corners did not interfere in any great measure with the sale of fruit that is sold in the stores, because as we pass by it is very easy for us to buy a dozen oranges or bananas in a bag, while we should not get them if we had to go to the store.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I presume that the origin of the custom of granting licenses to persons to sell fruit throughout the city grew out of the fact that there were a great many persons who could not rent stores, but if they received permission to commence with a capital of fifty cents or one dollar, they could earn a livelihood for themselves, and thus prevent the city of Boston from supporting them. That has been the custom of the city of Boston since it became a city, and, I presume, long before that; and it has continued up to the present time. The Alderman who has been engaged in the fruit trade informs us that the business has been interfered with by the permits given by the Board of Aldermen to persons to sell oranges and fruits. This petition comes here ostensibly on the ground that the stands interfere with public travel; but really it is because it interferes with their trade. If the permits should be refused because the stands interfere with public travel, the Board should go further and revoke all licenses for truck wagons and express wagons upon our streets, for they are a greater obstruction to pedestrians and to the public travel generally than are the fruit stands. I take it for granted that the real reason for the petition of these people is that the stands interfere with the sale of their fruit. Now, if the Board of Aldermen are to prevent them on that ground, they should go further and prevent the fishmongers and the travelling peddlers going from house to house, selling articles of clothing and articles of that kind, on the ground that they interfere with people who have stores, and it should prevent the fruit vendors, who go from house to house to sell fruits and oranges, on the ground that they pay no rent, while the owners of stores pay rent and thereby help to support the city of Boston. If you go one step in that direction, you must take the other step in order to be logical. There is no reason why we should not revoke all the licenses for express wagons and teams that have stands on the streets of the city. I think the Alderman would not go so far as that. But I think the argument that should weigh primarily with us is this: that it is a fact that in each particular case we have poor persons who obstruct the street, but it does not follow that because John Jones obstructs the public way and is found guilty by the court, his neighbor, John Smith, also obstructs the street. But it has not been denied that this action is illegal by the tribunal from which there is no appeal—the Supreme Court; and therefore I think the Board of Aldermen should hesitate before voting that they have no authority to give licenses, which have been granted for a century, when nobody higher than they are have decided that they have not that power. I grant that in many cases the licenses may be passed, and I think the committee should see to it that no persons except those poor men who have large families dependent upon them should receive licenses, and I, as chairman of the committee, and my colleagues, will scrutinize them so that nobody, except those poor people who are unable to go into business, shall get a license to sell these fruits. I think that is all these gentlemen can ask of us until such time as it is decided by the Supreme Court; and even then I will go further and ask whether it is not a fact that it should be decided whether there is not an obstruction in each particular case. I hope the order will not pass, and I hope the Alderman to my right [Alderman O'Brien] will not offer his amendment requiring fruit stands to be located not less than 500 feet from a fruit store, which simply requires that they should be 1000 feet from a store. It will practically prohibit any licenses at all, because there are few such stores in some parts of the city which are 1000 feet apart. I hope the Alderman will see it in that light, and will not offer the order, but will allow the Committee on Licenses to exercise their judgment and scrutinize each case when it comes up. I have heard, also, another excellent reason from the Alderman on my right [Alderman Slade] and I should like him to state those reasons.

Alderman Slade—The Alderman is looking pretty hard at me, and I suppose he means me. It is true I have a good many personal friends in the fruit trade, and I have seen them and conversed with them a good deal during the last month. I do not think they would care so much about anything else, if the orange and lemon stands were out of the way. I think it is true that if we should pass so sweeping an order as this it would drive everything out of the streets, and it will have a tendency to keep away perishable fruit from the city. There is no doubt that two-thirds of all the peaches that come to Boston are sold upon the street stands. I know that on their arrival the storekeepers leave their orders for some of the best fruit that they can keep for one or two days at their store, and that if not sold the dealers they have to sell the remainder to the street vendors; I don't know anything else that could be done with it. If all the sales on the streets were prohibited, I think we should cut short a good deal of the luxuries that we now enjoy. If I understand it, the trouble about this is that this trade has got to be immense with people who pretend to be poor, and have stands upon the streets, but the same persons will employ a dozen or fifteen, more or less, at a certain price per day, get the stands, furnish them with fruits, and take the benefit of the profits. I think this order should go back to the committee, and let them look into the matter. I have understood that some of these individuals who have numerous stands will go down to the auction sales of fruits and purchase more than any dealer would dare to purchase; and that makes a competition in fruit, because they know they do not have to pay any rent and can sell at much less than a dealer can, and therefore they can pay higher prices. Now if it is found that any person has fifteen or twenty stands upon the street and is reaping the benefit of them, I think that ought to be stopped. Perhaps if it had not been for that these dealers would not have been here. So far as protection is concerned, we all need protection in that light, because there is scarcely any commodity that we deal in that is not peddled on the streets. I know that the commodity that I deal in has been peddled on the streets for twenty years. I will make a motion, in view of what I have heard of this matter, that the order be referred to the Committee on Licenses, to see if they cannot do something that is right and proper to relieve those who come here and complain.

Alderman Robinson—I hope this Board will decide the question one way or the other. I don't know what the Committee on Licenses can do. This order is very sweeping in its nature. It provides that numerous permits shall be granted, and those permits already granted shall be revoked. Now, what is there for the Committee on Licenses to report on? There is nothing for them to consider, and there will be nothing for the committee to report upon in favor or against. As the whole argument of the counsel for the petitioners was made before this Board, I don't know why the matter should be referred to the Committee on Licenses. I don't know what decision the committee would come to on this matter, but I think this Board just as competent to decide upon it intelligently now as they would a fortnight hence. If they decided against the passage of the order, that is what the committee would do if called on to act upon it. I think the committee are no more able to judge of the justness of this order—not near so much—than the Board of Aldermen, who have listened to the arguments of the distinguished gentleman who argued this case.

Alderman Wilder—I have no new arguments to offer for the passage of the order, and I am aware that it is a foregone conclusion that this Board will reject it. Perhaps I would have been glad to find some way to make the order a little less sweeping in its character, but that was the only way to do it. It is admitted that there is no law for granting these licenses. This Government petitioned the State Legislature for a law, and a long, exhaustive hearing took place upon the subject. The matter was brought before the Legislature, was passed finally by one branch, was amended, and finally rejected, it being the conclusion of the legislators that the city of Boston did not require any such law. Now, suits have already been commenced against the city, one or more of which will be decided. I don't believe there is any gentleman here—I certainly believe that the legal member of this Board [Alderman Fitzgerald] would not hesitate to say that in his opinion, if a decision ever was arrived at it would be averse to the right of the city of Boston to grant these permits. The gentleman in his argument said there was no place to stop, and if we pass this order we should with the same propriety apply it to various other street obstructions. Now, if the gentleman would permit one foot of the sidewalk to be occupied for stands why stop at one foot? Why not give the whole sidewalk? If you have the right to concede one foot of the sidewalk, you have the right to concede the whole. I introduced the order not because I expected it would pass, but because I wanted to put myself upon record as opposed to granting permits in the pretended name of charity, or any other pretence, that we have not the right to do. I believe that when we come to discuss the charity question it is very doubtful if it is wise and judicious to grant permits. I thank the gentleman opposite for stating the fact that is well known to everybody in the fruit trade. There it is not charity. It is helping the speculations of these men who know enough to secure prominent points, furnish them with a little stock for men unable to do business, and who have not to pay the necessary taxes that people do who are engaged in business. I would be the last man to deprive a poor individual of getting an honest livelihood. Now what does this order do? It simply restricts the Board of Aldermen from granting any more permits of doubtful legality. It does not restrain any gentleman who has a doorway or passageway or any other place under his control, if he desires to, because there is an opportunity of selling within such a place where it is no encroachment upon the public travel or public street. This order does not prevent him from doing that. I have two places adjacent to my premises, where I would be very glad indeed to give any poor person an opportunity to sell fruit. I don't believe the passage of this order would stop the vending of fruit in the streets. It is a proper business when done in a proper place. I think the record will show that two hundred permits were granted two years ago, and now the number is about four hundred. It has grown into a business which sbrewd men are speculating upon with the pretence that it is charity to poor men. I am especially opposed to it upon the charity view of the question. I hope the order will pass, although I don't expect it will.

Alderman Slade—After all the representations made here, why not refer it to the Committee on Licenses and let them look into it and see if they have gone too far? I think it ought to go to the Committee on Licenses, after the information we have got upon the subject.

Alderman Clark—It seems to me it is hardly necessary to refer this matter to the Committee on Licenses, because all licenses expire on the 1st of May. If the committee exercise their judgment, I think they will not allow permits to any speculative persons. I believe no permits should be granted to any but persons in necessitous circumstances. Many of the present occupants of stands are known to own their own houses and have money in bank; and in my opinion such persons should not have permits. So far as possible, the permits should be given only to citizens of the city. There are arguments on both sides of this question. The stands are an injury to dealers and grocers who keep fruit for sale, because the sidewalk dealers can undersell the keepers of stores, who are at a large expenditure. But on the other hand, the stands afford the means of support for hundreds and perhaps thousands of people. For the reason that the arguments are decidedly in favor of granting this permission, whether it is against the law or not, I shall vote for the indefinite postponement of the order. I do not believe it is best to refer it to the Committee on Licenses, as all licenses expire during the month of April. All licenses to be issued for the coming year should be carefully scrutinized, and the committee ought to grant permits only to such persons as are known to be in needy circumstances; and no licenses should be granted to persons who have been in the habit of buying fruit by the cargo and retailing it from the stands. I believe as the Alderman from Ward 24 [Alderman Robinson] has said, that the prohibition in the order is too sweeping, and it would be the means of driving the peach and grape trade, and I don't know but the orange trade, from the city of Boston. I should hope that the amendment of the Alderman from the Twenty-first Ward will not be adopted, inasmuch as it would drive the stands from some of the most convenient corners on the streets. You can hardly find a street where the stores are not nearer together than 500 feet. Such a provision would take the stands off of about two-thirds of Washington street; and certainly in my own neighborhood, one at the corner of Federal and Pearl street, will be driven out of market. I do not see how the importers of fruits can come here and ask that the permits for the sale of fruits in the streets be revoked.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Of course every member of this Board knows that there is not a charitable cause which requires money that impostors do not enter into and collect money which they should not collect. So it is in this case; and I have no doubt some stands are owned by poor people and controlled by persons who employ them. But I know of none; it is simply an assertion, and neither the Aldermen nor the Superintendent of Licenses can point to any. There are suspicions, but there is nothing that amounts to anything to show that you get your fruit from a stand controlled by speculators. I know there was a case of a poor Italian doing business on the corner of Washington and Bedford streets, who was brought before us on the petition of a gentleman before whose place he was located, who asked to have his license revoked; and to our amazement we found that that poor Italian had been paying that man a dollar a day; and on the very night before he had paid him fifty cents, and his petition was then in the hands of the committee. The Committee on Licenses exercise a great deal of scrutiny in the selection of the persons to whom they grant permits. The residences and names are sent round to the different stations and the police officers report upon them and their condition. I have here several samples of these applications, and the reports of the police thereon. [The Alderman read the reports showing a thorough investigation by the police in each case, the poverty of the applicants and the recommendations of the police.] The persons are those who are deserving and unable to do anything except some business of that kind; and when any other cases come up the committee invariably refuse the application. I have no doubt that some who have nothing in the world, receive some supplies from outside parties who receive in turn some profit. But I have no doubt that the persons who sell the fruit get as much profit from them as those who furnish the supplies. I think the committee should not grant licenses to parties to sell where there are fruit stores; but that they should be where they would not materially interfere with the business of those who occupy stores for fruit purposes. But I think that ought to be left to the discretion of the committee.

Alderman Slade—I was not aware that the licenses were so near out, and that being the fact I would withdraw the motion to refer.

The motion of Alderman Robinson to indefinitely postpone the order prevailed.

Alderman O'Brien offered an order—That hereafter no permits for stands for the sale of fruit in the public streets shall be granted, except upon condition that such stands shall not be located at a less distance than one hundred feet from any store where fruit is sold.

Alderman O'Brien moved the reference of the order to the Committee on Licenses.

Alderman Robinson—Suppose a fruit stand is located on the corner of a street, or where there was no fruit store, and a store should be established there for the sale of fruit, how would the order affect that?

Alderman O'Brien—I should say that the fruit stand would have the preference by holding the position.

The order was referred to the Committee on Licenses.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Report that it is inexpedient to grant the petition of Joseph H. Carter et al., that the new bridge on Columbus avenue be of the Deck pattern. Accepted.

Report that the City Surveyor be authorized to furnish James McNeil with the established grade of Columbus avenue. Accepted.

Reports of leave to withdraw on the petitions of Mary J. Moore, Morse & Remick, J. E. Adams & Co., to be paid for grade damages on Swett street. Severally accepted.

Report in favor of granting the petition of Eben B. Phillips, for leave to make excavations under sidewalk in Atlantic avenue near Pearl street, for the purpose of constructing a driveway. Accepted.

Report that a license be granted to John Berghen to sprinkle the streets in Ward 25. Accepted.

Order—That the sidewalk assessment of $14.69 against the estate of Sarah F. Fogg on Silver street be and the same is hereby abated. Read twice and passed.

HORSE RAILROAD LOCATIONS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Metropolitan Railroad. Report and order for location for the Metropolitan Railroad Company as follows: A single track with suitable turnouts on Lexington street, from Meridian street to Prescott street, and to connect said tracks with the tracks of said road on Meridian street; also a single track on Prescott street, from Lexington street to the said tracks of said company in Chelsea street; also a turnout on said Prescott street, between Saratoga and Bennington streets. [The order contains the usual conditions.]

Order read twice and passed.

South Boston Railroad. Report and order granting a location for the South Boston Railroad, as follows: A curved track at the intersection of Federal street and Kneeland street to unite the track of said road on Kneeland street with the track of the Metropolitan Railroad on Federal street. [The order contains the usual conditions.] Order read twice and passed.

Middlesex Railroad. Report and order of location for the Middlesex Railroad, as follows: A curved track at the intersection of Lincoln street and Beach street, to connect the track of the said Middlesex Railroad on Lincoln street with the most southerly track of the South Boston Railroad on Beach street; also the right, until otherwise ordered, to enter upon and use with its horses and cars, to an extent not exceeding seven cars per hour, the tracks of the South Boston Railroad on Beach street between Lincoln and Federal streets, and also the track of the Metropolitan Railroad on Federal street between Beach and Kneeland streets and the track of the South Boston Railroad on Kneeland and South streets. [The order contains the usual conditions.]

Alderman Fitzgerald—I do not want to discuss this matter, as it was sufficiently discussed at the last meeting; but I want to say that the statement of the Alderman opposite [Alderman Thompson] about the right of the Middlesex Railroad to go around Temple place is not correct, and he was misinformed and labored under a misapprehension. The Middlesex Railroad has the right to go around Temple place when it deems fit, and it can take all or a portion of its cars around that way or by the other route. The president of that railroad says that on Sundays, instead of going through Temple place, in order to get to the churches on the Back Bay, the people prefer going down Summer street, through Lincoln street and up to the corner of Boylston and Tremont streets, rather than up Washington street and through Temple place to Tremont street. The whole matter is amicably settled now, and the people will be allowed to take that ride around the circuit in order to get up there. The chief reason they wanted the track to remain there was to allow the people to go around the circuit to get to the churches on the Back Bay instead of going through Temple place. The Alderman opposite said the right to go through Temple place had been revoked, and I said it was not so. I thought he was not correct, and I find it was not, as I found that a great many other things which I said were also correct.

Alderman Burnham—Do I understand that the Middlesex Railroad are compelled, by the action of this Board, to run seven cars an hour around by the Federal-street route to the Old Colony Depot? I do not desire to go into a discussion of this matter, but it seems to me there is something about it that is exceedingly foggy. The Middlesex Railroad came to us and asked to be allowed to run to the depots in the southern part of the city, and the matter was presented very strongly in that light on the 28th of February, 1876, by Mr. Powers, president of the Middlesex Railroad, at that time. [The Alderman read the testimony introduced by Mr. Powers on that date to show that the object of the petition was to accommodate the patrons on the Boston & Maine and other roads, who desired speedy communication with the southern depots.] Now it seems to me that we have granted them the privilege they asked for, and having received it, they desire something else; and my object in making the inquiry, if we compel them to run those cars to the depot is to know just what we are doing. I do not know that it is for the interest of the South Boston or any railroad to prevent them from doing so. But it does seem to me that we should settle this matter now so that we all will understand it. If it is not incorporated into the order that they shall run so many cars to the Old Colony Depot, I shall move to amend so that they shall be required to do so. The trouble with the order is that it does not compel them to do it, and they can turn down by the United States Hotel and not go to the Old Colony Depot at all.

Alderman Thompson—I don't see that this order is different from any others passed by this Board, and I don't know of any order compelling a road to run any particular number of cars. This order permits the running of seven cars an hour, but it don't compel them to do it. I don't understand why the Alderman wants to compel them to run any cars there. Heretofore there has been a great deal of opposition to it, and I don't see why he should desire to compel the running of cars there prejudicial to the interest of the South Boston road.

Alderman Burnham—I asked for information. I am assured by the president of the South Boston road that the matter is satisfactory. It was not satisfactory to me, because I did not understand it. I have no amendment to offer.

The order was passed.

PERMITS FOR WOODEN BUILDINGS.

Alderman Wilder submitted reports from the Joint Committee on the Survey and Inspection of Building, recommending the passage of orders authorizing the issue of permits to erect wooden buildings as follows: Henry Lawn, East Fourth street, upon condition that a brick wall be built at each side of the proposed building; Boston & Albany Railroad on Grand Junction wharf and two buildings on Third street. Orders read twice and passed. Sent down.

CITY HOSPITAL STABLE.

Alderman O'Brien offered an order—That in conformity with the petition of the Trustees of the City Hospital of April 9th, 1877 (the required permission having been granted), the said Trustees be and are hereby authorized to abandon the present brick stable appertaining to the hospital, and to permanently occupy for a stable the wooden building formerly used as a smallpox hospital, now standing upon the southwest corner of same lot, together with a strip of land in the rear of said building, about 25x80 feet, for a stable yard. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That in the construction of the new piggery at Deer Island, and the addition to the brick building at Rainsford Island (provided for in the appropriation bill of 1877-78), the Directors for Public Institutions be instructed to procure estimates and proposals from responsible parties for furnishing the material required for said buildings; but that the said directors be and they are hereby authorized to have discretionary power so far as relates to the labor to be used in the construction of the buildings.

Alderman Fitzgerald—There is an ordinance which obliges all boards having charge of the erection of public buildings belonging to the city, to advertise, and that order is intended to suspend that ordinance. It should be an ordinance that section so-and-so of chapter so-and-so shall not apply to the buildings to be erected on Deer Island—I mean if we want to comply with the joint rules and orders that no order shall repeal or suspend an ordinance. I merely suggest that the order should be in conformity with the ordinance.

Alderman Thompson—The committee were under the impression that this order, applying to a specific object, would not interfere with the ordinance. They do not want to interfere with the ordinance, but to pass an order for a specific purpose. I was under the impression that the order, under the circumstances, would answer the purpose. I don't think it necessary to repeal the ordinance.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent down.

STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Report that permits be granted to occupy stables by John F. Wilson, 249 Highland street; John L. Dakin, Wise place.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Thomas Gogin for leave to occupy stable rear of 40 and 41 Vinton street.

Severally accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of Samuel B. & J. H. Pierce for damages by the construction of a sewer in their land in Clayton street, Dorchester; Elizabeth Robinson, for abatement of sewer assessment in Brook Valley, Ward 20; Ann Gay, for abatement of sewer assessment in Brook Valley. Severally accepted.

Reports that it is inexpedient to grant the petition of John Wall et al., that floodgates be erected at the end of Wapping street and of Gray street, Charlestown; and that no action is necessary on petition of Bailey L. Page et al., for abatement of assessment for sewer in Spring-park avenue. Severally accepted.

Order to pay for land taken and damages occasioned by sewers, as follows: James Tucker, 2d, $350, sewer through Dorchester Brook Valley. Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That $24.13 be abated from the assessment levied upon B. W. Williams, for a sewer in Chestnut street, on account of overestimate of land; that $21.19 be abated from Catherine R. Whitney, for a sewer in Alveston street; that $76.83 be abated from James Tucker, 2d, for a sewer between Dudley and Quincy streets, on account of overestimate of land; that $34.64 be abated from the assessment levied upon Charles H. S. Townsend, for a sewer in Ashland street, on account of overestimate of land; that $53.83 be abated from the assessment levied upon Fanny E. Benedict, for a sewer in Adams street, on account of overestimate of land; that the assessment of $17.94 assessed upon Caroline P. Currier, for a sewer in Terrace street, be transferred to Mary W. Drury. Read twice and passed.

Reports and orders of notice for hearings on Monday next on the building of sewers in Starr, Bishop and Newbern streets, and in Sargent street, severally passed.

Orders to build sewers in Chambers street, in Eagle street, in Whitney street and in Centre street, severally read twice and passed.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses, as follows:

Wagon License Granted—John I. Robinson, 554 Shawmut avenue.

Amusement License Granted—Warren-street Chapel, to hold a festival at Music Hall on May 2.

Victuallers Licensed—George W. Gushee, 19 La Grange street; George H. Gerrish, 61 Beach street; Adolph Himmel, 1061 Tremont street.

Auctioneer Licensed—Thomas G. Owen, 976 Washington street.

Severally accepted.

Report and Order—That license be granted to Roswell E. Bailey to run a passenger wagon from Maverick square through Meridian street to Chelsea, and return by same route, for the purpose of conveying passengers to and from Woodlawn Cemetery, the rate of fare not to exceed twenty cents each way. Read twice and passed.

DECORATION DAY.

An invitation was received from Post 26, G. A. R., for the City Council to attend the ceremonies on Decoration Day at Forest Hills Cemetery; and offering their services as escort on the Seventeenth of June at the dedication of the Highland Monument. Early in the session the invitation was accepted.

Subsequently Alderman Thompson moved a reconsideration, which prevailed, and on his motion the invitation to go to Forest Hills on Decoration Day was accepted, and the offer of escort on June Seventeenth was referred to the Committee on Historic Sites. Sent down.

ORDER TO QUIT.

Alderman Clark, from the Committee on Streets, offered an order of notice to quit on River street on or before June 1. Passed.

EASTERN AVENUE.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That this Board, acting as Surveyors of Highways, as provided in an indenture made by and between the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Boston & Albany Railroad Company, the Boston Wharf Company and the city of Boston, and dated June 24, 1873, hereby establishes the grade of Eastern avenue, from the easterly side of Fort Point Channel to E street extended, to be sixteen feet above mean low water, except where it approaches Congress-street Bridge, where it will rise so as to conform to the grade of said bridge as constructed, as shown on a plan and profile hereinafter referred to. The grade of said Eastern avenue is shown on a plan and profile made by Thomas W. Davis, City Surveyor, dated June 14, 1875, and deposited in the office of said City Surveyor.

Alderman Clark—I would state that the order simply establishes the grade of Eastern avenue from the farther end of the bridge across land owned by the Boston Wharf Company, the Boston & Albany Railroad, and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in accordance with an agreement entered into June 24, 1873. An agreement was made by those three parties and the city, that when certain things were done—a sea wall built and the land filled up to grade 16—the city should build the bridge over Fort Point Channel, and the city should have the right to establish the grade of the street in connection with the bridge; and the Street Commissioners now recommend that the Board establish the grade at grade 16. [The Alderman read section 10 of the agreement covering the points he had explained.] The bridge was built last year, and in pursuance of this contract it is thought advisable by the Street Commissioners that the grade be established at the present time.

The order was read twice and passed.

INSPECTOR OF PROVISIONS.

A report and order came up fixing the salary of the Inspector of Provisions appointed by the Board of Health at $1500 per annum. The order, early in the session, was referred to the Committee on Retrenchment, on motion of Alderman Thompson.

Later in the session Alderman Clark moved a reconsideration, saying that the order had come from the Committee on Salaries, who are the proper committee to report on that subject, and he desired to know Alderman Thompson's reason for referring it to the Committee on Retrenchment.

The reconsideration prevailed.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved to lay the order on the table, as he had not looked into the matter, and presumed the other members were in the same predicament.

Alderman Thompson explained that the reason for his motion was that the Retrenchment Committee had looked into the salaries of other officers, and he thought this a proper matter for them to consider.

The order was laid on the table.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Alderman Breck offered an order—That the Committee on Fire Department be requested to consider the expediency of amending the ordinance in relation to Fire Department, so that the Board of Fire Commissioners shall be constituted as follows: One person to be selected from the citizens at large, and the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department and the Superintendent of Fire Alarms, the last two to be ex officio members of the board, all of said persons to be appointed by the Mayor, subject to the approval of the City Council. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

LIGHTING OF CITY AND COUNTY BUILDINGS.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered the following:

Ordered, That the Committee on Public Building Buildings be requested to inquire and report on the expediency of lighting the city hall by the Walworth plan. Passed. Sent down.

Ordered, That the Committee on County Buildings be requested to inquire into the expediency of lighting the county buildings by gas made on the Walworth plan. Passed.

CHARLES-RIVER PARK.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be requested to petition the Legislature to so amend the act now before it with relation to giving powers to the Park Commissioners to build a sea wall in the Charles River basin, that the same shall only be done when the City Council consents thereto, and that any powers granted by virtue of said act shall be carried into effect only by consent of the City Council of Boston.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I offer the order because in the act now on its passage in the Legislature, and which I have read, absolute power is given to the Park Commissioners to build this wall in the Charles River basin. And the act gives them other powers in addition to that. It seems to me it is but fair and just that the Park Commissioners should not have authority to carry the act into effect without the consent of the City Council. I notice that the act does not provide that the City Council shall first order or consent to the building of this wall. That is my view of the act which I have read, and which has been called to my attention.

Alderman Thompson—I should like to know if any member of this Board can inform me where this subject originated before the Legislature. I do not understand that any petition has passed the City Council asking the Legislature for such power; and as a member of the Committee on Legislative Matters I think that that committee should have known something about it. I would inquire if any member of the Board knows anything about the origin of the bill.

Alderman O'Brien—I suppose that I can enlighten the gentleman from Charlestown, and also the members of the Board, a little in relation to the matter. The Park Committee, in considering the question of public parks, ascertained the fact that we could purchase the land, but that we could not make any improvements whatever upon that land without the expense of such improvements going into the tax levy for that year. Well, here were the Charles River flats, and the entire expense of building that park—which perhaps would be one of the finest parks recommended by the commissioners, and which would be more available to the citizens of Boston than any other of the parks—all the expense of improving and grading it would have to be put into the tax levy for that year. The bill now before the Legislature merely gives the City Council the privilege of borrowing money on a thirty-year loan to make these improvements. If this Charles River park is ever built, the city should have the privilege of borrowing the money to build it, for that is the only way it should be built up. It will be a park exclusively built up from the flats, and the most expensive part of it will be the river-wall embankment. No City Council wants to do that work out of the tax levy for the year. It is a park for posterity, and we mean that posterity shall pay their fair share of it. That is the reason the matter was brought before the Legislature—merely to give the City Council the privilege of building that park with money obtained on a thirty-year loan, if it is desired to build it at all, and not to take it out of the tax levy. I think it is one of the wisest moves ever made. We cannot build it without the consent of two-thirds of the Council, if at any time the City Council should decide to do so. I move that order be referred to the Committee on Parks.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The act is before the Senate and out of the House, and the order is asking the Mayor to petition the Legislature, and if it be referred to anybody it should be referred to the Committee on Legislative Matters; and the Committee on Public Parks had no business, either directly or indirectly, to ask that any power should be given to the Park Commissioners without the consent of the City Council. The committee had no right to get any legislation so far as public parks are concerned, except to report to this Board and ask the City Council to petition the Legislature; and if this Board and the Common Council thought it necessary to ask the Legislature for this extraordinary power, they could have done so. The medium by which the Legislature should be informed of the wants of the city of Boston is not by any committee, but by the City Council itself, and no committee ought to go to the Legislature and ask that any additional privileges should be given to any board or committee of the City Council. Now that the act is there I do not object to its passage. It empowers the Park Commissioners to do certain things, but I say it should go further and say that they should not be done without the consent of the City Council. It is a matter that will cost a large amount for the displacement of tide-water, and that must be paid to the Commonwealth or to somebody else. I do not want to discuss parks now; my objection is that the act empowers the commissioners to do the things which should not be done without the consent of the City Council. That is why I introduced the order and not for the purpose of criticising the committee. I want the act to place the controlling power in the hands of the City Council, so that there shall be no dispute about it.

Alderman O'Brien—The discussion originated by the question as to where this act came from, and that is why I said what I did. It was by no formal vote of the committee. They considered the matter informally and each and all of them have the right to go to the Legislature, or any public body, and as citizens of the city of Boston, or any other town, they have the right to ask the Legislature to do what is right and proper and just and what they please. I know it is well to have all these things come before the City Council if any committee of the City Council are ready to make their report; but after working some two months the committee found that they were not ready to make their report, and that something should be done to bring it before the Legislature. If some such action had not been taken, nothing would have come before the Legislature at the present session. The gentlemen connected with the Committee on Parks can take credit to themselves for bringing this matter before the Legislature. I do not know whether the act will pass or not; but if it does, I believe it will be a wise and judicious measure.

Alderman Thompson—The gentleman, as a citizen, has a right to ask the Legislature for what he pleases; but a committee have no right to go to the Legislature and ask for privileges for the city of Boston without the consent of the City Council. It seems to me that the committee have assumed to themselves powers and rights which they had no right to assume. I understood him to say that the Park Commissioners have the right to build land parks.

Alderman O'Brien—They have a right to lay out parks, but they cannot take land without our voting the money. They cannot make any improvements on that land after it is taken by money which is obtained on a loan.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It seems then that the Committee on Parks having decided in their official capacity that it was expedient to do a certain thing, and having resolved to divest themselves of their official capacity they went to the Legislature to get this act passed. I simply ask that the City Council shall do something in its official capacity without going to that committee, and that this park shall not be built without the consent of the City Council. Some gentlemen here may say that it cannot be done without the consent of the City Council, for we must first vote the money; but the first section provides that the Park Commissioners are thereby empowered to build a park on Charles River, etc. And then in another section it gives the City Council of Boston the power to raise the money by a loan. But there is nothing mentioned about giving the City Council power over the Park Commissioners in the exercise of that power. I have no objection to the act if the Park Commissioners have the power by the consent of the City Council to build that sea wall. I do not see the necessity of having it referred to the committee. If it is not done in the course of three days it will be unnecessary to pass it.

Alderman O'Brien—I do not know the details of the bill before the Legislature, but I am strongly impressed with the idea that the Park Commissioners cannot spend one dollar for the sea wall or any other improvement—taking land or anything else—unless it is voted to them by this City Council. So that, so far as this matter is concerned, we have complete control of it. I have no objection to its going to the Committee on Legislative Matters.

Alderman Thompson—I do not see the necessity of referring it to any committee, but if it is referred to any committee I think that is the proper committee. It seems to me we had better pass it tonight and let it go to the Common Council next Thursday evening. It is necessary that something should be done early, as the Legislature may adjourn in ten days.

Alderman Clark—I can see no objection to the passage of this order, although I think the commissioners would be restricted to the building of a sea wall the same as they would to the taking of land on that territory. The order for this bill was introduced into the Legislature by a gentleman from Boston, previous to the expiration of the time for the reception of petitions, he supposing that the Committee on Legislative Matters would look after it, and see that just such a bill was prepared and passed as the City Council ought to have passed. It is presumed that the Committee on Legislative Matters, when they see anything appertaining to the interests of the city of Boston introduced into the Legislature, whether by order of the City Council or by an individual, whether a member of the City Council or not, it was to be presumed that the committee will watch and guard all bills looking to the interest of the city of Boston. Consequently the Committee on Public Parks did not give the attention to the bill that they would have done otherwise. The bill establishing a metropolitan police was not introduced by a member of the City Council, but it was introduced.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman who has just taken his seat has taken occasion to cast some reflections upon the Committee on Legislative Matters.

Alderman Clark—Not at all.

Alderman Thompson—So far as my experience goes I can say that the committee have been diligent and wonderfully successful with their business at the Legislature. The proposition was made in the Legislature to reduce the savings-bank tax from three-quarters to one-half per cent., and the Committee on Legislative Matters looked after the matter carefully and the bill was killed, thereby saving to the city of Boston something like $240,000. If that bill had passed it would have taken some $240,000 out of the city treasury.

Alderman O'Brien—I would ask if the Committee on Legislative Affairs ever came to the City Council and consulted about so important a matter as that.

Alderman Thompson—No, sir.

Alderman O'Brien—It is a tax upon the poor people of the city who place their deposits in the savings banks.

Alderman Thompson—The gentleman is mistaken. The committee felt competent to handle that matter. The character of the savings in banks has changed so much that they are not now a place for the deposit of the earnings of poor people, but where the wealthy can deposit their money and have it guarded from taxation. That is what our savings banks have become. So far as their being a convenience to poor people, it is almost impossible for a poor man to get a mortgage taken by a savings bank. It was for the purpose of benefiting the rich that bill was introduced. When they were defeated, they came again and asked to be exempted from the taxation of mortgages and upon Government bonds; and the Committee on Legislative Matters looked into that and found that it would divert some sixty thousand dollars from the treasury of the city of Boston. Then another proposition came up that the whole of Chelsea Bridge should be put under the control of the city of Boston, and that the city should bear the entire cost of maintenance. The committee found that some years ago a commission apportioned the cost of maintenance upon certain towns in Essex County, and they found that the bill would require an expenditure on the part of the city of some seventy thousand dollars if it was carried. I have been informed that that measure was killed in the Legislature tonight. Consequently, I would say, as the Alderman reflects upon the committee, that I think they have been very successful, and have saved the city something like $370,000 by taking a little care. Now, in regard to this matter of parks, the committee have not been able to find out whether it came from a member of the Park Committee, or where it came from. If the member of the City Council who introduced it had desired the thing to be protected he should have come to the Committee on Legislative Matters, and then the committee would have protected that bill. It is my opinion that this bill will probably be killed because it did not come from the Committee on Legislative Matters.

Alderman O'Brien—I would ask the gentleman if the question of the tax on savings banks was ever discussed by the City Council. It is a tax upon the poor people. Was that matter ever before the Committee on Legislative Affairs? Did the committee ever call the attention of the City Council to it? A member of the City Council called the attention of the Legislative Committee to it in a private way, and that such and such an amount could be saved. I heard the conversation, and I did not believe in it at the time. I do not believe in taxing the savings banks as they are taxed by the State. Another thing, the gentleman made a remark that it is impossible for a poor man to get a mortgage at a savings bank, and the reason is that you tax the man three quarters per cent., and every private individual can take a mortgage at three-quarters per cent. cheaper than the bank can. Said a savings-bank officer to me, "That is the reason I cannot do it." If the gentleman has shown anything, it is that the Committee on Legislative Matters act entirely independent of the City Council; that they do just as they please and without seeking advice from the City Council.

Alderman Clark—I merely rise to say that I did not intend to reflect upon the Committee on Legislative Matters. I think we have a competent committee, and my remarks were intended rather to compliment than to reflect. I knew that we had a competent committee, and the Committee on Parks supposed there was no occasion for feeling any particular interest in the matter, supposing that the Committee on Legislative Matters would scrutinize the bill and keep it just right.

Alderman Fitzgerald—And I hope, also, that when the Park Committee resolve themselves into private citizens for the interest of the citizens of Boston, that will acquaint the Committee on Legislative Matters, of which I am one, so that we in our capacity as private citizens can go there and do something.

Alderman Thompson—I wish to answer the gentleman who—Alderman Robinson—I rise to a point of order. What is the question before the Board?

Alderman Thompson—I have the floor.

Alderman Robinson—The gentleman is not talking to the question at all. He is discussing the tax on savings banks and Government bonds.

Alderman Thompson—The gentleman asks what the question is and then assumes that I am not talking on the question.

Alderman Robinson—That is so.

Alderman O'Brien—I withdraw the motion. I have no objection to the order being referred to the Committee on Legislative Matters, they are so earnest and energetic in the affairs of the city.

The Mayor—The Chair does not understand that there is any such motion before the Board:

Alderman Thompson—I was answering the Alderman who reflected upon the Committee on Legislative Matters. It was the duty of that committee to protect the interests of the city of Boston in the Legislature, and that is the reason they opposed the bill. They opposed it in the interest of the city of Boston, and not in the interest of the wealthy people that the savings in banks represent. I hope this order will not be referred to any committee, but that it will be passed and sent to the Common Council next Thursday night.

Alderman O'Brien—I have no objection to such a course.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent down.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

APRIL 26, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ P. M. Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.
 Invitation of Post 26, G. A. R., to attend Decoration Day services. Accepted in concurrence. Also offer of escort for June 17. Referred in concurrence to Committee on Historic Sites.

Reports and orders for permits to erect wooden buildings, to be issued to Boston & Albany Railroad Company, Third street and Grand Junction wharf; Henry Lawn, East Fourth street. Orders read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order to report on expediency of lighting City Hall on Walworth plan. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order to consider expediency of amending ordinance on Fire Department, to provide that the Board of Fire Commissioners shall consist of one person to be chosen from the citizens; the Chief Engineer and the Superintendent of Fire Alarms are to be appointed by the Mayor with approval of City Council. Passed in concurrence.

Order fixing salary of Superintendent of North Beacon-street and Western-avenue bridges at $118 per annum. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

CITY HOSPITAL STABLE.

An order came down for wooden building, formerly used as a smallpox hospital, with adjoining lot, to be set apart for stable purposes at City Hospital.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I would inquire if there is not room enough, and what is the reason they ask for this wooden building formerly used for a smallpox hospital?

Mr. Upham of Ward 20—The brick building which has heretofore been used for stable purposes for the City Hospital is altogether too small. Standing close by it is a one-story, wooden building that has been used for a smallpox hospital, and it is just what the trustees need for the increased stable accommodations. There is now in the course of construction an ambulance for the hospital, which will necessitate the purchase of another horse, for which there is no room in the brick stable. This wooden building is not used for any purpose, and is just what the trustees want.

The order was passed in concurrence.

NEW BUILDING AT DEER ISLAND.

An order came down for the Directors for Public Institutions to procure estimates and proposals for a new piggery at Deer Island, and for addition to brick building at Rainsford Island—the Directors for Public Institutions to have discretionary power as to the labor to be employed.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—In a conversation with the gentleman from Ward 22 [Mr. Barry], who is not in his seat, he spoke as if he would like to offer some amendment to that order; and if there is no objection, I would like to have it lay upon the table for a moment, and I so move.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I trust that proceeding will not be taken by the Council. The directors are anxious to get to work upon this piggery before warm weather, and I hope the Council will pass the order tonight.

Mr. McGaragle—I have no interest in the matter except to accommodate the gentleman from Ward 22. As I understand, an appropriation was passed at the last meeting of $26,000 for this purpose, and I think it is no more than right, if the gentleman from Ward 22 has a proposition to make in regard to it, that he should have an opportunity to manifest it. I do not know what the committee intend to do, but I think myself they should advertise for proposals.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I presume, sir, that my colleague will be here this evening. I saw him in City Hall today, and I think he will be here in half an hour or so. I should be in favor of taking it up later in the evening, and therefore I hope it will be laid upon the table till later in the evening.

The motion to table was lost, and the order was read a second time and passed in concurrence.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The appropriation bill came down with the adherence of the other branch to the vote to strike out $50,000 and insert $40,000, in appropriation for Sherwin School (page 9, City Doc. 40).

The question was on receding and concurring, or on insisting.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I trust the Council will recede. Since the bill was here the plan has been changed from a twelve to a ten-room school-house, and this amount will be all that is required.

The several amendments to the bill and the order laying a tax were concurred in.

Subsequently a motion to reconsider by Mr. Sampson was lost.

ELECTIONS.

Commissioner on the Sinking Fund. A certificate came down of election of Newton Talbot as Commissioner of Sinking Funds, in place of Francis H. Peabody, chosen by this Council.

An election was ordered. Committee—Messrs. Beeching of Ward 1, Warren of Ward 25 and Flynn of Ward 16.

And one vote for Joseph E. Hall, Second Assistant Assessor.

Mr. Talbot was elected in concurrence.

Second Assistant Assessors. A certificate came down of the election of Messrs. Tallon, Follen and Haggerty, as Second Assistant Assessors, in place of Messrs. Child, Dickson and Hall, chosen by this Council. An election was ordered.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I wish to say a word to the members of the Council about this election. In the ward which I have the honor to represent a gentleman, Mr. Child, was last year solicited to become a candidate for the office of Second Assistant Assessor. It was only after urgent solicitation that he consented. He became a candidate and was elected; and this year he was renominated at the request of the members of the Council from that ward. He is one of the best citizens in the ward, served faithfully and efficiently last year, and the citizens of the ward ask that he be reelected this year. I trust he will be elected.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—I wish to say in regard to Mr. Dixon, the candidate for Ward 23, that he served faithfully last year, and was regularly nominated this year; that he has had a large experience in real estate in Ward 23, and that he is the choice of the representatives and the taxpayers of the ward.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—As something has been said of the other gentlemen elected as Second Assistant Assessors by this branch, I would like to add a word for Mr. Hall, who was elected for Ward 24. I have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with Mr. Hall, and have no personal interest in the matter except to get the best man for Assessor in our ward. Mr. Hall is very highly recommended to me by gentlemen of both parties, among whom is ex-Mayor Pierce, although he and Mr. Hall are not of the same political way of thinking. We are told that he is eminently qualified for the position in every respect.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—I wish to indorse what my colleague from Ward 17 has said. I know Mr. Child, and I know him to be a man with a clean record, whose work in the ward has been entirely satisfactory. We simply ask this body to follow up the work of the nominating committee, and give us a man who is eminently qualified, and whose work has been satisfactory.

Committee to Superintend the Ballot—Messrs. Blanchard of Ward 21, O'Donnell of Ward 7, Barnard of Ward 24.

Mr. Brintnall of Ward 5—I notice that on the ballots the name of Joseph Haggerty is spelled in two different ways, "gar" and "ger." I would ask if it makes any difference?

The President—The Chair thinks not.

EAST BOSTON FERRIES.

The order for ferry investigation came down amended, viz., add "Said investigation to be public; and the Directors of Ferries are hereby requested not to make any change in the office of clerk, superintendent, or master mechanic, until the investigation is closed."

The question was upon concurring in the amendment.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—I do not know that I understand what this order is intended for. We have elected Directors of the East Boston Ferries, and it seems to me that they should have the privilege of exercising their judgment in that matter. I do not know that they intend to remove any of the employes, and I do not know but they do. I do not understand why their authority should be abridged. I should like to have an explanation of the matter before I vote upon it.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2—I do not understand why this Council should be asked to abridge the powers of the East Boston ferries, or any other board. I remember when a change was made in the Superintendent of Deer Island some time ago, when a first-class man was removed, that no reasons were given and no fault was found. And yet nobody called for an investigation. I do not think we have any right to abridge the powers of the Board of Directors. I have a good deal of respect for the Alderman who offered that amendment; yet I think he looks upon the officials of the ferries with a friendly eye, and I have some reason to believe that he does. I move to strike out of the amendment all after the words, "said investigation to be public."

The amendment was adopted, and the amendment as amended was concurred in.

The President announced the committee on the investigation, viz., Messrs. Thompson of Ward 9, Mowry of Ward 11, Roberts of Ward 4, Blodgett of Ward 8 and Upham of Ward 20. Sent up.

PUBLIC PARKS

An order came down to ask for amendment to act on the subject, to provide that the sea wall on Charles River shall be built, or any other powers exercised in relation thereto, by the Park Commissioners, only by consent of the City Council.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—If the Council will permit me, I would suggest that the matter covered by that order has already been attended to, and such an amendment as is proposed has been made to the bill in the Senate where it originated. The amendment reads, "Provided, however, that no land shall be taken, or other thing involving an expenditure of money done, by virtue of this act, until an appropriation sufficient to cover the estimated expense thereof shall have been made by a vote of two-thirds of each branch of the City Council of the city of Boston. All matters covered in the order having been provided for, I move that the order be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I do not think the amendment covers the ground entirely. The amendment has been offered in the Senate, but there is no assurance that it will be carried. It seems to me to be very proper that the sense of the City Council should be taken upon this matter. It can do no harm, and it may do some good.

Mr. Thompson—The easiest way to explain the matter will be to go over in detail the history of the laws in relation to this matter up to the present time. The first act was passed in 1875, authorizing the appointment of certain persons to be Park Commissioners, who are to do certain things; and the act [chapter 185, section 3, Acts of 1875] prescribed the powers to be exercised and the things to be done by the Park Commissioners. It also provides—

"That no land shall be taken, or other thing involving an expenditure of money done, until an appropriation, sufficient to cover the estimated expense thereof, shall have been made by a vote of two-thirds of each branch of the City Council of said city."

The act before the present Legislature was introduced as an act in amendment to the act of 1875, and if passed by the Legislature it becomes a part of the original act, and all the powers granted by it to the Park Commissioners are taken subject to the limitations of that act; so that the suggested amendment is mere surplusage. It was put on because certain persons, not thinking carefully about the matter, imagined that the Legislature had been asked to confer new and dangerous powers upon the Park Commissioners. A liberal interpretation of the act would have the effect to leave the Park Commissioners under the same restrictions and limitations of their powers as when the original act was passed. To prevent any such misinterpretation, an amendment containing the same words as are in the original act was adopted by the Senate, and the act was laid upon the table. I have, however, no objection to the passage of the order, if there is any desire by any one to give voice to an expression of opinion of the City Council. I am entirely of the opinion myself that the Park Commissioners or any other board should not be given powers independent of the City Council. My own opinion—and I think every lawyer here will sustain me—is that they will have no such power under this act, even without the amendment. It is not proposed that they should have. In the other branch of the City Council some fault was found with the Park Committee, and this order might be considered as a reflection upon them, as if they had been parties to the putting of the city in a dangerous position, and wished to take away or detract from the powers of the City Council. I can say for the Park Committee—and I think I should say it—that no act of theirs has been done carelessly, and that in putting the act in, every point raised against it was met and provided for. The question has been raised as to the issuing of bonds—whether the bonds might not be issued without a two-thirds vote. I raised that objection to it; but there is a statute which provides that no city shall contract any debt, except certain specified and limited debts, without a concurrent vote of two-thirds of all the members of both branches of the City Council. All that the committee have put in the act was what was absolutely necessary; and they did not deem it necessary to cumber up the pages of next year's blue-book with amendments to the bill which are not necessary. If it is necessary, in order that all may understand what the sense of the City Council is, I have no objection to the order being passed. I simply give my opinion that it is unnecessary, and therefore I made the motion.

Mr. Webster—The passage of the order can do no harm, and it may serve to make the assurance doubly sure.

Mr. Thompson—If there is any gentleman who objects to it, I withdraw the motion to indefinitely postpone.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I move to amend by inserting after the words "City Council" the words, "by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of each branch."

Mr. Sampson's amendment was adopted, and the order as amended was read a second time and passed. Sent up.

MEMBER OF BOARD OF HEALTH.

An executive communication came down nominating James M. Keith to be a member of the Board of Health for three years. The question was on concurring in the confirmation of the nomination.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I move that the vote on confirmation be taken by ballot.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I would call for the yeas and nays on the confirmation of this officer.

The President—That can only be entertained as an amendment, and not in the form of a motion.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I called for the yeas and nays on the question of confirmation.

The President—The motion before the Council now is, that the question be taken by ballot. Does the Chair understand the gentleman to offer his motion as an amendment?

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I desire to explain that I do not offer it as an amendment. I desire to call the attention of the Chair to rule 64 of the rules and orders of the Council, that "On all questions and motions whatsoever, whether before or after the previous question has been ordered, the President shall take the sense of the Council by yeas and nays, provided one-fifth of the members present shall so require."

On this confirmation I call for the yeas and nays. If one-fifth of the Council order them, then I claim that the question must be taken by yeas and nays.

The President—The gentleman's point is well taken.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I raise the point that under our rules this communication cannot come to us. This appointment having been before us at our last meeting, and been rejected, and a reconsideration refused, it cannot be properly brought before us. But the information I have obtained is that the rules of the Council had no effect whatever in votes upon the confirmation of appointments by the Mayor. In that case I cannot see how the gentleman's motion is in order.

The President—Does the gentleman raise a point of order?

Mr. Sampson—I do. My point is this: The yeas and nays cannot be called, and the rules do not apply to confirmations; and if they do apply, that the communication cannot be received, we having already had the same communication before and rejected it.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I anticipated this question and I came prepared to meet the gentleman. I have here a letter addressed to his Honor the Mayor:

"CITY SOLICITOR'S OFFICE,
2 PEMBERTON SQUARE,
BOSTON, April 21, 1877.)

Hon. Frederic O. Prince, Mayor, etc., etc., etc.:
Dear Sir—In reply to the interrogatories transmitted to me, today, by Mr. Babbitt, I beg leave to say—

1. The rejection of a person by the City Council, who had been nominated to it by the Mayor, for one of the Board of Health, does not make it legally incompetent for the Mayor to make a second nomination of the same person for the same office. Precedents to support this view can be found in the action of the President of the United States, and, if I mistake not, in the action of the governors of some of the States."

I think that meets the point raised by the gentleman; and another point is that it is not an elective office. It is merely the confirmation of the appointment by his Honor the Mayor, and under the ruling of the City Solicitor he can send it here fifty-two times during the year if he desires to do so.

Mr. Sampson—The gentleman makes the same point that I do, that our rules are of no effect in questions on confirming appointments by the Mayor; that they are suspended, and I claim that my motion is the only one that can be put to this body. I know that to be the opinion of the City Solicitor.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—The gentleman from Ward 13 did not read who signs the letter.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—It is signed by John P. Healy.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should like to read rule 66 of the Rules and Orders of the Common Council:

"When a motion for reconsideration has been decided, that decision shall not be considered, and no question shall be twice reconsidered; nor shall any reconsideration be had upon either of the following motions," etc.

If by Mr. Healy's decision rule 66 is put in abeyance, certainly rule 64 might be put in abeyance also.

Mr. Sampson—That is absolutely correct and I have Mr. Healy's opinion for it. He says that the rules of the Common Council are in abeyance.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—Whatever may be the opinion of the Mayor's right to send this nomination here, I want the question taken by yeas and nays. I have very decided opinions upon this question. I am as much opposed to Mr. Keith's nomination as any one else; nevertheless, if there is a majority here opposed to the nomination, I think they ought to be willing to stand right up and say so. If any member here does not want to stand up and vote against the nomination, I think he had better take his hat and walk right out of the chamber. In the interest of justice and fairness, I trust that those opposed to confirmation will stand up like men and have a square vote.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—The question before the Council is this: Are we to be governed by the rules heretofore observed in each case, that a minority composed of one-fifth of the members present can order the yeas and nays in opposition to the wishes of the other four-fifths? or in consequence of the nomination of the Mayor have our rules been taken away from us? We are in that case a mere assemblage, and consequently if a majority of those present wish the yeas and nays, they can be taken. As I understand it, the first motion offered upon this matter was that the question be taken by a yeas and a nay ballot, and that that motion should be first considered by the Council. If that motion is amended, so that instead of being taken by a yeas and nay ballot, the question be taken by yeas and nay vote, and a majority vote in favor of it, then a yeas and nay vote must be had. But the gentleman from Ward 13 attempts to take advantage of our machinery, which allows one-fifth of the Council to control the whole. The fair answer to that is, that if the machinery is invoked for one purpose, we have a right to invoke it for another purpose; and if the rule which says that when a reconsideration is refused the subject cannot be acted upon again is abrogated, the same principle must apply to the rule requiring one-fifth to order the yeas and nays. Let us stand fairly and squarely by the rules. Let us not have a majority rule in one case and a one-fifth rule in another.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—In order that we may proceed according to law, I desire to call attention to rule 67, which reads that, "All salaried officers shall be elected by ballot." This is a salaried officer.

The President—The Chair would state in relation to the different points raised—first, in relation to the points raised by the gentleman from Ward 13, that if the motion of the gentleman from Ward 17 for a vote by yeas and nay ballot, should pass, then the yeas and nays would not be in order; but the Council not having yet passed upon that motion, the motion of the gentleman from Ward 13 that the yeas and nays be taken is in order. In relation to the second point raised, as to the legality of the nomination coming before us for a second time, on the ground that the Council having considered and passed upon the subject before and rejected the nomination, the Chair would state that he has received the opinion of the City Solicitor that it is competent for the City Council to entertain the nomination again. The City Solicitor also states that in his opinion the ordinances supersede any parliamentary rule in relation to the question. In relation to the point raised by the gentleman from Ward 10, the Chair would state that this is not an elective office; we simply concur in the nomination of the Mayor. The question is upon the motion of the gentleman from Ward 13, that the question be taken by yeas and nays.

Mr. Sampson—As I understand, the question is to be taken upon that as an amendment. I understood the Chair to rule that the question would first come upon my motion. If the rules are inoperative I do not see how the motion can be entertained in any other way than as an amendment to my motion.

The President—The Chair thinks it is immaterial. The question will be taken first upon the motion of the gentleman from Ward 13, that the question on confirmation be taken by yeas and nays.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I ask for information whether under the ruling of the Chair, one-fifth of the members present would be sufficient to order the yeas and nays?

The President—It would.

Mr. Thompson—Then I desire to suspend the rule, so that this question may be taken by a yeas and nay ballot in spite of the motion of the gentleman from Ward 13. I move to suspend the rule in order that I may afterward move that the question be taken by a yeas and nay ballot.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—So far as I am concerned, I shall vote against Mr. Keith, and I hope he will not be confirmed; nevertheless, if we have not men enough in this Council who are willing to stand up and vote against this confirmation, I trust he will be confirmed. I want to see a fair and square vote.

The motion to suspend the rule was lost, and the question was declared to be next on ordering the yeas and nays on the question of confirmation.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I don't exactly understand this ruling of the Chair, and I would like once more to hear the ruling of the Chair in regard to the motion of the gentleman from Ward 17, which is now before the Council, he having made a motion that the question on the confirmation of this nomination be taken by a yeas and nay ballot. It does not seem to me that that motion has been disposed of in proper shape. As I understand it, that is now the only motion before the house. As I understand the ruling of the Chair, it is that the motion for the yeas and nays has been decided to be in order in spite of the motion of the gentleman from Ward 17. If that is the ruling I most respectfully appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Mr. Sampson—I would like to say one word more.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I would ask if it is in order to allow debate after an appeal has been taken? Is it a debatable question?

The President—It is not debatable.

Mr. Sampson—I rose merely to make an explanation.

The President—The gentleman may proceed if there is no objection.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I object.

The President—The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair be sustained?

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I would ask where is the rule which says that no debate is allowed?

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I raise the point of order that there is no second to the appeal.

The President—The point is well taken.

Mr. Sampson—I wish to state that the communication of the City Solicitor to the Clerk of the Common Council was based solely upon the ground that the rules of the Council are inoperative in regard to the nomination by the Mayor. I asked him whether the yeas and nays could be ordered upon that question by one-fifth, and he said they could not. As this communication is before us, based upon the opinion of the City Solicitor, I would ask if it does not go further, and make all our rules inoperative in regard to the confirmation of nominations by the Mayor?

The President—The Chair would state that he had not seen the opinion of the City Solicitor in relation to the yeas and nays.

Mr. Sampson—The opinion of the City Solicitor that was read was upon that very point, that the rule had no effect in regard to nominations by the Mayor.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—It does not say anything of the kind. I read it as it came from the City Solicitor, and I will read it again for the gentleman's information. [Mr. Flynn read the letter above given.]

The President—The question is upon ordering the yeas and nays.

Mr. Wilbur—I still insist upon my appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The President—An appeal will not be in order unless it is seconded.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I move that the whole matter be laid upon the table till we can get the decision of the City Solicitor in writing in reference to the yeas and nays vote.

Mr. Thompson—I second the motion, and I suggest an amendment, that the Judiciary Committee be directed to obtain the opinion of the City Solicitor.

The President—The amendment is not in order at this time. The motion is to lay upon the table.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I object to the gentleman making any amendment at this time.

Mr. Thompson—I made no amendment, but simply suggested that it be done.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I object.

The motion to lay upon the table was declared carried.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 doubted the vote, and the Council divided; but before the count of those in the affirmative had been made, Mr. Duggan of Ward 12 called for the yeas and nays on solving the doubt.

The yeas and nays were not ordered, and the motion to lay upon the table was lost by a division—28 for, 36 against.

The question then recurred upon Mr. Flynn's motion to take the vote on confirmation by yeas and nays.

Mr. Wilbur—I still insist on my appeal from the decision of the Chair, and I believe that the motion was seconded by the gentleman on my right [Mr. Howes].

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I second the motion.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 16—I move the previous question. The gentleman did not rise in his seat in seconding the appeal.

The President—The motion is not in order.

The question on sustaining the decision of the Chair was put and the Chair was sustained, with but one dissenting voice.

The yeas and nays were ordered on the question of confirmation of the appointment of James M. Keith as a member of the Board of Health, and the Council refused to confirm the appointment—yeas 33, nays 34:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Ferris, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Jackson, J. Kelley, (Ward 3), J. Kelley, (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mul-lane, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, Pope, Reed, Roach, Thorndike, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—33.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Felt, Ham, Hibbard, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Sibley, Smardon, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—34.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Cox, Pratt, South-er—3.

FOURTH OF JULY.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 the Council took up the special assignment for 8 P. M., viz., Order for Retrenchment Committee to arrange celebration of Fourth of July, at a cost of $10,000, with proposed substitute providing for the appointment of a special committee consisting of the Mayor, Chairman of the Board of Aldermen, President and eight members of the Council, with such as the Aldermen may join, and the cost of celebration not to exceed $15,000.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—This substitute is, in some respects, in my judgment, better than the original order. And perhaps it will give much better satisfaction, I think, as the purpose of celebrating the Fourth of July is entirely foreign to the duties for which the Committee on Retrenchment were appointed, and the special committee will be appointed with more satisfactory regard for location. The Committee on Retrenchment is not distributed as a special committee for this purpose should be, and there is no reason why it should be referred to that committee more than to any other. The only question is how to get the most celebration out of the money appropriated. There will be no chance for economy, and whatever amount of money is appropriated will be spent. In regard to the amount of money, I do not agree with the substitute. I think that a much more satisfactory celebration can be obtained with ten thousand dollars than with fifteen. I call for a division of the question, in order that we may vote upon the questions in regard to the committee and the amount of money separately.

The question was put on the first part of the order, providing for the committee as above named, and it was adopted.

The question then came on the part appropriating fifteen thousand dollars.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I only want to say to the gentleman from Ward 3 that I made the amendment I did for the reason that last year we appropriated $30,000 for celebrating the Fourth of July, and I find from the Auditor's figures the amount expended by the committee last year: Children's entertainment, $3388.05; music, bands, putting up and taking down stands, $3180.84; decorations, $2759.75; regattas, $4683.05; police, $2350.38; fireworks, $1800; balloon, $1500; illuminations, $1148.62; salutes, $800; printing, $439.52; East Boston ferries, $400; timber race, $293; ice water, distribution, stands, etc., $233.63; rowing regatta, Jamaica Pond, $200; oration, $156.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—Will the gentleman read the item of ice water once more?

Mr. Flynn—"Ice water, distribution, stands, etc., $233.63."

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I would inquire what the cost of the fireworks was.

Mr. Flynn—"Fireworks, $1800; illuminations, $1148.62." The sum total expended last year was $23,936.09. I thought that by taking $8000 from that we could have a fair celebration this year, and that $15,000 would be about the right sum.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—Last year was the Centennial year, and I do not think there should be any comparison between the celebration then and the one proposed for this year. On looking over the Auditor's report, I find that out of $10,000 appropriated for the Fourth of July two years ago, between $900 and $1000 were expended for carriage hire and refreshments. Now, if there is that margin in an appropriation of $10,000 for a celebration two years ago, I think that the same amount will be sufficient this year.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—The appropriation all depends upon how much the people want. Fifteen thousand dollars is about twenty-three cents for each individual, and I hardly think any member of the Council will turn out his boy for a good Fourth of July with less than twenty-three cents. I hope we shall give them more. There is a great demand for a good Fourth of July celebration in this city, and I think the amount should be larger than it was two years ago. I was on the committee last year. They wanted fireworks everywhere, and being so scattered they did not give much satisfaction. I hope they will be more in a lump this year. I think that will be more satisfactory. I do not think $15,000 too much. The children's entertainments are a pretty expensive item. I don't think we can have too much of it. I have yet to see the man hut believes in music and some flags on the Fourth of July. I do not believe that $10,000 is adequate for what the people require. What the people will be satisfied with is another question; they will have to be satisfied with what we give them. I hope the substitute will pass.

On motion of Mr. Webster of Ward 3, the yeas and nays were ordered on the question of fixing the amount at $15,000, and that amount was rejected—yeas 28, nays 38:

Yeas—Messrs. Blodgett, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Doherty, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mul-lane, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Perham, Pope, Reed, Roach, Ruffin, Sibley, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—28.

Nays—Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Brintnall, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Day, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, Fernald, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, Pearl, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Shepard, Smardon, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—38.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Cox, Dee, Pratt, Sampson, Souther—5.

On motion of Mr. Flynn, the amount was fixed at $10,000, and the substitute order was passed—yeas 63, nays 4; Messrs. McClusky, McGaragle, Perham and Warren voting nay.

The President announced the following as the committee on the part of the Council: Messrs. Sibley of Ward 5, Pierce of Ward 18, Blanchard of Ward 21, Beeching of Ward 1, Fraser of Ward 6, Pope of Ward 14, Perham of Ward 23, Barnard of Ward 24. Sent up.

ASSISTANT CLERK OF COMMITTEES.

A communication was received from the Clerk of Committees nominating William W. Clapp to be Assistant Clerk of Committees. Confirmed. Sent up.

PUBLIC BATHS.

Mr. Blodgett of Ward 8 submitted a report from the Committee on Bathing of leave to withdraw on the petition of John F. Newton et al. for the establishment of a bathhouse at the Highlands. Accepted. Sent up.

HIGH-SERVICE WATER SUPPLY IN THE THEATRES.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 submitted a report from the Committee on Water, recommending the granting of the petition of the proprietors of the Boston and Globe theatres and the Boston Museum, that the city would defray the cost of connecting said theatres with the high-service water supply, as ordered by the Inspector of Buildings. Accepted. Sent up.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Mr. Morrill of Ward 20 submitted the following: The Joint Standing Committee on Public Library respectfully represent that the Mercantile Library Association has offered to present its library, containing between seventeen and eighteen thousand volumes, to the Public Library, provided that the city will establish a branch library in the basement of the building occupied by the association, No. 674 Tremont street. The association will fit up the room in a suitable manner, heat and light the same, and lease it to the city at an annual rental of $1000. The committee consider the offer a very favorable one for the city. A branch library will be a great convenience to the residents of the South End, and by accepting the offer of the association it can be established at very small expense to the city. The books which will be received will be a valuable addition to the Public Library. The committee, therefore, respectfully recommend the passage of the following order:

Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings be instructed to lease from the Mercantile Library Association the basement story of its building, No. 674 Tremont street, for a term not exceeding five years and at a rental not exceeding $1000 per annum, including the heating and lighting of the same; the expense thereof to be charged to the appropriation for Public Buildings.

The question was upon giving the order a second reading.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I do not quite understand that order. I do not think there is any necessity for it. It is the first time I have heard of it. I understand that the Mercantile Library Association is to heat and light this room. Who is to pay for the attendance there? Does it mention that in the order? Does it mention who is to pay for the attendance?

The President—Nothing is said in regard to it. Mr. McGaragle—Then I move that the order lie upon the table for one week.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—Before taking any vote upon the matter, perhaps it is well that it be understood, and I will explain it very briefly, as the chairman of the committee does not do so. The Mercantile Library Association propose to present the city with between sixteen and seventeen thousand volumes, giving us a clear title to them, on the condition that the city leaves about six thousand volumes there for delivery at the South End, and try the experiment of having a branch library there. The proposition was brought before the committee and was unanimously approved. It seems to be desirable in every way. The books are very valuable, and the idea of having a branch library at the South End has got to come before the City Council very soon; and as the expense will be very moderate, not exceeding $2000, and as the books are very valuable, if we wish to have a branch library there it seems to me that now is the time to establish it, as an experiment, at least. The trustees have enough money for this in their appropriation, and nothing extra will be required. The only expense we shall have will be the fitting up and about $1000 for rent.

Mr. McGaragle—If it is the desire of the City Council to vote a donation of one thousand dollars a year to the Mercantile Library Association, I am willing to do it; but I am unwilling to pay one thousand dollars for the basement story of the building.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should like to state, as one of the trustees, that this is in no sense a donation. If there is anything given it is by the Mercantile Library Association. The books that they propose to turn over to the city could be sold for fifteen thousand dollars. They have no use for them, the association, as a means of distributing books, having entirely gone. The gentleman may urge that no branch library should be established at all. They are a very great convenience in every section of the city, and they have answered the purpose wherever they have been established. The present system is such that the establishment of branch libraries is very economical.

It will not be very hard to manage this as is proposed. There is not a branch library that is managed as this is proposed to be. The rent and lighting and heating are included in the thousand dollars. This basement is on a very desirable corner, which could be easily rented.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—This is a matter of considerable importance, and I hope it will lie over. It is certainly a precedent to establish branch libraries in different sections of the city. It may work disadvantageously for the city's interest.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I merely wish to ask the gentleman of the committee who spoke of the terms of the gift, and the trying of the experiment of a branch library there, what are the terms and conditions upon which the gift is made?

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The trustees of the Mercantile Library donate the books to the city with no restrictions whatever, but with the general understanding that we shall lease the room and try the experiment of a branch library there. If, at the expiration of the lease, we do not think fit to continue the library, I have it from the trustees who were before the committee—if, in case, at the end of a lease of three or five years, we abandon the idea of a branch library there—we can move the books back here.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Does not the order lie over under the rule?

The President—It does.

Mr. Howes—I would like to answer the question about establishing a precedent. This precedent has already been established; the city has taken a library at the Highlands almost under the same conditions. We have branch libraries in almost all sections of the city and they have been found to be very advantageous. It is nothing new to have them started, and it is nothing new to have them started in this way.

Mr. McGaragle withdrew the motion to lay on the table.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—The gentleman from Ward 18 stated that the association had donated books to the city worth $15,000. Now it seems to me that we are going to pay for them in the shape of a five years' lease, and that we shall pay at least $10,000 for them.

Mr. Mowry—There is nothing here by which we can be informed whether or not this donation is made upon the same conditions that other donations have been made. It seems to me that before the appropriation is made the terms of the gift should be laid before this body in writing. Therefore I move to recommit the report with instructions to obtain and report information upon this subject.

Mr. Webster of Ward 5—I do not see the least occasion for referring it back to the committee. The information is very simple, and can be had by inquiring, and it is given substantially in this report. I am willing that it should lie over for a week, and of course the committee have no wish to hurry it through. But what more information the gentlemen want I cannot see. We simply commit ourselves to an expense of two or three thousand dollars for from three to five years, and the books are worth from fifteen to twenty thousand dollars. The trustees of the association are committing themselves to give us more than we give in return.

Mr. Thompson—I would ask the gentleman who is a trustee of the Mercantile Library if the only condition imposed is that the city shall take the building upon a three year's lease, or whether the trustees of the Mercantile Library do not expect the lease to be perpetual.

Mr. Howes—I would state that I was elected a trustee of the library some time ago, but resigned.

The President read the report and order again for the information of the Council.

Mr. Thompson—The reading of the report only confirms me in my opinion which caused me to ask the question, whether the donation was not in fact limited by the three or five years' lease. It seems to me that is the effect of the proviso. It seems to me that the motion to recommit with instructions to procure the terms of the proposed donation in writing is a very proper one to pass. The city is called upon to accept the gift; and the expense of a gift may be a great detriment to the person who accepts it, if the condition of the gift carries with it all sorts of conditions. I have no doubt the committee think the city is to have the books free. Now, it can do no harm to let it be put in writing, just exactly the terms upon which the association gives the books; if they make the gift, and the proposition is to test the experiment, I shall be happy to vote for it when it comes before us. But if it comes before us as a gift with a condition that we are obliged to take the lease, I shall not vote for it.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—It seems to me the order reads plainly enough. It makes no difference whether the city takes the building for a month or a year, all that they ask is the lease. It seems to me that it is an excellent chance to get a large number of books. We want a branch library at the South End. Any gentleman who visits the Public Library knows that it is very difficult to get a book. And it seems to me that this would give those in the centre of the city a better chance to get a book. I hope the order will lie over under the rule, that we may get the necessary information to enable us to vote intelligently upon the matter.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The gentleman from Ward 9 asked for information from me as a member of the committee, and I gave him the information plainly and correctly; and then he asks somebody else if my information is right. We have had several meetings in the committee on this matter, and there is no possible misunderstanding about it. It is just as I understand it, and if the gentleman understands it that way, he is satisfied. If the gentleman has not confidence in my information, then I trust that on some future occasion he will not ask me for information at all.

Mr. Thompson—I hope the gentleman will not raise a personal issue. I did not intend to raise one by asking the question. I noticed that the gentleman from Ward 3 stated that the gift was an absolute one, and I thought I heard one of the trustees make a statement in opposition to the statement of the gentleman from Ward 3. For that reason I asked the question I did, on the first opportunity, because I know that in these matters there is very often a disagreement. In dealings between corporations, through the medium of committees, misunderstandings are very liable to arise. I think we are here to deal with matters of this kind much in the same manner as if we were the trustees for other people's property. I only thought we should use due care in this matter. I cannot see any possible objection to having the terms of the donation sent here in writing. It seems to me there is an effort to insist upon forcing it through here when we ask for the facts. If I understand the duty of a committee it is to gather facts for the information of the Council.

Mr. Howes—I have merely to state, Mr. President, that it is not often that the city of Boston is presented with gifts of this kind, and certainly there is no encouragement to present them if the city is so backward in accepting them. If the gentleman is desirous of conditioning it, it is very easy to insert a proviso that this lease shall not last longer than five years, or something in that shape. I would also like to state that the city is at present running several branch libraries. In East Boston the expense is $3290, nearly $1300 more than this will be, and without any books, and in South Boston, Charlestown, Roxbury, Brighton and Dorchester. The cost of this library will be lower than the average cost of carrying on these branch libraries. If the gentlemen desire to have it amended, so far as the trustees are concerned they have no objection.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—Is the city running any library on the same conditions that they propose to run this one on? It seems to me that if we are not any person may collect a number of volumes and put the city to an indefinite expense.

Mr. McGaragle—I hope the gentleman's amendment will be adopted and I hope it will be recommended. I move the previous question.

The President—I would call the attention of the gentleman to the fact that the previous question cuts off the motion to recommit.

Mr. McGaragle withdrew the motion.

The Council refused to recommit the report by a division—20 for, 23 against.

The order was passed to a second reading and laid over.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 offered an order—That the Joint Standing Committee on Health be requested to consider the expediency of amending the ordinance relating to the public health, so that the board shall be constituted as follows: One person to be selected from the citizens at large, the Superintendent of Health and the City Physician, the two last named to be ex-officio members of said board; all the members to devote their whole time to the city, and to be appointed by the Mayor, subject to the approval of the City Council.

The order was ordered to a second reading, read a second time and rejected, by a division—15 for, 28 against.

PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18, from the Joint Committee on Common, etc., offered an order—That the Superintendent of Common and Public Grounds be authorized, under the direction of the Committee on Common and Public Grounds, to contract for and purchase the red gravel, manure, loam, trees, shrubs, plants, sods, tools, and such other articles as may be required for the use of the department during the municipal year 1877, and to employ such number of men as may be necessary; the expense to be charged to the appropriation for Common and Public Grounds.

The order was read once and laid over. Subsequently Mr. Howes moved a suspension of the rule that the order might be placed upon its passage, stating that most of the work had been done, and that a large number of laborers could not get their pay on the first of the month.

The rule was suspended, and the order was read a second time and passed.

CITY ARCHITECT'S DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 offered an order—That the City Architect, under the direction of the Committee on Public Buildings, be authorized to employ, from time to time, such additional assistance as he may require in connection with the work of his office; the expense to be charged to the appropriation for Public Buildings.

The order was read twice and passed under a suspension of the rule, on motion of Mr. Wilbur, who stated that it is necessary to employ more draughtsmen to work upon the plans for the English High and Latin School.

Sent up.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9 offered the following:

Whereas, By an act of the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts entitled "An act to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors," approved the fifth day of April, A. D. 1875, it is provided among other things as follows, namely:

"Sect. 20. The powers and duties given to and imposed upon the Mayor and Aldermen of cities by this act may be exercised in any city by a Board of License Commissioners if the City Council of such city shall so determine, and such board shall consist of three inhabitants of said city, to be appointed by the Mayor and confirmed by the City Council thereof, and shall hold office until the first day of May next after their appointment, or until their successors are appointed and confirmed, and shall receive such compensation as the City Council shall determine," and

Whereas, In the opinion of the City Council it is expedient that the powers and duties conferred by said act upon the Mayor and Aldermen of cities should be exercised in the city of Boston by a Board of License Commissioners; it is therefore hereby Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be requested to nominate for confirmation by the City Council three inhabitants of this city to constitute a Board of License Commissioners, with authority to exercise the powers and duties conferred upon said commissioners by the ninety-ninth chapter of the acts of the year 1875.

Mr. Ruffin—This is the usual routine order which has been passed for the last two years. It has been deemed necessary to pass such an order in order to give operation to the license law. The liquor law of the State has not been altered as was expected, and we shall live another year under the present law; and it is highly proper that we should pass just such an order as that. Of course, gentlemen know that the Board of Aldermen have this power given them; but they cannot attend to the duties. We have had, and of course we expect to have, License Commissioners. We have heretofore experienced some difficulty from not acting upon this matter. Last year or the year before, if I recollect aright, we had some trouble in the courts about this matter. It appeared that a person was arraigned in our courts charged with a violation of the license. He came in and claimed that the City Government had not given him a proper license, they not having given this power to the License Commissioners, thereby attacking the validity of the license which he had obtained from the commissioners; and the court sustained that position, and we had to take some very hasty steps to the City Hall to remedy that defect. The 1st of May is approaching, and we have got to pass such an order as that to give full force to the law. The gentlemen know that the License Commissioners are unlike other commissioners. The Fire and Health and Street commissioners are an expense to the city; but the license commissioners bring many thousands of dollars into the city treasury. It is to avoid legal difficulties that this order is offered here tonight.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent up.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Danforth of Ward 10.

QUINCY HALL.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted the following:

CITY OF BOSTON,
IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN,
April 30, 1877.

The Committee on Public Buildings beg leave to represent that the lease of Quincy Hall to the Ames Plow Company expired April 1; said corporation have expressed a desire to continue business upon the premises, but will require only a portion of the hall, say, the wing running west from the rotunda.

Application has been made by an association known as the Produce Exchange to lease the rotunda for a term of years for the business of the Exchange.

In this connection a demand has been made for offices in the easterly wing of the hall adjoining the rotunda by those doing business with said association. Provided this plan of leasing the premises is adopted, the income from the hall will be as follows: Ames Plow Company, $2500 per year; from the Produce Exchange, $1000 per year; from the fourteen business offices to be erected by the city adjoining the rotunda, estimated income $3000—making a total of $6500; leaving still the major portion of the easterly wing to be rented.

Your committee have given these requests their careful consideration, and are of the opinion that in the division of the rentals as proposed the income to be derived will be increased.

The lease of that portion of the hall to the Produce Exchange is subject to the provision that the city will provide a new flooring for the rotunda, repair the ceiling, furnish water closets, and also erect the fourteen counting rooms as mentioned in the report.

It is estimated that the sum of $3000 will be required to complete these improvements, for which no provision is made in the appropriation for Public Buildings for the financial year 1877-78.

In furtherance of the ideas embodied in the report your committee would recommend the passage of the accompanying order.

For the committee,

JOHN E. FITZGERALD, Chairman.

Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to build offices in Quincy Hall adjoining the rotunda, also to repair the rotunda preparatory to leasing the same to the Produce Exchange Association, and the offices to those doing business with the Exchange, at an estimated cost of $3000.

The expense therefor to be charged to the appropriation to be provided for that purpose.

In Board of Aldermen, April 30, 1877.

Referred to Committee on Finance. Sent down.

therefore report that further action is inexpedient. Accepted. Sent down.

Accepted and referred to the Committee on Finance. Sent down.

Read twice and passed. Sent down.

JOINT RULES AND ORDERS.

Alderman Thompson submitted a report from the Special Committee on Rules and Orders of the City Council recommending changes in the rules and orders covered in the following orders:

Ordered, That section 14 of the Joint Rules and Orders of the City Council be amended by striking out all after the word "assembled."

Ordered, That section 20 of the Joint Rules and Orders of the City Council be amended by striking out all between the word "detail," in the third line, and the words "the dates," in the fifth line of the pocket edition.

For the information of the Board the Mayor read the rules proposed to be changed, as follows:

"14. All by-laws passed by the City Council shall be termed 'ordinances,' and the enacting style shall be, 'Be it ordained by the Aldermen and Common Council of the city of Boston in City Council assembled.' No order or vote which is not in the form of an ordinance shall have the effect to amend, suspend or repeal any ordinance."

"20. No bill for refreshments or carriage hire furnished to any member of the City Government shall be paid unless such bills shall specify in detail the names of the members to whom such refreshments or carriages were furnished, the dates of furnishing the same, and have been approved by the presiding officer of a board, or chairman of a standing or special committee of the City Council, or of either branch thereof, duly authorized by vote of such committee or board, at a regular meeting; such bills, when so approved, shall be paid from the appropriation to which they are incident; and the Auditor of Accounts shall not receive or pass any such bill for the approval of the Committee on Accounts, unless it has been approved, as provided in this and the preceding section."

Alderman Clark—I should like some explanation from the chairman of the committee in regard to these changes. I think the last order perfectly right; but I should like to know the reason for making the by-laws ordinances. I like to vote intelligently upon all subjects when I can.

Alderman Thompson—The proposed change in the fourteenth joint rule leaves that rule as it was two years ago. One year ago the committee added to that rule the words, "No order or vote which is not in the form of an ordinance shall have the effect to repeal or suspend an ordinance." The City Solicitor says that rule is of no effect whatever, because any order of the City Council can repeal for the time being any ordinance; consequently the committee considered that there was no object in having the part of the rule, because it had no effect whatever. The committee consulted with the City Solicitor in regard to this change and it met with his approval. Members of the Board will remember that they have on certain occasions passed orders in conflict with certain ordinances, and it seemed proper in the minds of the committee that there should be no joint rule inconsistent with such action. In regard to the other rule, the Alderman is satisfied with it.

The orders were read twice and passed—yeas 11, nays 1; Alderman Viles voting nay. Sent down.

EXTRA CLERK HIRE IN TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Alderman Gibson offered the following:

Ordered, That the City Treasurer, with the approval of the Committee on Treasury Department, be authorized to expend during the financial year 1877-78 a sum not exceeding $100 for extra clerk hire; said sum to be charged to the appropriation for Treasurer's Department.

Read twice and passed. Sent down.

Ordered, That the City Collector, with the approval of the Committee on Treasury Department, be authorized to expend, during the financial year 1877-78, a sum not exceeding $3800 for extra clerk hire on account of the collection of taxes; said sum to be charged to the appropriation for Collector's Department.

Read twice and passed. Sent down.

ENGLISH HIGH AND LATIN SCHOOLS.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following:

The Committee on Public Instruction, to whom was referred the request of the School Committee asking that immediate steps be taken for the erection of suitable buildings for the English High and Latin schools, having considered the subject, would respectfully report as follows:

The committee have given several hearings to the School Committee, the Superintendent of Schools and the masters of the English High and Latin schools, and they have been repeatedly urged to recommend that the City Council would take some action, in order that the pressing necessities of these schools might be relieved.

It appears that at present not only the English High and Latin School building on Bedford street is in use, but that the building formerly known as the Bowditch Schoolhouse on South street, and the building known as the Savage Primary Schoolhouse on Harrison avenue, have both to be called in requisition in order to accommodate the pupils of these schools, causing, as a matter of course, numerous and vexatious transfers of classes during school hours, with a corresponding loss of valuable time both to teachers and scholars.

The number of pupils in the English High and Latin schools has increased of late years and is still increasing, and your committee are of opinion that the erection of the new school buildings (contemplated in 1872 when the necessary land was purchased by the city) ought no longer to be delayed, and that action should be taken immediately in order that the contracts for this important work may be got under way.

The lot of land purchased by the city in 1872, bounded by Montgomery street, Dartmouth street and Warren avenue, containing 84,000 square feet, is well adapted for the purpose of erecting suitable school buildings, and the location is considered to be satisfactory. Its cost to the city was $280,000.

The committee would respectfully recommend that an appropriation of $350,000 be provided for the purpose of meeting the expense of erecting suitable school buildings on the aforesaid lot of land, for the accommodation of the English High and Latin schools, and that a short loan be negotiated for this specific object, in order that said sum may be raised.

The committee further recommend that it shall be provided that the proceeds of the sale of the following property (when sold) shall be applied to the liquidation of said loan:

The present English High and Latin School building and lot, situated on Bedford street.

The building formerly known as the Bowditch Schoolhouse and lot, situated on South street.

The building known as the Savage Primary Schoolhouse and lot, situated on Harrison avenue, near Essex street.

The building known as the Old Franklin Schoolhouse and lot, situated on Washington street, near Dover street.

(The first three buildings named can of course be dispensed with as soon as the proposed new buildings are erected.)

The committee would recommend that the subject be referred to the Committee on Finance, in order that the details may be arranged for the negotiation of the proposed loan, and that an order may be reported by said committee, by the passage of which the City Council may formally authorize the same.

The committee also recommend the passage of the accompanying order.

For the committee.

F. THOMPSON, Chairman.

Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to construct suitable school buildings for the accommodation of the English High and Latin schools on the lot of land owned by the city, bounded by Montgomery street, Dartmouth street and Warren avenue, in accordance with plans prepared by the City Architect, to be approved by the School Board and the Committee on Public Instruction; the expense to be charged to the special appropriation provided for said purpose.

Laid on the table on motion of Alderman Clark.

VACATION SCHOOLS.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted two reports from the Joint Committee on Public Instruction, on request of School Committee for an appropriation of $2000 for the establishment of vacation schools. The majority of the committee recommend that the request be granted, and that the subject be referred to the Committee on Finance, in order that the means may be provided. The minority of the committee [Aldermen Thompson and Slade] dissent from the above recommendation and report that it is inexpedient to grant the request. The majority report was accepted and referred accordingly.

Subsequently, on motion of Alderman Thompson, the vote was reconsidered, and Alderman Thompson moved to substitute the minority report for that of the majority.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope the gentleman will give some reasons why the minority report should be substituted for that of the majority. I saw that he was a little bewildered when the question came up a little while ago, and I voted for the reconsideration to give him an opportunity to explain why the minority report should be substituted for that of the majority.

Alderman Thompson—The minority report has a majority of the signatures, and the committee saw no reason why the majority report should have been adopted. I wish to state for the information of the Board that this is a new project. It originated with some members of the School Board, whereby they propose to establish vacation schools, which, in my judgment, is a doubtful experiment. And they ask for $2000. My objection to the project is that it is going to establish a new system of schools; that the same reason that applies to the teachers why they need a vacation also applies to the children. If the vacations are too long, then the School Committee should shorten them and should not establish the school's during the summer. I suppose the real facts in the case are these: Certain parties desire the city to furnish nurseries the take care of the children during the vacation. My judgment is that the citizens of Boston have furnished money enough for the schools. This appropriation is very small, but it may be very much larger. It seems to me that if the School Committee wish to try this experiment, the city has been very liberal and has given nearly a million and a half dollars for the support of the schools, and they have abundant means to do so without coming to the city for any more money. My present judgment is that nothing more should be done to add to the cost of supporting the schools; and that is my principal objection. I do not see how this system can be introduced to the satisfaction of the citizens. For instance, they propose to establish schools in this section; there may be a few people in that section who desire it, and perhaps in another section there may be a few more who desire it. I have no doubt that none of the children desire to attend the schools during vacation. The Board will see that it is difficult to classify those schools. I cannot see how they can be established except upon a general plan, and I think the schools should be continued this year as they have been, without attempting any experiment.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Alderman opposite says that the report which he has signed should be the report of the majority, because it is signed by him and another member of the committee, and therefore the report which I have signed is not signed by the majority, and therefore it is not the report of the majority. My report is signed for the committee.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman did not understand me. I said the minority report has the majority of the signatures.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have no doubt of that; but it has not the majority behind it, and that is the great difficulty with it. The report which I have signed is the report of all the members of the committee except the Alderman, who is the chairman, and the Alderman opposite. [Alderman Slade].

Alderman Thompson—A majority of those who were there.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I spoke of those who were there. There were six members of the committee present, and two were absent. Now the reasons for establishing these schools are well expressed in the report of the School Board itself. About two years ago the old School Board took into consideration the establishment of vacation schools. The committee reported to the old board and the new board took up that report of the Committee on Industrial Schools; and last year they made a report upon the subject of vacation and industrial schools. Here is the sum and substance of the report on vacation schools. It says—

“It is a well-known fact that hundreds of children spend the long, idle summer days in our streets, where temptations to evil are always at hand, and seeds of vice are in that way sown, to bring forth in time the most costly and dangerous fruits. In the words of the report referred to us, we say, with hearty concurrence, ‘it were almost true to say that no expense and no effort could be too great to devote to the safe keeping of these children in vacation, for whose education such liberal provision is made during the larger part of the year.’ To such children, and to their parents, a short daily session of a vacation school, in which varied exercises should interest but not tax the minds and bodies of the pupils, would be a priceless boon. And the good order of our city would be enhanced, and the moral welfare of our citizens would be made more secure, by the fact that these summer schools would, from year to year, continue and heighten the good influences with which we seek to surround our children in the long winter terms.”

And it is signed by Miss Abby W. May, Dr. Ezra Palmer and William H. Finney. These are the reasons why the School Board want vacation schools, and they are apparent to everybody. If the gentleman opposite had had the experience upon the School Board that I have had he would have found that the times when these children are taken up for the commission of crimes, for stealing lead pipe and the commission of petty offences, is during the vacations of our schools. The object of the School Board is to establish schools in different sections of the city, where they are most needed, so that the children shall come, not during the whole day, not during the whole vacation, but shall come from time to time and be kept out of mischief and harm’s way. In certain localities there is a class of children who never go to school, who shirk and avoid it, and it is with the greatest difficulty that the parents of these children in the neighborhood of these boys can keep them out of mischief, and the only way they can do so is to keep them out of the company of those young lads who will not go to school and are ready for any mischief, and keep them out of the way of that old gentleman who, the old proverb says, has plenty for idle hands to do. I think that two thousand dollars cannot be better spent by the city of Boston than in the establishment of these schools. If it saves twelve boys from the Island, taking it as a mere matter of expense, to say nothing of the moral good of the children, it will be a great saving to the city of Boston. This is not a new experiment. It has been tried in Providence, which is the only city that has tried them. I have in my hand the report of the School Committee of that city for 1873 and 1875, which is the only report I have in relation to vacation schools. It says—

“The results of these six weeks’ training were very satisfactory to the committee—a satisfaction enhanced by the reflection that so large a number of young children were kept from exposure to street casualties, while at the same time, without any strain upon the brain, they were pleasantly preparing for the more exact studies of the autumn term. The cost of maintaining these schools was something less than the appropriation made by the City Council.

“Vacation schools, as connected with our public-school system, and carried on under the supervision of the Public School Committee, are peculiar to Providence. Their success here has attracted the attention of educators and philanthropists in other principal cities of our country, and it is believed that the year is not far distant when the example here set will be very generally adopted in all thickly populated places. In view of the good which has been accomplished in our own city through the agency of these schools, the committee are unanimous in recommending their continuance.”

That is the report of a committee where these schools have been established for a great number of years, and I think the city of Boston can well afford to spend $2000 in trying the experiment of preserving those poor children. You have appropriated $6000 for a new piggery down at Deer Island; you have appropriated $15,000 for a pauper establishment on Rainsford Island; you have appropriated $150,000 for grading and macadamizing certain streets on the Back Bay, and the School Board ask for an appropriation of $2000 with which to try to preserve and protect the morals of those poor children from temptation during vacation—children whose parents have not the control of them that they should have, and whose only sure refuge from crime and from the influences which surround them is in the schoolroom. I should think it hardly necessary for me to debate this question. It should need only to be presented for this Board to see the necessity for it. The very mention of it should be sufficient to convince this Board of the absolute necessity of this, and no money can be better spent by the School Board than this $2000. The argument which the gentleman makes in regard to the ungraded schools applies equally to the evening schools. Our evening schools are comprised of persons who are studying from A, B, C, to the “Fifth Reader,” and from two and two make four to some of the highest problems in arithmetic; to be sure they are not so pleasant to teach as a graded school, which has fifty or sixty boys studying on a lesson; but the evening schools have become a great success. But it is not intended to teach so much in the vacation schools, but rather to keep the children out of mischief. The request being a reasonable one, I think it should be granted.

Alderman Slade—My name is appended to the minority report, but I shall not say much in regard to it. During my term as a school committee man, I gave this subject some attention, and I convinced myself that it would be inexpedient to run the schools the whole year round. In my opinion the boys whom we would be glad to have go to school to be kept out of idleness would be the boys who would not go at all. I do not believe it is expedient to force children to go to school all the time, all the year round. It is an old maxim that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. I cannot think myself that it is best to encourage the holding of schools all the year. I do not believe the children will be in so good condition to take hold and go on with their other studies in the fall as they would be if they had two months vacation. Of course, there will be no truant officers to look after the boys and send them to school; and, in my opinion, the children who would attend the schools during the vacations would be the best children, and those who ought not really to attend the schools in the summer season. With all the attention that I have given to it, I am satisfied that it is inexpedient. I do not care so much about the two thousand dollars as I do about giving the parents a chance to force their children to attend school during the whole year.

Alderman Fitzgerald—In this report it says, in answer to the Alderman opposite, who says the class of children we might want to attend would not do so, it says of the vacation schools—

“The latter provide for children of primary and intermediate grades, with a sprinkling of the grammar grade, who else would be roaming the streets during the long vacation, exposed to danger and acquiring vicious habits. A vacation of two weeks at the close of the summer term, and of a week previous to the commencement of the fall term, suffices for recreation, while six weeks of instruction in spelling and reading, and in a knowledge of common things which does not unduly exercise the brain, keeps up the habit of study, and prepares them to engage with more intelligence in the subsequent lessons of the schoolroom. The success which has thus far attended both these classes of schools is the best commentary upon the wisdom of establishing them, and of their value to the city.”

It is safe to say what has occurred in Providence will occur here. In the city of Providence that class of children came to the schools, and it is precisely that class of children that the School Board want to influence by the vacation schools. The School Board have not yet made out a definite plan; they simply ask for the money, and when the money is given they will mark out a course of action to pursue. I think the details might well be left to them. At all events, I think it is worth while to try the experiment. I think that, with the efficiency of the School Board and the teachers, the vacation schools will be as successful as in Providence, where the people have become convinced of the utility of establishing them.

Alderman Thompson—Was that report from a teacher of the school?

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is from the report of the School Committee, but in that report is an extract from the report of the principal of the vacation school to the committee.

Alderman Thompson—I have no doubt the principal would approve of it, and so would any one likely to be employed during the summer months. But it seems to me that after the large appropriation made for the schools—when the appropriation for schools in Boston is larger than in any other city in the Commonwealth—we should put our foot down and not continue this fancy arrangement of the School Committee. This is an experiment. It may do well for a small place like Providence; but if Boston goes into this experiment, a large expenditure must be made, or it will not be satisfactory to the inhabitants. When the committee have received so large an appropriation I think they should be satisfied. They should take this $2000 out of the incidentals. They know what they have got and can dispose of it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—This is not a fancy business. If there is anything that is practical in the School Committee it is in asking for something of this kind. I have always thought it better to build schoolhouses and provide education for our children, and prevent them from becoming criminals, than to wait till they grow up, and build penitentiaries and houses of reformation to make them retrace their steps. Of all the moneys we appropriate—although the School Board may be excused for extravagance—there is none that the people give so unhesitatingly as that for the schools. It is not a fancy business. Ladies and gentlemen upon the School Committee came before the School Committee and presented their case, and I was very well acquainted with it before I came upon this Board. I hope the City Council will unanimously pass this small appropriation.

Alderman Thompson—The gentleman refers to the School Committee coming before the Committee on Public Instruction and presenting their case. The Alderman came there after they had presented their case. His mind was made up before they came there, and I have no doubt that his views might have been changed to just what my colleague's and mine are, if he had been present. I do not know what effect the interview with the lady had on the Alderman outside of the committee, but I am of the opinion that if he had been present when the committee made their report to the Committee on Public Instruction he might possibly have been on the minority side.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I knew just as well as the members of the School Board what was needed. I got in just when they got through. But it did not need my presence there to become acquainted with this matter. I knew all about it before. We discussed it for a whole hour. I had made up my mind for the last six months that it was needed, just as the gentleman opposite had made up his mind before it came before the committee.

Alderman Thompson—That is a mistake.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have not the slightest idea but that his mind was made up before it came before the committee. I am certain that if Miss Abby May could not change his mind to the right way of thinking, his mind must have been very much made up before coming to the committee.

Alderman Gibson—My mind is not made up. This is the first time I have heard of it. It seems to me that this is imprisoning little children the whole twelve months round. I submit that in this latitude they should have two months to make bone and muscle against their becoming men and women. In July and August, when children can be out, I would rather hire a man to take them out in the fields, where they can exercise and make bone and muscle. It is inhuman to keep them shut up twelve months. It is well known that in these two months everybody seeks for recreation and to patch up strength that will make them suitable men and women to go out into the world and get a living. It looks to me in that light. I do not see the necessity of expending this. We have an army of teachers under pay; they are paid so much per annum, and if it is necessary to have these schools, why not take the regular teachers to teach them. We certainly do not want another corps of teachers. Some way may be provided to use those teachers who are under pay the year round. But I think it is just as necessary that the children should have time to make bone and muscle as to go to school. If you take one thousand children and keep them in school twelve months in the year, and another one thousand and keep them in school six months, when they arrive at manhood I venture to say that those who were in school six months would be the better men and women, and better able to sustain themselves and families.

Alderman O'Brien—While I believe that the expenses of our public schools have gone beyond a reasonable limit, and that there is a splendid opportunity for reform and economy in that department, still, I shall vote for the appropriation of this $2000 because I believe it is in the interest of the poor. As the Alderman who has just taken his seat remarked, it is the vacations of our public schools which are looked upon as a time for recreation and pleasure, for trips in the country, to the mountains and to the seashore. But we ought to remember that there are hundreds and thousands of our citizens who cannot send their children to the country, who cannot send them to the seashore, who are compelled to work from morning to night in order to earn a scanty subsistence to support them; and when their children are in school they know they are safe, that they are far safer than if they are left idle about the streets. That is the recreation that hundreds of our poor people have—idling about the streets during vacation—and the parents of many of these children—I know it to be a fact—feel more anxious about them during vacation than during any other time; and if they had a school to send them to it would relieve this anxiety very greatly. I think that $2000 is not much with which to try an experiment of this kind, because I believe that if tried it will be found that good results will follow from it. It will take care of children whose parents cannot take care of them; whose parents are working hard to earn a scanty subsistence, and cannot look after them during vacation, and when the children are in school they are looked after by the teachers. For that reason I shall vote for this order.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Perhaps somebody who listens may be under the impression that the schools are intended to be carried on as during the rest of the year. It is not so. It is the intention of the board to have half-time schools during the day. It is not expected that the same children will go right along during the whole vacation. The schools are simply to enable parents to send children there who are not able to send them elsewhere. The great trouble with the class they want to get into the school is, that they have too much muscle and do too much mischief. We want to keep them from exercising their muscle too much. Too much muscle is the great difficulty with them. The Alderman may rest assured that the class of children who are going to that school will not suffer for want of muscle. I will warrant that they will have plenty of that when they grow up to be men.

Alderman Clark—I am in favor of making arrangements to send children to school during the vacations. I think we have too much vacation. I think the terms should be shortened. I find that the public schools are kept open on an average less than 200 days in the 365. And I believe that all the large and small children have time enough to get muscle. I think this industrial school will keep them out of mischief and have a tendency to improve them. But I believe there has been enough already appropriated to establish these industrial schools. We pay liberal salaries to the teachers, and they work only sixty-seven per cent. of the year. If it is necessary to establish this industrial school, I believe it can be done with the present appropriation, and therefore I move that the whole subject be recommitted to the Committee on Public Instruction, with the request that they report an order for the expense to be charged to the appropriation for Public Schools. My idea is to appropriate $2000, or more, if necessary, to be devoted to this purpose, the amount to be charged to the appropriation for Public Schools. I believe we have appropriated enough to run our schools only 200 days out of the 365 in the year, and I believe we have altogether too much vacation for the good of the children of the city. There is money enough appropriated to run schools at least twenty-five or thirty days more than they have been run for the past thirty-five years. Therefore I shall favor the establishment of these schools, but I believe that the expense should be charged to the regular school appropriation.

Alderman Slade—The teachers are paid for the whole year, and I don't exactly understand how Alderman Clark can carry out his ideas unless we authorize the School Board to spend a portion of the money already granted them. The teachers are all paid by the year whether they teach or not. There was a time when the schools kept until the 20th of July, but it has been shortened so that it will close in June; and if the teachers could have their way it would be closed in May.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I think the better way would be for the Alderman to withdraw his amendment, and let the whole matter be referred to the Committee on Finance, who can take the whole matter into consideration. We have first to establish the school, and then, after giving that power to the School Board to run the school if we don't want to make an extra appropriation for the expense, the Committee on Finance can report that the amount already appropriated is sufficient to pay for the vacation schools. So far as salaries are concerned, I doubt if the School Board can appropriate any more money except for the purpose for which it is appropriated. The Committee on Public Instruction shaved so closely to the wind that I fear the School Committee will not have enough for the salaries of the present teachers, even if they reduce salaries down to the amount which we recommended. The Committee on Public Instruction reduced the salaries to $750 from $800, and cut down the head masters and sub-masters and other teachers to a very large extent; and if the School Committee choose to allow the salaries to remain as they are the whole appropriation will be expended within two months of the year, and they will be obliged therefore to close the schools, or this City Council will be obliged to appropriate more money. I think this matter had better be referred to the Committee on Finance; the Alderman opposite [Alderman Clark] is a member of this committee, and they can report what they think upon the matter.

Alderman Gibson—I want to understand how they get at $2000 as the sum necessary. I should like to know how many schools are going to be established, and how much they will cost.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Two thousand dollars is a very small sum for the city of Boston to expend on vacation schools. The teachers will get perhaps $2 or $1.50 a day; it will require a large number of schools, and also some books. But I should think that $2000 would be small, when you consider the number of schools you have throughout the city. We appropriate some $28,000 for evening schools throughout the city, and this sum will only be used for the salaries of teachers.

Alderman Gibson—I apprehend that this is to be the entering wedge. You cannot get the machine fairly started for $2000, and it is only an entering wedge. You have got to establish schools in every section, and it will cause an increase of the appropriation for schools in these hard times. I do not believe any one has gone into this thing carefully enough to say how much the expense will be. I do not care about the $2000, but we all know that a good many more schools will cost a good deal more money than that. I think myself it is better for the children to be out of doors in the summer, where they can get air and exercise. I believe it will be a serious injury to the children if these schools are established. I think our children in Boston get too much education crowded into them, and it causes softening of the brain, and brings them to a very sickly manhood. It is well enough to let well enough alone. This $2000 is an entering wedge, and I don't believe it is a quarter of what the expense will be.

Alderman Thompson—The views just expressed by the Alderman suggested themselves to the minds of some members of the committee, and it was suggested that some teachers of the schools be retained; that there might be some changes; that they might take turns in keeping these schools through the summer. But the subcommittee of the School Committee said it was an actual necessity that the teachers should have this recreation; and, according to my mind, it was rather an understanding on the part of the School Committee that the teachers should have the recreation, but not the children. Now, the committee desired some information how this $2000 was to be expended, and although the communication from the School Committee was presented early in March, yet the subcommittee had no plans or suggestions to present to the Committee on Public Instruction. If they had had any plans, perhaps the Alderman on my right and myself might have had different views. But a gentleman of the School Committee said he had some facts and figures which he would send to the committee in regard to those schools. I can remember when I attended the public schools that we had a fortnight vacation in the month of August, and the teacher—I refer to Master Bates, who retired from the city last year—had, I think, something like two hundred boys and children under his charge. He could get along very nicely with a vacation of two weeks in the year, but now the present teachers require seven or eight weeks. It was suggested that these teachers should take turns and keep these schools in different sections of the city, with the appropriation that the city has already made. Now, Mr. Mayor, in view of the fact that a member of the School Committee had certain facts and particulars which he had not presented to me, but said that he would submit to the Committee on Public Instruction, I would move that this subject be recommitted to the committee, that they may have a little more light upon the subject, and that they can come before this Board with a more intelligent explanation of it than we have got today. We don't understand it. We don't know what they want to do with this $2000. If the School Committee are very anxious to establish these schools, it occurred to me that it would be the better course not to have a different corps of teachers. Let the subject go back to the committee and they will endeavor to get more light. Perhaps they will get as much light upon the subject as did the Alderman who presented the majority report. The Alderman on my right suggests that my old teacher had most excellent health when he had a two-weeks' vacation, but finally broke down when he had a two-months' vacation. I believe that is pretty much the case. In the appropriation asked for by the School Committee I think there are three or four thousand dollars for some festival, and there are two or three thousand dollars for different things. The Committee on Public Instruction were very liberal and accepted the propositions for those things, and only reduced in the items for salaries and amount asked for for fuel. They took their data in regard to fuel from the Superintendent of Public Buildings. I move that the subject be recommitted, with the expectation that a more intelligent report shall be submitted.

The Mayor—The question is upon Alderman Clark's motion for the reference to the committee, with instructions.

Alderman Clark—I have not the slightest objection what disposition shall be made of this order. I am in favor of these industrial schools, but I think the cost should come from the general appropriation for schools.

Alderman Thompson—They are vacation schools.

Alderman Clark—For vacation schools. I don't believe it is an injury to children—as does the Alderman from East Boston—to go to school in the summer. They go to school at nine o'clock, and at twelve they go to dinner, and have two hours' rest, and then they stay until four, and they have until nine o'clock in the morning and two hours at noon and from four until seven in the evening to work up muscle and improve their health; so that there is no danger of children studying too hard, even with vacations reduced to four weeks. There is altogether too much sympathy in regard to children being overtaxed in the public schools. I have never yet seen any ill effects of children being overworked in the public schools. I have but one there, and if he had been taxed a little harder at the private schools he would have been much better advanced today. I am happy to say that he is advancing today at the public school at the corner of Exeter and Newbury streets more than he was at the private school. I think it would be better to recommit this to the Committee on Public Instruction, as they have better means of finding out from the School Committee what is necessary than the Finance Committee have. I should hope that it will go back to the Committee on Public Instruction in some form.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The motion which the chairman of the Committee on Public Instruction [Alderman Thompson] makes pays too poor tribute to the committee of which he is chairman. It is a confession that it is a report upon which he knows very little.

Alderman Thompson—How should we know, when the gentleman was absent?

Alderman Fitzgerald—I was present. The Alderman opposite has been charging me with being absent from committee meetings. He stated two weeks ago that I was absent from the Committee on Paving, and he has been continually talking in that way, and making charges without any proof. I have noticed that from the beginning, and I want now to take particular notice of it. I want the Board to take particular notice that he makes charges and assertions without having any proof, which are groundless. If the gentleman knew or took as much interest in this matter as I have for two or three years, if he had seen poor children from certain neighborhoods and districts over which I have been chairman, whose parents have come crying to me during vacation time begging of me to intercede with the justice for juvenile offenders in cases in which their children have been committed for stealing and for other petty offences, which would never have been committed if places of this kind had been established for them, he would not talk so glibly of these vacation schools. The Alderman is surrounded by a happy family, with happy children; and those who can send their children to Rye Beach and up to the mountains do not complain of the long vacations. These parents do not go to any mountains or to the seashore for driving or fishing. Often when they return from work at night they find a report from the police station that their boy is sent to the Island for stealing, and is to be kept there during his minority. The object of this order is to provide a place for the children of the poor, for those who cannot well afford to keep nurses to look after them, and it is to keep them out of mischief. It is for the children of those who cannot afford to send them into the country and make them acquainted with green fields, mountains and lakes. It is for the children of those who rarely go outside of the brick and mortar of the city, who are continually exposed to the temptation all along the wharves and streets, and I think the School Board deserve praise rather than censure from this Board for what they have done. I have been chairman of districts where those children lived and I have been acquainted with some of them. I know that during vacation the children are always in danger of getting into trouble. I noticed one morning going down Tremont street last year three police officers, each in charge of a boy; and as I passed I noticed that the little fellows hung their heads, and I knew at once that they were acquainted with me. I asked one of them, "Do you go to school, my boy?" and he said he went to the Quincy School. He knew me. The little boys had been arrested for breaking into a house and stealing some lead pipe, and the little fellows were all under the age of ten. I found from inquiry—and such has been my experience on the School Board—that cases of that kind are more frequent during vacation than any other time of the year, because children are more exposed to temptation. There are certain classes of boys who rarely go to school; they live in the neighborhood of these boys who do go to school, and during vacation children are apt to fall into the bad company of those boys. It is to prevent that class of children from getting into trouble that the School Board ask this appropriation of two thousand dollars. That is the sum and substance of it. It is useless to talk about the teachers—that they do not have this or that. The fact is, the teachers are hired for so much a year, and it will be unjust to say to teachers that they must teach these schools during the summer. I tell you the probabilities are that Mr. Bates would never have broken down if he had had more vacation. We rather undervalue the services of our teachers. We are rather apt to class the service of teachers with unskilled labor. There is no work so tiresome, so humdrum, as the work the teacher performs. It is the same ding-dong work week after week, year after year, and if there is anything that wears upon the mind it is that kind of labor, moulding the morals, habits and souls of fifty-six little children. It is not to be compared with the labor we have in other departments. You have got clerks around here in your departments and you can get seventy-five men to take their place when an occupant leaves. For two years you have been looking after a head master for the High School, and you cannot get an available man in the United States whom you would think proper to fill that position. Invitations have been sent to various gentlemen who invariably refused, because some of them think they are better off where they are, so far as salaries are concerned. If you don't pay decent salaries you will not have decent teachers, because men will forsake the profession and become lawyers, ministers, and seek some other employment more congenial and profitable. If you want the schools of Boston kept up to the high standard which they have attained, and for which they are celebrated, you must pay good salaries to the teachers. I say that all the money which is paid out for school purposes in this city is given with a most ungrudging hand by the citizens of Boston. You must have found, Mr. Mayor, that the cutting down which caused the most criticism—as I have found—has been the reduction in the salaries of teachers. I don't say it was wrong, but I only speak of the feeling abroad about it. I voted for it because I think the time has come when we must cut down everything; but I think too much stress is laid upon the high salaries paid teachers for the prices paid in other departments. I think the salaries paid teachers are not enough. Whether this is the regular work of the teachers is not the question here. It is simply whether you will give the School Board an opportunity to establish these schools for children of whom I have been speaking, for children who will be exposed to temptation on every side, and whose parents are trying to make a livelihood for themselves and their children. It is not to be a coop for children. The attendance is to be entirely voluntary. The schools will be kept for half a day, and then the exercises will be of a nature that will not tax the mind or make it burdensome for the children. I have no doubt they will have many exercises that will expand their muscles.

Now it is proposed to refer this for the purpose of getting more information. The School Committee have given all the information that is needed. The plan and details ought to be left to them. They say, We want to establish schools similar to those in Providence; and the plan and details can be left to them. That is their special duty, and I think we can well trust to them to carry out this scheme. Taking it from an economical standpoint, I venture to say that if you establish these schools you will have twenty less offenders to send to the House of Correction, and you will save $3000 in the expense at Deer Island. As an economical measure it well deserves the consideration of this Board. When I was in the School Board two years ago, it was brought up, a number of philanthropic ladies and gentlemen presented a petition for the establishment of some kind of industrial schools, where the children of poor people could be taught trades. This is intended for that class of people. We must give them leave to establish the schools, and we can let the Finance Committee report whether there is a sufficient amount appropriated to warrant referring it to the School Committee without making an additional appropriation. It is true it is but a beginning, as the Alderman from East Boston says; and, if it works well, they may come and ask for a little more next year; and, if they do, I shall vote to give it to them if I am here. During my experience on the School Board I never found that children learned too much. The great difficulty is, they do not learn enough.

Alderman Thompson—The remarks of the Alderman at the commencement of his speech call for some explanation from myself in regard to my assertion respecting his attendance in committees. He referred to me the other evening in an ungentlemanly manner, and which reflected upon me, by stating that if it was after dinner he should attribute it to something else. I ask if he ever saw me in a condition after dinner different from what I am now; if so, I desire that he should say so, and not make an assertion of that kind without anything to back it up. I made an assertion the other evening from the chairman of the Committee on Paving, who stated, "We will do this," and "We will do that," and "We wont report so and so"; and he was speaking for the committee when he said so. If the Alderman disagreed with him I presume he was not present at the committee, for I had my authority from the committee. Now, sir, respecting my remarks concerning his attendance upon the Committee on Public Instruction. The sub-committee of the School Committee were there and presented their case and they were gone before the Alderman came. How could he know what was done by the sub-committee toward placing the subject before the committee? That is what I alluded to and it cannot be denied. I am not going to sit here and have any member of this Board browbeat me. What I state I can back up. Now, in regard to what the Alderman says about the wear and tear of the teachers. He knows nothing about the wear and tear of merchants of this city who have no vacations, but who keep right on through all the hard times such as we are passing through now. I sympathize with that class of people. Since I have been a member of this Board, it has been my desire to reduce expenses and make this city as desirable a place to live in as Philadelphia or Baltimore, where one can live for thirty-three per cent. less than here. I do not want to see our merchants leaving here because of the high cost of living. I think I am looking out for the true interests of the city by reducing the expenses of the Government, so that people can live here. The reason I object to this is because a million and a half of dollars have been appropriated for schools by the city of Boston, which is as much as we can afford to appropriate. Why don't the Alderman ask for an appropriation to take those children into the country and support them? I will vote for a thing of that kind. But as one or two of the sub-committee come before us, and without any plans, I made the motion to recommit the report, that we may know more definitely what they want to do with the money. That is the reason why I desire it to go back—that we may have a more intelligent account from the School Committee upon this subject.

Alderman Clark withdrew his motion to recommit with instructions.

Alderman Thompson renewed the motion to recommit.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I sympathize with the Alderman in his desire to cut down expenses. It is a laudable one, and I hope all the members of the City Government will agree with him. But, after all our retrenchment, I should not vote money to give children recreation by taking them into the country at the expense of the city, though the Alderman would vote for it. As to my brow-beating him, I should not attempt to do that; but I shall not allow him or any other member of the Board to say of me that which is not true. I shall not do that. I did not begin this controversy with the Alderman. He made assertions that were not true. I did not mean to insinuate anything against the Alderman. I simply meant to convey the idea that I should excuse his speeches; that I should excuse what he said if he were in any other than the sober condition in which he always is. That is what I meant, and I did not mean anything else. But he made such reckless charges that I could not let them pass without a reply. If any such insinuations were conveyed in my speech, I want to withdraw them here. I simply rose to defend myself.

The motion to recommit prevailed; and on motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the committee were instructed to report in two weeks. Sent down.

REWARD OFFERED.

Alderman Robinson made a statement of the facts, which have already been published, in regard to the disappearance of Mary Ella Harrington of East Boston, and the belief of the police that she had been foully dealt with in Lowell. He concluded by offering the following:

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be authorized to offer a reward not exceeding $150 for information which shall lead to the discovery of the disposition of the body of Mary Ella Harrington, who recently died in the city of Lowell, the victim of a supposed criminal operation.

In reply to questions by members of the Board, Alderman Robinson stated that the detectives were of opinion that the information could be obtained by a small reward, if at all.

The order was read twice and passed.

INSPECTOR AT ABATTOIR IN BRIGHTON.

On motion of Alderman Dunbar the Board took from the table the order to fix the salary of the Inspector of Provisions, to be appointed by the Board of Health, at $1500 per annum.

The question was on the passage of the order.

Alderman Thompson said he understood the Salary Committee were not quite agreed upon the matter, and he should like to hear about it.

Alderman Slade said there was no minority report; but the office requires little except nominal labor, and he did not believe such an office was required. He thought $1200 would be sufficient.

Alderman Dunbar said the committee were agreed, with the exception of Alderman Slade, that the salary should be fixed at $1500. They visited all the buildings at the abattoir, and concluded that the duties required a peculiar sort of a man, who had good judgment and was able to discriminate in regard to the cattle slaughtered.

Alderman Wilder did not believe the office necessary, but it was created to make a place for some one. They slaughter from three to seven hundred sheep and three to five hundred cattle; it is done by a great corporation, who would not knowingly permit the slaughter of diseased animals. No one could inspect all those animals. If any one is needed it should be a practical butcher, who could be secured for $500 or $600. He moved to make the salary $600.

Alderman Gibson inquired if he was to inspect Squire's piggery at Cambridge, where they slaughter a hog every four minutes.

Alderman Slade said the statute required an inspector for the abattoir, and for nothing else. He believed the Inspector of Provisions at large could go there and do the work, with a slight increase of salary. He did not believe the proprietors of the abattoir would allow diseased cattle to be slaughtered there.

Alderman Clark understood the Board of Health deemed it expedient for the health of the city that this officer should be appointed, which he did not believe they would recommend unless it was necessary. If the Inspector at large has too much time on his hands, his salary should be cut down. If the duties are to be performed, $1500 is not too much salary for a good man. He believed in the Board of Health and its management.

Alderman Wilder believed no duty could be performed that is required to protect the health of the city. The officer might walk around, and perhaps partake of the blood-cure, if in a weak condition. He believed in the Board of Health and in its management.

Alderman Viles thought that no one seemed to have a clear idea of the duties, and he moved to recommit with instructions to consult with the Board of Health in regard to the labors of the officer.

Alderman O'Brien suggested that the Board of Health be requested to consider if they could not perform the duties themselves. If the physician, the lawyer and the merchant on that Board would give up their private business they could attend to more business of the city, and it would not be necessary to hire an extra officer.

Alderman Clark said the physician had no private practice, but devotes his entire time to the city. The lawyer does attend to his practice, as before; and if the lawyer appointed by his Honor is confirmed, he will no doubt attend to his private practice; and a most excellent and estimable man he is. The merchant gave up his private business when he took the position.

Alderman O'Brien said that last year a man complained of a sewer in Avery street, and said his physician attributed the sickness in his family to the sewer. That man said his physician was Dr. Durgin. In this case Dr. Durgin did not give his whole time to the city. If he is a physician for one family he may be for a dozen others.

Alderman Clark said it was not to be supposed that the Health Commissioners could devote their time to the Brighton abattoir, as they have other duties.

Alderman Slade explained the duties of the Inspector at Large, and reiterated his belief that the proprietors of the abattoir would not allow diseased animals to be slaughtered there.

Alderman Clark did not intend to criticize the Inspector. In regard to the Board of Health the ordinance allows them to engage in any other business. It is the fault of the ordinance.

Alderman Wilder moved to amend the motion by requesting the committee to procure a statement from the Board of Health in regard to the duties of the officer.

Alderman Viles accepted the amendment and the motion prevailed. Sent down.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the Board reconsidered the vote accepting the report in the Poland & Peabody omnibus case, and the report was laid on the table.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Robinson.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

MAY 3, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Refereuces to Committee on Finance, viz., Of an order for offices and other improvements in Quincy House, cost $3000; of a request for $20,000 for the Northampton-street District. Concurred.

Recommitment to Committee on Salaries of the order to fix the salary of the Inspector to be appointed by the Board of Health under chapter 144, Acts of 1876, at $1500, with instructions to report his duties. Concurred.

Report (inexpedient) to set apart a room in City Hall for a municipal library. Accepted in concurrence.

Report and order for a permit to O. H. Weed to enlarge a wooden building rear of Culvert street. Order read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order to remit the tax for 1876 on forfeited estate on Albany street, corner East Newton street. Passed to a second reading.

Report in favor of passage of the order to authorize the publication and distribution of a second report by Record Commissioners, at not exceeding $1000. Report accepted and order read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order for Treasurer to expend $100 for extra clerk-hire. Passed to a second reading.

Order for Collector to expend not exceeding $3800 for extra clerk-hire for collection of taxes. Passed to a second reading.

Order for the Joint Committee on Health to contract for three years with Artemas Winchester for removal of house offal from West Roxbury, at $900 per annum.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—Has this subject been before the committee?

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—It was before the committee. There were some six or seven bids, and this gentleman's was as low as any other. He has performed the work heretofore, and to the satisfaction of the people, so far as could be ascertained, and the committee awarded him the contract.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—Is this the party who does the work in Charlestown?

Mr. Sibley—No, sir, it is not.

Mr. Kelley—I wish to say that that gentleman has not given satisfaction.

The order was passed to a second reading.

SECOND ASSISTANT ASSESSORS.

A certificate came down of the election of John J. Follen and John Haggerty as Second Assistant Assessors in place of those chosen by this Council.

An election was ordered.

Committee—Messrs. Sibley of Ward 5, Nugent of Ward 19, Warren of Ward 25.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—I wish to say that when the 1st of May arrived, the Council having failed to elect a Second Assistant Assessor for Ward 23, the Assessors deemed that those elected last year held over; and accordingly, in Ward 23, they set Mr. Dickson to work, and he is at work now. I hope the Council will remember this fact, and cast their votes, as heretofore, for Mr. Dixon.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

An executive communication came down for concurrence in the appointment of Thomas J. Gargan, Samuel A. B. Abbott and Henry Walker as License Commissioners.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I propose to vote against the confirmation of these nominations, and as my reasons and those of others for voting against the confirmation of another appointment which has been made, have been misunderstood, I desire for one to state some reasons for my action. Most of our city officers hold their offices for one year, and then they are subject to renomination or reelection; and it has been the custom of the city for many years at least, if not always, to keep in office all good servants of the city who have proved themselves honest and capable. They have been renominated and reelected year after year as long as they have done their duty to the city; they have not been turned out or made to give place to others because one party or another got the ascendancy. The principle of dividing the offices in the gift of the city as spoils among members of the victorious party has not heretofore been put into practice by our City Government. That principle has been put in practice, as we all know, by the National Government, and we are all aware of how much mischief it has wrought. We know the great efforts that have been made to put a stop to that mischief and to bring about reform in that matter. I had hoped that we should not have introduced that system here. His Honor the Mayor, in his inaugural address this year, said—

"The recent municipal election reflected to some extent the passions of the federal election; but party strife and party animosities have no recognition in this presence. We should exercise the powers delegated to us for the welfare and prosperity of all the citizens, without regard to party differences or party interests. Under that inspiration of peace and good-will to all which comes from the Christmas season, let us endeavor to do so."

I considered, and I know that many others considered, these words to be a promise on the part of the Mayor that this should not be a partisan administration. But, it seems to me, Mr. President, that the inspiration of the Christmas season has faded out, and that we are seeing the commencement of a partisan administration of the City Government. In the first place, the first nomination that he made, which we could act upon, was for a member of the Board of Health. There had previously been several nominations made which were to be confirmed by the Board of Aldermen, and which we had nothing to say about. Several of those nominations I believe to have been simply scandalous. Certain men were dropped, against whom no reason could be assigned, simply to give place to Democratic politicians. Then we came to the Board of Health. I have heard no complaint that the duties of the Board of Health had not been properly performed. The Mayor, in that same inaugural address, speaking of the Board of Health, said—

"It gives me great pleasure to record the success with which the Board of Health are discharging their important duties. I have examined with some care their reports, and am satisfied that they are doing their work faithfully and well.

"During the past year they have abated more than 10,000 nuisances affecting health, and inspected and ordered to be vacated 148 houses as unfit for habitation. They have instituted sixty-four prosecutions," etc.

The Mayor seemed to find no fault at that time with the manner in which they had performed their duties, and I don't hear that it is pretended that the gentleman who is to be dropped from the Board of Health had failed to perform his duty faithfully, honestly and well. It is admitted on all hands that he has been dropped to give place to a Democratic politician—a man who has claims upon the Democratic party, and who is to be put into that place simply because he is a Democrat and wants a part of the spoils. Then again, that nomination has been followed by the appointment of three license commissioners, all Democrats, all Democratic politicians, managers and wire-pullers. It seems to me that it would have been somewhat gracious, and in accordance with the custom at City Hall, for the Mayor to have nominated from the opposite party at least one member among the three. But the whole three are Democratic politicians. Now, under those circumstances, it seems to me too much to ask of me as a Republican or of any member of the Republican party in this hall to indorse and ratify these nominations; and I for one don't propose to give my vote for it. I hoped that there would have been many Democrats who would have failed to approve the introduction of this system of dividing spoils among members of the party. I had hoped that there were many Democrats who would frown upon any such proceeding. But certainly it is not to be expected that the Republicans in this Council will vote to ratify these nominations and thereby approve the introduction into our City Hall of this new system of dividing the spoils among the victors, and of making a complete overturn throughout the branches of the City Government whenever a new party gets the ascendancy. For these reasons, Mr. President; I shall vote and continue to vote against the ratification or confirmation of any nominations which seem to me to be made in such a spirit. If a member of the Board of Health had died, or if he had resigned his place, and the Mayor had sent in the nomination of Mr. Keith, I don't know any reason why I should not have voted to confirm him. But, as the matter stands, there seems to be no possible reason why the change should be made except it be to give room to a Democrat. The Board of Health was formerly composed of one lawyer, one physician and one merchant. Now it is proposed to make it of two lawyers and one physician; and then, moreover, it is proposed to put three more lawyers on the License Commission; and though I believe in lawyers generally, I think there is such a thing as overdoing the putting of lawyers into office.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—In regard to this trouble that seems to arise about these nominations, I have felt for some years that it all springs from the fact that we do not select these men. They are appointed by the Mayor, and we have trouble about voting for them. The Mayor stood near where you sit, sir, and told us that no men, or set of men, who came to him in the interests of party would receive anything in this presence. Well, I have no reason to dispute his word. He knows best. The gentleman who has been on the Board of Health is a most estimable gentleman, a good officer and a good man. The trouble is, we don't have the picking of the men. I have voted against Mr. Keith, and suppose I should continue to do so, if I had a chance, for six months, and saw no reason to change my mind.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3—I call the gentleman to order. He is talking about the Board of Health, and the subject under discussion is the License Commissioners.

Mr. Sibley—I am only illustrating the subject.

The President—The gentleman from Ward 5 is coming to the point.

Mr. Sibley—It is before us in the shape it is; we have got it and we must act upon it. Now in regard to the License Commissioners, the gentleman from Ward 9 says he believes in lawyers generally, but objects to putting three lawyers on that board. I think the less people have to do with lawyers the more money they will have. But that is not the point. In regard to this party business, I don't care the least particle for it in the world. When we annexed Charlestown, the Republican Ward and City Committee sent me to a city convention, and we nominated a Democrat for Mayor and elected him; and we did it for two years. And I learned this very thing—to vote for a Democrat when he is the best man. I don't care a particle for party. Now if there are any objections to these nominations, I should be glad to hear them. I have not heard one word against Mr. Keith. The opposition to him is all on account of personal feelings. An old friend came to me and told me certain things, and said I, if that is the case I shall not vote for him. I stuck to him; and being an old friend it is pretty hard to get out. If these License Commissioners are in any way unfit for the position, I should be glad to hear it, and shall endeavor to govern myself accordingly.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I had hoped that party politics would not be brought into this Council this year; but I find the gentleman from Ward 9 at his old tricks, as last year, when he and some others attempted to rule the Council. He opposes these License Commissioners simply because they are Democrats, and he goes on to say they are nominated because they are Democrats, and that a man who is in a position should not be removed. Now, sir, I have voted in this Council this year for men for heads of departments, not knowing or caring what their politics were; and the other branch of the Government has done so, knowing that the heads of departments were Republicans. That issue has never been brought up before since I have been in this Council; and during my ten years' service I have never heard politics brought in here until it was brought here by the gentleman

[Mr. Crocker] and some others. He cannot say but that these gentlemen are all honest and trustworthy men, who will discharge their duties faithfully. He also refers to Mr. Keith, and admits he knows him very well, and knows him to be an honest and upright man; but because Mr. Keith is a Democrat he proposes to vote against him. I had hoped, as I said before, that party politics would not be brought in here. I hope these nominations will be confirmed by the Council.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I want to set myself right before the Council in regard to the nominations now before us, and also the appointment that has been made by the Mayor for a member of the Board of Health. It has been said that this has been made a party issue. In other words, it has been represented that members of this body have voted against Mr. Keith solely on account of his politics. I can say, for one, that that was not the influence that was brought to bear on me in casting my vote against Mr. Keith. I have never yet heard that there has been any objection to the present incumbent of that office. I do not know him, and never had any dealings with him; but I never heard any objections made to him. Neither have I heard anything personal that would influence my vote for or against the gentleman who has been nominated to fill that office. But I would state that my reason for voting against Mr. Keith—and I have never seen any reason to change my mind—is that it seemed to me that in that board there are now one doctor and one lawyer, and I thought if there was to be a change, the new incumbent should be a practical business man. That is the only reason I have voted against Mr. Keith. So far as concerns these other three gentlemen who are now before us for confirmation, it is said to me that they are all three Democrats and all three lawyers. I do not care what they are; I am going to take this ground; I am not going to raise my voice against them, and if I vote at all I shall vote for them, and for this reason: The Mayor has nominated those three men, and if he can afford to nominate those men and continue his nominations in that way, I can stand it if he can; and I believe the Republican party can stand it. Therefore I shall vote to confirm all appointments that come from him.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I desire to correct the gentleman from Ward 13 in one point, although perhaps it is not very material. He stated that I admitted that I knew Mr. Keith to be an honest, capable, fit man for the office. I think he probably misunderstood me. I have no personal acquaintance with Mr. Keith. I probably did say to him that personally I knew nothing against his honesty or capacity. While I am up, I desire to protest against the idea being advanced that I have introduced the subject of politics into this body. I claim that it was introduced into the City Hall when nominations were made of men for partisan purposes; when men were nominated for office and other men dropped out of office simply to make room for Democratic politicians. I don't think that I or any other Republican can be found fault with for introducing politics when we refuse to be a party to or to help to carry out the political arrangements of the Democratic party. I simply raised my voice here to utterly protest being made a tool to help carry out the political arrangements for the division of plunder that have been prepared and proposed by the Democratic party. I claim that I did not introduce politics into this body when I did that. I must differ with the gentleman who has just sat down when he says that we can wash our hands of the responsibility for confirmation of these nominations. We cannot put the responsibility entirely upon the Mayor. This branch has a Republican majority, and it is in our power to stop this division of the spoils among members of the Democratic party, and I believe it is our duty and the duty of every Republican, and the duty of every Democrat here who has anything more than party at heart, to interfere and interpose by his voice to stop it.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—Since I have been a member of the Council I have always opposed putting the power of making nominations in the hands of the Mayor. But, sir, for the last three years there has been a strong pressure upon this Council to put the appointment of all heads of departments and commissioners in the hands of the Mayor, and give him power to make appointments to fill the various offices. The new city charter was crammed full of such orders, to put all the departments in commission and giving this power to the Mayor to make the appointments, and that charter was fought in the Council by some members that I see present to-night, who voted against giving the Mayor that power. A few of the provisions of the charter have been forced through the Legislature by members of this Council going up there and getting a few of the bills put through to carry that very point—giving the power into the hands of the Mayor to make these appointments, to be confirmed by the City Council, and now they oppose the Mayor's nominations. Now, sir; when we have given the Mayor this power, I say that we have no right to reject his nominations unless the parties nominated are not proper persons to fill those offices. I am opposed entirely to putting that power into the hands of the Mayor. I have always been opposed to it, and will vote against it any time; this I have told gentlemen when they were trying to force this special power upon the Council that they would see the time when they would be opposed to it, and I think that time has come tonight.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—If I was Mayor, I don't know what I should do, but I think we have found out pretty nearly what the members of the Council will do, and therefore I move the previous question.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I hope the previous question will not be ordered, as I believe that this is a subject upon which we can well afford to spend some time in discussion. I think our time might as well be spent in discussion as in casting ballots for gentlemen whom the Board of Aldermen will hereafter reject.

The main question was ordered.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I move that the question be divided, and be taken by a yea and nay ballot.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I move that the question of confirmation be taken by yeas and nays, and I call for the yeas and nays upon the confirmation of these officers.

Mr. Thompson—I rise to the point of order that a motion being before the house, it is out of order to make another motion.

The President—The Chair would state that at the last meeting of the Council the Chair decided in favor of a yea and nay vote under similar circumstances to these; that an appeal was taken and the Council sustained the Chair. That becomes a precedent for the action of the Council. Therefore the question comes upon the motion of the gentleman from Ward 13 that the question be taken by yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was first taken on the nomination of Thomas J. Gargan. The Clerk had finished the roll call and was summing up the result, when Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 asked to be excused from voting.

The President—Upon what ground?

Mr. Wilbur—Upon personal reasons.

The President—The gentleman cannot be excused unless he states his reasons.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I believe the rule says that before a vote is taken a gentleman who wishes to be excused must rise in his place and state his reasons.

The President—That is correct. Under the rule, the gentleman must vote.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Has his name been called?

The Clerk called the name of Mr. Wilbur, but that gentleman did not answer.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Has he voted?

The President—The gentleman has not voted.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Then, sir, I insist upon the rule being enforced before the vote is declared.

The President—It is not in the power of the Chair to enforce the rule. The Chair can only state the rule.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I believe there is a rule.

The President read the rule 62:

"Every member who is present when a question is put, if not excluded by interest, shall give his vote, unless the Council, for special reasons, shall excuse him. Application to be so excused must be made before the Council is divided, or before the calling of the yeas and nays; and such application shall be accompanied by a brief statement of reasons, and shall be decided without debate."

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I move that the gentleman be requested to vote according to the rule.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—If the gentleman from Ward 13 desired that Mr. Wilbur should vote, he should have made the request in season. But he stood up when his name was called and made no objection, and now he has waived the right to go back of that.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I think the gentleman from Ward 10 is clearly in error. The gentleman from Ward 13 made his point in time. No member of this Council at this stage of the vote knows what the result is; it has not been declared. This is a secret confined to the bosoms of the President and the Clerk. I second the motion that the gentleman be put upon record.

Mr. Thompson—I moved to amend the motion of the gentleman of Ward 13 by inserting the word "not" before "to vote" (so that Mr. Wilbur would be requested not to vote).

Mr. McGaragle—I raise the point of order that no person can move an amendment abridging a rule of this Council.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I rise to a point of order.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—The gentleman [Mr. Wilbur] is going out, and I give him notice that I shall put in an order requesting the Council to hold him in contempt.

The President—The Chair would state for the information of the gentleman of Ward 10, that his point is not well taken; that it is an amendment which is in order, although it reverses the intention of the mover. The question is upon the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 9.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I desire to raise the point of order that the gentleman from Ward 13 is out of order. No such motion can be made while the yeas and nays are being called for. There is one motion before the house which is being determined, and no other motion can be introduced.

The President—The motion of the gentleman from Ward 13 was upon the point of order, requesting the gentleman from Ward 20 to vote.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I simply rise to say that the remarks of the gentleman from Ward 9 are substantially the same in effect as those of mine—that the gentleman from Ward 13, if he had any right, which I doubt, the whole matter of calling on the gentleman for his vote rests with the President and nobody else. When the gentleman from Ward 20 was called, the gentleman from Ward 13 remained silent, and we went on to another name before he called on the gentleman from Ward 20 to vote. I deny his right to do so. The whole matter is in the control of the President, and this whole debate is entirely out of order.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I appeal to the President to decide whether I made the motion at the proper time and requested the gentleman to vote. For the gentleman will see Mr. Wilbur's name is next to the last upon the list; and immediately upon his not voting I called the attention of the Chair that he did not vote, and that he was sitting in his seat and disobeying the rule of the Council.

The President—The Chair thinks the point of the gentleman from Ward 13 is correct.

Mr. Thompson—Before the question upon the amendment is put I should like to say one word about it, if it is in order to debate the question. It seems to me that it is uncalled for and unnecessary when one of our associates has stated that he has personal reasons for refusing to vote,—it seems to be unnecessary to force it upon him. By the old rulings of the City Solicitor we know that our rules are perfectly under the control of the majority of this body. It seems to me that this is the time for the free exercise of power. If it is necessary to suspend our rules and do away with the effect of our rules and excuse him, it plainly shows that he desires not to be called upon to express an opinion in this matter, and that we should excuse him.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 20—Mr. President—

The President—The Chair would state that debate is not in order after the previous question has been ordered.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 16—I rise to the point of order that there is no business properly before the house, and until the rules of the Council are enforced by the Chair no other motion should be entertained.

The President—The Chair does not understand the gentleman's point.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 16—That no motion is in order until the rules of the house are enforced.

The President—There is no motion before the house, except the one in relation to the gentleman from Ward 20.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 16—By the rules of the Council, the gentleman from Ward 20 appears to be in contempt, and that rule has not been enforced.

The President ruled the point not well taken.

Mr. Barry of Ward 22—I raise the point that the gentleman's amendment is not in order. You cannot vote to amend one of the joint rules without referring it to a committee. The question being on a point of order and the gentleman refusing to vote he cannot be excused unless we suspend the rule or repeal an ordinance.

The President—The Chair calls the attention of the gentleman to the fact that that is simply in relation to the motion and not to the rule and order.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I raise a point of order. Rule 60 says—

“All incidental questions of order, arising after a motion is made for the previous question, shall be decided without debate, except on appeal; and on such an appeal no member shall be allowed to speak more than once without leave of the Council.”

The President—The Chair has just decided that point without debate.

Mr. Thompson's amendment was lost and the question was upon Mr. Flynn's motion that Mr. Wilbur be requested to vote.

Mr. Thompson—Upon that I call for the yeas and nays.

The President—The Chair would state that the motion was made pending the order for the yeas and nays, and that the gentleman from Ward 13 is in order.

The motion to request Mr. Wilbur to vote was put.

The President—It is a vote, and the gentleman from Ward 20 is requested to vote.

The Clerk called the name of Mr. Wilbur, and he answered Yes.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14 changed from Yes to No, and the President declared the result of the vote to be 41 yeas, 28 nays, on the confirmation of Mr. Gargan:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Absent or not voting—Messrs. Brown, Sampson—2.

The question then came upon the confirmation of the nomination of Daniel A. B. Abbott. Mr. Abbot's nomination was confirmed—37 yeas, 30 nays:

The nomination of Henry Walker was confirmed in concurrence, yeas 43, nays 20:

Flynn, Fraser, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, Pope, Reed, J. B. Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blodgett, Brown, Day, Ham, Hibbard, Pope, Sampson, Shepard, Wilbur—9.

Before the vote was declared Mr. McGaragle said, “I raise the point that the gentleman from Ward 9 [Mr. Crocker] is not in his seat, and I move that his name be not counted in the vote.”

The President—Was the gentleman from Ward 9 in his present seat when he voted?

Mr. McGaragle—Yes, sir.

The President—The gentleman's point is well taken.

Mr. Crocker had meanwhile returned to his seat, and at his request his name was called and he voted nay.

JOINT RULES AND ORDERS.

A report and orders came down to amend the joint rules and orders, as follows:

Section 14—Strike out all after “assembled.” [Relating to ordinances.]

Section 20—Strike out all between “detail” in line 3, and “the dates” in line 5, pocket edition. [Relating to refreshment bills.]

The question was on giving the orders a second reading.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 moved that the second order be stricken out, that is, all relating to rule 20. [The order proposes to rescind the rule requiring the names of members of the Council upon bills for refreshments.]

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 seconded the motion.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—As far as the amendment to rule 14 is concerned, it would seem to be satisfactory, and I believe there could be no objection to it. But in my judgment rule 20 should remain just as it is. The provisions of this section are manifestly satisfactory, just and reasonable, and they unquestionably have served a good purpose during the past year. To amend the rules at this time by striking out the most important clause of one section would be to open the door to abuses and causes which, in my judgment, should never be tolerated, and it will be a step backward which I, for one, am not prepared to take. I have no wish to argue this question at length, as I believe the merits of the case are generally understood by the members. With all due respect to the members who propose this change, I submit to them, and in fact to other members of the City Government, that it will be found impossible to give one solitary good and sufficient reason for changing this section.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—When this clause was added to section 20 it was thought at the time that it might curtail the bills somewhat; that there would not be quite so many dinners eaten, or something to that effect. But in the opinion of the Aldermen on the committee—there being but three of the committee present, and I the only member of the Council—they having these bills to approve, they thought the rule failed to effect what was the intention of that clause. Now I have not followed the bills very closely; but if it has had no effect it certainly has been of no use; and if it has been of no use it certainly has caused considerable work for somebody. I do not know that there have been any charges of anything wrong, or if any members of the City Government, past or present, think they have done anything wrong, or if any member charges anything upon his brother member. We see something in the papers about a large list of chances last year. I don't know what the chances consist of. I have not taken any trouble about it, and have lost no sleep. That is the condition of things that appeared to the committee—that it is no use. The three members of the committee present recommended this change, and it is now before the Council.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—The two members of the Board of Aldermen on the committee were not in the Government when the rule was different from this, and they are not in a condition to know whether it effected any change or not, so far as the bills are concerned. It has effected a change, Mr. President, and in certain joint committees I think it is highly necessary. I know that in going over the bills in the Committee on Accounts there is a very large number of accounts at different times, and it would be almost impossible for the chairman of a committee to state whether those charges were correct or not. A committee might have sub-committees meeting fifteen or sixteen times in a month, and possibly they might stay so long on twelve occasions as to require a dinner. In that case the bill would come in for twelve different days and no names would be given. It might be very easy for a member of the Council to go to Young's or Parker's, and state that he belonged to such a committee, and have his dinner charged to the city. Some such bills might be very large, and it would be impossible for the chairman to know whether they were right or not. So far as notoriety is concerned, I think that members are willing to bear it themselves. I am willing to bear it so far as I am concerned.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—Perhaps it is lucky for the Council that I have got a severe cold, for I have considerable I should like to say about this. It seems to me that some of us want to get back to the "good old times" in City Hall that we heard about in 1867-8, when the friends and neighbors knew when a committee met, and met them on the stairs and went up with them to have something good to eat. I do not know much about it, but I have heard a great deal about it. Now I do not believe the citizens of Boston want anything of that kind again. They say that figures do not lie, though I know in some cases they do. I have taken the Auditor's Report and compared some of the figures of 1867-8 with those of 1875-6. In 1867 there were 48 members of the Council, and in 1868 there were 68 members. I find that the expenses of the Health Committee in 1867-8 were $1208.80; and in 1875-6 the expenses of the same committee were $722, with 72 members in the Council. The expenses of the Police Committee were $400 in 1867-8, and $82.20 in 1875-6. Committee on Public Building, in 1867-8, $3436.45; in 1875-6, $2646.10. I did not have time to go into the expenses of the other committees. I think you will find there has been quite a saving to the city of Boston by this rule. And, Mr. President, it is not stringent enough for me. I do not believe the citizens of Boston begrudge a dinner to members of the City Government when they are doing the work of the city; but I do protest against this idea of junketing—you may call it what you have a mind to—of taking neighbors and friends to dine at the city's expense when they are doing no duty. Another thing: I propose to put in an amendment to the amendment. I have noticed that bills which have been presented at the Auditor's office very strangely bring in the names of certain members who never partook of dinners. That may be right, but I do not believe in it. I do not want to see any bill presented to the Auditor's office with my name on it, when I have not eaten the dinner. I went to the Auditor's office the other day and saw my name on a bill. At the time that committee met I was at home. If I have the name I want the game. At the same time three city officials told me their names came in on bills for refreshment when they were never present; and at the same time there was one Alderman who was not present at the committee meeting, but whose name appeared on the bill. I do not believe this is right. I don't believe that members of the City Government are careful enough for themselves and the city. Another point: I don't want to go over to Parker's or Young's and order ten or fifteen courses for dinner and have my friend in the Council order nothing but crackers and cheese and bear more than his proportion of the bill. I don't believe it is right. I am willing at any time to have my name appear for what I order, but I do not want it to appear for what I do not order. An Alderman showed me a bill of $14 for a dinner where only one man's name appeared on the bill; but I guess there was more than one man present. Take away the rule requiring the names, as the Aldermen have already done, and I ask, gentlemen, what would become of the refreshment bills? They would appear here in double and triple the amounts they do now. Any gentleman could go out on any plea, and if he can get the chairman to approve the bill it is all right. I do not believe in this, and I wish to offer an amendment to prevent it. If it is right I hope the Council will adopt it, and if it is not I know they will reject it.

Mr. Smardon of Ward 10—If the gentleman has no objections, would he give the name of the gentleman who had $14 charged for one dinner?

Mr. Spenceley—I do not know it. The Alderman told me he saw the bill.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—If it is in order to ask for information, I would inquire of the gentleman from Ward 10 whether the name will be given by the Committee on Accounts. I should like to hear the name of the gentleman who ate that extraordinary dinner.

The President—The Chair thinks it would be better to take the question upon the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 3 first. The question is upon the motion of the gentleman from Ward 3 to strike out the second order. Mr. Spenceley wishes to amend by inserting, "also specifying a list of articles furnished to every such member; and all such bills shall be approved by the members participating, also the dates of the same." The question is first upon the amendment of Mr. Spenceley to insert these words.

Mr. Spenceley—On that I call for the yeas and nays.

The President—The Chair still thinks that the question had better be put first upon the motion of the gentleman from Ward 3.

Mr. Spenceley—Then I offer that as a substitute for the second order.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I should like to amend the substitute by moving that all such bills as appear for carriage hire and refreshments be published in the weekly report of the proceedings furnished to each member.

The President—The Chair thinks that motion will not be in order.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I don't know whether I understand the substitute or not, but if I do it appears to me to be carrying the subject a little too far; therefore I wish to do as we have been doing heretofore. I believe in the principle of the substitute, and if the waiter in the hotel has got to make out a bill and give each item, and every member has got to approve it, in trying to effect a good object we will overturn what we are endeavoring to attain. For this reason I think my amendment the better one, because it will keep the rule in force. I think the substitute will be found impracticable, although theoretically I favor it.

Mr. Spenceley—The gentleman from Ward 3 intimates that it will be ridiculous. How so? If he has been hungry on board one of the Sound steamers, the waiter has brought him a little blank and he filled it out and signed his name to it. Did that seem ridiculous? I think every member of the City Council ought not to refuse to do it. Who ever refuses to do it on a steamboat? It is the same principle here. How long is it going to take a man to write down what he wants?

Mr. Thompson—When I arose before, it was to make a statement similar to that made by Mr. Spenceley. During one winter I was accustomed to order my meals in that way. I wrote out the order and sent my name, and at the end of the month the bill was returned to me. I had no trouble in doing it. And I have no doubt it would be an admirable safeguard for the city. I have no doubt many meals are furnished at the hotels and charged to the city which are never eaten. Of course it is for the interests of the hotels to make the bills large, and of course the chairman can always tell whether they are correct or not. I believe in the principle of letting every man, in his own handwriting, show what he has eaten. I don't believe the city of Boston begrudges members all reasonable dinners. As to the legality of this practice, I doubt very much whether, if we put it to the test of a legal investigation, it could be found that we could legally appropriate money for this purpose. I think the legality of such an appropriation is very questionable.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—There has been complaint, Mr. President, when members found their names on bills when they have not eaten anything, and they don't like to have it so. They don't want their names down. It seems to me a remarkably hard thing. If there are no names and no dinners eaten, then there will be no difficulty. I would not offer it as an amendment, but I would substitute that every man might be measured to see what he would eat. But this change was suggested to prevent names of members being put down when they should not be. No one supposes that any member desires to have his name on a bill when he don't partake of a dinner. Now, I wish that no man could get a meal at the expense of the city, and there would not be this kind of jealousy that this man gets too many suppers and drinks too much ice-water, and this talk we hear about the good old times. If a man don't want to eat he can stand up and take nothing, if he wants to act for the benefit of the city treasury. I don't care a particle whether this change is made or not, but there has been a great deal of talk about it during the past two years.

Mr. Barnard of Ward 24—There is no doubt whatever that there is a great deal of fraud connected with this refreshment business. I would like to state what came to my notice at the last meeting of the Committee on Accounts. On the 27th day of March there was presented a bill from the Parker House for refreshments for four members of the joint committees, amounting to $17. My name happened to be on that list. I was not present at that dinner, and I have since found that the other members of the Council were not present. Upon looking over the account, I found that the committee had no meeting at that time; and if the two Aldermen went to the Parker House and had refreshments and charged them to the two members from this branch, I consider that a fraud both upon the city and upon the members of the Council. I don't know but that two members of the Board of Aldermen were present, and I don't know but that they were not. The bill might have been sent in without any dinner being served. I have heard it whispered that such things have been done heretofore. If the chairman of the committee approved that bill without knowing whether it was right or not, I don't think him fit to be chairman of the committee. Here were two members charged with being present on that date who were not present. I think it is time such things were stopped.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I think there are frauds in connection with this matter, and it is time that stringent measures should be adopted to prevent them. I see no reason why the substitute should not prevail. It is in the interests of preventing these frauds, and I think it ought to pass.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I am in favor of the substitute in theory, but at first I believed it impracticable. Having spoken to two members who think it is desirable and practicable, I give my consent to it.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I should judge by hearing the speeches of those present that there was not an honest man in the Council. I should set them down as spongers. I have been in this Council three years, and very few members have had less dinners than I have. I believe if we pass the substitute it will be necessary to have bills of fare left at the departments so that committees may know what they can get.

Mr. Spenceley—The gentleman has made the best point yet in favor of the substitute. He says we shall have to have a bill of fare in each department. Let it be so. Let the chairman of committees send out and bring in the dinners. That is where the trouble is. They send the order to get up a good dinner, and the hotel gets up one that is not eaten. I believe that if committees could have bills of fare in the committee rooms, and order what they want, it will be a great saving. I think the gentleman made a good point for the substitute.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I have no doubt that when some gentlemen dine at the Parker House they have wine. The gentleman [Mr. Spenceley] does not drink wine; neither do I. But I don't object to a gentleman having a glass of wine if he wants it. What dinners I eat I earn. I am worth a dinner to the city every time I work for it. Now, members complain that they have been cheated, and they have been hunting up the Auditor's report. I should be willing to have every member's name read off who has eaten dinners for the last three years. I notice that those gentlemen who talk so much about dinners like good dinners as well as the rest. I have been in company with them when they did not spare the city's expense a particle.

The yeas and nays were ordered upon Mr. Spenceley's substitute for the second order, and it was adopted—yeas 55, nays 11:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Cannon, Coe, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Dee, Felt, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Shepard, Sibley, Smardon, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—55.

Nays—Messrs. Burke, Clarke, Day, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, D. A. Flynn, Kelley (Ward 3), Loughlin, McDonald, McGaragle—11.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Brown, Cox, Mullane, Sampson—4.

Mr. Day of Ward 4 explained that he should vote against the substitute, but would vote for the amendment if the substitute were adopted.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 explained that his position was substantially the same.

The question then came on giving the second order as amended (by the substitute) a second reading.

At the request of Mr. Flynn of Ward 16, the question was divided.

The question was then announced to be on giving the first order a second reading, and the question was about to be put.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—This order is changing a rule which strikes at the provision that the ordinance cannot be repealed, suspended or amended by an order. Now, I wish to call the attention of the Council to the fact that our powers are such that when we pass ordinances, they become technically the by-laws of the corporation. We have legislative authority to pass certain by-laws which are called ordinances; and we make certain provisions in regard to those by-laws. Our ordinances are required to be recorded at length in a book; they are to be published in the same newspapers in which the State laws are published, and in such other newspapers as the City Council may designate. What is the reason of this? It is to give publicity to the laws by which the citizens are to be governed, because the ordinances are binding, as laws, upon all citizens. A man may be found committing a criminal offence by disobeying an ordinance, and be arrested. Now, what will be the effect if we change this rule? It has been held by the City Solicitor that any vote or order we pass will have the effect to alter, or amend, or repeal, or suspend an ordinance; and it seems to me that such a check as this rule affords is a wise and judicious one. There may be particular cases in which orders suspending ordinances will be passed in spite of the rule; but I believe that in very many cases it will have a good effect. I wish to call the attention of the Council to the effect it will have. Suppose we pass an ordinance, take all the necessary steps required, and have it published and recorded at length; and that ordinance makes a certain act criminal. And then suppose that the City Council passes an order amending that ordinance; it is published in the proceedings and that is the last of it. Yet it amends the ordinance for that municipal year, and what is criminal one year is not criminal another year. It would be an outrage to arrest a man under such circumstances; and I say it would be a breach of our duty as trustees to do anything that would cause it to be done. I believe that one of the faults of this and all other such bodies is to be careless about all such things. The experience of hundreds of years is that the safeguards of the people are a due and proper respect to the forms of law. I hope this rule will not be amended. I believe the committee have not fully considered it. They say the City Solicitor ruled that an ordinance can be repealed by an order. I should keep it in the rules because it is a kind of business that requires more formality than usual. I hope the rule will stand as at present.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I was not present with the committee—being absent from the city—when this matter was under consideration by the Joint Committee on Rules and Orders, and therefore I cannot state the reason which prevailed with them in recommending this order. But I am certainly opposed to changing the joint rule as it now stands. The gentleman who preceded me has very well stated some reasons why it should be allowed to stand, and perhaps I may repeat, and perhaps it may not be altogether in vain if I do, to state briefly my reasons. The rules are among the first things read by the members elected to this City Council, and in that respect they are very useful as an early reminder that an ordinance is somewhat different from an order, and when an ordinance is under passage in the City Government a different attention should be paid to it, or at least as great attention should be paid to it as to an order. I believe that ordinances should not be changed except by ordinances. Every one will see the confusion that must arise by allowing orders to conflict with ordinances; and with that rule standing upon the book I do not think this Council—unless insane with some purpose it was bound to carry through—would pass an order conflicting with an ordinance, if its practice were to observe the rule that no ordinance could be repealed, amended or suspended unless by ordinance. For the purpose of having that general effect upon this assembly, I should hope that that would still remain in the joint rules and orders. There is a point which I think should be taken as an exception. If the City Solicitor has ruled that an order which conflicts with an ordinance is valid, in so far as it conflicts, of course as a member of the Council I must assent to his opinion. But passing that by for a moment, I would like to make this observation, and I will illustrate the point by a parallel case: Suppose it were in the joint rules and orders that two-thirds of all the members should be required for doing any business in this Council and in the Board of Aldermen. Suppose that some time such a quorum was not present, and that an order should be passed by a majority of this Council and the Board of Aldermen, but when no quorum was present, and be approved by the Mayor; would that be a legal order? I do not understand that any one will maintain that that would be a legal order of the City Government. That is a point upon which I should like to take a brief if it should arise in court. It is one which I think could be presented to any court with great propriety and seriousness. Here is a rule which forbids the passage of such an order if it conflicts with an ordinance already passed. So far as an order does not conflict with any ordinance it is valid, and in so far as it does conflict it is not valid. I cannot make a legal argument upon it here, but we ought to keep in mind the fact that an order is different from an ordinance; and because an ordinance which lives forever is different from an order which lives for a year, it should receive more careful attention on its passage. For the purpose of keeping the legislation of the City Council in lucid and intelligible order, so that any man can understand it when he turns to it, the rule in question ought to be kept in the book, and be observed in practice. Therefore I hope the order will not pass.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—I know but very little about the laws or ordinances, or by-laws or rules. They seem to be shifted to suit customers in this Council. This subject has been spoken of by members and the question has been frequently raised whether an ordinance could be repealed by an order. Well, the committee went to Mr. Healy; he was before the committee, and I think there were some twenty minutes' talk on that very subject. My friend from Ward 21 was not present. Mr. Healy stated distinctly that in his opinion an order passed by a majority vote of the City Council, and approved by the Mayor, could repeal an ordinance so far as it went. Well, that being so, taking Mr. Healy for our guide, we have recommended the repeal of that part of rule 14. I don't suppose I could explain it any better. Mr. Healy says the rule has no effect. The subject is brought here for your consideration.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I only want to add one word which I omitted, and that is that when the ordinance is passed it is enrolled and placed upon record. If during the year subsequent an order is passed amending the ordinance that order is not enrolled upon the record, and the year passes by and the order is dead. It expires with the body that passes it. And it exists only while the body passing it is alive, and then it becomes an ordinance as it originally existed. What is criminal in one year is made not criminal in another. I don't pretend to question the City Solicitor's law, but I do question the propriety of this body acting upon it.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I believe I agree with the gentleman last up about the policy of keeping ordinances and orders separate. I agree with the chairman of the committee in regard to what he said about the effect of an order, that it overrules an ordinance, and on that account it seems to me to be foolish to have this clause in our joint rules. But it occurs to me we can reach our object in another way. We cannot provide by rule that the order shall not have its legitimate effect; but we can provide that an order which is intended to do the duty of an ordinance shall be ruled out of order. We can make it the duty of the President, when his attention is called to the fact that we are proposing to do something in the form of an order, which ought to have been in the form of an ordinance, to rule it out of order. It seems to me we can remove all the difficulties by substituting something to this effect:

"No order or vote which shall have the effect to amend, suspend, or repeal an ordinance, and which shall not itself be in the form of an ordinance, shall be entertained in either branch."

It seems to me that that would avoid the difficulty which has been suggested by the City Solicitor, and which seems to me to be a valid one. It would also avoid the difficulty of not making any distinction between orders and ordinances. I should prefer to have this matter recommended to the committee in order to consider whether this object cannot be effected in some such way as I suggest, and I move that this matter be recommended to the committee.

The motion to recommit prevailed, and the question recurred upon giving the second order as amended a second reading.

Mr. Sibley moved to recommit the substitute to the Committee on Rules and Orders.

The question was put, the Chair was in doubt, and the Council divided. The motion to recommit was lost—23 for, 34 against. The question recurred upon giving the substitute a second reading.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—It seems to me that if this motion passes it will not be concurred in by the Board of Aldermen, and it seems to me the best way would be to indefinitely postpone it. I therefore make that motion.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I hope that motion will not prevail. The substitute seems to be one that is eminently practicable for us to adopt. The fact that the Board of Aldermen have not had the courage to do what is right, is no reason why we should do what is wrong. The Board of Aldermen stands for its own sense, and we answer for our own.

The motion to indefinitely postpone was lost.

On motion of Mr. Thompson of Ward 9, the main question was ordered, and also on his motion the yeas and nays were ordered on the passage of the substitute.

Mr. Day moved to lay the matter on the table. Lost.

The question was put and the substitute was passed to a second reading—yeas 57, nays 11.

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Briantall, Cannon, Coe, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Day, Dee, Doherty, Fagan, Felt, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Shepard, Sibley, Sardon, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—58.

Nays—Messrs. Burke, Clarke, Cox, Duggan, J. J. Flynn, Kelley (Ward 3), Loughlin, McDonald, McFaragle, Mullane, Pearl—11.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Brown, Sampson, E. R. Webster—3.

The order was read a second time and passed by a division (two-thirds being necessary)—57 for, 10 against. Sent up.

BRANCH LIBRARY AT SOUTH END.

Under the head of unfinished business, the Council considered the order for the Committee on Public Buildings to lease the basement of the building of the Mercantile Library Association at the rental of $1000 per annum for five years.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—At the subsequent meeting it was unanimously admitted best that the order be amended by inserting the word "three" in the place of "five" (so that the lease should be for three years instead of five), and I accordingly make that motion.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—The matter now before the Council was brought up a week ago, when I was not here, and in looking at the minutes I saw that there must have been some misunderstanding on the part of some members of the Council in regard to it, which I would like to correct. First, corroborating what was said by the gentleman from Ward 3 in respect to the suggestion of the committee at the last meeting, which occurred since the last meeting of the Council—it was thought that the proposed term had better be fixed at three years. For my own part I should not feel like insisting upon that. I think it might be well to leave it for the Committee on Public Buildings, as they should find that the rent is reasonable or not. But in regard to the expediency of passing the order as amended, I wish to urge it very strongly, and wish to correct the impression that the books of the Mercantile Library Association were offered to the city on any condition. The fact is that no condition is imposed. Perhaps a hasty reading of the committee's report might lead me to think that is the case. The Mercantile Library Association's proposition stands somewhat in this way: We have those books at our disposal; we will give them to the city of Boston; but before we give them to the city of Boston we want to see if the city is disposed to try the experiment of a delivery at the South End; if it is so disposed we will give the books. The passage of the order now before us will be an expression of the City Council's intention to try the experiment of a branch library at the South End. It was the opinion of the committee that it was desirable that somebody should state this fact in the Council.

The amendment was adopted and the order as amended was passed. Sent up.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved to reconsider the vote whereby the Council rejected the nomination of James M. Keith as a member of the Board of Health.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I hope the reconsideration may prevail, and inasmuch as some remarks have been made here tonight in respect to nominations recently made and acted upon by this Council, I wish to state that, although I am a pretty staunch Republican, as most members will bear witness, I am not ready to take the position that I cannot vote for any Democrat under any circumstances. I believe that the nomination which has been made in this instance was a good one. There is no personal objection to the candidate. The apparently hostile vote of this Council, I am fully persuaded, arose from a misunderstanding of the facts and from misstatements in regard to matters of fact; I believe that members who have heretofore voted one way, on account of this misunderstanding, have ascertained the correct facts and will be found voting the other way. In saying this I wish to add that if it were a question between the present candidate and the gentleman whose term of office expires, I should most cheerfully vote for the latter. I think it would have been more consistent, under the circumstances of the case, and I think it would have been a graceful thing for his Honor the Mayor to have done, if he had appointed the present incumbent, who is a person competent to fill the position, and who has filled it with exceptional faithfulness and devotion, but he having made this nomination, I feel that as a good citizen of Boston I ought to cast my vote in favor of confirmation. I sincerely hope that whatever feeling may have been stirred up heretofore, the vote will be taken tonight as each man thinks he ought to vote, as a good citizen of Boston.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I cannot do better than reëcho the closing words of the gentleman from Ward 21, and I hope that each member will vote as a good citizen of Boston should, and that is that each member should determine in his own mind. For one I shall vote against reconsideration, and my reasons for so doing are these: I believe that a tenure of office which is to depend upon the unquestioned will of any man is a dangerous thing. To secure good servants for the city I believe it is necessary they should have a fixed tenure of office. A prominent issue raised between the two great political parties was upon the question of civil-service reform, both claiming to be in favor of it, and both shouting for reform. Now, we are presented by this nomination with a question upon which we have to act as conscientiously as the Mayor; it merits our careful consideration. It is the Mayor's right to make the appointment, but that does not remove our responsibility one iota. We must raise the question, Is he a proper man? Is the Mayor right in making the nomination? This question strikes at the principle of removing incumbents from office. I do ask if the party is a Republican. If he were a Republican, and my brother, I don't believe my vote would be different from what it is. I would vote against any man filling that position under the same circumstances. I believe we are now called upon to settle a question of very great importance to the city. It will be a very great misfortune for politics entering into its administration. It is probable that for some years the city of Boston will be a close political city. The two parties will be evenly balanced, and there will be desperate struggles to gain the uppermost, if we start upon the principle that the people who are in are to be put out to give place to persons in some particular political party; then, I say, good-by to the good government of the city. In voting tonight I have nothing to do with the personal qualifications of the men. I know nothing of Mr. Keith, but I say it is wrong for the Council to vote against the fixed tenure of office, and every man in voting tonight does so with this responsibility upon his shoulders.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9 Considerable has been said here tonight generally upon the confirmation of nominations sent to us by the Mayor, and we have entered into some political discussion,— something I did not expect to hear in this chamber. Last year I remained in this hall some time before I knew the political opinions of a majority of the Council; In fact I never knew them, because there was no opportunity for a political division. This discussion has been had here, but I notice that even members were not consistent in voting on the three License Commissioners. I found that a gentleman who considered this a party move voted against the first nomination, and then voted to confirm the other nominations. I believe that the gentleman who last took his seat voted to confirm one of the nominees.

Mr. Thompson—I beg the gentleman's pardon; I did not.

Mr. Ruffin—Then I stand corrected. I wish to state that I should hesitate a very long time before voting, as a general thing, not to confirm a nomination which the Mayor sent to the City Government. I believe the present Mayor to be a responsible officer, and a conscientious man; and any nomination, which, upon mature consideration, he shall send to the City Government, I, as an humble member, should consider myself bound to confirm, although it might be personally and politically offensive to me. I shall take that principle for my guide. But still, in this matter that we have before us at the present time, in the nomination of this officer, the issue has been made and the gauntlet has been thrown down. The discussion has occurred outside of this chamber, the newspapers have taken it up, and the citizens have discussed it. It is said that it was sent in as a purely political nomination, and we rejected it on political grounds. I conceive it to be my duty to show my disapproval of such nomination by standing by my political organization; and in casting that vote I go against my convictions, because I know the nominee, and I think him fit for the office, but not more so than the present incumbent. And I shall vote against his confirmation now. Now I go still further, and say that I think it is our duty to support the Mayor generally. I think that if there was anything settled at the last election it was that the Mayor was elected by the other party, to which I did not belong. They are in power here at the City Hall. We hold them responsible for their administration of city affairs. They may say it is an innovation. Heretofore we have had elections by the citizens, but last year the citizens chose to do differently; and now, for one, I propose to hold the party responsible for what they do. If these officers are sent to us, unless there is great personal unfitness, with this single exception, I shall stand by the nominations.

Mr. Crocker—I desire to protest against my colleague's view of the duties and responsibilities of the members of the Council. The law provides that the Mayor shall appoint and that the City Council shall confirm, and I believe that each party is responsible, and equally responsible, for the selection of the man who is going to become a city officer through their joint action. The Mayor appoints and the City Council confirms. I believe it is our duty, and the duty of every one here, if we see the Mayor appointing a dishonest and inefficient man, to do all we can to prevent that man from becoming a city officer; and I believe it is still more our duty, under the present circumstances, when we find the Mayor proposing, as I believe, to introduce the spoils system into our City Government. I believe that it is our duty and the duty of every man to protest against that system being carried out. I think we might just as well say that we are not responsible when we are called upon to act on an order which comes from the Board of Aldermen. There are certain matters which are to be passed upon by both branches of the City Council. We might just as well say in such a case that the Board of Aldermen have taken the responsibility of introducing an order and sending it down to us; that they are the higher body, that it is not for us to judge, and we will wash our hands of it and let it go through. It is just as unreasonable for us to wash our hands of this confirmation of officers as it would be to attempt to free ourselves from the responsibility of an ordinary order originating in the other branch.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I agree quite fully with nearly all that has been expressed by the gentlemen who have just preceded me, and I have great respect for those with whom I have most frequently voted in this chamber. I, too, believe that the Council is responsible in its voting upon the confirmation of appointed officers; and it is precisely because I believe that none of the reasons which have been given apply to this case, and because I believe I am held responsible to vote according to my best judgment, irrespective of party considerations, that I am forced to vote in the way I have indicated I should. I have heard, Mr. President, the principal reasons, some of which have been indicated by the gentleman who last spoke, and some of which have not been indicated, against voting for the confirmation of this nomination, and upon careful examination I have seen every reason fade away. Every reason that I have had presented to me I have found to be either a falsehood or a misrepresentation. I believe this nomination is an exceptional one—exceptional among those which have been before us tonight. While I stand here representing the party which my friend has characterized as the party in opposition, I also stand here as a citizen of Boston, and I believe it is for the best interest of the city that, without making a test question of it, we confirm this nomination. I speak from some personal acquaintance with the nominee, and from a careful examination of the history of the presentation of this nomination. I did not intend to occupy so much time, but I thought it reasonable to ask to be allowed to state my reasons for voting in favor of the confirmation.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The particular question for us to decide tonight is whether or not this Council is composed of boys or whether we are thinking men. It is well known that this last election was carried upon a strict party basis, and so far as the Mayor and the Aldermen are concerned, it was carried pretty thoroughly. So it is also well known that this Council was elected upon a different basis and most of us came here upon the Citizens' ticket, upon a non-partisan basis and to protest against any extreme partisan action. Now, upon every question this Council has been bulldozed. We have started out with partisan schemes. In almost every measure that can be named, we have concurred with the Board of Aldermen. Now, in this matter we commenced with a majority of twenty-five against the confirmation of Mr. Keith. Now, I say, are we boys or thinking men? If we voted honestly and intelligently at that time, and gave that large majority against Mr. Keith; if there were good reasons for voting in that way, then I insist that those reasons apply now; and if we intend to have anything like a citizens' Government protest against a partisan administration when we have an opportunity. I say that now is the chance. I am not at liberty to repeat private conversation, but I don't believe there are any members here but believe this nomination was made in an entirely partisan spirit. I don't believe the members of the Council will question the fact that Mr. Keith was nominated, not because he is a good or a bad man, but because he has done good service to the Democratic party. Now here is a chance to put our foot down. If we are divided now I shall say that no extreme opposition need be attempted.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I believe the members of the Republican party in this chamber are to be pitied. It is too bad the way they have been bulldozed. It is too hard to stand it. This is my third year in this Council, and in all my experience we have never heard of so much bulldozing as in the last three weeks.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I trust it will go on.

Mr. Kelley—For the last three years I have voted for men, not knowing whether they were Democrats or Republicans. I should think from what we heard that we have voted for nothing but straight Democrats. Now, last year we had three License Commissioners; there were two Republicans, and the third one, I do not know his politics. The gentleman from Ward 3 states that he was elected upon the Citizens' ticket. Has one member from that same ward, know that he received many Democratic votes. I came here as much a Citizens' candidate as he did. I was nominated by the Republican and Democratic caucuses. I catered to no party for the nomination.

The President—The Chair thinks allusions to ward politics are not in order.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—We have had politics discussed before.

The President—The Chair thinks it has gone far enough.

Mr. Kelley—Now I don't know anything against Mr. Keith, and if any gentleman will make a statement that he is not fit for the office, I will throw my vote against him. Last year, when the Mayor made the nomination, the gentleman who cries so loud tonight—Mr. Crocker—said here, that the Mayor should make the nominations and the people should hold him responsible for it. Now, sir, the people have elected a Mayor upon a party vote, and if he has made an error, let the people hold him responsible. I shall vote for Mr. Keith, and as a member of this council I shall hold him responsible for the nomination.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I do not wish to take up more of the time of the Council, but I do wish to say that it is with the utmost regret that I use any party words in this Council. I stood up here, side by side, with my Democratic brethren, in favor of the retrenchment bill. I have tried not to use party words here, but still I cannot close my eyes to the fact that it has been forced upon us. Party, party is in the air everywhere; and although they may not use the words, still in reality it has been forced upon the Council and upon the independent citizens. It is for us to say whether we will protest against it and vote it down, or whether like whipped men we shall sit down tamely and submit.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the main question was ordered. On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the yeas and nays were ordered on the question of reconsideration.

Mr. Thompson—Before the vote is taken I wish to call attention to the fact that the present incumbent is a Democrat, as well as the nominee.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I want to call the attention of the Council to the fact that the gentleman went out of office on the 1st of May.

Mr. Spenceley—And another fact is that the gentleman is a Republican.

Mr. Thompson—If that is true, then I have been misinformed.

Mr. Spenceley—The gentleman himself told me a few days ago that he was a Republican.

Mr. Thompson—Then I withdraw my suggestion.

Mr. Pratt—If I may be privileged one moment; the gentleman from Ward 3 has asserted that no member of either side will challenge his statement that this nomination was promised as a reward for party service, and was purely partisan. I wish to challenge that statement. I have taken the pains to know, as nearly as possible for me to know, that the statement is incorrect; if I believed it true I would vote against reconsideration.

Mr. Howes raised the point of order that no discussion was in order.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I wish to state that I have paired with Mr. Webster of Ward 1, and wish to be excused from voting.

The reconsideration prevailed—yeas 39, nays 28.

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, Pope, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Roach, Souther, Spenceley, Thorndike, Vose, Warren—39.

Nays—Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Felt, Ham, Hibbard, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Ruffin, Shepard, Sibley, Smardon, Stone, Thompson, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wolcott—28.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Brown, Sampson, E. R. Webster, Wilbur—4.

Mr. Howes moved that further consideration of the subject be specially assigned to the 27th of December, the last meeting of the year.

Mr. McGaragle called for the ruling of the Chair, whether that was not a motion for a dilatory purpose.

The President—The Chair has no knowledge that is for a dilatory purpose. It is a regular motion.

On motion of Mr. Thompson the yeas and nays were ordered, and the nomination of Mr. Keith was confirmed—yeas 38, nays 29; the members voting the same as upon the reconsideration, except Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19, who voted nay, instead of yea.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 moved to reconsider the vote whereby the Council refused to pass the order of inquiry for the Committee on Health to consider the expediency of so amending the ordinance that the Board of Health shall consist of one citizen at large and the Superintendent of Health and the City Physician.

Mr. Spenceley called attention to the fact that the order was one of inquiry merely, that the present officers need not be changed. He did not believe it necessary to have three salaried men to discharge those duties.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 hoped the reconsideration would prevail, as this order was similar to the one which had been passed in relation to the Fire Commissioners.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 hoped the motion would not prevail, as he thought the proposition opposed by three-fourths of the members of the Council.

The motion to reconsider was lost.

PETITION PRESENTED.

By Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—Petition of Irving F. Groves to be compensated for injuries received by a fall on the corner of Waltham and Washington streets. Referred to Joint Committee on Claims. Sent up.

ACCOUNTS.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18 submitted a report from the Committee on Accounts that it is inexpedient to pay the laborers in the various departments as proposed in an order referred to them.

Mr. Felt explained that there had been no complaint against the present system, and that the men preferred it, as they thought it rendered their positions more permanent.

The report was accepted. Sent up.

HOOR OF MEETING.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 offered an order fixing the hour of meeting at eight o'clock hereafter until otherwise ordered. He stated that it was understood that the later the Council began the sooner it got through, and a half hour gained would be acceptable to him.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21 moved to make it four o'clock P. M.

Mr. Howes suggested that Mr. Pratt might need the extra time, as he takes a great deal of it; but he trusted others will vote it down.

Mr. Pratt said he confessed he had n't the grace to take up the time as Mr. Howes does, and perhaps he might seem a little longer than Mr. Howes did.

The order was opposed briefly by Mr. Thompson, Mr. Vose, Mr. Wilbur, Mr. Felt and Mr. Day and the order was rejected.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Barnard of Ward 24.

BRANCH LIBRARY IN WEST ROXBURY.

Alderman Burnham submitted the following: The Joint Standing Committee on Public Library, to whom were referred the petitions of Joseph Stedman, William O. Henshaw, et al., asking for the establishment of a branch library at West Roxbury, having considered the subject, would respectfully report as follows:

At present West Roxbury is the only district, within the limits of the city, which does not have a public library, and thus the citizens of that district, which has a population of about 12,000, are debarred from the important facilities possessed by the people of Dorchester, Charlestown, South Boston, East Boston, Roxbury and Brighton, all of which have branch libraries which are in a flourishing condition, the patronage largely increasing from year to year. Early in 1875 (one year after annexation) prominent members of the City Government from the West Roxbury District applied to the Trustees of the Public Library and strongly urged their claims to the establishment of a branch library in their district. The trustees admitted the justice of their claims, but, as the Dorchester branch had only recently been established, and as there were numerous expenses to be met on account of this last addition to the Public Library, they did not deem it expedient to include any sum for a West Roxbury branch in their estimates for the financial year 1875-76, and consequently nothing was done at that time. In 1876 the subject was also taken into consideration, and although the desirability and justice of the measure were generally admitted, no action was taken, and no appropriation was made. In submitting their estimates for the financial year 1877-78 the trustees added the sum of $10,000 for the establishment of a branch library at West Roxbury, provided that the measure should meet with the approval of the City Council. Your committee, when considering these estimates, judged it best to leave the subject of this appropriation to the future action of the City Council, not being fully prepared to recommend it at that time. A hearing was given by the committee at a recent date to the aforesaid petitioners, and a number of prominent residents of West Roxbury gave their views which were earnestly in favor of the measure and also of speedy action on the part of the City Council. Substantial reasons were presented, and your committee are unanimously of the opinion that the establishment of this branch library should no longer be delayed. Prior to annexation, the subject of establishing a public library was favorably considered, and, if annexation had not taken place very soon after, no doubt the citizens of West Roxbury would have been enjoying the advantages of such an institution long before this date. It was represented at the hearing that if this branch was once established there could be no doubt that prominent gentlemen would take a warm interest in its success, and, through donations of money and books, the library would rapidly increase and become a just source of pride to all the citizens of West Roxbury. This has been the experience in the case of the branch library at Roxbury, which is pronounced one of the finest and most complete of its size in the whole country. It is proposed to provide the library facilities for West Roxbury in Curtis Hall, which is a building owned by the city, and well adapted for such purposes, and in a suitable location. If this measure should be adopted, no section of our city will then be without its public library, and people of all classes, conditions and ages will be in a position to enjoy the benefits and important advantages which cannot fail to result from the free and judicious circulation of literature. The committee would recommend that the sum of $10,000 be transferred from the Reserved Fund, the same to constitute a special appropriation for the Establishment of a Branch of the Public Library in the West Roxbury District, and that the subject be referred to the Committee on Finance. The committee would also respectfully recommend the passage of the accompanying order:

Ordered, That the Trustees of the Public Library be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $10,000, in establishing and maintaining a branch of the Public Library in the West Roxbury District; said sum to be charged to the special appropriation provided for said purpose.

Referred to Committee on Finance. Sent down.

STORAGE AND SALE OF PETROLEUM.

Alderman Burnham submitted a report from the Committee on Fire Department on the part of the Board in favor of granting a permit to Samuel Walker & Co. to keep, store, mix and sell petroleum etc., at 33 India street, on the usual conditions. Accepted.

BRIDGES.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following from the Committee on Bridges:

Ordered, That Broadway Bridge be closed to all public travel on Friday, May 11, 1877, and remained closed until an examination of said bridge is completed. Read twice and passed.

Report and order—That the sum of $75 be and the same is hereby abated from the amount due April 1, 1877, on the lease of the tenement occupied by John Dyer on Charles River Bridge, said tenement being the property of the city, and leased to said Dyer. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

Ordered, That Congress-street Bridge be closed to all public travel on Wednesday, May 9, 1877, and remain closed until an examination of said bridge is completed. Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That the Committee on Bridges be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $1000 in repairing the roadway and sidewalks of Warren Bridge; to be charged to the appropriation for Bridges. Read twice and passed.

PERMITS FOR STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted reports from the Committee on Paving in favor of granting permits to occupy stables as follows: By Augustus Reed, Paris street; Nicholas Keelan, Prospect street, Ward 24; Jacob Hall, Centre street. Severally accepted.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That the Boston Water Board, in the execution of the order passed by the City Council Feb. 15, 1876, for the construction of a sewer in Mystic Valley, be authorized to locate and construct said sewer in conformity with the provisions of chapter 202 of the acts of 1875, as amended by chapter 11 of the acts of 1877. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Alderman Slade submitted the following:

The Committee on Markets and Weights and Measures respectfully represent that an act relating to the sealing of weights and measures has been passed by the present Legislature, which provides, among other things, that instead of appointing more than one Sealer of Weights and Measures, the mayor and aldermen of any city, when it may be necessary for the proper discharge of the duties of such office, shall appoint annually one or more deputy sealers, who shall act under the direction of the sealer. Your committee are of the opinion that four deputy sealers will be required to properly perform the duties of the office, and they would recommend the passage of the following order providing for the nomination of that number:

Ordered, That Aldermen — be a committee to nominate four suitable candidates for Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have no objection to the nomination of four additional sealers. The committee of last year, if I remember aright, cut down the number of Sealers of Weights and Measures to one principal and one or two deputies, I believe. I understand it was two. Now it is proposed to appoint four. Of course we will have to pay their salaries if we appoint them. They cannot work without a salary of at least $1000 a year. But I think the city of Boston should not be obliged to pay the money which will be necessary to provide salaries for those men. Under the act passed last year cities or towns in the Commonwealth can either pay salaries to Sealers of Weights and Measures, or give them fees. The fees are set forth in chapter 51 of the General Statutes. If the sealers receive fees for their work, the amount of salary which they receive will depend upon the work which they perform. If they are industrious and do their work carefully throughout the city, they will get a large salary; if they do nothing but sit on their chairs around City Hall, their fees will be small. I think the Board ought to insist that if these four men are appointed their salaries shall be paid from fees, and not be a fixed amount. Then, if they receive salaries in the shape of fees, the work will be well performed, because then, whether they receive a large or small salary will depend upon how much work they perform; and I offer this as an amendment to the order:

Ordered, That the Assistant Sealers shall receive the compensation set forth in section 14 of chapter 51 of the General Statutes, and when the amount of fees which each sealer shall receive exceeds $1200 per annum, the residue shall be paid into the city treasury.

Alderman Slade—I do not fully understand the ordinance or statute in regard to this matter. This is required by the passage of an act by the Legislature within the last month. Heretofore there was but one sealer, with two assistants. Those assistants have no legal authority to seal a scale at all. The one principal sealer was the only person who had authority to do that. They were simply assistants, and a small salary was given them. There is no doubt of the fact that not one in ten of the scales in the city has been sealed; for they cannot be sealed by only one person. It is not possible. The Committee on Weights and Measures had the late sealer before us, and it was his opinion that we could not get along with less than four, and probably four might not do the work that ought to be done under the new law. We have made this number of assistants as small as we possibly could get along with; and I have an order to refer this matter to the Committee on Salaries to fix the salaries. I do not exactly understand about the fees they will receive. I believe they are paid into the treasury under the statute; and if I understand it aright, a man would have to pull pretty hard to get much of a day's work, the fees are so small. I am not prepared to say how much they would get, but I think they would get a very small salary if they had all the fees they could possibly earn; and if they did their duty they would get as much fees as the law would allow, and that would all be turned into the city treasury.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Under the General Statutes the Board of Aldermen are authorized to appoint annually one Sealer of Weights and Measures and as many additional sealers as they deem expedient and necessary to perform the work. The work in the city of Boston has been so badly performed that the position of Sealer of Weights and Measures, so far as guarding and protecting the people against false weights and measures, has been nothing more than a mere farce; and I think that was what actuated the committee last year, or the year before, in cutting down the number of sealers and assistants; and the less we have of them the better, unless the duties are better performed. As the Alderman opposite says, not one of the scales in ten has been properly sealed. Now, the committee want this matter better performed than in has heretofore been; and the General Statutes give us the option either to provide a fixed salary for the Sealers of Weights and Measures, or in lieu of that to provide that they shall receive a certain fee for the weights and measures which they seal. Where a fixed salary is given the fees go into the treasury; where fees are given the sealers receive the fees. Now, the Aldermen will at once see the great advantage which the giving of fees possesses over the giving of a fixed salary. It is an advantage to the public and to the city treasury. In the first place, if the fees are given, the sealers will be obliged to perform their work, because upon the work which they perform will depend the salary which they will receive; and no money will be paid by the city, if we fix a certain salary to be paid by fees, and all over and above that will go into the city treasury. If we appoint four additional sealers, I think the city treasury should not be obliged to pay for the work when it can be got out of the fees from persons whose weights and measures are to be sealed. The Alderman says it has not been done—not one in ten. I have been talking with gentlemen in the Legislature who tried to get this bill, which made the pay a salary instead of fees, and it was finally repealed last year, and the City Council were allowed to give them fees instead of a salary; and they said that when the fees were given the work was well done, and when salaries were paid it was lightly done. If fees are to be given I think my amendment ought to pass. I heard it was coming up this afternoon and I hurriedly looked over the General Statutes and offered this amendment. If the matter could lie over till next Monday I think we should all be better prepared to act upon it.

Alderman Slade—I should like to offer this order, and then I move that the whole matter lie upon the table for one week. I should like to be a little better posted up on it. I offer the following:

Ordered, That the Committee on Salaries be requested to report an order establishing the salaries to be paid the Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures, to be appointed under the provisions of chapter 151 of the acts of 1877.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I move that my order be referred to the Committee on Salaries.

The Mayor—The Chair suggests to Alderman Fitzgerald whether his amendment would not be better as an amendment to the order last read than to the first order.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I ask that that be referred to the Committee on Salaries to report upon it.

Alderman Slade withdrew the motion to lay upon the table, and on his motion it was voted to refer the whole matter to the Committee on Salaries.

Alderman Wilder—The Sealer of Weights and Measures is now without any assistance. It seems to me as though as speedy action should be taken as consistently can be in the appointment of some assistance. As it is the season of the year when it is expected that a larger part of the work will be done—at least, that parties in that office should be busy,—as I understand the opinion of the City Solicitor has been given that the matter of appointing the assistants rests exclusively with the Board of Aldermen, I move you that a committee of three be appointed to nominate the assistants, so that they may be ready to make their nominations as soon as the Salary Committee has considered and decided upon this subject.

Alderman Clark—I understood this subject to be referred to the Committee on Salaries, so that the Board can investigate what help is necessary in the office of Sealer of Weights and Measures. If by putting in a new sealer we have got to put in four or five assistants, we had better take back the old sealer. I should hope that the committee will not be appointed to nominate until we find out whether we need any additional help or not.

Alderman Gibson—If I understand this matter of sealing weights and measures in former years, it has been optional for the parties to have their weights and measures sealed or not, and therefore there has not been great call for the sealer to attend to them. If there has been a new law which makes it arbitrary, it will make quite a business in the office; but, if it is under the old law, it is optional, and the sealer goes only where he is called, and there will not be more help required.

Alderman Slade—I believe it is not optional; I am sure it is not.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is optional.

Alderman Slade—Not altogether so. I believe, under the law as it exists at the present time, every scale must be sealed once a year. But it is all nonsense; there is n't one scale in ten that would need sealing once in ten years in most of the business carried on. One sealer cannot do it. We have had only one, and two assistants; and as I said before, only the principal sealer can seal a scale, and these two assistants are simply to help repair scales; and, in consequence, the work has been lightly done. I don't know who brought this new law before the State authorities; but a law has been recently passed within the last three weeks that requires one sealer and one or more deputies. In consulting with the sealer who has just left the office, we became satisfied that not less than four assistants can do the work, and we are not sure that four can do it, as the law stands. But that is all that the Committee on Weights and Measures thought best to ask for at the present time; and we thought we would try that number. I believe that the old sealer suggested it would take eight to do the work according to the law; but we don't think so. That is about the way the matter stood, and we reported this order. I think that in another week we will understand it better. I wish I had a copy of that new law here, but I have not.

Alderman Gibson—This has been for a long time called a lazy, easy office, so far as my experience goes, and I have been chairman of the committee on that department, and I believe the officers are seldom out of the office. I have the highest respect for the gentleman who has just vacated the office, but I don't believe four men are needed to do the work. They do not make repairs. If repairs are needed, they order parties to send to the scale makers and have repairs made. I know that every scale is sealed once a year. The sealer takes the weights and measures and goes around, and if scales are correct they pass on. Now, the grocers and provision dealers and others are not large enough in number, in my judgment, to keep more than two sealers busy. They do not do large repairs, but only touch up fine work for banks, druggists, etc. Other scales are sent to the manufacturers. They used to, and I have no doubt they do it now.

Alderman Slade—I would answer by stating that a great many scales are sent to the office, and if some slight repairs are needed they have a man there to do it. I got my scales repaired this year by a manufacturer before I sent them to the office, and then I have them sworn to. I would state that for sealing the largest scale, a fifty-ton scale, the sealer only gets a dollar, and it costs at least three dollars to cart the weights around. The only way they can get over it is to have the owner send the scales to the sealer. It has been rather an uphill work all along. Any person who wants his scales sealed will, of course, send to the office; but for any one man to attempt to seal all the scales in the city of Boston is useless.

Alderman Wilder—My purpose in making the motion was that, while the Committee on Salaries were considering this question, the nominating committee might procure suitable assistants. Gentlemen are now aware that there is but one person—the sealer himself—who has authority to seal weights and measures. By reference to the law you will see that the sealing of weights and measures is imperative. A man using unsealed scales violates the law. I deem it important that action should be taken as soon as proper, and I had no other purpose in making the motion. If the Aldermen will look at City Document No. 6 (the report of the Sealer of Weights and Measures of last year), they will find that there was a total expenditure in the office of $4591.88, mainly for salaries. The amount of appropriation for the office was $4500. The fees that were charged at that office during the year were $795.56, and the amount collected was $510.57. It seems to me that unless a very large increase can be made in the fees, doing this business for the fees is very poor business, if last year is any sample of it. The outgoing Sealer of Weights and Measures reports that there are $284.99 charged on his books, which I suppose will be turned over to the new Sealer of Weights and Measures. I believe my motion is a very proper one. I believe we have somewhat failed of our duty in not before acting upon an office as important as that is, and having it in running order, and the proper assistants selected before this late day.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It seems to me that if we are to have a committee who shall nominate Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures, we should first determine the number of deputy sealers we are obliged to have. If we appoint this committee to report to us a certain number of Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures without determining the number, or passing the order reported by the Committee on Weights and Measures, or whatever the name of the committee may be, it seems to me it is beginning at the wrong end. This Board should first determine whether we should have any at all. We are obliged to have one, under the new act. We had three Sealers of Weights and Measures under the old act; and under the old ordinance each sealer was allowed, if the Board of Aldermen deemed it expedient, to nominate his board of assistants. The three were taken away last year, and only one was appointed, with two assistants. Now the law allows us to appoint more than one deputy. Instead of appointing two or three sealers we appoint one sealer and then appoint one or more deputies, if we deem it expedient, to perform the work. Now it seems to me that the first thing for us to determine, before this committee acts, is the number of deputy sealers we shall have. If that order is laid over and we do not pass it, the committee cannot report the number. If the work is to begin at some time, we had better pass the order tonight and determine the number of deputy sealers we shall have—whether we shall have one or more. Then the committee can go to work. But if this order is laid over, the committee cannot report until we determine whether we shall hire four, three, two or one. I merely suggest that it would be better to pass the order in some shape and determine the number. We can afterwards determine how much they shall be paid, and whether by fees or by fixed salary. But whichever way we determine this, the board, under the new act, must elect the assistants. The assistants cannot any more be appointed by the Sealer of Weights and Measures under this act just passed, but this Board must elect them. I merely suggest the importance, if we take it from the table, of determining whether we shall have one, two, three or four.

Alderman Slade—This matter came before the Committee on Weights and Measures, who made their report. In their best judgment the committee thought four would answer the purpose; at any rate, it would be a sufficient number for the first trial, and they reported such an order. They also reported an order to elect them, and this seems to cover the whole ground. It was laid over, I suppose, that the Aldermen might get better posted up than they seemed to be when the order was reported. For my part, I am ready to vote for the order which the committee reported. I think it is about as near as we can get at it after laying it over another week. I believe the whole matter was referred to the Committee on Salaries.

I move a suspension of the rules, that the order may take a second reading at the present time.

The Mayor—I would suggest that reconsideration would be necessary.

Alderman Slade—I would ask how the matter now stands?

The Mayor—The Chair understands that the report of the committee and the order connected with it was referred with the other orders to the Committee on Salaries and was disposed of. Alderman Wilder now moves for the appointment of a committee to nominate candidates for four deputy sealers. The Chair would suggest that in order to get at the object that there should be a reconsideration of the vote.

Alderman Slade—I move, then, that we reconsider the vote we have just passed.

The Mayor—Does Alderman Wilder withdraw his motion?

Alderman Wilder—Yes, sir.

The Mayor—The question is on the reconsideration of the vote by which the report of the committee was referred to the Committee on Salaries.

Alderman Gibson—I do not know how gentlemen around this Board understand this matter. It is a matter I am a little mixed upon. The Alderman says that these sealers have to tinker and repair scales. I would like to ask who pays for that?

Alderman Slade—Nobody. If there are slight repairs needed they do it without charge. If there are any general repairs they report to you.

Alderman Gibson—I think it is perfectly fair and honorable for the city to pay for sealing the scales, for the people in the mass are supposed to receive the benefit of it. I understand it to be said that the charge for sealing platform scales is one dollar each, and I undertake to say that with a horse and two men you can seal fifteen scales per day, easily. Of platform scales you can seal fifteen or twenty a day. Now, they can get a horse at any rate for $3, and that leaves the sealers $6 a day apiece, which is ample in these times. I think this question is not thoroughly understood, and I hope it will lie over one week just as it is. I understand they go upon the principle of doing slight repairs for an enemy or stranger, and large repairs for a friend; if they do, we shall require a good many sealers. I think whatever repairs they make, the expense should be borne by the party who receives the benefit, and not by the city. Until within the past two years we used to have one northern and one southern sealer, and I never heard any complaint of any nature that the work was not done easily. I know that three or four years ago the head sealer told me that the law was optional; that he simply went to the hay scales, the coal scales and these large railroad scales, and that disposed of it, because it was not necessary, but optional. There have been quite a number of changes within five years, I think, and it seems to me that if we are on the wrong track we ought to get on the right one.

Alderman Slade—I said that the sealer was paid $1 for sealing the largest scales; but he does not get so much as that for platform scales that do not weigh more than a ton. I think for those he gets twenty-five or fifty cents. So far as the repair of the scales is concerned, we expect, if a sealer comes to our store and it is a very little matter of filing or lightening, we are not going to send them to the manufacturer for that purpose; but if a scale is generally out of repairs, or needs more than can be done in a very short time, it is sent to the manufacturer.

The question was upon the reconsideration of the vote by which the order reported by the committee was referred to the Committee on Salaries, and it was carried.

The question then came upon the suspension of the rule. The rule was suspended, the order was read a second time, and the question was on its passage.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Suppose we pass that order for four suitable candidates to be reported, and then pass an additional order that we need only three. The report of the committee has not yet been accepted by which we provide for four Sealers of Weights and Measures. Suppose the Board passes an amendment to the report that we shall have but three?

Alderman Slade—I will say, in order that this first order shall pass, if we see fit to pass it, that the committee recommend four. The Board can change that as they see fit.

Alderman Wilder—I understand that we reconsidered the vote whereby the report of the comuittee, recommending four assistants, was referred to the Committee on Salaries. I beg the pardon of the Chair if I am mistaken when I say that the question before the Board is upon the acceptance of the report to appoint four assistants, and that the question might then recur upon the order.

The Mayor—The Chair would say that the committee make a report upon the subject, setting forth the necessity for having Sealers of Weights and Measures and the change of the law; and they also report the order which has just been read a second time.

Alderman Wilder—I beg the Chair's pardon, but I would like to ask whether the question is not upon the order for the Board to appoint or elect four Assistant Sealers of Weights and Measures, instead of on the motion made by myself.

The Mayor—The Chair will say, in answer to the question of the gentleman, that the question is upon the passage of the order, which reads, "That Aldermen ——" leaving a blank for the number of Aldermen (three if you please)—"be a committee to nominate four suitable candidates for Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures." It is identical with your motion except that your motion appointed three, naming the number. This order does not name the number of the committee.

Alderman Clark—I think the matter is very plain. The only question is, whether we need four, three, two or one. That is the question this Board does not seem to be satisfied upon. I think, for that purpose, this matter should be laid over one week, until the Board has an opportunity to come to some opinion in regard to it. The committee have reported recommending four. The chairman of the Committee on Retrenchment doubts in his own mind whether we need four assistants at a large salary.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The question with me is whether the city of Boston shall pay four assistants or whether they shall be paid by fees. It is a question whether we should pay them or whether they should earn it by working for it. That is my point.

Alderman Wilder—The difference of opinion seems to be upon the number of men necessary to do the work, and on that we have the report of the committee that four is the smallest possible number to do the work. I am not aware that there is any difference of opinion as to the necessity of doing the work.

Alderman O'Brien—As I was a member of the committee I was present when the former sealer was there. He informed us that it was impossible to make the office effective unless he had four deputies appointed. All he could do was to receive the scales and measures brought up by people when they chose. Now, in order to make it pay, he must have these deputies to send out with power to seal, just as though he went himself. Therefore I think it is a necessity that we should have these assistants. If we do not we had better abolish it altogether.

Alderman Gibson—I would like to ask whether all this information comes from one party or from various parties.

Alderman Slade—It does not come from any one party; but having this new law before them, the committee met and discussed the matter in the presence of the former sealer, who gave his opinion; and believing that he knew more about it than we possibly could, we have reported this order. Now, where the money will come from to pay them, I do not know. That is a matter for consideration. The City Council has appropriated only $1800, I believe, which is $900 each for two assistants. That, of course, will not pay them. I do not know but we will have to refer this matter to the Committee on Finance to tell us where the money will come from. The committee may recommend that it be paid in fees or in salaries. That is a matter for further consideration. We certainly have not got the money. They may make some preparation for that afterwards. The Committee on Weights and Measures have gone as far as they can. They have reported according to their best judgment and information. Further than that belongs to somebody else.

Alderman Gibson—I do not like to take up the time of the Board, but I would like to know from the Alderman opposite, whether every party buying and selling merchandise is obliged to have his scales sealed, or whether it is optional. If it is optional, of course the parties will not require to have repairs made; if it is arbitrary they are obliged to have them made. That is an all-importtant point to know before we talk about the amount of labor.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The sealing of weights and measures is obligatory on the parties who have them, once a year, and the penalty is a fixed one. The act just passed (whether it has become a law I do not know, but this is the act in my hand) provides that the Aldermen of any city, or the selectmen of any town, where it may be proper for the discharge of the duties of said office, shall appoint one or more deputy sealers. It is obligatory on those who have weights and measures to have them sealed; and the act provides for certain public action of the Sealer of Weights and Measures under the General Statutes.

Alderman Breck—I would like to ask the Alderman if it is necessary for the parties to take their scales to the sealer, or whether it is necessary for the sealer to visit them, as they did some years ago, taking their weights and sealing their scales. Then it was customary to charge so much for each measure and so much for each scale, and whatever balances they had in their stores. I would like to know whether it is necessary for the tradesmen to carry their scales to the sealer; if it is not, I think these deputies should be appointed.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The act says—
"The sealers of weights and measures in the several cities and towns shall annually give public notice, by advertisement or by posting notice in one or more public places in their respective cities and towns, to all inhabitants or persons having a usual place of business therein, who use scales, weights, measures or milk cans, for the purpose of selling any goods, wares, merchandise or other commodities, or for public weighing, to bring in their scales, weights, measures and milk cans, to be adjusted and sealed, within sixty days after said notice. Such sealers shall attend in one or more convenient place or places, and shall adjust, seal and record all scales, weights, measures and milk cans so brought in."

Chapter 123 of the Acts of 1876 is a mere transcript of what is in the General Statutes. The amendment to this chapter is that "within sixty days after said notice" shall be stricken out and that there shall be inserted in place thereof "at any time after said notice." So that it is obligatory on parties, when the sealers give notice, that they shall bring up their weights and measures for adjustment and, I presume, that where weights and scales are weighty that the sealers shall go and adjust them.

Alderman Breck—Then I think the old Sealer of Weights and Measures could not have understood his duties; for I do not think any grocers have ever received any notice to bring their scales to be adjusted. We use a great many weights, but never received any such notice. There are men at this Board who are using weights and measures, but I do not think there is one here who has ever received any such notice. If the new sealer enforces this law, he can get money enough to pay not four but eight of these deputies.

Alderman Viles—I think the sealer has advertised every year in regard to this. I know I have always carried my scales up and had them adjusted; but I do not think one in twenty has paid any attention to it. I believe these sealers should go around from place to place as they used to, and that is why it would require four deputies. Indeed, I do not think four can do it. I think it would require more.

Alderman Gibson—It seems to me that until the thing is fairly and thoroughly tried we should hold on as we are. We might as well say we want four mayors as to say we want four Sealers of Weights and Measures, if it is an optional measure, as the Alderman opposite has read. The sealer is to give notice, and if parties do not come he has as much time as is necessary to do the work. So the real facts are that the business is not going to be more than one sealer has done; and for the past eight or ten years there certainly has been no complaint. There is no more need for them than there was ten years ago.

Alderman Slade—We all have this thing before us, and if we have time to read it we can understand it alike. So far as advertising goes—

"The sealers of weights and measures in the several cities and towns shall annually give public notice by advertisement, or by posting notices in one or more public places in their respective cities and towns, to all inhabitants or persons having a usual place of business therein, who use scales, weights, measures, or milk cans, for the purpose of selling any goods, wares, merchandise or other commodities, or for public weighing, to bring in their scales, weights, measures and milk cans to be adjusted and sealed within sixty days after said notice. Such sealers shall attend in one or more convenient place or places, and shall adjust, seal and record all scales, weights, measures and milk cans so brought in."

Then—

"The said sealers of weights and measures shall go once a year, and oftener if necessary, to every hay and coal scale, dormant or other platform balance, within their respective cities and towns, that cannot be easily or conveniently removed, and test the accuracy of, and adjust and seal the same."

The whole thing is before us, and if we have time to read it we can all understand it alike. The committee who have had this matter under advisement for the last week or fortnight have made a report as they think best.

Alderman Thompson—This subject has proved a weighty one, judging from the time required to discuss it, if not a scaly one. It seems to me, as I understand the subject now, we are to decide whether there shall be four assistant sealers or not. Now, before I am able to decide on that question I desire to know how they are to be compensated. If by fees, I do not object to the appointment of four; but if they are to be salaried officers, I desire to know more upon the subject than I do now. It seems to me that is a part of what the Committee on Weights and Measures should have put in their report. I would, therefore, move that the subject be recommended to the Committee on Weights and Measures, that they may report to this Board how many should be appointed and how they shall be compensated.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It seems to me the matter is not properly understood, and I may not have explained sufficiently to the Alderman opposite the obligation of the Sealer of Weights and Measures to come to the houses and stores of tradesmen. The act which the Alderman opposite has read is in the General Statutes. Since this book of ordinances was compiled, another act, two acts in fact, have passed the Legislature with regard to Sealers of Weights and Measures. The first, which you do not find in the ordinances, was passed at the session last year; and it provides that after this publication or notice has been taken, the persons who have weights and measures and do not bring them to the place mentioned in the publication or advertisement, then it shall be obligatory upon the Sealers of Weights and Measures to go to the stores and houses of those persons who have failed to come to the place mentioned in the advertisement or publication and charge the amount mentioned in section 4 of chapter 50 of the General Statutes. The act just passed provides that immediately after this publication they can go at once—they can go the next day—to the houses and stores and commence their work. Instead of waiting sixty days, it says at any time after said notice has been given they shall go to the houses, stores and shops of persons mentioned in the foregoing section who have neglected to comply with the notice given thereunder, and having entered the same with the assent of the occupants thereof, shall adjust and seal their scales, weights, measures and milk cans, and shall be entitled to receive for the said service the amounts named. Now, the question with me is not upon the appointment of the four men, but it is whether we shall pay them a fixed salary or fees. I believe in paying them fees instead of paying them a fixed salary, when these persons can perform satisfactorily the work which the statute intends shall be performed in the city of Boston; if we can avoid the necessity of taking their pay out of the treasury, I would go for four deputy sealers. But if they are to be paid a fixed salary, I should not be in favor of having so many.

Alderman Gibson—It strikes me that is just the point. They have got to be paid. If it is to be a public benefit, let the public pay for it. I think we had better pay them a salary. It does not require any very great talent to go around and measure a milk can. I think a small salary will hire a number of them. If the public receive the benefit, they ought to pay for it. If they are going to make $3000 a year, why not let them all fare alike, and we will all get the benefit?

Alderman Thompson—I have had some experience in this matter, having scales to seal, and I can remember that when the sealers received their compensation from fees they attended to their duties with a great deal of promptness and regularity. But when they were put on a fixed salary they seldom came to ascertain whether the scales were correct or not. Now, the law intends that every dealer in different articles shall have his scales properly sealed once a year. If the sealer or his assistant is compensated by the fees, he is very sure to look up those persons who do not apply to have their scales attended to. I know very well, in busy times, it was exceedingly annoying to have these gentlemen wait upon me and request me to have my scales, which were always correct, I suppose, adjusted and sealed. But when the law was changed and a fixed salary was paid they did not come at all; my scales probably were not sealed for five or six years at a time. I made my motion to recommit, that the committee may look into this matter further and report back, hoping that we may then understand this question, which is really one of some importance. I hope the motion will prevail.

The report of the committee and the order for a committee to nominate assistant sealers was re-committed to the Committee on Markets; the order for the Committee on Salaries to report an order fixing the salaries of said assistant sealers was referred to the Committee on Salaries. Sent down.

The order offered by Mr. Fitzgerald was referred to the Committee on Salaries.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Orders to build sewers in Sargent street, Dechester street near Hartford street, and in Starr street between Call and Bishop streets, in Bishop street between Starr and Newbern streets, and in Newbern street between Bishop and Elm streets. Severally read twice and passed.

PUBLIC PARKS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following (City Doc. 44):

The joint special committee to which was referred so much of the Mayor's inaugural address as relates to parks have the honor to submit the following report. After careful consideration they have agreed upon the following propositions: 1. Public parks are necessary to the health and comfort of large cities, and they are made necessary by the same causes which make water works and systems of sewerage necessary. 2. In establishing a system of parks the needs of the future should be looked to as well as the necessities of the present. 3. As the establishment of parks requires a large expenditure of money, the benefit of which extends to the future as well as to the present, the expense should be distributed through a series of years by means of loans and sinking funds, thus preventing the tax for any one year being onerous. 4. That public parks should extend special facilities to the poorer classes, who, living in narrow and crowded streets, which in summer are hot and unhealthy, stand in greatest need of the pure air and opportunities for pleasant exercise, which parks should afford. 5. That the citizens of Boston desire that public parks, equal to the wants of a great and growing city, should be established; and in proof of this your committee refer to the steps that have led up to this report. 6. That after examining the several parks and parkways recommended by the commissioners, they believe that if the recommendations of the commissioners are carried out, the city of Boston will have, in five years, a system of parks which will add immensely to the comfort and pleasure of its citizens; and that in fifty years it will have as fine a system of parks as any in the country or in the world. 7. That the several parts of the system have been so chosen and combined that the value of any one part taken in connection with the others is very much greater than it would be if standing alone; and how much greater this value is can only be appreciated by visiting the parks in succession, and seeing how one fits into another. The Charles River embankment, for instance, on account of its connecting the poorest and most crowded part of the city with the country, and its beauty as a promenade and drive, and the great additional facilities for using the river for boating and pleasure purposes which it affords, is, perhaps, the park of greatest local value; but, as a part of the system of parks, its chief value is as the great avenue through which Charlestown and the North and West Ends find ready and pleasant access through the Back Bay park to the country parks in West Roxbury and to Brighton. 8. Finding, then, in the system of parks recommended by the commissioners everything that was desirable, but two questions remained to the committee—

First—Can the city afford the entire system?

Second—Is it expedient to commence the work now?

In the opinion of your committee, the city can afford the necessary expenditures, and the present is a peculiarly favorable time for commencing. The City Engineer has prepared estimates of the cost of constructing the urban parks, that is the Charles River embankment, the Back Bay park, and the South Bay Park, which, from their situation, must be first put in order. His estimates are as follows:

Charles River park.....	$2,684,000
Back Bay park.....	1,625,810
South Bay park.....	200,000
Cost of land as per Park Commissioners' report for all parks and parkways.....	4,906,600
Total.....	$9,416,400

As before stated, your committee are of opinion that this expenditure should be provided for, as in the case of water works, by the sale of thirty-year bonds and the establishment of sinking funds, which, by means of annual contributions, will provide means for paying the debt at maturity; Boston five per cent. bonds can be sold at a sufficient premium, so that the sale of $9,000,000 of bonds will provide for the above expenditure; and this will give the city of Boston the land for all the parks and parkways, and will put in order the three parks named. In answering the question, "Can the city afford the above expenditure?" the committee looked to the effect upon the taxpayer, i. e., what would be the increase on the tax bills, and they find that to pay the principal and interest of the $9,000,000 loan will require an annual tax of eighty-three cents on the thousand dollars on the present assessed valuation of the city; it must be remembered that the entire expenditure will not be finished for a number of years, and that the annual tax for the present will only be a little over nine cents on a thousand dollars for each million of bonds issued. If Boston cannot afford such an expenditure to secure the priceless benefit of parks, it must be because she has entered the ranks of cities like Newburyport and Salem, which have ceased to grow. If twenty years from now our wharves are to be deserted, our manufactories idle, our streets grass-grown, then indeed it is unwise to enter upon this or any scheme calling for an outlay of money; but if Boston is to increase in wealth and population, as we believe she is, there can be no question but that we can well afford all the money necessary to give us this system of parks. In regard to the additional cost of putting the remaining parks in order, it must be remembered that this must be the work of years. And sums which in the total look enormous will, when separated into the annual appropriations, be easy enough to pay.

An annual appropriation, in addition to the above loan, equal to that now made for the City Hospital, will, in thirty years, complete the entire system of parks; and we believe that the value of the parks to the health of the city will be as great as even that beneficent institution.

The second question, "Is it expedient to commence the work now?" can be answered much more briefly.

At present, land, labor and materials—everything which enters into the cost of parks—is unusually cheap, and our business interests are so depressed that a million dollars thrown into the channels of trade may make the difference between profit and loss on the year's business. Now, if the present scheme is adopted, our laborers and mechanics will find work, which, unlike that on the water works, will cause them to live in the city; this will enable the owners of houses to let their tenements, the retail dealers will find customers with money to pay them; they, in their turn, pass on the benefit to others, so that all will be helped.

Your committee therefore recommend that the Treasurer be authorized to sell one million dollars of bonds, to run for the longest legal term, the proceeds thereof to be expended by the Park Commissioners in the purchase of such lands, being part of the system of parks recommended by said commissioners, as will be sold to the city on the most favorable terms, and for this purpose they recommend the adoption of the following orders.

HUGH O'BRIEN.

JOHN T. CLARK.

ROBERT M. THOMPSON.

Ordered, That the sum of one million dollars be and hereby is appropriated for the purchase of lands for public parks; said land to be purchased by the Park Commissioners.

Ordered, That the Treasurer be and he hereby is authorized to borrow, under the direction of the Committee on Finance, the sum of one million dollars for the purchase of lands for park purposes; the certificates of indebtedness to run for the longest term of years allowed by law, not exceeding thirty years, and to bear interest at a rate not exceeding five per centum per annum.

Minority Report of P. J. Stone, Jr.

The undersigned respectfully dissents from the report of the majority of the Joint Special Committee on Public Parks, and begs leave to present his reasons therefor. While he believes the scheme as laid down by the Park Commissioners would give Boston one of the finest systems of parks in the United States, yet, in view of the present depressed state of business, he does not believe it wise at this time to increase the burdens of an already overtaxed people, with greatly depleted incomes, by expending any money for luxuries. Parks must be considered a luxury, and they are designed for the benefit of a future generation rather than the present. Boston is not a pent-up city, without breathing-spaces; it is almost surrounded by water, and all who desire to inhale the fresh and invigorating breeze from the ocean can do so with little exertion, and without expense. Our horse cars from the time they leave paved streets pass through a succession of parks, where, for the trifling sum of six cents, one may have all the pure country air he can desire. The park we now possess [Chestnut-hill Reservoir] is not patronized by pedestrians nor the poor class of our citizens, who are said to be most clamorous for this scheme, and yet it is accessible to all, as the steam-cars pass the grounds many times daily.

It is urged that the Back Bay park is necessary to abate the Stony Brook sewer nuisance; but it must be borne in mind that sewerage and parks are not in any way connected. Each is under treatment by separate commissions, and one has nothing to do with the other. Nuisances that exist on the Back Bay must be remedied by better sewers, and not by covering over the polluted places with a park. It is estimated that an expenditure of not exceeding $50,000 will successfully stop this cause of complaint, which will be much cheaper than attempting to fill in a "mud-hole with no bottom," for the benefit of a few land owners in that section.

The undersigned believes the statement that our tax bills will not be increased more than eighty-three cents on a thousand dollars to be erroneous, and calculated to mislead. This is obtained from certain estimates, or rather approximates, which it would be well to look at. The commissioners figure the cost of land at $4,909,600; but with full authority last year they were only able to bond thirteen per cent. of the lands required, while the owners of eighty-seven per cent. declined to bond at the price fixed in the commissioners' report.

It is but fair to infer, judging from past experience, that this eighty-seven per cent. will cost at least fifty per cent. more than the estimate; and what assurance is there that other estimates will not be exceeded in like ratio, for is it not a well-established fact that where one great public work is completed that does not exceed fifty per cent. of its estimated cost, there are three at least that do? Take, for instance, the water works, which cost at least three times the original estimate, and the great elephant of the State, the Hoosac Tunnel, which has already consumed almost countless millions of the taxpayers' money, is yet a bone of contention for the Legislature, and will be for years to come.

If the three parks named in the majority report cost, without land, $4,509,800, what will the other twelve laid out by the commissioners cost, to say nothing about parkways, which are estimated at from two to three hundred thousand dollars per mile? Should we not have the Engineer's figures on all this grand scheme, that we may have an approximate idea of the ultimate cost before making a beginning? Could this be accurately shown, instead of an annual appropriation of eighty-three cents on a thousand dollars, we should probably see that more than three times that amount would be required. Let us have all the light we can get before entering on an expenditure of this magnitude.

The majority of the committee ask for an appropriation of $1,000,000, but do not state where it is to be expended. Is it all to be put into the three urban parks, to the detriment of the other parts of the city?

The majority of the committee state in their report that "an annual appropriation, in addition to the above loan, equal to that now made for the City Hospital, will, in thirty years, complete the entire system of parks." When we consider that the annual appropriation for the City Hospital amounts to only about $125,000, while the care of our present Common and squares costs nearly $100,000 annually, the correctness of this assertion is not apparent.

The majority also say they "are of opinion that this expenditure should be provided for as in the case of water works, by the sale of thirty-year bonds and the establishment of sinking funds, which, by means of annual contributions, will provide means for paying the debt at maturity. Boston five per cent. bonds can be sold at a sufficient premium, so that the sale of $9,000,000 of bonds will provide for the above expenditure; and this will give the city of Boston the land for all the parks and parkways, and will put in order the three parks named." The Legislature has just refused to pass an act to authorize the city of Boston to issue thirty-year bonds for park purposes; consequently this theory falls to the ground.

The undersigned is of the opinion that were it not for a few land owners and speculators, some of whom are not even citizens of Boston, the park question would not have been brought before this City Government, who were elected on principles of retrenchment and reform.

We shall be called upon this year to vote from 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 of dollars for a system of sewers; the widening of Commercial street, at an expense of $1,000,000 is already agitated; and should we vote to commit the city to this park scheme, then, indeed, might we predict that our "wharves would be deserted, and our streets grass-grown in much less time than twenty years."

For these, among other reasons, I am opposed to the majority report, and recommend that the whole subject be referred to the next City Government.

PHINEAS J. STONE, JR.

Minority Report of Henry F. Coe.

The undersigned is unable to agree with the majority of the committee in recommending the adoption by the City Council of the Park Commissioners' plan as a whole. The scheme is a magnificent one and the commissioners have, with much care and labor, mapped out a system of parks and parkways which would, if adopted, make Boston the most attractive city in this respect on this continent. They are entitled to the thanks of the community for the manner in which they have done their part. It now remains for the City Council to decide whether their plan shall be made available, and adopted as a whole, or only in part.

The undersigned objects to it as a whole, simply on the ground of its very heavy cost. The most reliable estimates would put the whole expense of the entire system of parks and parkways, when completed, at not less than fifteen million dollars, and many would place it still higher; the construction of the parkways especially, as proposed, calling for a very large outlay, as any one can readily ascertain by consulting those who have had experience in such matters. We should not lose sight of the fact that the city has spent, and is now spending, several millions for an increased water supply, and that the necessity is upon us of also expending several millions more for improved sewerage. The question becomes a very serious one whether we can afford to enter upon so extensive a scheme as that proposed by the majority of the committee, and whether the credit of the city, now so high, would not suffer in consequence of its adoption by the City Council. True, this expenditure would not be made in one year, but in many years; still, the city would be committed to it, and the money would ultimately be spent. In addition to the first cost would be the expense of keeping in proper order when complete. When we remember that our present public grounds cost us on an average $90,000 per annum, and that the average annual cost of keeping the driveway around the Chestnut Hill Reservoir (only two and a half miles in length) in order has been $8000, we can readily see that this will be no small item in the annual tax.

The additional charge for police, lighting, etc., etc., should not be lost sight of.

The undersigned would not ignore the arguments that are used in favor of this heavy outlay, viz., that something will be realized from betterments, and that the increased taxes realized from the erection of dwellings around the proposed parks, together with the increased value of the property adjacent thereto, would go very far towards reimbursing the city for the whole cost. This is doubtless true to a certain limited extent; but it is also true that oftentimes what one portion of the city gains in taxable property another portion loses. The question is, How much new property will be created by reason of this expenditure? The undersigned does not feel competent to push this inquiry further. It is a matter of very vague estimate, and hardly any two persons would agree on this point. It is, however, generally conceded that the city would realize, from the assessment of direct betterments, a comparatively small amount. For these reasons, and others which might be stated, he is compelled, very reluctantly, to disagree with the majority of the committee.

But in doing this the undersigned is not prepared to take the position that nothing should be done. The public grounds of Boston are entirely inadequate for a city of its rank, and no other in the country is so poorly provided for. He cannot concede that the same arguments which may be used against an expenditure of fifteen millions would be valid against an expenditure of five or six millions made during the next five or ten years, and this latter sum will give Boston all it absolutely needs for a generation. He would therefore be in favor of the plan of the Park Commissioners so far as it applies to the Charles River embankment, the West Roxbury park, the South Bay park, and an outlay on Jamaica Pond. The majority of the committee, as well as the Park Commissioners, state fully the advantages of the Charles River embankment. Too much cannot be said in favor of this noble promenade on the banks of Charles River. If completed, it must become a place where multitudes of those now pent up in narrow alleys and back streets will resort to enjoy the cool air from off the water.

The proposed West Roxbury park is really the only park recommended by the commissioners, in the true sense of that word. It has all the variety of wood and meadow, hill and valley, which go to make up true park scenery, offering natural attractions which no outlay upon a less-favored spot could produce. About all necessary to do at present would be to secure the land and let it lie comparatively unimproved, and its natural beauties would at once make it a place of resort for the thousands who now flock into the suburbs to obtain a sight of the country and breathe its pure air, and who are now compelled to become trespassers upon private grounds if they leave the dusty roads at all.

The advantage of the open space of thirty-five acres on the South Bay is its comparatively small cost, amounting to about $400,000 for land and buildings (at the assessors' valuation of 1875), and $200,000 in addition, for putting in order for a parade and playground. It is in the midst of a very large class of our population who need such a breathing space. This fact, together with its small cost, is in its favor.

The undersigned would lay great stress upon the necessity of some steps being taken at once to preserve the shores of Jamaica Pond from further spoliation. The commissioners have well set forth the attractions of this sheet of water. No city in the world has such a beautiful lake within its limits. Notwithstanding this, its beauty is fast disappearing, and it will soon become a nuisance, unless steps are at once taken to arrest the spread of unsightly icehouses, and stables, etc., connected therewith, which have been erected upon its banks.

In this connection it should be said that the erroneous impression prevails, that the owners of estates abutting on the pond have peculiar rights in regard to cutting ice, and that, in case their property should be taken for park purposes, the value of those rights must be added to the value of the land and buildings in the allowance for damages. This is not so. Owners of estates on the pond have no legal right to cut ice other than that enjoyed by all citizens. Most of these owners are strongly opposed to the erection and maintenance of icehouses and other nuisances, and it is believed that they would bind themselves that none should ever be maintained on their lands, provided the city will take and remove those already erected. For two or three hundred thousand dollars the shores of this fine body of water can be made beautiful again, and at some future time, if thought desirable, the city can obtain possession of the estates upon its banks as they come into the market. This would not be necessary, however, as the possession of the icehouse estates would give the public access to the pond for boating and other purposes.

The whole cost of the improvements above named would be (on the basis of the Assessors' valuation of 1875, and the estimates of the City Engineer which accompany these reports) in round amounts—

For the Charles River embankment, land and construction, say.....	$3,200,000
West Roxbury park, say.....	1,400,000
South Bay improvement, say.....	600,000
Jamaica Pond (outside estimate), say.....	300,000

Making in all.....$5,500,000

Of this sum considerably less than $2,500,000 would be for land and buildings; the balance would be for construction—principally on the Charles River embankment. This expenditure would be spread over several years, and no necessity exists for an outlay of any great amount in improving the West Roxbury park. Certainly $6,000,000 should be the outside requirement for the whole, and on this basis the annual cost for interest and the requirements of the Sinking Fund to be added to the tax bills would not exceed fifty-five cents on a thousand dollars, and the owner of a $10,000 house would be called upon to contribute $5.50 per annum for park purposes—certainly not an onerous tax—and this, too, without making allowance for anything to be received from betterments or increased value of property around the parks. Bonds to cover the amounts named could be issued in all the next five years, and the indebtedness of the city be still kept considerably within the sum fixed by State law in limiting such indebtedness.

The undersigned is therefore prepared to recommend the passage of measures looking towards the adoption of the above-named improvements, and would vote for an order giving the Park Commissioners $1,000,000 to enable them to make a beginning towards the purchase of land covered by the preceding recommendations; provided, that under the law thirty-year bonds can be issued; said land to be taken by the commissioners at their discretion, as they can secure it to advantage, the improvements on the same to be made as fast as the City Council shall direct. But if, under the present laws, bonds must be issued for a shorter time than thirty years, he would recommend that no action be taken by the City Council until authority be granted to issue them for that time; except in the case of Jamaica Pond, which demands and should receive immediate attention.

In case thirty-year bonds can be legally issued under the present law, he would recommend the passage of the following orders:

Ordered, That the sum of one million dollars be, and hereby is, appropriated for the purchase of lands for public parks, said land to be purchased by the Park Commissioners, and to be located within the limits of what is known as the Charles River Embankment, the West Roxbury Park, the South Bay Park, and the Jamaica Park, as per the report of said commissioners, dated April 24, 1876, being City Doc. No. 42.

Ordered, That the Treasurer be, and he hereby is, authorized to borrow, under the direction of the Committee on Finance, the sum of one million dollars, on thirty years' time, and to bear interest at a rate not exceeding five per centum per annum, for the purchase of lands for park purposes.

And in case it is found that thirty-year bonds cannot be issued under the law, as it now stands, he would propose the following orders:

Ordered, That the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars be, and hereby is, appropriated for the purchase of land for public parks, said land to be purchased by the Park Commissioners, and to be located within the limits of what is known as the Jamaica Park, as per report of said commissioners, dated April 24, 1876, being City Doc. No. 42.

Ordered, That the Treasurer be, and he hereby is, authorized to borrow, under the direction of the Committee on Finance, the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the longest term of years allowed by law, and to bear interest at a rate not exceeding five per centum per annum, for the purchase of lands for park purposes.

He makes these recommendations with great diffidence, realizing, on the one hand, the pressure of "hard times," which would deter many, otherwise favorably disposed towards parks, from favoring any expenditure at the present time; and, on the other hand, the confident belief of many persons of excellent judgment, who have given much time and thought in investigating the subject, that the whole scheme as proposed by the commissioners is not only feasible, but desirable, for the city to undertake from every point of view. We should remember, however, that a too lavish expenditure may entail its penalty of high taxes upon our successors, and thus make Boston an undesirable place for the prosecution of business. This would be a serious evil and hard to remedy, and it is far safer to err in the other direction, and still avoid that niggardly and short-sighted economy which would put a stop to all attempts to make ours a beautiful city.

Alderman O'Brien—I move that this matter be specially assigned for half-past four next Monday afternoon.

Alderman Thompson—I hope the report will not be specially assigned, but will take its usual course and come up at our next meeting; and if it is convenient and agreeable, we can go on with it. If it is to be specially assigned for next Monday afternoon we shall be obliged to take it up and consider it. Now, it may be convenient when it comes up next Monday afternoon to assign it to some further day. It is a matter of a great deal of importance, and I do not wish to see any attempt at hurrying this report through without having it duly considered. A question involving the expenditure of so large an amount of money is to be considered by degrees. I hope the motion to specially assign will not prevail.

Alderman O'Brien—The object of specially assigning this report for next Monday afternoon is that, as the Alderman says, it is a very important question. A great many of our citizens feel the importance of it; a great many our citizens would like to be here when this subject is discussed. If it is specially assigned at a stated hour next Monday afternoon, it will be known to all our citizens that that question is coming up to be discussed. The Board, whether it goes over under the rules or is specially assigned, can do with it what it pleases. I do not see that it will make any difference about that. I think the best disposition that can be made of it is to specially assign it for next Monday afternoon.

The motion to specially assign prevailed.

PUBLIC LANDS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Lands:

Ordered, That the taxes from the years 1875 and 1876 assessed upon the lot of land on Bristol street, as shown upon a plan recorded with plans of city lands sold, book 2, page 211, in the office of the Superintendent of Public Lands, be remitted; the said lot of land having been forfeited to the city for breach of the conditions of sale.

Read twice and passed. Sent down.

Order to declare forfeited to the city the lot numbering 25 Oliver street, bargained to Lyman A. Belknap, April 25, 1874, for non-fulfilment and breach of the conditions of sale, and for the Superintendent of Public Lands to take possession of the same; also an order to cancel bond 150 given by said Belknap for said land. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

Report on Petition of Receivers of Mechanics' Mutual Fire Insurance Company—That when the Suffolk-street district was taken by the city the policies of insurance on the buildings situated in that district were assigned to the city. A number of these policies were in the Mechanics' Mutual Fire Insurance Company. After the great fire of 1872 this company failed, and the policies were assessed; the assessments on the policies described in the petition were paid by the owners of the buildings. Upon winding up the affairs of the company, it was found that there was an excess of assessments, and the Supreme Court directed the receivers to pay this excess to the persons who paid the assessments on the policies. The receivers now find that they cannot pay the dividend to the persons named in their petition and to whom it rightfully belongs—they having paid the assessment—because the policies were assigned to the city, and the City Collector declines to receive it, because the city did not pay the assessment, and is therefore not entitled to it. The committee recommend the passage of the following:

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be requested to authorize the receivers of the Mechanics' Mutual Fire Insurance Company to pay to the persons respectively entitled thereto the dividend of forty-nine per cent. of the amount of assessment on the policies of insurance numbered 62,666, 64,108, 64,707, 64,995, 65,304, 65,341, 65,347, 66,186, 66,204, 66,293, 66,794, 67,054, 67,325, 67,994, 68,010, 68,863, 69,239, 70,629, 72,214, 72,363, 72,451, 72,524, 72,526, 72,527, 72,528, 72,529, 73,445, 71,967, now standing in the name of the city of Boston.

Read twice and passed. Sent down.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

On motion of Alderman Thompson, the report and order for the erection of suitable school buildings for the English High and Latin schools, on the lot upon Warren avenue and Montgomery street, at an estimated cost of $350,000, to be met by sales of other school buildings, was taken from the table.

The question was on the reference of the order to the Committee on Finance.

Alderman Thompson—Before this order is referred, I would like to amend by adding to the school buildings to be sold the Mayhew School building on Hawkius street.

The amendment was adopted and the order was referred to the Committee on Finance. Sent down.

TRANSFERS FROM RESERVED FUND.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Committee on Finance:

Report and Order, That the Auditor of Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund to the appropriation for Northampton-street district, the sum of $20,000. Order read twice and passed—yeas 12, nays 0. Sent down.

Report and Order (new draft), That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to build offices in Quincy Hall, adjoining the rotunda; also, to repair the rotunda preparatory to leasing the same to the Produce Exchange Association, and the offices to those doing business with the exchange, at an estimated cost of $3000; the expense therefor to be charged to the appropriation for Public Buildings. Order read twice and passed. Sent down.

AUDITOR'S ANNUAL REPORT.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That the annual report of the Auditor of Accounts for the financial year 1876-77 be submitted in print, and that 5500 copies thereof be printed; that 3800 copies be retained in the custody of the Auditor at City Hall for distribution, and that the remainder be placed in the several police station houses also for distribution; and further, that public advertisement be made of the fact in the newspapers that said reports have been placed in the Auditor's office, City Hall, and in the several police station houses, for distribution, where the citizens may obtain them on application.

ORDER TO PAY FOR LAND DAMAGES.

Alderman Clark, from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board, offered an order to pay Abraham Raphael $744, for land taken and damages occasioned by the widening of Harrison avenue. Read twice and passed.

VALUATION OF PROPERTY AND TAXATION.

On motion of Alderman O'Brien, the order for the Mayor to appoint a commission to consider a plan for a more uniform and equitable valuation of property for taxation, expense of the commission not to exceed $300, was taken from the table.

Alderman O'Brien—I would merely say that the expense of this commission is not to exceed $300, and I believe the City Government would obtain more than $300 worth of information if this commission were appointed.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Can anybody tell of what use this is going to be? I merely rise for information. I know they have been trying during the whole of this session, by various public hearings, at which Mr. Minot and several other gentlemen have spoken, and by calling some of our assessors to explain the matter of assessment, to convince the Legislature that the present method is a wrong one; and if they, in their investigations and the reports which that committee have made to the Legislature, cannot enlighten the public and the Legislature. I fancy they will not be apt to take any recommendations from a commission appointed by the city of Boston. The expense, to be sure, is small, but what is going to result from it? I do not know; I should be willing to vote for it if I knew anything good was coming from it. But nothing has come from the investigation at the State House. They all profess to want to lighten the burden of taxation, yet these gentlemen, who claim to be experienced, have such different ideas of the method of assessment that the Legislature are in a quandary about it, and have thought it best to leave matters as they are. I notice it has done nothing, and I don't know what this commission is going to do. The amount, to be sure, is quite small, but I fancy it will be spending $300 for nothing.

Alderman Wilder—I have no doubt that this order contemplates, if anything is done under it, that some very wise and public-spirited gentlemen, fully competent to deal with this subject, will be willing to accept of the appointment as commissioners, and give their services during the coming year. And I suppose the $300 is for the purpose of publishing their report, and paying somebody for writing it. I believe some good might come out of it, and I am quite willing to vote for it. I think the great difficulty will be to find the men who will be sufficiently public spirited to perform the work and perform it well so it will be of use. I should like to see the motion pass. I believe if his Honor the Mayor is so fortunate as to find three competent gentlemen to do this work, we can quite well afford to pay them $300, probably for publishing their report.

Alderman Robinson—The order seems to read as follows, and I cannot understand it entirely:

Ordered, That the Mayor appoint a commission to consider a plan for a more uniform and equitable ble valuation of property for taxation; expense of the commission not to exceed $300.

It does not say to devise, but to consider a plan. What does it mean?

Alderman O'Brien—The city of Boston has been able to secure very talented and competent men to carry on its institutions gratuitously for the city. In the City Hospital we find able and competent men willing to take that trust. On the Park Commission we found able and competent men to undertake that trust, all gratuitously; and I have been amazed at the amount of work which the Park Commissioners, especially, have performed gratuitously for the city of Boston. I have no doubt his Honor the Mayor will be able to find three able and competent men to perform this work, and give us a full report in relation to a more uniform and equitable valuation of property in the city of Boston. I know this subject has been discussed by the Legislature, but we should discuss it in this City Council before it is discussed by the Legislature. Within a circle of six miles of Boston is almost the entire taxable valuation of Massachusetts. It is an object for a great many of these country members, and especially for the Legislature, to throw cold water on all this business. I think if an intelligent report is presented to the City Council we can discuss it and throw more light on the subject of taxation than can be thrown by any committee of the Legislature. I hope the order will pass.

Alderman Robinson—The Alderman does not seem to understand my point. I don't know whether this order is printed exactly as it was presented or not; but it says, "to consider a plan." I should think from the Alderman's remarks they were to devise a plan.

Alderman O'Brien—Consider or devise.

Alderman Robinson—Consider what? A plan all made? or devise a plan.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The great difficulty with the plan, whether it is to devise or consider, is this: that the report simply amounts to nothing, because we cannot do anything with it. This is a matter that is peculiarly within the province of the Legislature and they have been looking it over day after day and year after year; this year more than any other they have considered it. The difference between a commission of the Legislature and this commission, if you appoint one, is that the commission you may appoint can simply report to us, and it will be simply valuable information to us; so far as any practical results are concerned it will simply amount to nothing. But the report of a commission of the Legislature amounts to something. They may be rejected, but if they are accepted they can be incorporated into our statute law and we may have some change in the system of taxation in the Commonwealth. If our commission is composed of able men you will not have any abler men than you had before the Legislature on this matter. You cannot get any abler men than those who went before the committee to try the question. You will have then a report to this Council, and that is of no value. The intelligent gentlemen from the country are not to be sneered at, I can tell you. They are a very large body of men at the Legislature. The gentlemen from the country control the Legislature, and their opinion, though it may be wrong, when embodied in the shape of a vote is sufficient to overpower all the opinions of members from Boston. I know Boston has for a number of years been trying to change the system of taxation; to exempt mortgages; to exempt income and real estate from taxation; to change the law in relation to domicile, etc. But the city of Boston has signally failed to accomplish anything, signally failed. To be sure, the amount of money asked for by this commission is not large, and we may get a great deal of valuable information, but I am certain it will be a report of which no notice will be taken by the Legislature of Massachusetts. They will come to the conclusion they know their business better than the City Council of Boston knows it.

Alderman O'Brien—I have merely to say that the question is lost sight of. If we appoint a commission, and that commission makes a report to this City Council, it will bring this whole subject of taxation before this City Council, and it has never been brought before this City Council in that shape. The Legislature has never heard from Boston in that shape, or what were the wishes of the people of Boston in relation to taxation. Mr. Minot and other gentlemen may go up there on their own responsibility, but they represent nobody. If this commission makes a report and that report is presented to the City Council and discussed in this City Council, the Legislature will know precisely what the city of Boston wants and what the city of Boston needs; and they never will know it from individuals who go up there before committees. That is the reason why I should like to see this whole subject brought before this City Council, and brought before it by an intelligent report from an intelligent commission.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The great difficulty is that the matter of taxation affects all the people of the Commonwealth. It is not what Boston wants, but it is what the whole Commonwealth needs and wants. If Boston wants one thing, and Cranberry Centre wants another system of taxation, and some town in Berkshire wants another, the Commonwealth would be likely to consider what the Commonwealth wanted, and not what any particular portion of it wants; and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts would be apt to say you have just as good a right to have an investigation into the prohibitory law, into the dog law, or into any of the general laws of the Commonwealth by a special commission appointed by the city of Boston. It does not amount to much, one way or the other, so far as expense is concerned, but I fail to see what good it would be to us in the way of relief. I agree thoroughly with the Alderman in his views about taxation, but I disagree as to the results which would be accomplished by this commission.

Alderman Thompson—I do not believe that any good is going to result from the passage of this order, for the reason that for $300 we cannot get a great deal of talent upon that subject. Now, if we really desire to have the question considered, on the ground that in a multiplicity of counsel there may be some wisdom, I would not have this $300 put in the order; because we know we cannot get anybody for it whose services are of any particular value on a subject of this importance. I remember two or three years ago—two years ago this winter—the Legislature appointed a committee on this subject, consisting of three able men—our accomplished chairman of Assessors, Mr. Hills, Professor Seelye and Mr. Barker of Pittsfield. They considered this matter and were engaged on it some three or four months during the year, but they could not agree. There were two reports, I think, and it amounted to just nothing at all.

Now, when able men like those have considered a subject, with the Legislature to support them without any limit, what are we to accomplish with $300? If we are going to do anything, let us strike out that clause and have a commission that will pay some attention to the subject. As it is I should vote against the order.

Alderman O'Brien—I would merely remark that the Alderman from Charlestown sits here day after day and year after year, and gives his valuable time to the city of Boston gratuitously. I do not believe he has ever realized one copper for it. I believe we will find three men, intelligent and capable, who will be willing to give their valuable time to the city of Boston for nothing. The report that he speaks of was a report more particularly in regard to the taxation of church property. The subject considered by that commission was merely the feasibility of taxing church property.

Alderman Gibson—It seems to me we might go to work and get up a pretty good story and then could not back it up. If the report were made, I doubt whether one in fifty in Boston would read it. You have got to pay for your highways, for your poor, for your schools, and if you get into debt you have got to pay the interest. People generally understand that. That is all there is of it. We can make further investigation if we have the means to back it up, but it is going to cost money; it must be printed. I would not like to oppose it if I thought it would be of any essential benefit to the taxpayers, but while we cannot enforce it I do not see the use of it.

The question was on the passage of the order, and it was declared carried, but on a division it was lost—5 for, 7 against.

VACANT STORES AND TENEMENTS.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered the following order: That the Chief of Police be requested to report to this Board, on or before the 14th day of May current, the number of unoccupied dwelling houses, tenements and stores in the city of Boston on the 11th day of May, so far as can be ascertained.

Alderman Thompson—I would like to know the object of the order.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The object of the order is apparent in the order itself. It is to find the number of unoccupied dwellings, tenements and stores in the city of Boston.

Alderman Thompson—I don't think it is desirable that we should be in possession of these facts. I think the effect would be anything but desirable to have a record of that kind published to the people of Boston, the State and the country. I think the Alderman himself and every member of the Board would be perfectly astonished to have this matter reported upon by the police. If the information was quietly obtained I would not object; but to have a matter of that kind come before the public at this time I think would have quite an effect upon the value of real estate in the city. Although the Alderman smiles, it is a serious matter, in my judgment. If there is no particular object other than curiosity to know the enormous number of stores and houses that are unoccupied in the city, I do not think it is desirable.

Alderman Robinson—Is the order intended to cover all the unfinished and unoccupied houses in all the outlying wards as well as the city proper?

Alderman Fitzgerald—In the city of Boston.

Alderman Robinson—I do not think the time from now until the 11th is sufficient for the work; it is only four days.

Alderman O'Brien—I have no objection to this order, although I do not see what good results will come from it. If we could make a comparison between this city and New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, I would like to see this order pass. I know why it is presented here. There is something coming up next Monday that this may appear a little unfavorably against. That is the reason why it is presented. I shall not oppose it. Everybody knows that there are a great many unoccupied dwellings and stores here, but there are unoccupied dwellings and unoccupied stores in all the cities of the country. There are unoccupied dwellings in every old city in Europe. This great depression is not centred here in Boston. It centres all over the world; wherever business centres there is the depression. There is great change in the mode of life. People instead of living in high-cost houses are moving to flats in hotels and changing around more, and while I shall not object to this information being obtained, I would rather it should be obtained by making comparisons with similar information from other cities.

Alderman Thompson—If the Alderman who offered the order really has an object other than curiosity I withdraw my objection.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The order is not to gratify curiosity. I did not offer the order for that purpose. I offered it in downright earnest. I offered it for the purpose of making use of it hereafter in my arguments upon questions of vital importance to the citizens of Boston. I simply ask that the order shall pass. I think it is reasonable, and there can be no objection to it. If it be a horrible thing to show the poverty of our people, and if it be acknowledged that the condition of our city is such that it would not be wise to show it to the world, I am willing to accept it and accept the defeat of the order in that spirit.

Alderman Robinson—Was the order made for the officers to report on the 14th?

Alderman Fitzgerald—That will give the 9th, 10th and 11th of May.

Alderman Robinson—I do not think there is sufficient time.

Alderman Fitzgerald—"So far as can be ascertained" is the wording of the order.

Alderman Robinson—I think the police ought not to be asked to go through the city and make a record of all the different houses and stores of the city in so short a time. Unless it is something which is necessary to be done in a given time, I should prefer, as a member of the Board, that sufficient time be given—three or four weeks,—and that some little record be made of what kind of houses and what sort of stores are unoccupied.

Alderman O'Brien—I would say that the greatest part of this record can be found now in the office of the Chief of Police. Every leading real-estate owner who has unoccupied stores or houses enters them at the police office for his own safety.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I know several that do not. I have some unoccupied houses, but I never tell the police about it, and I know several others who do not. If the order does not pass tonight, and the Chief of Police does not report before next Monday, the object of my order is at an end, and I do not care particularly about the report.

Alderman Thompson—I would move, and I hope the Alderman will accept the proposition I make, that the order be amended to include those stores and dwellings the larger part of which are unoccupied. The amendment was accepted.

Alderman Clark—I would move that the order include the number of vacant lots unsold there are in the city of Boston.

Alderman O'Brien—I would suggest that the order also include rooms to let, so that we may take in the accommodations for that class of the population.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Tenements include them. The unoccupied land we know all about.

Alderman Wilder—I desire to amend the order by adding that the Chief of Police report what, in his judgment, is the cause of so many vacant buildings and so many vacant lots of land.

Alderman Robinson—I would also move to amend the order by adding that the Chief of Police give us, if he can, the difference in the price of rents. Let us have all we can get.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Chief of Police might be asked, if we adopt all these amendments, as to the sanity of the members of the Board in offering them.

Alderman Robinson—I accept the amendment.

The Mayor—The Chair will state the question as he understands it. The first amendment in order is that of Alderman Clark, who moves that the Chief of Police inquire into the number of unoccupied lots of land. To that another has been offered by Alderman Wilder, that the Chief of Police may report the cause of these buildings and lands being unoccupied. That is as far as the amendments can go at present.

Alderman Wilder's amendment was lost by a division—4 for and 7 against.

Alderman Clark's amendment was lost.

The order was then rejected by a division—5 for, 6 against.

On motion of Alderman Gibson, the Board adjourned.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,
MAY 10, 1877.

Regular meeting, at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

A PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—Since we assembled last within this chamber I have had occasion to examine the bills in the Auditor's department for dinners and refreshments, and I saw among those bills one presented from Parker's for two suppers furnished upon the 22d of February, last passed. One of those suppers was charged to myself. Now, Mr. President, I wish the privilege of stating that I upon that day had no supper or refreshments whatsoever at the expense of the city; neither have I during my entire experience in the City Government had any suppers or refreshments at Parker's. Consequently there must be some very inexcusable neglect, or else there must have been some deceit practiced in regard to this bill. Therefore I consider it my duty in this place to state that I had no refreshments whatever upon that day, neither have I on any day, at Parker's, in connection with my relation with the City Government, and to state my utter abhorrence of such an example of inexcusable negligence or of most diabolical deceit.

The report and order to build offices and repair rotunda of Quincy Hall, preparatory to leasing the same to the Produce Exchange Association—cost estimated at $3000—came down from the Board of Aldermen and the order was read once.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—In order that this matter may be closed up and the work commenced on the building, I would move that the rule be suspended, that the order may take its second reading tonight.

The rule was suspended and the order was passed in concurrence.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

The order to authorize location and construction of Mystic Valley Sewer in conformity with chap. 202, Acts 1875, as amended by chap. 11, Acts 1877, came down from the Board of Aldermen, the question being on giving the order its first reading.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—This order, sir, is to construct a sewer in the Mystic Valley to carry the sewage of certain manufactories some eight or ten miles from the city of Boston, more or less, to one of the Mystic ponds, located I think in the town of Medford. At the time the original order was brought up in the Council last year a gentleman from Charlestown, a member of the Council, showed us some samples of the water which appeared in a very unhealthy condition, taken, it was said, on its way to the city [Charlestown] and said that the water was really dangerous to the inhabitants of Charlestown. On account of the arguments made at that time that there was a necessity for purifying the water, it was thought by the Council that unless something was done we might have sickness in that section of the city which would be fatal, perhaps, to that portion of the citizens who used the water for a common beverage. But, sir, since this order was passed I have not heard from any one that there has been any complaint in regard to the water in that section of the city. Now, sir, this involves an expense of $220,000; and it is not considered to be a permanent sewer, but merely a temporary one, for a few years, to convey the sewage from certain factories in the country to the lower Mystic pond, not to tide-water. There was a proposition to have a larger sewer built which should carry all the sewage of that territory to tide-water, and probably the towns through which it would pass would have paid their portion of the expense of it. But as it would cost considerably more it was thought best to build this temporary sewer on account of the condition of the water at that time. Lately I have been reading the report of a member of the Council from that section of the city, on a matter of great public interest to the citizens of Boston, which not only improves the sanitary condition of the city, but will render it attractive to residents; and I see he states in that report that no public improvement, no great public work, is completed, that does not exceed by fifty per cent. the estimated cost; and that in a large number of cases it exceeds three times the estimated cost. Now, if this sewer is estimated to cost $220,000, we should know whether the estimates are correct or not, or whether it is to cost $440,000 instead of $220,000. In reading this order as it came from the Board of Aldermen I noticed that it was introduced by one member of that Board, and appears to be an independent order of his own—not coming from any committee or having been referred to any committee; but an order to confirm an order which was passed by the Council of last year.

Now, sir, there was an order passed by the Council last year, in both branches, signed by the Mayor, to petition the Legislature to give one additional member of the Common Council from Ward 22. That matter was referred to this present Legislature. When it came up I had an interview with the chairman of the Committee on Legislative Matters to get him to favor it. He said he was entirely opposed to passing any order passed by a previous City Government; that we had nothing to do with orders passed by previous city governments; but that an order should be introduced into this Council. I urged him to allow the bill to be presented by the committee to be approved by the City Council; so that when it came back to us it would be subject to our approval. But he objected to that decidedly, and said it should be an independent order, and recommended to me to introduce one, and then if the City Government approved that, he would report it. I did have an order of that kind drawn up. In the meantime I found that we had leave to withdraw at the Legislature, and therefore I took no further action upon it.

Now, sir, if it was important that an independent order should be presented in that matter, I think it should be important that an independent order should be presented in this matter. It seems to me it should be referred to some committee who should report upon it. It appears that after this order passed the City Council last year, it was found that the act of the Legislature which gave us authority to build this sewer and to take land for the purpose was inoperative, and not what the city wanted. Consequently, not from any action from our City Council, but from action in some other direction, there has been a bill passed by the present Legislature to grant the power to build this sewer. I think very few members of the Council know what the provisions of that bill are, and therefore I move that this matter be referred to the Committee on Water.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I did not happen to have the honor to be a member of the Council in 1875, when this matter was first before us, but I find that in 1875 the City Council of Boston asked for an act to construct a sewer in the Mystic Valley, and in 1876 the City Council voted the money to build it. For some cause or other, which I think was fully explained to the satisfaction of every gentleman here, the plans and specifications as passed by the Legislature were wrong,—on the wrong side of the railroad or stream. The Water Commissioners, hearing of this fact, wanted to get the act amended. It is only necessary to pass this order in order to give them the authority to go on. I am perfectly willing that this should be referred to the Committee on Water, although I am satisfied, with a majority of the Committee on Water, that it is not necessary. I hope the motion will not prevail, because it may deter the work from going on; and it is very necessary that we should build the sewer as soon as possible.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3—The opposition of the gentleman from Ward 22 appears to be that he has several old scores he wants to wipe off. I don't think this work should be retarded by referring it to the Committee on Water. The plans are all made and all that was necessary was to get this act amended so that we would not have to go upon the west side of the brook or river instead of on the east side. I think everybody understands this matter. Certainly the older members do thoroughly. I hope it will not be referred to the Committee on Water.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—This matter of the Mystic sewer has been agitated a great deal. I believe there has been no doubt but what every man acquainted with it thinks something should be done. There are 100,000 people using that water, and there has been a great deal of complaint. It is not pleasant to any one who has ever visited the Mystic Valley, when he takes up a tumbler of water to drink it, to think what is poured in it. How much hurt it has done I cannot say. The question has been agitated and the money has been appropriated. A little mistake in the legislation has been remedied. As the gentleman from Ward 22 says, the sewer is not to come down to tide. I would say that it is to enter the lower Mystic Pond, which is fresh water; but it is tide-water and every tide flows into it. If there is a necessity for building the sewer, as I firmly believe there is, the quicker we commence it the better; and as we are told it is now all straight, I hope this order will pass. I don't see any necessity to report it back to the committee. As the gentleman says, all the old members understand it, and I have no doubt any member can obtain all the information he desires from the Mystic Water Board, past or present. I hope there will be no delay, and that it will not be committed.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—The gentleman states that the difficulty was that they had made their estimates for this sewer to be built upon the wrong side of the river.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I said, or should have said, that the act of the Legislature located it in a place where we did not need it.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—Where were the estimates made?

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—The estimates were made by the City Engineer and the money was appropriated by the Council.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I did not understand that the estimates were made upon the present route upon which they propose to build the sewer. I am just informed of that fact. I don't understand that the Mystic water has been very bad of late, and the gentleman has not gone so far as to state that in his remarks. I know that some years after the Cochituate water was introduced into Boston the water became very bad for perhaps a year, so that almost every one had to purchase some sort of a filter and have the drinking water filtered before it could be properly used. Afterwards it cured itself. Now, with regard to building a sewer at this distance from Boston, it seems to me it ought to be, if possible, built in connection with some towns upon the route, so that the expense might be divided. At any rate, it seems to me the manner in which this order is introduced, being, as it is, an independent order from one member of the City Government, it should properly go to a committee. If the Committee on Water have made up their minds in regard to it, I should not object to having it referred to the Committee on Sewers, who probably have not looked into the matter. I know myself, as regards the past City Government, that probably outside of the Committee on Water there were not ten men in the Council that ever went to the Mystic Water Works, or knew much about them anyway.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—I believe all the members of the Council are as well prepared to act on this question now as they will be at any other time, and I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered, the order took its second reading and under the rules went over.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I move a suspension of the rules, that the order may take its passage tonight.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18—I should like to know what the estimates are or what the appropriation is for that sewer.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3—The amount last year was $205,000. This year labor and material is much cheaper and it will be less.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—In conversation with a member of the Water Board a few days ago he informed me that at present they should not expend more than $75,000—not nearly all the appropriation. There is some portion of the work that may not need to be done at all; in the opinion of the board, not at present, and $75,000 at the outside is all that will be expended at present.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the gentleman will withdraw his motion, that the members of the Council may have an opportunity to look into it.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—This matter has been before the City Government for the last three years, and the citizens of Charlestown have been suffering for the want of pure water for some time. We have waited some time for the action of the Water Board and they gave the excuse last year that on account of something wrong in the act they could not go on. I think that those who take water from the Mystic Valley, the citizens of Charlestown, East Boston, Somerville, Chelsea and other places, ought to have the benefit of pure water. We have delayed this three years. The estimates have been made, and are sufficient to cover all the expense, and I do not see why we should defer it from week to week. The Water Board are ready to go on with the work, the plans are all made, and I do not see why we should object to it when these citizens are suffering for pure water.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—So far as the people of Charlestown or East Boston are concerned, I am as anxious as any other citizen of Boston that they should have good water. But this is a matter which appears now to have been reduced from $200,000 down to $75,000. My opinion is that today we could do away with this Mystic water altogether. We have water enough in Sudbury River to supply East Boston and Charlestown, and not build this sewer at all. It is a matter of some importance to the Council at this time, and I think gentlemen will be more ready to vote on it at the next meeting, and to vote understandingly, than they will be if it is forced tonight. All I want is time to look into the matter and determine whether this expenditure ought to be made, and whether or not it is proper to make it at this time. I hope the gentleman will withdraw his motion and allow members of the Council to look into the matter.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I think the gentleman has had three years to post himself upon this matter.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I have.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—It would be a proper question for a young member, but a member who has been here as long as he has, I should think would understand it well enough. I do not say that he should understand it as well as I do, because I have been suffering for the want of pure water for eight or ten years. This money has been appropriated. As the gentleman has said, perhaps we can do away with this Mystic Valley water; but I think it would be rather a poor speculation. It is a paying institution. It pays better than Cochituate ever did, and I don't see why we should dispend with it. If there was any fair reason for it I would withdraw my motion.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 11—I for one came here without having knowledge which would lead me to vote intelligently upon this order; I would therefore hope that it may not be acted upon tonight but that it may be referred and may come up at the next meeting.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I do not imagine it will make any great difference, but in case there was any objection made, Mr. Sawyer, the chairman of the Water Board, wished me to give their approval and this information. As I understand, the money is all appropriated and the Water Board have the power to go ahead and spend it on the work if they choose. But in drawing the original plans, it was thought at that time that the specifications were drawn for the east side of the railroad or stream. In carrying the plans out practically, on a closer examination, it was found necessary to work on both sides of the stream. The act of the Legislature has merely changed the plans and given the commissioners power to go on one side instead of the other in certain cases. It is merely what you might call the correction of a clerical error. A reference to the committee really makes one week's difference in the time when the laborers can commence work. I suppose there is no possible reason why it should not pass, and I hope it will tonight.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—If I understand it aright, this order does not come from any committee. Nobody is responsible for it in its present shape, no committee is responsible for it; and under these circumstances it seems to be very unreasonable to suspend the rules and hurry it through tonight. It ought to take its ordinary course, at least, and time should be given us to see whether there is anything objectionable about it.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—It seems to me there is a committee responsible for it, and that is the Committee on Water of last year. The City Council of last year voted an appropriation, and this Council really have nothing to do with the appropriation. They merely go through the form of giving the Water Commissioners power to construct the sewer, which they claim they have now.

The motion to suspend the rule was lost on a division, 29 for and 28 against—a two-thirds vote being required to suspend the rule.

VALUATION OF PROPERTY AND TAXATION.

A communication was received from the City Clerk, that the order for the Mayor to appoint a commission to consider a plan for a more uniform and equitable valuation of property for taxation, expense of the commission not to exceed $300, was rejected by the Board of Aldermen at their last meeting. Placed on file.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order to remit the tax for 1876 on forfeited estate on Albany street, corner East Newton street. Passed in concurrence.

Order for Treasurer to expend $100 for extra clerk hire. Passed in concurrence.

Order for Collector to expend not exceeding $3800 for extra clerk hire for collection of taxes. Passed in concurrence.

Order to pay $34.25 to Stephen Connolly, for extra work in construction of a sewer on the Common. Passed in concurrence.

Order to contract for three years with Artemas Winchester for removal of house offal from West Roxbury, at $900 per annum. Passed in concurrence.

THE NOMINATION OF JAMES M. KEITH.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 moved to reconsider the vote whereby the nomination of James M. Keith as a member of Board of Health was confirmed.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I make this motion, Mr. President, because I think the circumstances attending this confirmation were somewhat extraordinary. The nomination was first received here—

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I object to the gentleman's going on to give his reasons for making his motion until the question is before the Council.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—In reply to the gentleman, I have to say that I stated that I had risen to make a motion, but I have not yet made it.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I object to your giving your reasons before the question is before the Council.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I would ask the ruling of the Chair whether I am out of order?

The President—The Chair thinks it is competent for the gentleman to preface any motion he may have to make before making the motion; but the Chair thinks the motion for reconsideration cannot be entertained; it would be out of order.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I not having made the motion, how can the Chair rule it out of order.

The President—The Chair will withdraw the ruling.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Then I say that I intend to make this motion for the reason that I believe it will be fair to again take the sense of the Council upon the nomination, it having been rejected once by a very large vote and having been rejected a second time and after considerable effort finally passed. Now, if we can test the question once more it is fair we should do so. My reason for wishing to test the question is this: I am one who believes firmly that it is for the interest of the city that all important executive positions should be filled by nominations by the Mayor. I believe the Mayor should be held strictly responsible for the person he nominates and for the system upon which he makes his nominations; and I believe that the members of the Council should be responsible for the confirmations they pass. Believing that, and wishing that this question of responsibility may rest upon those absent last evening, as well as upon those present, I move that the vote by which Mr. James M. Keith was confirmed as a member of the Board of Health be reconsidered, if I may forestall the objection of the Chair.

The President—The Chair thinks it his duty to rule that the motion is out of order on the ground that under rule 66, no question can be twice reconsidered. This matter has already been once reconsidered.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—With all due respect for the Chair, I would respectfully appeal from the decision of the Chair, upon this ground: That the question which was passed upon before was the vote refusing to confirm Mr. Keith, and it was reconsidered. The question which will now be put before this Council is whether this nomination shall be reconfirmed.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I object to the gentleman's arguing the question.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I do not know where the gentleman finds his ground for objecting.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—In the rules and orders.

The President—The Chair thinks the gentleman from Ward 13 is mistaken.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I would like to know if the gentleman can find a rule which prevents me from speaking to a point of order.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I do not object to his speaking to a point of order, but to his speaking on the question of an appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Mr. Thompson—The rule is this:

"No appeal shall be entertained unless it is seconded, and no other business shall be in order until the question of appeal has been decided."

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—My point, I think, is well taken, that this motion has not been seconded.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I second the motion.

The President—The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I do not think it is necessary for me to waste the time of the Council. I merely state my appeal and the grounds of my appeal, which are that the thing we are now considering is not the same considered before. The thing considered before was the vote whereby the nomination was not approved. This is a different vote—the vote whereby the nomination was approved.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—The gentleman desires a little information in relation to debate upon the question. I will call his attention to rule 60 of the Council.

The President—The Chair thinks that only has reference to questions of order, and not to questions of appeal. A motion to appeal from the decision of the Chair is a subject of debate.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—On this appeal I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The President—In order that the Council may understand the ground on which the Chair rules this appeal out of order, he has prepared a statement which, with the permission of the Council, he will read.

It is the understanding of the Chair that the ordinances of the city are of superior authority to, and control the rules and orders of this Common Council. That the ordinances also supersede what is known as parliamentary law. That the statute laws of the Commonwealth are superior to all of these. The city charter, having the force of statute law, permits the passage by the City Council of such by-laws or ordinances as are not inconsistent with the statute law. The joint rules of the City Council recognize the power of an ordinance and the supremacy of the statute law. If this be correct, then the rules and orders of this Common Council, as well as parliamentary law, become inoperative just so far, and so far only, as they conflict with the city ordinances or the statute law.

When, therefore, the statutes authorize and the ordinances provide that his Honor the Mayor shall appoint, subject to the approval and confirmation of the City Council, a certain person to a specified office, no application of the rules and orders of this Common Council, or of parliamentary law, can be made to defeat the purpose of the statute or of the ordinance.

It seems to the Chair that it is the duty of this branch of the City Council upon receiving notice of an appointment by his Honor the Mayor requiring by law the approval of the City Council to proceed as soon as it conveniently can to take such action as it may deem proper in the direction of confirmation or rejection.

At a meeting of this Common Council held April 19, notice was received of the appointment by his Honor the Mayor of Mr. James M. Keith as a member of the Board of Health. That appointment failed of confirmation in this branch. A motion to reconsider was made, which was lost.

If this was one of the ordinary legislative proceedings of this Council, its own rules, as well as parliamentary law, would have prevented any further action upon the confirmation of Mr. Keith during the present year, in consequence of the failure of the motion to reconsider. But the city charter gives authority for the City Council to appoint or constitute a Board of Health, and the city ordinance provides that the Mayor shall appoint such a board with the approval of the City Council.

The Chair thinks that any rule or order of this Common Council, or parliamentary rule, having a tendency to prevent such appointment, is superseded by the statute and ordinance providing for that appointment, so far as one conflicts with the other.

Hence the parliamentary effect of the failure of the motion to reconsider was not sufficient to preclude his Honor the Mayor from sending in a second appointment of the same person, nor could it prevent this Council from taking action thereon. The Mayor did appoint a second time Mr. James M. Keith as a member of the Board of Health. This came before the Council on the 26th of April and the appointment was rejected. A reconsideration was moved and acted upon on the 3d inst. The reconsideration was carried. The Council then approved and confirmed the appointment. A second motion to reconsider has been made, which the Chair thinks cannot be entertained. In relation to this matter there has been but one question before the Council. It admits of no division. The question has been, Shall this Council approve or confirm the appointment of Mr. Keith? Yes or no. Whether the Council acted affirmatively or negatively, there has been but one question. Having had one reconsideration of the question, when the Council voted in the negative, another reconsideration of the question cannot be had when the Council voted in the affirmative on the ground that it is another question.

The Chair rules that the present motion to reconsider being offered for the second time upon the same question, is out of order.

For authorities in support of this ruling he would cite Barclay's digest edition of 1876, page 198, "When a motion to reconsider has been once put and decided, it is not in order to repeat the motion."

Cushing, Law and Practice, section 1273, "When one motion to reconsider has been made and decided either in the affirmative or negative, no other motion to reconsider the same question is admissible." Cushing—Note on page 895 says, "The rule when stated broadly and fully may be thus expressed, that when the house has already done a particular thing, that thing can neither be undone nor otherwise done, and that when the House has refused to do a particular thing, that thing cannot be done."

"Section 2135. A question once decided in the negative cannot be renewed in the same session of Parliament."

"Section 2305. No question or motion can regularly be offered upon which the judgment of the House has been expressed during the current session."

"No question shall be twice reconsidered. It sometimes happens that a bill is passed, and that then, after reconsideration, it is killed. The question has arisen whether the result of the two votes on the principal question being different there can be a motion to reconsider the vote tonight (or the vote passed in an opposite case). Such a motion would not be in order. The question having been twice tried, this is all that fairness requires, and all that a regard for the despatch of business will allow."

Rule 66 of the Common Council says, "When a motion for reconsideration has been decided, that decision shall not be reconsidered, and no question shall be twice reconsidered."

On these grounds the Chair decides that the motion is out of order.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I have the impression that in former years, when I have been in the Council, there have been rulings on this question which differed from the present ruling. I think the Clerk has some record of rulings on this point, and I would like to know whether he has any record of any rulings on this point.

The President—The Chair is unable to state. The Clerk states that there has been such a decision, but he has no record here.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—Do I understand there have been decisions the opposite of the present ruling?

The President—The Clerk states that the rulings upon that point have been different. There has been a reconsideration of a negative and of an affirmative vote, as the gentleman from Ward 9 desired.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I rise to inquire, because in my mind in his written statement of his ruling I understood the Chair to say that the rules of the Council did not apply. I should like to inquire whether it would not be the result of the Chair's ruling that the Council having once rejected the nomination of Mr. Keith, whether its action at the second meeting, when it reconsidered that, was not void, and, therefore, we have never properly and legally confirmed the nomination of Mr. Keith.

The President—The Chair thinks the rule is inoperative only so far as it conflicts with the statute providing for the appointment of a member of the Board of Health.

The question was, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Council? The decision was sustained—37 yeas, 25 nays.

SCHOOL ACCOMMODATIONS.

An order was received from the secretary of the School Board, that the City Council be requested to furnish additional accommodations for the primary classes now located in Rice's Block, Allston District. Referred to the Committee on Public Instruction. Sent up.

FIRE ALARMS.

The report of fires and alarms for the month of April, 1877, was received from the Board of Fire Commissioners. Sent up.

COMPENSATION FOR GRAVEL.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 presented the petition of Phineas E. Gay, for compensation for gravel deposited on the Northampton-street district, valued at $3395. Referred to Committee on Claims.

INSPECTOR OF THE ABATTOIR.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10 presented the following:

The Joint Standing Committee on Salaries, to whom was recommended the report and order in relation to establishing the salary to be paid the inspector to be appointed by the Board of Health, under the provisions of chapter 144 of the acts of 1876, have conferred with said board through its chairman, and would respectfully present herewith a written report, giving information as to the nature of the duties of said inspector as instructed by the City Council.

The committee, in submitting the report of the chairman of the Board of Health as to the duties of the proposed inspector, would add that the proper performance of those duties requires the services of a man of recognized character and ability; that there are now in the abattoir sixteen or seventeen slaughtering houses carried on by as many different owners; that the duties of the inspector will require the whole time and constant supervision of the officer in this connection; that beef has been sold from the abattoir which was dead when taken in to be dressed, and it will be noticed that the chairman of the Board of Health states that since the visit of the committee to the new abattoir last month two whole beeves have been siezed and destroyed, being unfit for food.

Your committee believe that the importance of having these duties of inspection properly and faithfully performed cannot be overestimated, affecting as they do the health of the citizens of the city.

For these reasons the committee would respectfully recommend the passage of the original order reported by them April 19 last:

Ordered, That the salary of the Inspector to be appointed by the Board of Health in accordance with the provisions of chapter 144 of the acts of 1876 shall be fixed at the rate of $1500 per annum, beginning with the date of said appointment and continuing until otherwise ordered.

The report was accepted and order passed. Sent up.

VENTILATION OF THE COUNCIL CHAMBER.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 submitted the following report:

The Committee on Public Buildings, being directed by the City Council to consider and report upon the expediency of providing for better ventilation in the Common Council chamber, beg leave to report, That they have practically considered the subject, and find, after the examination of various methods and projects in the way of ventilation applicable in this case, that an expenditure of at least $3000 will be required to provide what promises any permanent method for improved ventilation of the Common Council chamber. Your committee do not feel justified in recommending at this time a project requiring so large an expenditure of money.

They would therefore report inexpedient.

For the Committee,

C. J. SPENCELEY.

Minority Report.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 submitted the following minority report and order:

The undersigned respectfully dissents from the report of the majority of the Committee on Public Buildings that "it is inexpedient to provide better ventilation in the Common Council chamber."

He believes that it is expedient and practicable to provide for the health and comfort of those called to legislate in this branch of the City Council, even at a considerable cost.

He is satisfied that an improvement can be made in the ventilation of the chamber, and recommends the introduction of Mihan's method, which has been tried in buildings for public purposes and found to work successfully. The patent is introduced by Messrs. F. Tudor & Co., who in their proposition on file in the office of the Superintendent of Public Buildings offer to put the system in perfect working order in the Council chamber for the sum of $3000. To do this will require a four horse-power engine and a blower to be placed in the basement, with counter shaft capable of delivering 10,000 cubic feet of air per minute, the re-arrangement of the radiators, and the building of air ducts from the basement to the ceiling. The substantial character of the building makes the cost of cutting for the distribution of air very expensive, all of which must be done with a view not to injure its architectural appearance.

The discharge and the delivery of air are arranged for in such a way as to avoid draughts.

The same plan, if adopted, is suitable for applying to the Aldermen's room without an increase of apparatus, only arrangements would have to be made in that room similar to those proposed for the Council chamber, for the distribution of the supply, and for exhausting the vitiated air, the engine, blower and heating apparatus being sufficient for both rooms.

Messrs. Tudor & Co. guarantee perfect success in this work, and demand no payment on account of their contract until the same has been found to work successfully.

The undersigned feels confident of its success, and from the expressed desire of many members of the City Council that the method may be adopted, he would recommend the passage of the accompanying order:

Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to provide better ventilation for the Common Council chamber by the introduction of the method proposed by F. Tudor & Co., on file in the office of the Superintendent of Public Buildings, at a cost not to exceed the sum of three thousand dollars; the expense to be charged to the appropriation to be provided for that purpose.

NATHAN S. WILBUR.

The question was upon the acceptance of the majority report.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I would like to inquire of the committee what it would cost to cut a hole through the roof to daylight and put a slide across it, so that we might close it or keep it open.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I think we had an estimate upon that; but I think Mr. Wilbur knows more about it than I do. I think it would cost $800.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I would like to ask the gentleman in what public buildings this system recommended is now in operation.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—This system has been introduced in quite a number of school buildings in Cambridge; it has also been introduced in the State House and is found to work admirably there, according to the statement of the Sergeant at Arms. It has also been introduced in the new Trinity Church, where I am told it works admirably. The expense of putting this in is, I know, quite large; but the guarantee that it will be a success is something that seems to me should weigh heavily on our minds with regard to adopting it. The idea of cutting a hole through the ceiling at a cost of some $850 is virtually throwing away the $850, or at best an experiment. This is not an experiment. It is something that has been tried, and it has been found that there is nothing that will supersede it. I believe if this contract is made, they are willing to hold the city harmless for any expense that they may have been put to if it does not work as represented and give satisfaction. I would move that the minority report be substituted for the majority.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—While I have been on this sub-committee on the matter of ventilation, I think that the gentleman last up has looked at a great many different modes and devices for ventilating this chamber. I think no two of the gentlemen who have said they can ventilate this chamber can agree. I thought when the gentleman spoke about throwing away $850 I did not know but that we might throw away $3000. I do not know but what this system may work very well. It seemed to me to be the most practical of the many we have seen and examined. And yet, sir, I don't feel justified in voting to pay $3000 for an experiment like this upon this building. It is an experiment, I believe. The gentleman says Mr. Tudor will not ask for money until it has been proved a success. I understand that has been tried in this City Government before. We have a system of ventilation now in City Hall which cost nearly as much money, which a gentleman put in with the same guarantee. The Committee on Public Buildings would not pay him, and immediately he put an order into the City Council and received every cent of his money, and it is all thrown away. I think, according to the estimates, there has been something like six or eight thousand dollars spent upon ventilation of this building, and yet it is no better than it was before. I, for one, do not believe in spending so much money for the little time we sit here in this Council chamber. I have, during the past year and a half, on one or two evenings, been invaded by a bad atmosphere; but I think the most of it has come from the anterooms, where gentlemen have been smoking. If we were here day after day, as they are in the schoolrooms or in the courtrooms, perhaps I should be more willing to spend this sum of money; but as we are here only a few hours once a week—most of the time during the summer months—I think we get ventilation enough. It is only a few months in the winter when we need warm or cold air that any ventilation is necessary—I think it would be inexpedient. Another thing, if you wish to satisfy every one of the seventy-two gentlemen of this Council, I think you will have to build seventy-two closets, and have each man get into his closet and regulate its ventilation. For I have found that while I have been comparatively easy, my next neighbor has been very warm and the gentleman on the other side of me very cold. I find it is very hard to please everybody. The atmosphere which suits one will not suit another. I do not believe any system which you can get will satisfy gentlemen. We must go on as we have been going on, the best way we can without paying so much money for an experiment—for I really believe the whole matter is but an experiment.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I am one of those who have suffered a great deal from the bad air of this hall, and I think others have; and I hope we shall do something to try to remedy it. I think we may well ask the city to pay for something for our comfort while we are here. It may make our ideas a little more clear, and we may attend to our business a little better, if we are working in pure air rather than in foul air. The gentleman says it is hard to suit everybody—that some people are apt to be hot when others have been cold. It seems to me the trouble has been, as it is now, we can only ventilate and get fresh air by opening some window, which lets a cold draught in upon a few and does not help the rest for a long time; before the great mass of us get relief by fresh air, a few who sit where the draught comes get frozen. As I understand it, this system proposed by the minority report is the system which throws air into the room warmed to a proper temperature, so that it would not be so hot as the air which comes from the furnace here ordinarily, so hot as to make us uncomfortable; neither would it be so cold that those who sit near where it is coming in will be inconvenienced by it. It is substantially a system for furnishing good, fresh air of a warm and agreeable temperature and throwing it in at various places and on the whole keeping us supplied with fresh air of an agreeable temperature. The system seems reasonable and it has been made to work, I believe, in various places. The party who proposes to put it in is a respectable and responsible gentleman, and I really believe we cannot spend money more reasonably than to spend this comparatively small amount to give ourselves and our successors in this hall comfort, whereas we have been in the past very uncomfortable a great many times.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—I hope the motion of the gentleman from Ward 20 will prevail. I think the health and comfort of the seventy-two members of the Council is a matter of some consideration. I can speak individually. I have taken cold by the draughts in this room, paid doctors' bills and been detained from my business. I do not think this committee have acted justly in this matter. I do not know but they have done the best they could. They have delayed this matter three months and the cold weather is over. I do not suppose we shall suffer much the next three months for the want of ventilation; but during that cold weather, with the winds from the west and northwest, and with that window open as it has necessarily been; with that Robinson ventilator that never can be closed nor ever opened—if it happens to be warped open it cannot be warped shut—there is a continual draught from that direction across the hall to those doors, so that every session when the wind was north or west, two-thirds of the members of the Council in this part of the hall could not sit in their seats. The gentleman from Ward 19 is in a part of the hall where there is no draught.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I will state that I have felt cold air coming down upon my head while the gentleman has been talking.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—You have got the wind east tonight; but of course he does not feel the draught as we do here. If I remember rightly this committee was appointed to devise some means of ventilating this chamber; not to spend three months and then report inexpedient. I think the minority report is a very wise one, and one that the city is amply able to adopt. This is the year of economy and retrenchment! I know that, but the $3000, compared with the health and comfort of members, is very trifling. I brought a friend in here the other evening, and he stayed only twenty minutes and had to leave; he could not stay here, on account of the ventilation, the air was so bad. I have been informed by members of this Council that they have examined this system at the State House, and that it works admirably. Now if this is known to work in other public buildings in the city and in the State, and is a good system of ventilation, I think it is only wise and just economy that it should be adopted in this hall. I think my tax bill would be a great deal less with it than my doctor's bill without it.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 9—I have never suffered any great inconvenience on account of air. I thought it was very good, and that there was very good company here; but if the health of the seventy gentlemen here is in great danger and jeopardy there ought to be something done, and I don't forget the 150 or 200 in the gallery who come in to look upon us must be in tough places. If we need ventilation I certainly think they do sitting above us. But if, as has been mentioned here, it would clear our heads to understand this matter, I don't know but it would pay for Boston to appropriate something for the head-clearing business, but we cannot properly get at it under this order. It is a matter of some importance, and I move that it be specially assigned for half-past eight o'clock at the next meeting of the Council.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I hope the report of the minority will be accepted and the order passed. I speak for one who does suffer from bad ventilation. Others may be so constituted that it may not inconvenience them; but I find myself with the same symptoms that I have when I go away from places I know to be badly ventilated. I find the natural temperature of the extremes of my body just changed. My feet grow cold and my head grows hot. It is exceedingly uncomfortable and disagreeable to have, as is very often the case in cold weather, cold air coming down upon me from this window and ventilator. During the past winter I took three severe colds from having that thing done. It is true for this part of the year the greatest of our troubles is over, but this change is not for a short time. I hope this building will stand here for a hundred years and that the Common Council will sit here. I do not see why we should not go on and experiment until proper ventilation is achieved. Three thousand dollars, if it brings anything like partial success, will be excellently well spent; and if ten times as much were necessary to ventilate this or any other public building, I believe the money would be well spent. I hope the motion to substitute will pass.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—As a member of that committee, with all the plans for ventilation that have been brought up before the committee, I was not satisfied that any of them would be a success in this Council chamber but this one I examined. I went with Mr. Mihan to the State House and examined it all the way through, from the cellar to the hall of the House of Representatives. I found as far as I could go that everything worked well. I even tried it where it ventilated under the seats. I held a match for fear there would be too much air come out of those holes, but I found the current so gentle you could hardly perceive it on the watch two inches away from the seat. I went all over the whole system at the State House. I inquired of the sergeant at arms, and he said it was a thorough system, and he was well satisfied that it did a great deal of good; that it was a great deal better than any other system they had ever had, and the State has spent a great deal of money in ventilating the State House, and all the other expeiditures have proved failures. I saw where they had put in their apparatus to take their cold air from the street, but Mr. Mitchell stated that there was no system they had adopted that had proved a success except this. I also inquired of the messengers and of some of the old members of the Legislature, and they told me it was far better than anything they had ever had before. But as one member, not suffering a very great deal here, I did not feel justified in signing the minority report; neither do I believe in experiments in this regard. I do not believe in expending $300 or $150 for something we know nothing about. I believe every time we expend two or three hundred dollars for experiments it is money thrown away. I am satisfied that this system will do what is required to be done in this chamber. It took me three hours to examine it, and I came away perfectly satisfied, though I must state I went there opposed to it.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 24—I do not understand that any member of the committee has been dissatisfied or thought that the system would not work. The main objection was that they did not want to recommend it because of the expense.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The committee seems to be divided in regard to the expediency of spending so much money at this time. If we are to judge from what we have heard, I think $3000 is a mere trifle for the improvement, when we are bound to stay here. If a person intends to make any remarks, to act intelligently and not be stupid, it is necessary to have a well-ventilated hall to think in and to speak in; and the only question would be whether this would be an experiment or whether it would be sure or nearly sure to secure the object sought. In order to get this information I move that it be recommitted to the committee, in order that we may have just that information.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I hope this matter will not be recommitted to the committee. They have certainly had it in charge long enough, and I for one do not see where there is going to be any information gained. Certainly all we can get we have given to the Council, and I do not see where we are going to get any more.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—If we can get the information now, I am satisfied. I ask the question, Whether, leaving out the matter of expense, it is the unanimous opinion of the committee that this proposed system will ventilate the Council chamber thoroughly? If I can get an affirmative answer to that question now, I would just as soon vote now as at any other time.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I, for one, do not know whether it will do it or not. They have the apparatus fitted up at the State House, and there is a current of air passing through the various passages wherever they are carried. But I do not know what it will do in this Council chamber, and I do not believe they do. Why, if you had heard the several gentlemen who come to ventilate this chamber you would be astonished. One man comes with the idea that he can take the hot air from the top of the room and carry it down cellar, and purify it and bring it back. Another man says it cannot be done, and that the air will be poisonous. Another man says he is going to pump the air into the room, but does not say how the bad air is going to escape. They are continually contradicting each other. That system they have got there, that engine works perfectly; the air comes up very nicely in their little room; but whether they can pump up air forty, fifty or sixty feet, that is another question, to my mind. You may send it back to that committee, but it will send you back the same report. There are three Aldermen on that committee, and not one of them believes in spending $3000 to ventilate this Council chamber.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Would they have any trouble in expending $5000 for ventilating the Aldermen's chamber?

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—In answer to that, Mr. Mihan said he would ventilate that in connection with this for $1500. One of the Aldermen said if you took off the top of City Hall you would not get any ventilation, and I do not know but it is true. Still, we have found the system in operation in schoolhouses, in churches and at the State House. In reply to the gentleman from Ward 18, who says he has caught cold, I do not know but he did, but perhaps he has been somewhere else. I know I went to church the other Sunday and caught the worst cold I have had this year. I do not think it is a good criterion. Perhaps he caught cold by opening his mouth too quickly when he went out of doors. I do not think he could safely say he caught it here in this chamber. The gentleman from the 6th Ward called me over there to get a current of air, and I was warmer than I was here. I notice when I tell these gentlemen that it is not cold here they explain how the bad air don't come down this side, but that it comes down there and gently waves up here over our heads. I cannot understand it. I do not, myself, think they can give us just what they say they can. I believe it is merely an experiment, which will cost us $3000.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18—It strikes me we have had a great deal upon the subject of ventilation, and I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The motion to recommit was lost; the motion to substitute the minority report for the majority report prevailed, and the order was referred to the Committee on Finance.

PLAYGROUNDS.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 offered the following:

The Committee on Common and Public Grounds, who were requested to consider and report upon the expediency of providing suitable playgrounds at convenient places in different sections of the city, having considered the subject, beg leave to submit the following report:

The committee are of the opinion that it is expedient to provide playgrounds as contemplated in the order which was referred to them, and have examined different sections of the city with a view to selecting lots of land suitable for the purpose. The necessary lots can be at a moderate expense got ready for use in a very short time. As the expenditure was not contemplated when the estimates for the present financial year were prepared, the amount which will be required was not included in the appropriation bill, and it will be necessary that an additional appropriation should be made for the purpose. Your committee would therefore respectfully recommend the passage of the following order:

Ordered, That the Committee on Common and Public Grounds be authorized to provide suitable playgrounds in different sections of the city, at an expense not exceeding $2000; and that the Committee on Finance be requested to provide the means.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I would like to state that during the past six weeks, the Committee on Common and Public Grounds have visited various parts of the city, in reply to the invitations of citizens of those localities. They have found quite a number of available spots for playgrounds in Roxbury, West Roxbury, Brighton, Boston proper, and, I believe, in East Boston. Those in the immediate vicinity of the city, that is, a certain portion of the land on the Back Bay, belonging to the Huntington-avenue Land Company, can be had for nothing, and one or two outside of the city can be had on these terms. I think in all cases it is necessary for the city to do something in the way of putting the land in order. A certain amount of expense is necessary to have the land available for this purpose. For instance, there is a very large tract of land down beyond Dartmouth-street Bridge which is large enough to accommodate two full games of base ball. It was estimated that it would require from $175 to $200 to put it in order. In the outlying districts the land that might be used for playgrounds is used for agricultural purposes, such as pasturage or raising crops or hay, and the owners are willing to let it to the city if the city will pay the price they would naturally get for the purpose it has been used. The committee came to the conclusion that it would be necessary to appropriate a small sum of money; they could hardly tell just what it would cost, and they have not been able to make any definite estimate; but the city must appropriate something or the scheme might as well be abandoned.

As far as relates to the parade ground on the Common, the committee, in a week more, I think it is, when the grass is sufficiently grown, propose to take down the fence now there, and throw the parade ground open on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons for the purpose of allowing children to play all games except base ball. It has been deemed that base ball at that point was a dangerous game, and therefore it would be best to exclude that single game. But for all other purposes on these afternoons the Common is to be used. It is understood from the experience that has been had in Brooklyn and New York, that in the three or four days intervening the grass will grow sufficiently, that during the whole summer that portion of the Common will be covered with greensward, instead of being a mass of oaked earth. The committee, and I can speak for them in this respect, are unanimous in the opinion that either this order must pass or the whole plan be abandoned.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—What is going to be done with our children in ill health who cannot go to the Common on Wednesday or Saturday, who are in ill health, who have no time or place to play? Many of our children at the north and west parts of the city are unwell during the summer months. I would like to know where they are going if the parade ground can only be opened on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons?

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—It is very difficult to make any definite rule that will cover all cases. The committee are not strict in the matter, but they do not wish to have the parade ground made a general playground except at these times. On all occasions I think the playground can be used by children or invalids, that is, for small children for ordinary playing purposes, without much restriction; but as a public playground we felt it was necessary to restrict it to Wednesday and Saturday.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I think, sir, the committee have been very liberal in regard to the Common. I guess if the gentleman from Ward 19 would read the mortality reports he would find that the North and West Ends of the city are very healthy. I think the committee has done fully as well as they could afford to in removing the fences and opening the playground two days in a week.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I do not see where the liberality comes in. I should call it anything but liberality. I think if they stop playing base ball they ought to be allowed to play there at any time.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I think we are straying from the question, which is whether we shall appropriate this $2000 for playgrounds. I hope we shall. The order was read twice and passed. Sent up.

FORT-HILL SQUARE.

Mr. McDonald of Ward 12 offered an order—That the Committee on Common and Squares be requested to consider the expediency of placing a wooden rail around the square at Fort Hill. Passed and sent up.

LEAVE TO WITHDRAW.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 18 presented the following:

The Joint Standing Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the petition of Bridget Griffin, to be compensated for personal injuries caused by a defective cover of a coal hole, having considered the subject, respectfully recommend that the petitioner have leave to withdraw. Accepted.

THE LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 offered the following:

Whereas, By a most fortunate coincidence the private offices of the License Commissioners happen to be in the same building, therefore Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings consider the expediency of engaging suitable apartments for the License Commissioners at 42 Court street.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—In this economical year it occurred to me that the duties of this commission probably will for the ensuing year be pretty light, and it might be a great accommodation to them to have the office so handy to all their offices, and possibly they would be willing to serve for a low salary.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I believe that is one of the most insulting orders that was ever put before this Council, or before this City Council; one, sir, I do not believe the gentleman would dare to put here had it not been for the confirmation of those gentlemen at the last meeting of this Council; one he is not justified in putting here only as a piece of sarcasm, and, as I said before, insulting to the board and to the members of this Council. I move you, sir, that the order be indefinitely postponed. The motion to indefinitely postpone prevailed.

DREDGING ON CHARLES RIVER.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 offered an order—That the Committee on Harbors consider and report upon the expediency of dredging in front of the wharves between Cragie's and Cambridgeport bridges. Read twice and passed.

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 offered the following:

Ordered, That the Committee on Printing be directed to advertise for proposals for reporting and publishing the proceedings and debates of the City Council for one year from the 1st of July, 1877, and make a contract for the same; the expense thereof, not to exceed $6000, to be charged to the appropriation for Printing.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I ask that the order may be laid on the table, as there may be some amendments to it which will be for the best interests of the city.

The motion to lay on the table prevailed.

LANDS SOLD FOR ASSESSMENTS.

On motion of Mr. Stone of Ward 3, the Council took from the table the report and order for the Committee on Public Lands to take possession of certain estates, which have been sold for unpaid assessments, and the order was read a second time and passed.

THE BACK-BAY SEWAGE NUISANCE.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 offered an order that the Board of Health be requested to report at as early a day as possible an estimate of the expense of abating the sewage nuisance now existing on the Back Bay, between the Providence Railroad and Parker street. Read twice and passed.

THE ASSESSMENT OF TAXES.

On motion of Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20, the Council took from the table and indefinitely postponed the "Ordinance to amend an ordinance in regard to the assessment of taxes."

EGRESS FROM SCHOOLHOUSES.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11 offered an order—That the Inspector of Public Buildings report to this body his opinion on or before the 31st day of May current, as to the expediency of making any change or changes as to means of egress in any of our public schools.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I move to insert also "places of amusement, public halls and churches," and also by asking the Inspector to report to the City Council instead of to this body.

The amendment was accepted and the order passed.

VISIT TO THE PARKS.

Mr. Vose of Ward 24 offered an order—That the members of the joint special committee make arrangements for a visit by the Common Council to the several parks referred to in the Park Commissioners' report (City Doc. 42, 1876), on Saturday, May 12, current, or on the first fair day thereafter, Sunday excepted; the expense to be charged to the Contingent Fund of the Common Council.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I would like to ask what the expense would be for the excursion.

Mr. Vose of Ward 24—I cannot exactly say. It might be $50; perhaps $100. I don't know.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I think this Council would not get any information of practical value from an excursion of that kind. If we wish to get posted on the matter, we can go individually, a few at a time, and get a good idea of it. I would like to know what it would cost before voting for it.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—If this excursion is to be taken at all it seems to me it would be better to defer it until the matter is before us.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3—The excursion can only be made in carriages, and I should think it would cost in the vicinity of $200.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I don't believe that it will be well for this or the other branch of the City Government to undertake to consider this matter until they have visited the land where the parks in question are proposed to be located. The subject is specially assigned for next Monday in the Board of Aldermen, and the members of the board would undoubtedly attend and get the benefit of the excursion.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14—It seems to me the proper time for this excursion will be after the matter is before this body. I move to lay the order on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was lost on a division—10 for, 30 against.

On motion of Mr. Thompson of Ward 9, the rule was suspended and the order was read a second time and passed.

THE HORATIO HARRIS ESTATE FOR A PARK.

Mr. Prince of Ward 24 offered an order—That the Special Committee on Public Parks be and they hereby are requested to confer with the representative of the late Horatio Harris, Esq., of this city, and ascertain and report upon what terms the estate formerly occupied by him at the corner of Walnut avenue and Townsend street, Ward 21, can be leased by the city for a term of years, to be used as a public park.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I would like to inquire how much land there is, where it is and whether it would be a proper place for the city to have for a term of years.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—I would state that the estate comprises between thirty and forty acres. It is a very fine estate and is known to many members of the Common Council, I presume, as being one of the finest in the city limits. I have been informed that the representatives of the estate do not wish to put it upon the market at the present time, but would be willing to lease it to the city for the purposes of a public park at a very small rental or a nominal consideration.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I have no objection to the reference, but I do not know what the committee may report. It appears to me it might be a second market scheme in which the city would be involved for a considerable amount of money.

The order was passed.

The Council then adjourned.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

MAY 14, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Police Officers Without Pay—James Trenholm and nine others. Confirmed.

Constables—John Newell, Francis H. Macdonald. Confirmed.

Weigher of Coal—Jeremiah Howe.

Inspector of Milk—Henry Faxon. Confirmed.

Police Officers—William W. Mitchell, James P. J. Haney, Frank G. Durham. Referred to Committee on Police.

Fire Commissioner for three years—Henry W. Longley.

Alderman Clark—I for one would like to have that appointment lie over for one week.

The nomination was laid over.

Registrar of Voters for three years—L. Foster Morse.

Alderman Viles—Mr. Mayor, that nomination takes me somewhat by surprise, having been assured by your Honor that the name of Mr. Spinney, the present incumbent, would be presented to the Board. As you have had the matter under consideration several months, and I have no doubt you have good and sufficient reasons, I should like to have the appointment lie over, that the Board may inquire into the subject.

Alderman Wilder—As lying over seems to be the order of the day, I move to reconsider the vote whereby the Board confirmed the appointment of Mr. Faxon as Inspector of Milk.

Alderman O'Brien—I have some doubt about laying over any of these nominations. Mr. Faxon is a well-known citizen. Mr. Longley is a well-known citizen; he is known to be fully capable of performing all the duties—far more capable than the man who occupies that position. L. Foster Morse, too, is a well-known citizen of the Highlands, known to be capable of doing all the work that is required of him in that position, and I doubt the expediency of laying any of these names over. We have had representatives from Charlestown and South Boston confirmed immediately, and the same objection might have been raised about them. I do not think we are doing justice to these men to lay their names over when they are so well known as men of integrity.

Alderman Wilder—I thoroughly agree with the remarks of the Alderman who has just taken his seat. I should not have made any such motion except that two other nominations were treated in that manner. If we require a week's consideration upon one, we should have a week to consider the other.

Alderman Clark—I have not the slightest objection to the appointment of Mr. Faxon. He is well-known as having been employed by the city for twenty-five or thirty years, and has given universal satisfaction in the position which he now fills; and I think it is an act of justice on the part of his Honor the Mayor that he should reappoint him to that place. The appointment of Mr. Longley is a judicious one. I know him very well and believe him to be a competent man. The man who has the place it is proposed that Mr. Longley shall fill has exercised the duties of Fire Commissioner to the satisfaction of the entire community. He is an able business man; he has been there but a short time, and no reason is given why he should not be reappointed to that position. If there is anything against the present incumbent I should like to have the reasons given by some member of the Board why another person should be appointed to take his place. So in regard to the appointment of Mr. Morse as Registrar of Voters in place of Mr. Spinney. I believe that Mr. Spinney has performed the duties of that office to the satisfaction of the entire community. I do not know Mr. Spinney personally; but I believe he is an upright, honorable man. Furthermore, he is an old line Democrat—one of the right sort—I understand; and if there are good reasons why he should be turned out of this office, which he has filled so acceptably to the community, let us understand them; let us understand why one Democrat should be turned out for another. I have great confidence in Mr. Morse. I have voted for him for several years, and I believe him to be competent to fill the office of Registrar of Voters, but I do not see why Mr. Spinney should be turned out of office to make way for him. I call for the yeas and nays on the reconsideration.

Alderman Thompson—It seems to me that in a matter of this kind, where the Mayor desires to make an appointment, and the interests of the city are not affected, he should have his choice in these several departments. The appointments made thus far have been good; but where the interests of the city are concerned I think it is well for the Board to use their judgment freely and impartially. As a matter of courtesy towards any member of this Board who desires a nomination to lie over for one week; that he may consider it, I approve of that; and under those circumstances I shall vote to lay it over one week.

Alderman Wilder—I have no doubt I should vote for the confirmation of Mr. Faxon; I do not know any reason why I should not. I had no expectation that any of the nominations submitted would lie over. I supposed they would all be confirmed. But when two of the nominations were laid over, I deemed it right that the third one should be in the same category; not because I had any knowledge that would lead me to suppose it would be possible to make a better nomination than the one already reported.

Alderman Viles—I voted for the confirmation of Mr. Faxon. I know him well, and have known him for twenty-five years. But if any Alderman asks that his name lie over one week that he may inquire into the appointment, I have no objections to it.

Alderman Burnham—I wish to make a single remark about the question immediately before the Board. The Alderman [Alderman Wilder] seems to have made the motion on the idea that the nomination of Mr. Faxon was on a parallel with the other cases. Mr. Faxon has been in the employ of the City Government for a period, if I remember correctly, of forty-four years; and, your Honor, in renominating a citizen who has been forty-four years in the employ of the city is doing a very different thing from bringing in a nomination discharging from the post of duty one man and placing therein a new man. Therefore I cannot vote for the reconsideration.

Alderman O'Brien—When one of your nominees, sir, is not known to the Board, I think it would then be time to hesitate and inquire before he is confirmed. But you have today nominated three citizens who are well known to every member of this Board. They are known as men of integrity. The city of Boston places that responsibility in your hands, and there is no good reason why those nominations should not be confirmed. Those gentlemen have all been long in the employ of the city. Mr. Longley has faithfully performed his work; and it was a shame to put a man in that position who had not been in the employ of the city. Mr. Longley ought to have been put in that position; and if we had had a Mayor who understood his duty as well as the present Mayor, Mr. Longley would have been promoted to that position. L. Foster Morse is well known as a gentleman of integrity, who has been in the employ of the city for years, and we all know he can perform the duties for which he has been selected, and there is no good reason why he should not be confirmed.

Alderman Fitzgerald—As I am about to vote, I want to give my reason. If any order passes this Board, and any member asks for a reconsideration and gives as his reason that he has not considered the subject sufficiently, or that it passed without his notice, or that there are some things in connection with it that he would like to know more about, I should vote for a reconsideration. But where a reconsideration is asked simply because two or three motions, that have nothing to do with it, have been made, I think that is no reason for reconsideration, and it is no lack of courtesy for this Board to refuse to reconsider. If a member of this Board says that the character of the motion was such that he had not an opportunity to place it in a proper light before the Board, and that if it had been they would oppose it, I should have no objection to a reconsideration. But in this case the gentleman asking for a reconsideration says the man is competent to fill the place, and the only reason why he asks it is because two or three other motions did not pass; and I think it is no lack of courtesy for a member of this Board to vote against reconsideration.

The motion to reconsider the confirmation of Mr. Faxon was lost—yeas 3, nays 9: Aldermen Thompson, Viles and Wilder voting yea.

POLICE FOR LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

Alderman Breck submitted a request from the License Commissioners for a detail of fifteen police officers for the enforcement of the liquor law; and the same Alderman offered an order—That the maximum number of the police force of the city of Boston be increased to seven hundred and fifteen men, and that such officers as shall be detailed for service at the office of the Board of License Commissioners shall be paid from the sum received for licenses granted under the provisions of chapter 99, Acts and Resolves of the year 1875.

On motion of Alderman Robinson, the subject was referred to the Committee on Police.

PETITION FOR NEW GAS COMPANY.

The following was presented by Alderman Fitzgerald:

NEW YORK, May 12, 1877.

Hon. F. O. Prince, Mayor of the City of Boston: Sir—The success of the Municipal Gas Light Company of the city of New York, and the general satisfaction afforded to its customers, who are among the largest consumers of illuminating gas in the city, among which may be mentioned the Buckingham Hotel, Windsor Hotel, Fifth-avenue Hotel, Grand Hotel, Gilsey House, Hoffman House, Albemarle Hotel, Hotel Brunswick, Delmonico's, Wallack's Theatre, Park Theatre, Fifth-avenue Theatre, Union Square Theatre, etc., etc., owing to the superior quality of the light furnished and the diminution of cost, has induced the city authorities of New York to enter into a contract for thirty years with the company, authorizing them to lay mains in the streets and avenues of the city.

I am confident that the same quality of gas would meet with like success and approval in Boston, and therefore have to request that you will bring to the attention of the proper officers of your city the following petition for permission to lay mains, and proposal for lighting city buildings and street lamps, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed by them.

I am, dear sir, very respectfully yours,
R. M. C. GRAHAM,
for self and associates.

To the Honorable the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council of the City of Boston—Permission is hereby requested by Robert M. C. Graham and his associates to lay gas mains and pipes in the streets, avenues and public places in the city of Boston, for the purpose of supplying gas to the city and its inhabitants, upon the conditions following:

First—The manufactory or works necessary for the purposes of producing gas shall be so conducted as not to be in any way detrimental to the public health, nor otherwise create a nuisance.

Second—The gas furnished shall be of the best quality of illuminating gas, and of an illuminating power of not less than sixteen (16) candles when tested at a distance of not less than one mile from the place of manufacture.

Third—Gas shall be supplied to the public lamps situated on the line or lines of the mains so to be laid, and said lamps shall be lighted when required by the city at a rate not to exceed the maximum of twenty-five dollars ($25) per annum for each lamp burning 3833½ hours, and consuming gas through a burner consuming three cubic feet of gas per hour, under a pressure of one inch; the said rate to include the gas, lighting, extinguishing, cleaning, repairing, reglazing and painting the lamp posts and lanterns, replacing the cocks, tubes, burners, cross-heads, lamp irons and lanterns.

Also, the price for fitting up and repairing lamp posts which may at any time be required, shall not exceed the following rates, to wit:

For fitting up each lamp post, $10.

For straightening each lamp post, $1.50.

For releasing each column, $1.50.

For refitting each column, $3.50.

For removing each lamp post, $3.50.

For resetting each lamp post, $10.

Fourth—Gas shall be supplied to the public buildings or offices of the corporation situated on the line or lines of the mains so to be laid, whenever the said petitioners may be required so to do by the proper officers of the city, at a rate not to exceed two dollars ($2) per 1000 cubic feet. It should, however, be taken into consideration that the gas of the Municipal Gas Light Company of New York (which same quality your petitioners propose to furnish), is of greater illuminating power than ordinary gas, and that the consumers find a saving of at least twenty-five per cent, in its use.

Fifth—The proper officers of the city of Boston shall have the right to order the mains or pipes so to be laid, to be extended in or along any of the streets, avenues or public places of the city; provided that said petitioners shall not be compelled to expend in laying of mains a yearly sum exceeding ten thousand dollars.

Sixth—All trenches or excavations shall be filled immediately after the mains or pipes shall be laid, the earth to be thoroughly rammed as the same as thrown into the trench or excavation, and the pavement replaced in a good and workmanlike manner, to the entire satisfaction of the proper officers of the city.

Seventh—The permission asked for, if granted, shall not become operative until the said petitioners shall have signified their assent to the conditions and their acceptance of the permission, giving good and sufficient security for the faithful performance of the contract, to the satisfaction of the proper officers of the city.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved that it be referred to the Committee on Retrenchment.

Alderman Thompson—We have a Lamp Committee who have charge of these matters, and unless there is some reason why it should not be referred to this committee I should object to its reference to the Committee on Retrenchment.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Several propositions for lighting the lamps of the city have come before the Retrenchment Committee, and in my capacity as chairman of that committee I have received this one. As it is in the line of cutting down the expenses of the city I moved its reference to the Committee on Retrenchment.

Alderman Thompson—The Committee on Lamps have considered and are now considering several propositions of this kind. If business of this kind is to be diverted from its regular channels the members of the Committee on Lamps had better resign. It is connected with the lighting of the city, and is a proper matter to be considered by that committee. The gentleman who has just taken his seat has frequently complained of the amount of duties imposed upon the Committee on Retrenchment, and if this matter of gas is to be referred to that committee I do not see why the matter of asphalt and other kinds of paving should not be referred to them. In fact we had better throw the entire power of the Board of Aldermen into the hands of that committee. I do not know but they may be a very superior committee, and the amount of brain in the heads composing that committee may weigh a great deal more; and perhaps it may be in that view that the gentleman wishes all these matters, that do not properly belong to the committee, referred to them.

Alderman Fitzgerald—No member of the Committee on Retrenchment would presume to have as much brains, or capacity to have brains, judging from the size of the cranium, as the chairman of the Committee on Lamps. They would not think of that at all. I did not mean to be personal in this matter, but as our able chairman of the Committee on Lamps was rather personal on the Committee on Retrenchment, and as it has had to take so many knocks up stairs and down stairs, I thought, as chairman of the committee, that I must come to its relief. The members of the Committee on Retrenchment have some brains, and they do not want all the gas to be on the side of the Lamp Committee. I simply asked that it might be referred to them because they have been considering this question. If this Board does not choose to refer it to the Committee on Retrenchment I should have no objection to referring it to the Committee on Lamps. I thought the Committee on Retrenchment would be the proper committee to consider it, as we considered similar subjects when we were in session. The Globe Gaslight Company and others sent communications to the committee, and why they were not sent to the Committee on Lamps I do not know. I know they were sent to me with a request that they be laid before the Retrenchment Committee, and not before the Committee on Lamps; and that is why I ask for the reference.

Alderman Robinson—I think that when a matter connected with any particular committee comes before this Board of Aldermen, it should be referred to the committee which has that particular branch of business in charge. Courtesy demands that this petition should be referred to the Committee on Lamps; and after their report is made, if the Board of Aldermen do not see fit to concur with them, we can refer it to the Committee on Retrenchment.

Alderman O'Brien—The Committee on Retrenchment had the Superintendent of Lamps before them. They inquired into all the workings of that department, and were posted up on the subject. Several communications were received from parties who made offers to light the city of Boston, and they considered them in connection with Mr. Allen's statements to the committee. After considering all these propositions, and after having Mr. Allen before us, and knowing all the details of that department, why should we not have this communication, so that we can make our work complete? That is the reason why it ought to go to the Committee on Retrenchment and Economy.

Alderman Clark—I fully concur with the Alderman from the 24th Ward [Alderman Robinson]. This subject pertains to the lighting of the streets; we have a competent committee on that department, and if we propose to introduce any new system, the subject should first be referred to the Committee on Lamps. I consider that this subject should be referred to them, and if they deem it important to bring it before the Board of Aldermen, I hope they will do so. A few years ago we had several hearings on a petition for lighting the streets, and each side was represented by able counsel; and I believe, Mr. Mayor, that I was one of a small minority who voted to allow this new corporation an opportunity to light the streets at a less price than we now pay; and if there is any possible way of getting a better or as good quality of gas at a less price, I shall vote to allow some new corporation to lay down its pipes, and to light the streets and public buildings. But I do consider it a matter of courtesy that this subject should be referred to the Committee on Lamps, and I shall vote for that proposition.

Alderman Fitzgerald withdrew his motion, and the petition was referred to the Committee on Lamps.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Report of Board of Fire Commissioners for month of April. Placed on file.

A request of School Committee for additional primary-school accommodations in the Allston District came up referred to Committee on Public Instruction. Concurred.

Order for Committee on Common to consider the expediency of placing a wooden railing around Fort Hill square. Passed in concurrence.

Report (leave to withdraw) on petition of Bridget Griffin to be paid for personal injuries received in Tremont street. Accepted in concurrence.

Order for Committee on Harbor to consider the expediency of dredging the fronts of the wharves between Cambridgeport and Cragie's bridges. Passed in concurrence.

Report and order for the Committee on Public Lands to take possession of certain estates which have been sold for unpaid assessments. (City Doc. No. 19.) Order passed in concurrence.

Order for Board of Health to make an estimate of the expense of abating the sewer nuisance on the Back Bay, between the Boston & Providence Railroad and Parker street.

Alderman Burnham—A report from the Committee on Sewers is coming in this afternoon in reference to this same matter, and I think it would be best to consider this order in connection with the report of the Sewer Committee. I ask that it be laid on the table, if there is no objection.

The order was laid on the table.

REFRESHMENT BILLS.

On the subject of the proposed amendments made to the joint rules and orders by this Board, the Common Council voted to recommit the first amendment, by which all the words after "assembled" in section 14 were stricken out.

The second amendment came up amended as follows: Strike out in the fifth and sixth lines of section 20 "the dates of furnishing the same, and have been," and insert after "furnished" these words, "also specifying the list of articles of refreshments so furnished to every such member, and all such bills shall be approved by such members participating; also the dates of furnishing the same; and the said bills shall be."

Alderman Thompson offered the following as a substitute:

No member of the City Council shall be authorized to contract bills for refreshments or carriage hire on account of the city; but members of the City Council may on the first day of each month present to the Auditor their account of expenses incurred in the furtherance of the city's interests.

Alderman Slade—I move that that order be indefinitely postponed—the whole thing; the one that comes from the Council, and this with it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have heard very serious complaint made by members of the Council—perhaps the complaint is not so much against the members of the Board of Aldermen, as they are generally chairmen of the committees—that their names are upon bills for carriage hire and refreshments for which they never contracted. I think there should be some means to put a stop to that. I think, with the Council, that each member of a committee should not be afraid that the number of meals he has eaten, or the number of times he has ridden in a hack, at the city's expense, should be seen. Either abolish the rule altogether, or if it remains, I think the member of the committee who does little or nothing should not be held accountable for the share of the member of the committee who does more. Each man's bill should be separate and apart, and if that order is going to pass at all, the amendment as it came from the Council is an excellent one. It should be either one way or the other; that is my idea about it. I know I saw in the papers the other day an account of some gentleman who ate a $14 dinner, and it has gone around here, by way of a joke, that one gentleman, who eats very little, had eaten the whole of it. I think it is wrong that any member of the Board should be accountable for what any other member of the Board has done, simply because he happens to be a member of the same committee. My idea is that, if the rule be retained in use, every member of a committee should not be ashamed to have shown opposite his name what he has actually eaten, and what has been the expense of carrying him from place to place in the city. Under the rule as it is now, members of the Council are liable to be charged with dinners which they have never eaten, and with carriages and hacks in which they never rode. Under the amendment passed by the Council, it would be impossible for any bill to pass the Auditor's office without an opportunity to see that the city had received a quid pro quo.

Alderman Clark—If this is indefinitely postponed, I understand that the names of those who partake of refreshments must be attached to the bill; that if Alderman Fitzgerald rides out to Roxbury, or if he goes to Parker's or Young's, his name is put to the bill. I have no objections to having my name put to bills that I contract for refreshments or carriage hire, and I have never been afraid of it since I have been a member of the City Government. I think I earn what I eat. I have dinner at 2½ P. M., at my house, and if I am engaged at work for the city at that hour, I get my dinner, which seldom costs over $1.25, and which is such a dinner as I should get at home. As I understand this amendment from the Council, it means that you shall write out the bill of fare—a boiled potato five cents, onions so much, spinach so much, and so on. It seems to me it is a very foolish idea, and I cannot think that the Common Council is in earnest when they send down that amendment. I have not found the members of the Council backward in partaking of dinners. In fact, members of the Council are just as ready to partake of dinner as are members of the Board of Aldermen, and it is perfectly right that they should. All the names are now attached to the bills. After working six or seven hours, if this Board of Aldermen go to supper, their names are attached to the bill; and if any newspaper desires to increase its circulation by publishing the names of members of the City Council, and the amount of the refreshment bills—just as one member of the press in Boston has attempted to do by caricaturing the Moody and Sankey meetings—they can ascertain the precise facts by going to the Auditor's office. But let me say, that, as a member of the City Government, I am not afraid to have my name appear on the bills. They show just how often I take a meal at the expense of the city, and just how often I ride. I am always in so much of a hurry that it will be utterly impossible for me to write out just what I want to eat; but the amount is always on the bill. If chairmen of committees are judicious and careful in looking over bills, I think there need be no abuse of the system at either of the institutions patronized by the city. I hope the motion to indefinitely postpone will prevail, because that will leave it just precisely as it has been during the past two or three years, requiring members of the Board of Aldermen and committees to have their names attached to the bills.

Alderman Thompson—I think my substitute possesses an advantage over the amendment adopted in the other branch. It is stated that members are charged with dinners in which they do not participate, and it occurred to me that members should audit their own bills. In that view I offered the substitute, so that there would be no question hereafter. I know it is the easiest thing in the world for a gentleman to forget and be mistaken. A gentleman in the other branch disputed fourteen or fifteen charges on a bill; but upon reflection he found they were correct and that he had forgotten them. If my substitute is adopted every member can audit his own bill, and if there is to be any change I shall insist upon my substitute.

The subject was indefinitely postponed in non-concurrence.

INSPECTOR AT ABATTOIR.

A report of the Committee on Salaries came up in favor of paying the inspector appointed by the Board of Health the sum of $1500 per annum, and with an order for the same.

The report was accepted in concurrence and the question was on the passage of the order.

Alderman Breck—I made some inquiries into what it would be necessary for an inspector of provisions to do at the abattoir, and I cannot find that there is anything but what the inspector here can do. In fact there is nothing that an inspector can do at the abattoir in Brighton. It is conducted by men of principle, whose interest it is to see that no diseased animals are carried there and slaughtered. There was a time, before the abattoir was built, when the slaughter houses were scattered, that such an appointment would be necessary. In 1867-8-9 I had the honor to be a member of the Board of Selectmen of Brighton, and I acted as one of the Board of Health. It was our duty to at least twice a month visit the different slaughter houses, to observe the regulations and see that everything was conducted in order; but with all the vigilance we could use, we could never find out where they killed diseased cattle, although it was known that diseased cattle were killed and brought in here. Since they have gone into the abattoir it is different, and it is impossible to carry any dead animals there. The president of the corporation, Mr. Jacob Taylor, told me there never had been any diseased cattle killed at that establishment. Not long ago one was bruised by falling down in the cars, and he was slaughtered; the inspector looked at it here, and he decided that only a part of it was good; something more than half of it was sold and the rest was taken by the butchers and eaten themselves. That is the only instance of the kind.

Alderman Wilder—If there had been this $1500 inspector at that time, is there any possibility, except by the merest chance in the world, that he could have known about this animal before it was dressed?

Alderman Breck—It would have been impossible to find it out. As I said, when I acted as one of the Board of Health we tried to find out where the diseased animals were killed. We knew they were slaughtered, but never could tell where they were. If those animals were slaughtered they were brought into the city and condemned by the Inspector of Provisions here, and the parties suffered for it. But no butcher who does business at the abattoir would dare to bring it in here. It would be against his interest to do so.

At the request of Alderman Dunbar the Mayor read the communication from the chairman of the Board of Health to the Committee on Salaries, stating the duties of the inspector, and the number of animals slaughtered at the abattoir; and also stating that two diseased animals had been slaughtered at the abattoir recently.

Alderman Slade—There is one word in the report of the Committee on Salaries that makes a word of explanation due to the butchers, in regard to the two instances cited where dead cattle were actually brought into the slaughter house and dressed. One was where an ox was thrown off a bridge and nearly drowned—or, in other words, he was bled immediately and brought into the house and dressed; the other was where an ox fell in the street and was so injured that he could not be driven any farther, and he was bled on the spot and carried into the house and dressed. The report seems to give the impression that they intentionally dressed dead cattle. They were dressed perhaps in five minutes after they were bled.

Alderman Clark—As far as I can learn, this is a very important office, and it is absolutely necessary that an inspector should be stationed at the abattoir all the time. I have no doubt it is the intention of the parties there to allow nothing but meats suitable for the table to be sold in the city of Boston; but from all I can learn there have been two, three, or five or ten instances where, had it not been for the watchful eye of the inspector, meat which no member of this Board would want to put on his table would have been sent to the market and sold. I understand there are many instances where calves, two or three days old, have been slaughtered and sent here, and would have been consumed by the inhabitants of the city of Boston had it not been for the Inspector of Provisions. If those are the facts, it shows the importance of having a man at the abattoir all the time to see that no diseased animals are dressed and sent to market. I understand that an able inspector can examine every carcass—

Alderman Thompson.—Four hundred thousand?

Alderman Clark—Yes, 400,000 carcasses a year, if that is the number; and that shows the necessity of having an able and competent man, worth $1500 a year. If those are the facts (and they are susceptible of proof), an inspector out there is necessary, and should give his whole time to it. I do not believe that any inspector here, if he attends to his duties, can give his attention to the duties there. I believe it is absolutely necessary to have an able man there; that without an inspector there we are liable to have unfit meat sent to market here; and that it is necessary to have some competent person to look after the animals both before and after they are slaughtered.

Alderman Breck—I think the Alderman has been misinformed. I never heard of calves being carried there which were too young to be killed. Calves are not killed there to any great extent, except those that have been fattened. The young calves are slaughtered in towns around Boston. There is quite a number of places where they do it. They kill this young veal so that they can get the milk of the cow. But you do not find them killed at the abattoir, and you will find no diseased cattle carried there. It is against their interest. The superintendent of the abattoir assured me yesterday that there had never been but one instance known. It is an impossibility to get them in there without being seen by those having charge of the abattoir itself; and it would be against the interest of all doing business there to allow it. Those men all do business in Boston and have an interest here.

Alderman Slade—If I understand this, it is entirely in regard to the matter of salary. We must have an inspector there because the statute requires it. There is no question about it. It was referred to the Committee on Salaries with instructions to confer with the Board of Health to see whether it is necessary that such a person should be appointed. They submitted the report from the Board of Health, and all the question before us is in regard to the salary.

Alderman Clark called for the yeas and nays, and the order was passed in concurrence—yeas 7, nays 5:

Yeas—Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Dunbar, Fitzgerald, Gibson, Slade, Viles—7.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, O'Brien, Robinson, Thompson, Wilde—5.

ASPHALT PAVEMENT.

A petition was received from the Grahamite and Trinidad Asphalt Paving Company for leave to furnish their pavement to the city. It has been laid in several places in the city of New York during the past five years, and was adopted as the best pavement for Pennsylvania avenue, Washington. They propose to lay 50,000 to 250,000 square yards per annum, at a cost of $2.50 to $4.25 per square yard, according to the foundation used, the thickness of asphalt laid and the extent of the contract awarded. They will undertake to keep the whole in repair for a period of ten years at a cost to the city of 2½ per cent. to 5 per cent. per annum on the contract price, according to the foundation used and the character of travel it will have to sustain.

Alderman Thompson moved that it be referred to the Committee on Retrenchment.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If it is to that committee on the part of this Board I have no objection, as the other branch have nothing to do with it.

Alderman O'Brien—As the Committee on Lamps would have to disturb this asphalt, would n't it be well to refer it to them, to see whether they can pursue this work after the asphalt is removed?

Alderman Thompson—If it is referred to the Committee on Lamps I guarantee to give the Board an intelligent report.

On motion of Alderman Slade, the petition was referred to the Paving Committee.

ARMY AND NAVY MONUMENT.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following:

The joint special committee appointed to take charge of the erection of the Army and Navy Monument on Boston Common beg leave to report that they are in receipt of a communication from Martin Milmore, announcing that the monument will be completed and ready for dedication on the 17th of September next. The committee hasten to convey this gratifying intelligence to the City Council, believing that the completion of this monument to the memory of our heroic dead will be an event in the history of this city which it will doubtless be desired to commemorate in a befitting manner. It will be no ordinary occasion. On that day the city of Boston will discharge a debt long due her sons who maintained her renown in the great struggle for the maintenance of republican institutions. She will dedicate a memorial which will hand down to posterity in enduring bronze and granite the record of their virtues, which will serve to stimulate the patriotism and quicken the loyalty of all coming generations. Our citizens expect that the dedication of this monument will be made the occasion of a demonstration which will do honor to our municipality. The gratitude of the people to those who, obedient to the call of duty and patriotism, went forth from our midst to battle in the cause of liberty and right, has never grown cold, and the contemplation of the testimonial of a grateful people to the prowess and self-devotion of those who died in the defence of our imperilled nationality should be commemorated in a manner alike creditable to ourselves and honorable to the memory of our departed heroes. The committee recommend that the 17th day of September next be selected as the day for the dedication of the monument. It will be the 247th anniversary of the settlement of Boston, and it appears peculiarly fitting that it should be selected as the day upon which to dedicate a public work of such historical interest as the Army and Navy Monument. Believing that the importance of the occasion requires that the preparation for its observance should be commenced at an early day, your committee respectfully ask the City Council for instructions as to what arrangements shall be made for dedicating the monument.

The report was accepted. Sent down.

Alderman Slade offered an order—That the Committee on the Army and Navy Monument be requested to consider and report in what way the Army and Navy Monument shall be dedicated on the 17th day of September next. Passed. Sent down.

Subsequently Alderman Thompson brought the matter up again, saying—

The committee did not submit or recommend any order. They desired that an expression from the City Council should be made as to the kind of celebration they deemed proper under the circumstances. It is a very difficult thing for the committee to decide upon without some expression from the City Council, and I wish the Board would indicate in some way whether they desire a general celebration, or to have the monument dedicated in a quiet way.

Some routine business intervened, and Alderman Thompson continued, I believe I asked for some instruction upon the subject, and should like to have an expression from the Board. The committee do not feel authorized to recommend a general celebration without some expression from the City Council that it is desired.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The committee ought to report as to the best method of celebrating the day. I understood they had some plan, and that they were to ask for $25,000 or thereabouts for the celebration. I expected some report of that kind, and if it had come, we would be able to deal with it. I do not know how we can instruct that committee what they should do, any more than we can any other committee to which a matter is referred.

Alderman Thompson—The committee have expected that some general celebration would take place when the monument is completed, and that the Grand Army would take part in the ceremony. At one time the committee thought they would ask for an appropriation; then it was deemed more wise to get an expression from the City Council as to whether they desired a general celebration, which would undoubtedly cost a large sum of money, or whether it should be dedicated in the most quiet way possible. That is the information the committee desire, and that is the reason they did not offer any order.

Alderman O'Brien—I do not see how this Board can express an opinion unless the committee make their report and recommend a plan. If they make their report we can discuss it intelligently from their standpoint. As it is now we have no basis. It might move an order for $10,000, but it might not be satisfactory. Put in an order for what money they want and then we can discuss it, and not until then.

Alderman Clark—It is hardly competent for a member of this Board to express an opinion as to what amount should be expended until we know something of the programme. I hope a respectable celebration will take place upon the completion of this monument, because we have been expecting to celebrate it every year since it was commenced, in 1871. I think. I do not believe in appropriating $25,000 for the celebration, but I have no doubt a respectable amount will be readily granted by the City Council.

Alderman Gibson—It seems to me we ought to do it with rather a small sum. I was in the Government when we undertook to build the monument and voted against it. I do not believe in erecting anything that will bring up family quarrels. We have peace now, and celebrating this monument is like showing the quarrels a family has had. I should do it in a quiet way. Of course the Grand Army and military would gather here, and it seems to me a very small sum of money would be sufficient. For my own part, I should rather see it done away with. We have peace now. If it were to perpetuate battles upon a foreign soil I should not object; but I think it is perpetuating a family feud, which I think would be better if it were forgotten.

WEST ROXBURY BRANCH LIBRARY.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Committee on Finance:

Report recommending passage of order in relation to West Roxbury Branch Library in a new draft, as follows: That the Trustees of the Public Library be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $10,000 in establishing and maintaining a branch of the Public Library in the West Roxbury District, and that the Auditor of Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund the sum of $10,000, to constitute a special appropriation for said purpose. Order read twice and passed—yeas 12, nays 0. Sent down.

ENGLISH HIGH AND LATIN SCHOOLS.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Committee on Finance:

Report on report in reference to new buildings for English High and Latin schools, recommending the passage of the order to construct the same at an expense of $350,000; and, also in connection therewith, an order—that the Treasurer be and he hereby is authorized to borrow under the direction of the Committee on Finance for the construction of suitable school buildings for the English High and Latin schools, as set forth in the preceding order, the sum of $350,000; and it is herein provided that all moneys received from the sales of the present English High and Latin school building and lot, situated on Bedford street, the Bowditch Schoolhouse and lot, situated on South street, the Savage Primary Schoolhouse and lot situated on Harrison avenue, the Old Mayhew School building and lot, situated on Hawkins street, and the Old Franklin Schoolhouse and lot, situated on Washington street, be paid by the Treasurer to the Board of Commissioners on the Sinking Funds for the payment or redemption of the debt of the city, and by them to be specially used for the payment and cancellation of the certificates issued, as authorized by the loan created by this order, as soon as received by them; said several buildings and lots shall be sold by the Committee on Public Buildings by public auction (unless the City Council shall order the same sold by private sale) at such times as shall be approved by said committee, the purchase moneys to be paid within the time when said loan shall be payable.

Alderman Clark—If this subject is thoroughly understood, I would ask that the order take its second reading. It is a large expenditure, and, if any member desires to have it lie over, I have no objection. It is getting late in the season, and every day's delay takes just so much longer to complete the building. It has been considered thoroughly by the Committee on Public Instruction, and the members of the Board of Aldermen; and, if the order is perfectly satisfactory, I should ask that it take its second reading.

The order was read a second time.

Alderman Fitzgerald—What is the length of the loan?

The Mayor—It cannot be made for less than ten years.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It cannot be made longer than ten years. It does not specify the number of years the loan is to run, nor the percentage. My idea is that the order should specify the percentage to be received, and that it should not be more than five years, so that we shall not have to pay interest into the Sinking Funds.

On motion of Alderman Clark, the order was laid on the table for the time being, and subsequently it was taken up on motion of Alderman Fitzgerald.

Alderman Clark—The Committee on Finance thought that this loan should be left to their discretion as to the rate of interest and the length of time it should run, inasmuch as it cannot exceed ten years. In all probability it will be taken by the Sinking Fund Commissioners, and as the schoolhouses are sold the money received will be used to cancel the debt. It is probable the building will not be completed in less than three years at least, and as the buildings to be sold are located in different parts of the city it might possibly be ten years before the land necessary to redeem this debt will be disposed of, and the committee thought it desirable to take the responsibility of fixing the length of the loan and the rate of interest.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Auditor has made an explanation of this matter to me. The order is an unusual one. In the Sinking Funds is a large amount of money which is not at interest now; the commissioners will take this whole loan, and it is better to allow the Finance Committee to decide how much interest should be paid. As the money will be invested by the city in its own funds, I shall offer no objection to it. I should decidedly object to the order if the loan were to be sold upon the market.

The order for the loan was passed—yeas 12, nays 0—and the order authorizing the Committee on Public Buildings to do the work was passed. Sent down.

BACK BAY NUISANCE.

Alderman Viles submitted the following:

IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN,
MAY 14, 1877,

The Committee on Sewers, to whom was referred the petition of Lyman E. Sibley et al., that some immediate measures be taken to remedy the nuisance from the discharge of sewage on the flats of the Back Bay, report—

That the only thorough, and probably the most immediate, remedy for this nuisance is to intercept the drainage, which now falls into Stony Brook along the lower half mile of its course and is discharged upon the flats west of Parker street, and convey it to the channel of Charles River by a sewer along Parker street.

This sewer could be built in one season and would cost about $75,000.

The committee are aware that the diversion of this drainage is one of the chief objects of the proposed intercepting sewer to Moon Island, and in case that scheme is carried out, that the sewer to Charles River would become useless and its cost unnecessary.

They are also aware that the Board of Health have under consideration some temporary expedients for abating or relieving the nuisance.

For these considerations, as well as the fact that the cost of such a sewer cannot well be taken from the present sewer appropriation, but will require special provision by the City Council, your committee hesitate to recommend any action, but think that the Board as a whole can better prescribe the policy to be pursued.

For the committee.

CLINTON VILES, Chairman.

Alderman Viles—This is a question which the Committee on Sewers have carefully considered. It is one of importance to the residents of the southern part of the city. This sewer, if constructed, would remedy all the evil which arises in the vicinity of Parker street, but as there is no appropriation for it, I move that it be laid upon the table, that this Board may visit the premises.

The report was laid on the table.

ASSISTANTS TO BRIDGE SUPERINTENDENTS.

Alderman Thompson submitted a report from the Committee on Bridges that, in compliance with the provisions of section 4 of the ordinance relating to bridges, the following-named persons have been appointed assistants by the several Superintendents of Bridges, and said assistants have been duly approved by this committee:

Warren Bridge—Julius F. Prince, Joshua Lovejoy.

Charles River Bridge—Joel C. Bolan, Henry A. Bolan.

Congress-street Bridge—John McClosky, Jeremiah Daly, C. K. Callahan.

Mt. Washington-avenue Bridge—J. E. Gillett, P. S. Gillett.

Federal-street Bridge—Orlando D. Cook, William H. Morrisou, Walter Cook.

Broadway Bridge—Michael O'Brien, James Monahan, George W. Gifford.

Dover-street Bridge—William Nelson, David C. Nelson, Frederick A. Sampson.

Accepted.

DOGS IN THE PUBLIC STREETS.

Alderman Breck submitted the following:

The Committee on Ordinances, who were requested to consider the expediency of reporting an ordinance requiring that all dogs running at large shall be muzzled, beg leave to report, that, by an act passed April 27, 1877, entitled "An act relating to the restraining and muzzling of dogs," the matter is placed entirely under the control of the Board of Aldermen, and therefore it is unnecessary that an ordinance should be enacted. The committee ask to be discharged from further consideration of the subject.

The report was accepted. Sent down.

Alderman Breck offered an order—That the Committee on Ordinances on the part of this Board be requested to consider the expediency of requiring that all dogs shall be muzzled or restrained from running at large. Passed.

Subsequently Alderman Clark offered the following:

Whereas, in chapter 167 of the acts of the year 1877, entitled "An act relating to the restraining and muzzling of dogs," it is provided, among other things, that the Mayor and Aldermen of any city may order that any dog or dogs in any such city may be muzzled or restrained from running at large during such time as shall be prescribed by such order, it is hereby Ordered, That on and after the passage of this order, and until otherwise ordered, all dogs within the limits of the city of Boston shall be muzzled or restrained from running at large.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I ask that the order lie over one week.

Alderman Clark—I should like to hear the gentleman's reasons. It is to prevent mad dogs from running at large.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have no objection to it if it is to keep mad dogs muzzled.

Alderman Clark—I would state that yesterday afternoon the sexton of Trinity Church was seen lugging a mad dog out into the street; and I understand that the dog bit no less than half-a-dozen people in Trinity Church. The sooner this is put in force the safer the city will feel. I trust that the order will be passed and enforced immediately. It is a daily occurrence that his Honor the Mayor receives communications asking that immediate action be taken to restrain all dogs from running at large, whether mad or otherwise.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I withdraw my objection, if the Alderman is afraid of dogs.

The order was passed.

Subsequently Alderman Clark said he had been requested to offer the following; but he did not know there was anything in the ordinances in regard to it:

Ordered, That on and after May 21 all dogs found at large, without being properly muzzled to prevent biting, shall be killed, and all female dogs found at large on any public park, street or highway shall be killed.

Referred to the Committee on Ordinances on the part of the Aldermen, on motion of Alderman Clark, with a request that they give the parties desiring it a hearing.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses, as follows:

Minors' Applications Granted—Four newsboys, two bootblacks.

Auctioneer Licensed—Dearborn & Co., Court House.

LAMP-POSTS AT GRANARY BURIAL GROUND.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That the Committee on Lamps consider the expediency of removing the lamp-posts now standing in the sidewalk of the Granary Burial Ground from the edgestones to the line of the fence of said burial ground, as the same are dangerous to the public in their present position. Passed.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to consider and report such an amendment to the ordinance in relation to the public health as will require the members of the Board of Health to devote their time to the duties of their office and not actively engage in any other business.

Alderman Clark—My object in offering this order is that the members of that Board may not be subject to the charge of employing their time for their own private purposes. It has been charged here that if the members of that board devoted all their time to the city they would not need so much assistance as they now require, and it is to relieve the board of this charge that I offer the order. It is well known that the ordinance creating the Board of Health was passed under the great pressure induced by the smallpox excitement. I desire that the members of the Board of Health should be under the same regulations as the members of the Fire and Water commissions, who are required to devote their whole time to the duties of the city. It is not because a change has been made in the Board of Health, but because charges have been made that they are engaged in other duties which bring them an income from outside. I trust the ordinance will be amended so that the department will be upon the same footing as the others.

PUBLIC PARKS.

At 4½ o'clock P. M. the Mayor called up the special appointment, viz.:

Consideration of report of Special Committee on Public Parks (City Doc. No. 44), with orders to appropriate $1,000,000 for purchase of land for that purpose; to be raised by a loan for a period not exceeding thirty years, at a rate not exceeding five per cent.

On motion of Alderman Thompson, the subject was laid on the table until after the regular business of the session was disposed of.

Near the close of the session Alderman O'Brien called up the subject and moved, on account of the lateness of the hour, that the subject be assigned to 4½ P. M. of the next session, stating that he understood a session would have to be held on Wednesday or Thursday.

An informal consultation took place, during which the City Clerk stated that a special meeting would be necessary to take action on the local-option law, which was then in the hands of the Governor for signature.

Several members of the Board having committee engagements on Thursday, it was decided to assign the subject to next Monday at 4½ P. M.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman O'Brien, to Thursday next, at one o'clock P. M.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

MAY 16, 1877.

Adjourned regular meeting at 1 P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

In calling the Board to order his Honor said—

It is well known that the chief object of this adjourned meeting was to consider a matter [the local-option law] which has been disposed of by a veto by the governor, and I suppose there is no matter to come before us at this time.

Alderman Fitzgerald presented the petition of S. Cabot et al. that the city pay a part of the expense of watering Park square. Referred to the Committee on Paving.

On motion of Alderman Breck the Board reconsidered the vote by which was passed the order fixing the salary of the inspector at the abattoir at $1500, and at the suggestion of Alderman Fitzgerald the order was specially assigned for the next regular meeting.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Wilder.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

MAY 16, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Auditor's Monthly Exhibit, May 10. (City Doc. No. 45.) Placed on file.

Petitions, etc., referred in concurrence.

Reference to Committee on Finance of a report and order for a transfer of $2000 from Reserved Fund to appropriation for Vacation Schools.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—It seems to me that this is a new departure from our present school system, and an experiment. It is true it is not a very large expense that is to be incurred; but our school system is at present a very expensive one. They come here and ask for $2000 to be taken from the Reserved Fund, after the appropriation is made for the year. It is only going to cost $2000, and if they want to try an experiment, some expenses might be reduced whereby the School Committee might take the sum to try this new system. I hope we shall not pass the order.

The order was referred to the Finance Committee in concurrence.

Invitation from Post 26, G. A. R., to attend Decoration Day ceremonies. Accepted in concurrence.

Report asking for instructions regarding the dedication of Soldiers' Monument. Accepted in concurrence.

Order requesting committee on above subject to report the manner in which said monument shall be dedicated. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report asking to be discharged from consideration of subject of obliging dogs running at large to be muzzled. Accepted in concurrence.

Order to report an amendment to ordinance on health to require members of the board to devote their time to the duties of their office.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should like to offer a substitute, which I have not yet written out, to this effect: That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to consider the expediency of reporting an ordinance requiring that all officers in the city, with the exception of the License Commissioners, devote their entire time to the interests of the city.

The President—That is hardly germane to the subject. It can be offered as a separate order.

Mr. Howes—It can be offered as a substitute.

Mr. Howes reduced the substitute to writing, and offered it as follows:

Ordered, That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to consider the expediency of reporting an ordinance requiring all city officers to devote their time to the city, and not actively to other business.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—That is not the original substitute. It is hardly fair to ask the License Commissioners to devote their whole time to the city for $1000 a year.

Mr. Howes amended the substitute by inserting "excepting the License Commissioners."

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—What is he going to do with our Assessors? They are city officers. Does he expect them to give their entire time to the city? I would ask if there is any other commission except the Board of Health which the order affects?

Mr. Howes—If the gentleman had listened while the order was being read, he would have seen that it is merely for the committee to inquire into the expediency of doing so. It will remain for them to make such exceptions as are necessary. As to other officers, there are others, besides the various commissioners, who are paid large salaries, who devote considerable time to outside business, when possibly they might be engaged in the business of the city; at least, the city has a sufficient quantity of business which they might do without detriment. It is to cover a few cases of that kind that this order is introduced.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 moved to amend the substitute by inserting "paid" before "officers," as the officers of the poor, Directors for Public Institutions, etc., are city officers.

Mr. Howes accepted the amendment.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 suggested "salaried" instead of "paid" and Mr. Howes accepted that amendment.

The substitute was adopted, and the order as amended was read a second time and passed. Sent up.

Report and order for a transfer of $10,000 from Reserved Fund for West Roxbury Branch Library. Ordered to second reading.

Report and order for a loan of $350,000 for construction of buildings for English High and Latin schools, as therein set forth, and order for construction of said buildings.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—There may be a question in the minds of some members of the Council whether this appropriation of $350,000 is to complete the building. I noticed in one of the public prints tonight a statement that this is but the entering wedge, and that other appropriations will be called for, and that before we commence we ought to know what the actual cost of this building is to be. I want to state in behalf of the Finance Committee that before they recommended this appropriation they had before them the City Architect, who stated that he had carefully prepared the estimates, and he assured us upon the strength of his reputation that the cost of completing this building would be inside of the amount asked for; and he felt sure that if he succeeded in obtaining as favorable contracts as he had for other schoolhouses, he would have ample to provide for the heating apparatus. The only provision that will have to be made in the future will be for grading the grounds and the furniture.

The orders were passed to a second reading.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order to abate $75 from amount due on lease of tenement of John Dyer, on Charles River Bridge. Passed in concurrence.

Order to remit tax for 1875 and 1876 on forfeited estate on Bristol street. Passed in concurrence.

Order requesting Mayor to authorize the Receivers of the Mechanics' Mutual Fire Insurance Company to pay certain dividends to persons entitled thereto, on Suffolk-street District. Passed in concurrence.

Order for a transfer of $20,000 from Reserved Fund to appropriation for Northampton-street District.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I should like some little information in regard to what this appropriation for the Northampton-street District is for. It seems to me to be quite a large amount.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I would state that under the act by which the grading and filling of that section of the city was done, the parties there had the right, if they disliked the assessments levied upon them, to surrender their estates. A large number of them did so; the cases were carried to the Supreme Court, judgments were entered against the city, and the city was compelled to pay for the estates surrendered. Further and very large amounts will be required for other parties before the year is over.

The order was passed in concurrence—yeas 56, nays 0.

Order to authorize location and construction of Mystic Valley sewer in conformity with chapter 202, acts 1875, as amended by chapter 11, acts 1877. Passed in concurrence.

VENTILATION OF THE COUNCIL CHAMBER.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 moved to reconsider the vote whereby was referred to the Committee on Finance the order to provide ventilation for the Council Chamber, at a cost not exceeding $3000.

Mr. Spenceley—The reason why I moved the reconsideration was that the Council might have time to go up and look at the operation of this system of ventilation. While I do not wish to delay the matter, I do not think it will delay it much, for I do not believe it will pass the other branch of the City Government. I wished to give time to members of the City Council to go up and examine it, and I presume many have been up; I hope they have, and if they have examined it and are confident that this is the best system for the ventilation of this Council, I hope the vote will not be reconsidered; and if they can vote intelligently tonight, I hope they will do so. I move that the vote be taken by a ye and nay vote, because if this system of ventilation is a good one, it will be the means of a good advertisement to the man who got it up; and if it is not a good one, we will have to admit it by and by when we are told about it.

The motion for the yeas and nays was lost, and the motion to reconsider was lost. Sent up.

THE LEASING OF THE HARRIS ESTATE.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 moved the reconsideration of the vote whereby was rejected the order to confer with the representatives of the Horatio Harris estate on the subject of leasing the same for park purposes.

Mr. Pierce—I understand that there is a feeling that this order was offered in antagonism to the report of the special committee on the subject of public parks. Such was not my intention at all; and I now desire to state that if the motion to reconsider prevails, I shall move to lay the whole matter upon the table, and leave it there until after the report of the Committee on Public Parks is acted upon, in order that this matter may not affect that report.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the motion to reconsider will not prevail. I believe if we reconsider that vote it will be the adoption of a precedent here by which four-fifths of the parties who own real estate suitable for parks will come in here offering to lease their land for park purposes in order to get rid of paying their taxes for this year and the next. Already people have been to me to know if they could lease their land to the city for park purposes, which they would be very glad to sell.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18—I hope the matter will be reconsidered. I think this is rather an exceptional case. Of course most members of the Council know of the Harris estate, that it is a beautiful place laid out with groves and lakes and lawns and drives. It seems to me it is a most beautiful place for a park, and it is located on one of the most beautiful avenues of Boston, within a short distance of the horse cars on Washington and Warren streets. This proposition does not come from the trustees of the estate, but some gentlemen have suggested that inasmuch as the property is lying idle, it might be utilized in such a way. The trustees have no desire to make any proposition whatever; but if the proposition should come from the city to them they are inclined to treat it very favorably indeed. It seems to me that in view of the motion made by the gentleman from Ward 24, this order might be reconsidered and laid upon the table and await action in regard to the parks. If we cannot have parks, here seems to be an estate centrally located, which might be utilized for that purpose at a very low cost.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I forgot to state that the city already owns a park within five minutes' walk of that estate, just across the street—a beautiful park of twenty-five acres, which accommodates all the people of Roxbury.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—In regard to the gentleman's statement about the city owning a park of twenty-five acres there, I think he is very greatly mistaken. My impression is that the park to which he refers is a very small one, that is not worth the name of park. It is not larger than Franklin or Blackstone square at the South End; and certainly it is not large enough to be considered a park. Then he refers to committing the city to any such course of action. I don't think that the order asks for that. I simply asked that it might be referred to the committee who have this subject of parks in charge. If they report against it I presume that the committee will sustain their report and defeat the whole matter. But it does seem to me that if that estate can be had in this way, if the other system of parks is not adopted, this plan is at least worthy the consideration of the committee. I had no other object in offering the order.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—When this matter was before the Council at the last meeting I was quite surprised at the direction it took, inasmuch as the order was simply for the reference of the matter to the committee; and I hope the reconsideration may prevail; not, sir, that I desire to vote tonight, or am prepared to vote for the passage of an order that should look directly to the taking of the estate for park purposes; but because I think it might be well to lay it upon the table for a time, and consider it after the matter of parks has been fully acted upon. It is well known by many members of the Council—and certainly by a very large number of citizens—that this Harris estate was, in the lifetime of Mr. Harris, virtually a public park. It was, with very great generosity on the part of its owner, thrown open to the public in every way and in all seasons of the year; and those who were within its reach had the enjoyment of it, although it was not a public park. This was certainly a great boon, and it would be difficult to find any other site so favorably located and upon which so large an expense had been laid out in perfecting it, and in which there are so many beauties all in one tract of land, as in the Harris estate. Certainly it stands so prominent, if any estate is to be taken for that purpose that it can hardly be considered a precedent, even if we should take it. But, however, that is not the question before us. I hardly see how the reconsideration of this vote can be a precedent of any disadvantage whatever. I understand the mover's object to be—and I think it is very well conceded—that if the vote is reconsidered, the matter simply lies upon the table. If it were passed it would only go to a committee. No damage can come from it. And I think it was a mistake that the order was rejected at the last meeting. I think it is due to the merits of the question, and also to those who would like to have it under consideration a little longer, that it be reconsidered and laid upon the table.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—While I shall oppose the reconsideration of this vote, I can hardly see the feasibility of the city of Boston taking the estate of Mr. Harris for a park. In the first place, it has a very costly structure upon it. It is true that the grounds have had a great deal of money spent upon them in beautifying them; but it seems to me if we are going to have public parks, that that would be but a small part of the plan as now laid out before us by the Park Commissioners. It would be taking out of the taxable valuation of the city something that we don't want to have for parks. As I said before, there is a very expensive building upon this property, upon which we are today receiving taxes; and if that should be taken out of the taxable valuation of the city it would reduce the valuation of the property and increase our taxes to an extent that it seems to me we should hardly be warranted in doing. If the reconsideration prevails, I hardly think it would pass this Council or that anything would come of it.

Mr. Rufin of Ward 9—This matter of reconsideration, as explained by the gentleman who moved it, seems to be a very harmless one. I don't see why we should have trouble in taking the action which he suggests. It was but the other day that we were out riding around the country looking at the various sites which have been selected for public parks. It was a very agreeable visit to me; and I suppose it was to the number of gentlemen who took part in it. The matter is before us now, and we want to get all the information we can. I take it that this is but part of the information which we commenced to get when we went to survey the surrounding country. I don't know where this place is; I have never seen it, and after this discussion I cannot say I shall vote for it; but in view of the discussion which will soon be had, when this whole matter is under consideration, let us have all the information we can get. There is certainly no harm in conferring with these parties. We are not bound to take up with their proposition. After we have conferred with them, we will be in a position to make the best bargain we can by looking into this matter. We may get up competition. Some other parties may have land for sale for public parks; and seeing the possibility of the city taking this land, they might agree to take a lease of their own land. Therefore, for these considerations I hope the motion to reconsider will prevail, because I don't see that there is any possible harm to come from it.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—While I would not oppose the reconsideration of this matter—for I think it is very simple, and can be sent to the Committee on Common and Squares—my experience with that committee, the jealous care they have had over the Common, and judging from the appearance of the Harris estate, I should think we would need as much as twenty-five or thirty policemen to take care of it. It is a much more beautiful place than the Common. It has beautiful borders and lawns and trees. They would have a policeman at every tree to keep the children away from it. I believe that a park is for children and women and men to enjoy themselves in. I don't believe in these parks where they have to keep up iron boards to tell people to keep off the grass. My impression is that if the park were accepted, the terms provided would be something like that. It is a beautiful place, and the city would be liable for any damages done to it. Mr. Harris does not propose to give it to the city of Boston without due care, and I think it would cost more to keep the place in repair than to buy another park. I am willing to reconsider the matter and send it to the committee, but I should oppose it to the death, because I believe it is all wrong. The idea of taking men's estates for two or three years in order to let them get rid of taxes and have them taken better care of than they could take care of them themselves is wrong. I shall vote to reconsider this matter and lay it over, if that would please the gentleman.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—I went up to the place yesterday, and took some little notice of it. It seems to me that it is substantially a park, all completed and laid out, and that it is offered to the city for a very small sum; whereas, if we wanted to buy a park we should not only have to buy the land but have to lay out about as much money as has been spent upon this estate. I think the gentleman's argument is in favor of leasing it. We will have to have more parks, and I think it will be well to consider this plan.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—The gentleman who last sat down said it was offered to the city at a low sum. That is the first time I have heard it was offered to the city at any price. I should like to hear some more information on that point.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18—As I understand, the trustees have not offered it to the city in any way. They simply intimated to these gentlemen that they might meet the city on a very liberal basis. Now, while I am up, I will say to the gentleman from Ward 19 that there is a beautiful, natural growth upon the ground, that there is a great variety of these groves, and every taste would be gratified there. I know of no grounds so well laid out as these. It strikes me as an exceptional case and it appears to me there will be no harm in reconsidering the order and letting it lie over.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—The gentleman very well stated my point, that it was so beautiful it would have to be kept so. I don't know of any horse cars running within half a mile, unless it is on the back entrance. There are trees near Warren street, but it is a terrible way from the horse cars. It is not for our people; it is for the people who ride out there in carriages. We have got enough such places now. Gentlemen owning horses and carriages now can drive to many places. I have been out there several times, but I never saw any carriages there except that of the gentleman who owned the place. It is not the place for the people. There is Washington park, within five minutes' walk—a very large tract, very much larger than Franklin or Blackstone square. I never saw a man, woman or child there, and have often wondered what it was for. I don't propose to vote for this City Council to go to work, in order to keep this place in order from the depredations of boys, and I think that is one of the reasons why they desire the city to take care of it—to keep it from destruction. That is more desirable than paying taxes. It is expensively and beautifully laid out, and they want to keep it so, and want the city of Boston to do it.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—The gentleman from Ward 19 seldom talks about what he knows nothing of; but I think he is talking that way tonight. I happen to be pretty familiar with that locality, and as I said before, I am advocating it to be taken for a public park; but at least I think we might have the truth of the facts, as we attempted to get at it. The distance of the Harris estate from Washington street is within four minutes' walk; it is within five minutes' walk of Warren street; Walnut avenue runs between Warren street and old Shawmut avenue, or Washington street, as it is now called; and this estate is very accessible to street cars. Now, when you get there, it is true there is a very small square, called a park, that I know of. It has a beautiful grass plat and one of the finest rocks about the city. It has been called and is now earning the name of Washington Park. It has a large plat on it, and a flagstaff, and is the place where guns are fired on the Fourth of July, and is patronized very largely by the people living in that part of the city. Now, the Harris place has been suggested as a large place. It has a large tract of natural woodland, which can be easily cleared. It is finely laid out with trees, walks, paths, and a good deal of shrubbery and everything which makes it pleasant. There is a fine pond on it, which has been used for skating in the winter and boats are upon it during the summer. There is a very fine tower on one corner of it, and taken altogether it is a gem of a place for a park. As to the number of policemen required, why, Mr. Harris, during his life time, had it free to the public every day of the week for people to drive in with their carriages, and those gentlemen and ladies who lived within reach of it knew it was open and very largely used it, as I happened to know by living nearer to it at one time than I do now. Mr. Harris had it open to the public without any policemen, and no policemen would be wanted there. I don't think it requires any policemen to take care of any respectable people like ours. I don't think it would be necessary, to keep that place from destruction, to have policemen around every tree, as the gentleman suggests. And if it were necessary to keep policemen to take care of it, it will be something for those policemen to do in that vicinity who have nothing to do now. But I am not advocating taking the place for a park. I think that the gentleman has explained his motion, that if the reconsideration prevail, that the order lie upon the table, that gentlemen may take time to look into the question in all its bearings.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14—It seems to me that a large amount of this discussion is upon supposition. The gentleman from Ward 19 supposes that the Harris estate is in so perfect a condition that it will require a large expense to keep it in its present condition. The gentleman from Ward 18 supposes that it can be hired for a small sum. Now, it seems to me that it is reasonable for this Council to have the facts in regard to this matter, and I hope the reconsideration will prevail, and that it will be referred to the committee to get the facts and report them to this Council, and then we can act intelligently upon this matter.

The motion to reconsider was lost—17 for, 30 against.

PLAYGROUNDS.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 moved to reconsider the vote whereby was passed the order for playgrounds to be established at a cost not to exceed $2000.

Mr. Richardson—It struck me after this vote was passed at the last session that it was passed hastily, without due consideration. I regret to say that since that time I have not been able to give it that consideration, or make the inquiries of the committee from which it originated that I intended to. But from the little attention that I could give it, it seems to me to be a measure of very doubtful utility and very questionable expediency. The City Council have never made an appropriation of that kind before, as I am informed. It is something new; it might be considered a new departure for the amusement of the people, or instruction—whichever you please to call it; and therefore we have not any experience to look to by which we can gain any information in regard to exactly what the character of these playgrounds is to be, where they are to be, how they are to be fitted up, what land is to be leased, of whom, and on what terms; and I at first thought that before I could vote for an appropriation of $2000—although it is not a large sum—for this purpose, I should require further information in regard to it. But there is one thing that appears upon the face of the order and measure itself which does not strike me favorably; and that is, it must be apparent that it is an appropriation not for the public use in the broadest and widest sense of that term. These are playgrounds, as I understand. For instance, we will take the one proposed to be established in West Roxbury. I should like to know what proportion of the people of Boston, who will be taxed to support it, will go to West Roxbury for the purpose of themselves upon that playground? The idea of the City Council appropriating money to establish playgrounds does not strike me favorably. The word implies that it is not a place where people can go for fresh air, but a playground; and after what was said in regard to excluding base ball from the Common, this appears to be for the purpose of providing a place for playing base ball. That is my notion about it, and I have been informed that that was the idea of the committee somewhat, and that it grew out of the fact that that game had been excluded from the Common. Now I do not see why—perhaps the other gentlemen do—if the City Council are to be called upon, and if there is any public necessity for them to be asked to make an appropriation to furnish a base-ball ground, they cannot be called upon to furnish a ground for horse-races and a billiard saloon. It is very plain that but few people can receive any amusement from a base-ball ground established in West Roxbury and on Huntington avenue—that is the nearest one mentioned, and it is a mile from City Hall. Let us suppose a ground is laid out on Huntington avenue. In the first place the sand there is knee-deep, and I do not see how they can lay out a ground there for people to walk on—certainly not in windy days, when the health will receive more detriment than good. And they have got to sod it and fence it, wherever they take this ground. The objections are the same as against taking this park. It relieves the parties from the payment of taxes, and it is an opening wedge to further appropriations. I understand that since this order passed last week, and since this question of taking the Harris estate for a park came up, almost every member of the City Council has been besieged by people who want to lease land to the city for a playground or a park. One gentleman told me he was called out of church last Sunday to be talked to on the subject. That would be disastrous to the city.

Mr. Richardson's time having expired, on motion of Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 it was extended.

Mr. Richardson—Another question arises, Can we afford it? Now, we have voted here this year that we cannot afford an appropriation which the guardians of our public schools have asked for to carry on the schools. We have also voted to cut down the pay of the laborers and those who hold the smallest and meanest offices in the city. Now, I say it does not seem to me, in view of these things and other things of that character that might be mentioned, that it is consistent to vote away $2000 for playgrounds; and I do not believe that would be more than a tithe of the amount required. It will set a bad example, and I do not think it is consistent to pass this order in view of the votes we have passed reducing city expenses. As I stated, it seems to me that it is a measure of doubtful utility and very questionable expediency, and I could not let it go on without saying a word against it.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I wish I could give the gentleman all the information he desires on the matter of location, prices and expenses. It was the idea of the committee that if the Council were not prepared to go on with it, it was useless for them to spend their valuable time in getting up leases for such a small amount; but if the Council were desirous of entering into this project, for this comparatively small amount, why, the committee can go on and perfect such leases and make such changes as might be necessary. The gentleman from Ward 10 has spoken in relation to this playground in West Roxbury; and he labors under the very common delusion that in the country children can play just where they please. But it is not a fact. Children in the city can find playgrounds much easier than those in the country. On every vacant lot of land in the outlying districts is a sign, "No trespassing allowed." Those who own land want it for agricultural purposes, and people are not allowed to trespass upon it. It is not intended that people shall travel out of town to West Roxbury to play ball; but that the boys of West Roxbury shall play ball there. They have no other place. They are now playing upon land loaned to them by sufferance, and in a few weeks it will be taken away. The city can hire it for about $50 a year. The city does not take off the taxes; but the owner pays the taxes. The same is the case in other parts of the city. The city can get certain land for nothing; but in most of those it is necessary to do something in the way of clearing them off. The city owns some land that can be used by filling up ditches and holes, and possibly the expense will be $60 or $70 on each piece of land. The amount asked for is small; and with $2000 there is very little reason to think the city will hire all the unprofitable or unoccupied territory in the city. It is not intended to limit the games to base ball. It is intended that children shall go there and play just what they please. At present they cannot do so. Every country town or village has some common tract of land where children can play; and as we have none in Boston, it is proposed to provide these temporarily until some better accommodations are provided.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I wish to answer two or three points made by the gentleman from Ward 10. The first is that an appropriation for this purpose would not be for the public use in the widest sense; and he instances, as an argument, the West Roxbury playground, saying it cannot be for the public use because people here cannot go out there and make use of it. Exactly the same argument can be applied to our public schools. No person living here goes to West Roxbury to school; but the schoolhouses in West Roxbury are undoubtedly for public use. The same reason which makes it necessary to establish schools there, makes it right to locate a playground there. That is my answer to one of his points. Then his second point is, that we have shown commendable economy this year—or not, as the case might be—in cutting down the appropriation for public schools and in reducing the salaries of laborers and officials. My understanding of the reasons for cutting down the appropriation for public schools was this—that the City Council desired to reduce the salaries paid, and in order to do that they reduced the appropriation. The same theory applies to the pay of the laborers—that the expense of living has been so much reduced that not to reduce salaries is equivalent to raising them. Another point is that we shall lose the taxes on those grounds. I do not so understand it. I understand that we appropriate the money, and no further expense can be made, and that the gentlemen owning the land pay their own taxes. So that point is hardly a good one. Then the gentleman said we might go ahead and start billiard saloons or establish race tracks. The question now is, is it expedient to enter upon this expenditure? If you believe, as they did in old Rome, that it is a good thing to set up a race track at the public expense—they believed it was right and we do not—if a majority of the citizens of Boston believe that horse racing should be encouraged, we would appropriate the money for it. The principle is the same in regard to playgrounds. I believe it is a proper expenditure of money to provide places where boys can exercise themselves—get out of the dirty, narrow streets, and be better for it in every way. I can see no objection to making the appropriation, unless there is danger of an improper expenditure of the money; and that will rest with the committee, and they are responsible for it.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14—It seems to me that by the last vote the Council has committed itself against appropriating any money for playgrounds. Here is the Harris estate, already improved, which no doubt can be had for the payment of the taxes only. Now the Committee on Common and Squares come to us and say they want $2000 to improve land not fit for a playground at the present time. The motion to take the Harris estate was rejected because the city would lose the taxes on that land; and now it is said that if the committee hire estates and the city appropriates $2000 to improve them, the city will lose the taxes on them besides. It seems to me there is very little reason in this argument, and I hope the motion to reconsider will prevail.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—What I intended to say in regard to this "public use" was that there is no general demand for it. It does not serve any general public use, as education does. It is very plain to see that this will be monopolized by a few. It will redound, perhaps to the physical culture of a few, a very few. Gentlemen must see that it is not on the same principle as education. I do not see why we should not be called upon to vote for an appropriation for a gymnasium for the boys in winter, or a billiard saloon for the delectation of those who play billiards and find amusement in it. It is the same thing. I tell you it does not serve any general utility and use, and nobody claims that it is for the public health.

Mr. Thompson—I only want to make one more comparison on the subject of general public use, if this is to be done. We have voted to put an iron fence on Commonwealth avenue, and have provided for it by an appropriation of public money; yet I doubt if there are many citizens in West Roxbury who ever will see Commonwealth avenue. We make an appropriation for paving streets in different parts of the city, and as a matter of fact we are constantly making appropriations for the improvement of one part of the city, and are not making the same improvements in the other sections. The only question is, Do we believe that playgrounds are good for the boys? I believe they are.

Mr. Howes—I would like to correct the gentleman from Ward 10. He states that there is no demand for this thing. There is a very great demand for it. It would be very absurd to suppose that boys of ten, twelve or fifteen years of age are going to draw up and send a written petition here. But, so far as the youth of the city are concerned, I am very certain that there is a decided desire to have these playgrounds provided for them. They are in no sense to be confined to base-ball clubs. They are to be used by any who want to go there; and probably they may be used in summer by from thirty to forty thousand boys.

Mr. Ruffin—The trouble about this matter is, that when it passed I did not understand the scope of it, and I do not understand it now. I believe that in some measure the establishment of a playground is a precedent. If the gentlemen who brought this measure here had stated that they wanted a park, I could understand that perfectly; I know what it means. But when they said they wanted to establish playgrounds, I sat in my seat and did not vote at all. I must say I did not understand it then, and I do not understand it now. If it means, as some gentlemen have stated, that certain lots are to be devoted to playing base ball, then I understand it perfectly well; but if it does not mean that, I do not know what a playground means. Now, there are certain things in connection with public parks that I should like to see. While riding out to the South End the other day, I saw little children running around on the squares, and people sitting on the seats. That is a pleasant sight to behold. If it is the intention to establish anything of that character, I am in favor of it. I think the city should have more of those beautiful things; and instead of merely having those two squares there, if they had as many more it would be very beautiful. But if it is the purpose of establishing a playground where the riffraff can go and play base ball, then I think this $2000 will not be well expended, because they have other means of encouraging that. There are professional men engaged in it at a salary, and they have grounds for the games. From the explanation of the chairman of the committee I do not understand what it is for unless it is for men, women and children to walk around and have a good time.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I trust that the reconsideration will prevail. It seems to me there is a principle involved here that should make us careful. I think the gentleman from Ward 10 made a good illustration. If we grant these playgrounds in the summer, why should we not grant a gymnasium in the winter? I trust the reconsideration will prevail, and as I think the discussion has taken a pretty wide scope, I call for the previous question.

The main question was ordered.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14 moved that the question be taken by yeas and nays.

Mr. Thompson—I believe the city has already committed itself to providing for the physical culture of the youth, by hiring the hall of the Institute of Technology.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I was not aware that that had been done.

Mr. Thompson—It has hired the place as a drill hall, and money is appropriated for keeping it up.

The yeas and nays were not ordered and the motion to reconsider was lost—12 for, 30 against.

MEANS OF EGRESS FROM PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 moved to reconsider the vote whereby was passed the order for the Inspector of Buildings to report on the expediency of making any changes in means of egress from schoolhouses, halls or churches.

Mr. Spenceley—If gentlemen will look at City Document 11, they will find a long report that the inspector has just made in regard to this subject. It is a fact that every year for the last three years an order has been put in here for this purpose; and last year a committee was chosen by the Council, but it was non-concurred in by the Board of Aldermen and killed. It seems to me that we have already got a report, and the question is, Is our inspector competent to do the work? If he is, it is best to let him go on and do it; and if he is not, it is best to find some one else to do it. I had an interview with him today, and he said he was doing all he could. If the gentlemen will look at the report they will see that sixty-three of the complaints were made, and if a complaint is made it is investigated. He can do no more than he has done. Within three months he has made a report, and why need he go to work to make a report of the same kind and character? It seems to me it will be inexpedient to require him to do it while we have this report before us. If the reconsideration prevails, I shall move that the order be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—The gentleman from Ward 11 [Mr. Mowry], who introduced this order, is not present to explain why he did so, and I move that the motion for reconsideration be laid upon the table till the next meeting.

The subject was laid upon the table.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

A communication was received from the Board of License Commissioners requesting an additional clerk. The City Clerk, in whose office the work of signing bonds and certificates has been done, says that he will need an extra one for the ensuing year, if the work is still to be done there. It seems proper that the work should be done in the office of the commissioners, and the City Clerk concurs in this view. They ask to be authorized to employ an additional clerk.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 moved that it be referred to the Retrenchment Committee.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the reference will not be made, for the reasons given by the license commissioners. It is a fact that the City Clerk did employ a clerk to fill out the licenses granted by the commissioners. Since the Retrenchment Committee's report was adopted, that clerk's duties have been done away with, and there is no work for him to do. Now they are about to issue licenses, and it is necessary that another clerk should be employed.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I should like to say that it is eminently proper that that matter should be referred to this committee. They reported an order which did away with a number of the employes heretofore employed in the Department of the License Commissioners, and as they took upon themselves the responsibility of believing he made the City Council believe that it left ample force, and as we received great credit for abolishing offices and reducing salaries, it seems to me proper before any office is restored that that committee should consider it and be responsible for it.

Mr. Thompson—The gentleman has stated for me the reason that I had for making my motion. It is evident that there is a conflict of opinion between the License Commissioners and the Retrenchment Committee, and in order to obtain the information it is proper that it should be referred to them.

The communication was referred to the Retrenchment Committee. Sent up.

FREE FERRIES.

Mr. Webster of Ward 1 presented the petitions of the Adams Express Company and 462 others; Nathaniel Adams and 330 others; and J. F. Dane, Grinnell & Co. and 305 others, in favor of free ferries.

Referred to Committee on East Boston Ferries. Sent up.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9 submitted a report from the Committee on Ordinances in favor of the passage of an ordinance providing that persons who have served seven years in the department may receive a certificate thereof, signed by the Mayor, on written notice of such service by the Fire Commissioners.

The ordinance was passed. Sent up.

BACK BAY IMPROVEMENT.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18 submitted the following from the Committee on Streets:

Ordered, That the city of Boston hereby consents to closing up and building over the fifty-foot street described in or laid out by the indenture between the State, the Boston Water Power Company and the city, dated Dec. 31, 1864, and recorded with Suffolk Deeds, lib. 54, folio 241, being the street laid out along land of the Boston & Albany Railroad Company between Columbus avenue and Dartmouth street, the discontinuance of such street having been already agreed to by the company, and Buckingham street, built and laid out by the city, fully providing for all the wants of the public between the same points; and the Mayor is hereby authorized to execute, acknowledge and deliver any deeds, satisfactory to the City Solicitor, which may be deemed expedient to carry out the objects of this order.

Mr. Felt—I would simply say, sir, that when this agreement was made on the part of the State, the Water Power Company and the city, it was for a street running obliquely along Columbus avenue, and parallel with the Boston & Albany Railroad, to Dartmouth street. In making this street it would be with a single front for the houses, and they would front to the railroad. In the subsequent arrangements with the Water Power Company, Buckingham street was laid out and houses were built on both sides; and this order simply asks for confirmation on the part of the city.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I move that the order be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, for the purpose of taking the opinion of the City Solicitor as to whether there would be any legal objections to the order as it now stands. I do not know that there are any; but I have lately had occasion to examine certain plans made by the Water Power Company, and I think it possible we might pass an order which would make expense hereafter.

Mr. Felt—The order has been referred to the City Solicitor, and has his approval in its present shape.

Mr. Thompson—Then I withdraw my motion for reference, and move that it lie upon the table for one week, that we may have time to examine it.

The order was laid on the table.

EMPLOYING CITIZENS AS LABORERS.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 offered an order—That the Boston Water Board be authorized and instructed to have all work done by the day in the construction of the proposed sewer in the Mystic Valley, and to employ no persons in the construction of such sewer who are not citizens of Boston.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I move the reference of the order to the Committee on Water. My reason for offering it is this: In going up to the Sudbury River Water Works I found on examining different departments that no citizens of Boston were at work, and I found that so far as the employment of poor men is concerned—which I have heard advocated in this Council in regard to parks—that they were poorly represented on that work. I thought it pretty serious, and since I have been thinking on this subject I have found that a good many of those men came here with the expectation of getting fair wages for their labor. The bosses got them here from New York and other places and reduced the wages from what they agreed to give them; and in consequence they have left off work and have got down into those low places, and finally went to our public institutions. By doing so, I believe it will be the means of assisting laboring men of Boston and enabling them to pay their landlords and grocers, and enable the landlords and grocers to pay their taxes to the city. So far as the Sudbury River work is concerned, it has been an injury to the laboring men of Boston. It brought men into Boston who became vagabonds.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I would ask the gentleman to withdraw the motion to commit, in order that I may offer a substitute for his order, entirely in the same spirit, only broader in its operation.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I should like to hear the substitute read before I withdraw the motion. I have no interest in the matter whatever. I want to be perfectly fair. I don't want to offer any order that is not right and fair and just. In this case I have consulted the City Solicitor, members of the Water Board and City Engineer, and they approve of the order.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—I hope the substitute of the gentleman from Ward 22 is broad enough to cover all contracts made by the city. I think the work in our streets should be given to the citizens of Boston. If the gentleman's substitute covers that ground I hope it will be adopted.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I have an order which I propose to introduce, which will cover the question not only of labor, but also of contracts. I believe that the order is very well, so far as it goes, in regard to labor; but I believe that all our contracts should be awarded to the citizens of Boston, and that the laboring men of Boston should be employed in the work. That is where the whole thing comes. It is by awarding contracts to New York parties who come here, and they pick up men they can get the cheapest. The consequence has been that in building the Sudbury River conduit, a great portion of it has been done by men outside of Boston. I do not mean to say that the building of such works as the Sudbury River conduit could have been done by Boston parties. But here is a sewer proposed to be built in the Mystic Valley which can be done as cheap, and I believe that much benefit will be derived from it if it is awarded to taxpayers of Boston, who will employ men who are citizens of Boston. I have an order which I propose to introduce covering that ground.

The President—The question is on the reference to the Committee on Water. The substitute is not in order.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—It seems to me that this order is likely to lead to mischief. If an order is passed requiring all work to be done by day's labor instead of contract, it is simply a move providing for the employment by the heads of departments of a large number of laborers; and, as I believe now, a great portion of the laborers who are employed have to get nominated by members of the City Council before they get employment, it would be a large field in which to exercise our influence. I think there is enough of this already. I do not suppose the gentleman offered the order with any such intention, but so far as this order looks in that direction, I should hope that it will not be adopted. Any order which tends to having the work done by day's labor, it seems to me, will tend to have the members of the City Council beset by laborers seeking to have their claims handed in to the heads of departments with the request to employ them; and that, it seems to me, is one very bad element about the way in which our city business has been done, and which ought not to be increased. I thought that, to give the order what it seemed would be its effect, I would offer an amendment, by adding, "recommended by a member of the City Council." That is, all parties employed should be citizens of Boston, recommended by a member of the City Council. That would put the thing in the shape that is desired. But I will not offer the amendment; I do not seriously object to its being referred to the Committee on Water. They might bring it in in some good shape; but it seems to me that in its present shape it might do harm.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I must confess I do not appreciate the utility or wisdom of such measures as this. It is in the nature of an ordinance. I do not see why the city should debar itself from getting labor as cheap as other corporations or people. I do not see why the city should debar itself from employing the best labor. Suppose the best contractor is a citizen of Cambridge, should we be debarred from getting him? Suppose we have to go to Montreal or Quebec to get the best contractor, should we be debarred from doing it? This order says that they shall employ only citizens of Boston. Many people get naturalized and come here, but they are not citizens; and they would be prevented from working; what would become of them? They are not skilled mechanics generally; they have to dig ditches and all that sort of thing. As I understand the gentleman's order, they are not citizens of Boston, and could not work. The spirit and letter of this order is so easily evaded, any one can see that if a large job is to be carried on by citizens of Boston only, all that is necessary would be for one to get a boarding-place and declare himself a citizen of Boston, as they did in the old times, by depositing a valise, and then they became citizens of this ward or that. They would become citizens of Boston, and when the job was over, and the harvest was gone, you would have to support them in the poor-house. Would not that be so? It seems to me it is illiberal. In the first place, if it is done with the intention of keeping people outside of Boston from working on public works which extend beyond the limits of the city, it is illiberal in the spirit, and I do not believe in it. To pass an order here which savors of head centres, trades unions and strikers, preventing any one from going to work; I do not like it.

Mr. McGaragle—The gentleman who has just sat down is, I am sorry to say, ignorant of the laws, although he claims to be a lawyer. He says it will hold out an inducement to men to come here and be naturalized.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I beg pardon. I said they might become citizens of Boston by moving in here; and all a man has to do is to come here and declare himself a citizen of Boston, and then he can go to work. The order is easily evaded.

Mr. McGaragle—The more the gentleman tries to explain, the deeper he gets in the mire. One cannot possibly be a citizen of Boston unless he has resided here six months. There can be no possible harm in referring it to the Committee on Water.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—When I offered that order I had no idea of excluding anybody, but I do believe that as times are in Boston it is the duty of the city of Boston to protect its own poor citizens. Somerville did it last winter; Cambridge did it, and I don't see why Boston should not do it. Now, sir, I offer this order so that this work should be done by the day. I believe it can be done by the day almost as cheap as by contract, by employing competent men to superintend the work. I considered the order carefully. I don't wish to bring people into Boston or drive any out of it. I offered it in good faith. As some members of this Council seem to think it would tend to make pressure upon the members of this Council for work, I would say that I think there are some members of this Council that would never recommend a poor man for anything. I came here knowing the wants of the laboring men of Boston, and my intention was to get the contractors clear of this work. Now, the gentleman states that the work should be done by the contractors. The work of the city has been done by the contractors, and they have cheated the poor men of their pay. This order keeps it within the control of the city of Boston to employ its own citizens, and enable them to pay their rent, to feed their children, and not to be starving as they are now. I offered it for humanity's sake. That is one of my reasons. The next reason is, I believe it can be done about ten per cent. better than by contract, by employing competent men to superintend the work and give those men the power to employ or discharge their own men when they are not fit for the work. I did not offer it for a political dodge, as the gentleman in my rear [Mr. Crocker] states.

Mr. Crocker—I did not so state.

Mr. Kelley—I do not wish to have that remark go before the public. My motives are as pure as his. Although I don't make many speeches, I talk good common sense. I wish I was a lawyer, so as to make a good speech and keep the Council entertained an hour or two every evening. My intention was to enable these men to pay their grocers' bills and save the public institutions some custom next winter.

Mr. Crocker—I merely wish to correct the gentleman. I stated explicitly that I did not suppose he offered the motion with any such intention. I said I thought that would be the effect of it. I thought I expressly freed him from any such intention, and it is rather with an ill grace that he charges me with charging him with anything of the kind.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—I agree with the gentleman from Ward 3 in regard to the employment of citizens of Boston. As regards the matter of labor, that is another question. I think that there should be some safeguards thrown around contracts, so that our citizens of Boston should derive some benefit from it. But as to the question whether the contractor should hire citizens only—for instance, the Somerville sewer was done by contract, but it was inserted in the bargain that he should employ citizens of Somerville. I think the citizens of Boston can be included in the contract.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—There are masons at work upon that sewer who came from Philadelphia and some from Charlestown.

Mr. Fagan of Ward 19—I am in favor of the gentleman's order, but I would like to know what he means by citizens. A great many men are in a city who are not citizens, but residents. If he has no objection, I would move that "citizens" be stricken out and "residents of the city for one year" be inserted.

Mr. Kelley—I accept the amendment.

The President—The amendment is not in order, the question being on the reference to the Committee on Water.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14—I have no doubt that the motive of the gentleman from Ward 3 is a good one; but there are very few members but have been applied to by laborers during the last four months for work. Not a day passes but a laborer applies to me for work from the city; and if anything can be done to give them work I shall be very glad to have it done; and I see no harm in referring this order to the Committee on Water.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The object of this order is unquestionably a good one, and something to effect this purpose should be done. But I object to the order as it reads for one or two reasons. I do not believe in dictating to the Water Board as to how they shall do it. By the ordinance they cannot undertake any work over $10,000 except by contract, unless authorized by the City Council. I had a conversation with them, and they tell me if it is the desire of the City Council that this should be done by days' labor they undoubtedly would do so, but it would cost a little more, though a few thousand dollars might cover the whole matter. To pass an order authorizing them to do it by days' labor would amount to the same thing, and not be dictating to them, and be more complimentary. The order I had prepared was this:

Ordered, That the Boston Water Board be and they hereby are authorized to build the sewer in the Mystic Valley by day's labor instead of by contract.

The Board would understand our ideas clearly, and the object we desire would be attained.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I believe the order seems to be about a matter which would undoubtedly work a considerable good to the inhabitants of the city. But the difficulty which occurs to me is that there are laws of trade which are of greater force than any orders we can pass here. I believe the citizens of Boston should be employed upon the work of the city of Boston when they can to the same advantage. I do not see why citizens of Boston cannot work as cheaply as people from a distance; and the reason that they would work as cheaply should be a reason for their employment. A great deal depends in the letting of contracts upon the good faith with which they are carried out. If we want to signify to the head of a department what we think it is best to do, we should not pass an order, but merely express an opinion. We should say, "Resolved, That it is the sense of the City Council" that thus and so should be done. Then we leave it to practical men, and if they find difficulties in carrying out the plan, they will not do so, and can give their reasons. They know that their tenure of office depends upon the will of the people who sit in this chamber; and wherever your opinion is expressed, if it is practicable, it will be carried out. But do not let us pass upon it in this snap manner, and take away the discretion of men to whom we pay large salaries to perform work. I think the question of sufficient importance to consider whether we cannot remove some of the evils of cheap laborers whom contractors have brought here, and who have to be supported by the city. What the city gains on a small contract it loses by supporting them. Do any persons know how many people of that class are in the city now?

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I do not believe that any sewer should be built by contract. I believe that the city is swindled in its sewer contracts more than in anything else. We all very well know that in building a sewer the contractor covers it over as soon as possible, when they go along in their work, and it is entirely out of sight. Now, sir, I wish to inform the Council that the town of Brookline are now building a sewer from the village to Charles River, to cost more than $300,000; and the town passed a vote that all the laborers employed upon that sewer should be residents of the town, and that the sewer should be built by day's labor. They employed engineers who see that the laborers and mechanics perform their work properly. But it is done by the day in order to get their own town's people employed. Now, sir, last winter the town took into consideration what they should do to keep their poor people employed during the winter; and they decided to keep them at work upon a piece of ground purchased for a cemetery. They employed some fifty laborers who were residents of the town; and, sir, all the tenements and cheap houses in the town of Brookline were occupied, whilst just across the line, on the Boston side, on what is called Downer street, the tenement houses were either vacant, or the parties who owned them could not collect any rents, because the men could not get employment. At the same time they were paying the city taxes on the property. The Superintendent told me, within the last three weeks, that the work on the cemetery, and grading the lawns, which last summer cost the town $26 a lot, was done by the day during the past winter for $10 a lot, so that the town saved a large amount of money. The laboring people seemed to consider that the town was doing all it could for their benefit, and in consequence they worked well and performed a large amount of work for the pay they got. I believe that in many cases we can get our work done as cheap, if not cheaper, by day's labor, as by contract. I believe that some contractors make a large amount of money in contract work, by hiring their labor at a very low price. I know when I was upon the Sudbury River works last summer, I was talking with one of the superintendents, and I found the city was obliged to employ quite a large number of foremen and trained mechanics to see that these contractors did not swindle the city; and he told me his back could hardly be turned but one of the employes would throw sand into the cement and reduce it down so as to save the cement, and consequently the city of Boston was cheated out of so much good cement. This work is soon covered up, and if anything occurs so that it becomes in a damaged condition, no one is responsible for it; the contractor has his pay, and we cannot blame the City Engineer, because it is let out by contract, and it is presumed that the contractor has done it to the best of his ability. I think such work should be done by day's labor.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—While I am in sympathy with the gentleman who offered the order, yet I cannot see why it is that this particular sewer should be built by the day. Why not have all sewers in the city of Boston built by the day? Why single out this one sewer that is to cost $200,000 and have it built by the day? I can see that it will be a dangerous precedent. Here is a sewer to be built in the Mystic Valley, away off out of the city of Boston, which it is proposed to build by the day, and here in the city of Boston we are continually building sewers. Why not have all those sewers built by the day?

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—The reason, sir, is that last year the sewers were all built at contracts so low to men outside of Boston, who came here from Providence and every other part of the country, received the pay from the city and cheated the laborers out of it. I had to take some of them in my ward before the Superintendent of Sewers, and he refused to pay them because the city had paid the contractor. Another reason is that the citizens of Boston can manage their own jobs as well as citizens of Providence, and we have got as honest and competent men for doing their work as they have. That is my reason for offering it.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—That is the reason I want to bring out. He says the contracts are let to people out of town. I say that is what we want to remedy, and that the contracts shall be given to taxpayers and citizens of Boston, and that we should have our contracts and labor done by the citizens of Boston. I think there is no reason why this particular sewer should be built by the day any more than other sewers.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I believe that all the sewers in Boston should be built by the day.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23 moved the previous question.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—What is the effect of the previous question?

The President—It cuts off the motion to commit.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I hope the previous question will not be ordered. The gentleman who favored the taking of the Harris estate thought it should be reported on by the committee, for it can do no harm to report on a matter of that kind, which is very trifling. Certainly it can do no harm to have a report upon this, which is of great importance to the laboring classes.

Mr. Coe withdrew the motion for the previous question.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I trust it will be committed to the Committee on Water. I believe in the spirit of the order, but I don't think it is worded right. I presume the committee will consider bringing in an order just to meet the case. I believe there is a majority of this Council who are willing to go outside of the old routine precedence and do something for the laboring men of this city. In regard to the special reasons for building this sewer, the Water Board however deemed it proper that it is best to build it in that way, without the request of the City Council. That sewer will be close to a railroad track for some distance, and the expense of a few thousand dollars more will be small compared with the risk of having it poorly done. That being the opinion of the Water Board, it might be advisable to have it done by day's labor.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 moved the previous question.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 7—I hope the gentleman will withdraw the motion for the previous question and allow this to be referred to the Committee on Water.

Mr. Spenceley—I understood that there are two or three orders here covering broader ground than that, and I think we had better vote this one down and take the others.

The Council refused to order the main question.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2—The gentleman from Ward 20 says there is no reason why all contracts for sewers should not be given out by the day. I suppose the reason is because the City Council have never ordered it. I believe it is the first time in my memory that an order of that kind came before the Council, but I heartily concur with the gentleman who advocated it. Every mechanic knows, and it is my experience, that there is so much competition that it is almost impossible to get work done by contract. In my own locality I know there are a good many people who are begging for employment in order to get money to pay their taxes.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21 raised the question that the Council having refused to order the previous question the subject is thereby postponed to the next meeting.

The President decided the point not well taken.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—While I am in sympathy with the latter portion of the order offered by the gentleman—

Mr. Pratt again raised the point that the Council having voted not to take the previous question, the effect of that vote is to postpone the consideration of the matter until another meeting.

The President decided the point not well taken and recognized Mr. Day as having the floor.

Mr. Pratt respectfully appealed from the decision of the Chair.

While I accept the latter portion of the order in regard to the employment of laborers who are residents of the city, I should be willing to leave that to the judgment of the Water Board; but the gentleman from Ward 22 seems to have gone out of the way to throw a slur upon the large class of men whom I happen to know are a class of good, honest, fair-minded men, as I believe contractors are. I don't believe contractors are always swindlers. I think the Superintendents of Buildings and Sewers would answer that those men do good work by contract.

Mr. Vose of Ward 24 asked if there was any question before the Council, and the President replied that the question was on referring to the Committee on Water.

Mr. Clarke—I would like to reply to the gentleman from Ward 4 in regard to the statement I made. I stated that a person employed by the city to watch the contractors, stated to me that they could cheat, and would cheat every chance they got unless closely watched.

Mr. Day—I referred to the gentleman's remarks as being of a general character. There may be some cheating going on, but from my knowledge of contractors they are generally pretty good men. I do not think members of this Council should take occasion to throw a slur upon the general character of contractors. It seems to me that gentlemen in this Council who are contractors seem to be rather insinuating against their own class of men.

Mr. Pratt again raised the point of order, that the refusal of the Council to order the previous question, passed the subject over to the next meeting, and read from Section 1418 of "Cushing's Law and Practice":

"If resolved in the negative, the main question, both in substance and form, is suppressed for the day, which is ordinarily considered as equivalent to a defeat."

The President—The Chair has already decided that the point is not well taken. That has not been the practice in this Council.

Mr. Pratt respectfully appealed, and Mr. Thompson seconded the appeal.

Mr. Howes asked if this rule was laid down in "Cushing's Manual," which governs the Council in all cases where its rules do not specially apply.

Mr. Pratt had not the manual, which it is understood contains the main points in the larger work, and he presumed it conformed to this. He had noticed the practice once or twice, and his appeal was intended to be entirely respectful, and for the purpose of obtaining a decision from the Chair.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 said Mr. Pratt's point was entirely wrong so far as American parliamentary practice is concerned. The practical effect of such a practice would be to give any member the power to either force a vote or lay the matter over to the next meeting.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 16 said that in the succeeding paragraph of "Cushing's Law and Practice" this is not the practice in this country.

Mr. Pratt—I would—

Mr. Ham raised the point that Mr. Pratt had no right to speak but once.

The President ruled the point well taken.

On motion of Mr. Thompson, Mr. Pratt was allowed to speak.

Mr. Pratt said he did not find that American practice was any different from that laid down in parliamentary law, except in assemblies where it is a different rule.

Mr. Thompson read from page 556 of Cushing, that—

"If decided in the negative, the decision precludes the taking of the same or any similar question, the same day; if decided in the affirmative, the main or principal question is then to be immediately put, without any further debate or delay."

Then it states the operation of this proceeding in legislative assemblies in the United States. The adoption of the rule would be wise. Our previous question is used to cut off debate by gentlemen who do not appear to be interested in the discussion or have some reason for forcing measures through. There is hardly a subject but will bear intelligent discussion, and if a member moves the previous question, if the Council are not prepared to settle matters they will negative it, and the matter will go over.

Mr. Spenceley moved to adjourn. Lost.

Mr. Day read rule 70 to show that the point did not apply, and that Cushing's law was inconsistent with the Council rule.

Mr. Crocker said his experience in the Council led him to believe the President's ruling in accordance with custom and usage here. He read the following extracts from Cushing's Manual:

"65. But the previous question may be decided in the affirmative, as well as in the negative, that is, that the main question shall now be put; in which case, that question is to be put immediately, without any further debate, and in the form in which it then exists. This operation of the previous question, when decided affirmatively, has led to the use of it for the purpose of suppressing debate on a principal question, and coming to a vote upon it immediately; and this is ordinarily the only object of the previous question, as made use of in the legislative assemblies of the United States. The operation of a negative decision is different in different assemblies; in some, as for example in the House of Representatives of Congress, it operates to dispose of the principal or main question by suppressing or removing it from before the House for the day; but in others, as in the House of Representatives of Massachusetts, and in the House of Assembly of New York (in the former by usage only, and in the latter by a rule), the effect of a negative decision of the previous question is to leave the main question under debate for the residue of the sitting, unless sooner disposed of, by taking the question, or in some other manner."

"In this country the previous question is used chiefly for suppressing debate on a main question; the object of the mover of it is to obtain a decision of it in the affirmative; and the effect of a decision the other way, though in some assemblies operating technically to suppress the main question for the day only, is, in general, merely to suspend the taking of the question for that day; either leaving the debate to go on during the residue of the day, or the subject to be renewed on the next or some other day."

As the manual does not speak positively on the point, he thought the ruling of the Chair in accordance with American practice.

Mr. Spenceley moved to specially assign the subject to 8½ P. M. next meeting.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 objected to postponement and read from rule 51 to show that the President's ruling was in accordance with the Council's rule.

The question was put, and the President's ruling was sustained, unanimously.

The order was referred to the Committee on Water.

APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Perham of Ward 23 offered an order—That George A. Spear be appointed a fence viewer and that Thomas Cunningham be appointed a field driver and pound keeper, within the limits of the city.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 asked if that nomination should not come from the Mayor, and Mr. Perham explained that it was to be done by the City Council.

Mr. Thompson said the names had not come from any committee, and moved the reference of the order to the Retrenchment Committee.

Mr. Vose of Ward 24 objected to the reference.

After some further discussion by Mr. Thompson, Mr. Perham, Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, Mr. Webster of Ward 3 and Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19, Mr. Thompson withdrew the motion, and the order was passed. Sent up.

PROMOTION OF PARLIAMENTARY KNOWLEDGE.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 offered an order—That the City Messenger be and he is hereby authorized to furnish each member of the Common Council with a copy of Cushing's large manual; the same to be charged to the Contingent Fund of the Common Council.

Mr. Felt moved to refer to Retrenchment Committee.

Mr. Fagan moved to adjourn. Lost.

Mr. Webster hoped there would be no more sarcasm displayed in the Council.

Mr. Ruffin moved to amend by adding an English grammar and a dictionary.

Mr. McGaragle accepted the amendment.

The order was referred to the Retrenchment Committee.

CONTRACTS ONLY TO TAXPAYERS.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 offered an order—That the several boards and committees of the City Government be directed to award contracts for the construction or repair of any public work to no person not a taxpayer in this city, unless otherwise ordered by the City Council.

Mr. Pratt moved to amend by adding the words—

"That directors and heads of departments, who may have the employment of laborers at the expense of the city of Boston, shall so employ citizens of Boston only."

Mr. Wilbur accepted Mr. Pratt's amendment.

Mr. Thompson moved its reference to the Committee on Finance.

On the first trial a quorum did not vote. The motion was lost—14 for, 24 against.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I certainly trust that this order will not be passed. I, for one, am not willing to build a big Chinese wall around Boston and keep out every one from our midst. Personally, I am strongly in favor of free trade and of buying where one can buy the cheapest. We have nearly damaged and spoilt the reputation of the country by going on as we have under the protective tariff, and I trust that Boston will not imitate the country in that respect. The principle is analogous to the custom in Europe, where each city has a little duty it exacts from everything which comes into its borders. The marketman pays a tax upon every load of produce which he brings to the city. The principle involved here is the same and it is detrimental to the interests of the city. Now, sir, the gentleman has referred to the Sudbury River and the damage to the city by having the contracts awarded to outsiders. That question came up at the close of the session last year, and I took occasion to inquire of the Water Board as to the facts in the case, and from them I gained the following intelligence:

* The conduit from Sudbury River to Boston was divided into twenty sections. Section 1 was done by days' labor; on section 2 there were no bidders at all, and therefore no competition there; the other eighteen sections were awarded at an amount equal to about $2,000,000—that was the amount which the contractor received for building these eighteen sections. The lowest Boston bidders for those same sections were $2,700,000. That is, if the contract had been awarded to the Boston contractor, the city of Boston would have paid $700,000 more than it does under the present circumstances—and that is what the Council is asked to vote upon now. I am opposed to anything of the kind, and I very much doubt the legality of the city doing it.

Mr. Thompson—In making my motion for reference to the Finance Committee, I believed they would give it a fair investigation. If the gentleman prefers any other committee, let him name it; it is too late to discuss so important a subject.

Mr. Day—There is one feature of the order which is a little too radical. No one but citizens of Boston are to be employed unless it is authorized by the City Council. There might be reasons for employing particular men well qualified for a position, and therefore I should like to offer an amendment.

Mr. Wilbur—It does not apply to laborers, but to contractors.

Mr. Day—As I understand, the amendment inserted refers to the employment of laborers, in order to bring this matter within the scope where it would be more easily reached than in the Council. I move to substitute the words "unless authorized by the Committee on the part of the City Council having the subject in charge."

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 raised the point of order that the motion to commit takes precedence of any motion to amend.

The Chair said the motion to commit had been lost.

Mr. Felt of Ward 13 thought this was a matter which might lie over for a week, in order to give the Council time to obtain information, and he moved to adjourn.

The motion was carried and the Council adjourned

INSPECTOR AT THE ABATTOIR.

The order to fix the salary of the Inspector at the abattoir came up, under unfinished business, by special assignment.

Alderman Breck—Perhaps it is necessary to make some little explanation why I moved a reconsideration of the vote fixing the salary of the Inspector at the abattoir at $1500, and why the passage of the order should not be concurred in. I do not think the reasons were fully understood by the Board, who supposed it was actually necessary to appoint an inspector there. It is unnecessary, for all the duties can be performed by the Inspector in the city; and if we vote that $1500, it will only be to give some one a good berth. There is nothing he can possibly do. It is for the interest of all the butchers that nothing objectionable should go into the abattoir. It is impossible for diseased animals to be slaughtered and dressed there for our market, and as for very young calves they are not killed there, but are brought into the city by steamboats and railroads, where they are found by the inspectors and condemned. This salary is not called for and we may as well save what little we can. By giving the present Inspector here a horse and wagon, he can attend to all those duties at an expense not exceeding $600, and I think less than that. The animals can be looked at after they are slaughtered just as well by the Inspector here as by making this new office.

Alderman Clark—I am rather surprised that this matter should be brought before the Board again, after this Board voted—7 to 5—that it was necessary to have an Inspector at the abattoir, and to pay him $1500. Furthermore, an intelligent committee examined into this matter and made an intelligent report; and if we can place any reliance upon the reports of committees it is absolutely necessary that we should have an Inspector there to inspect the provisions sent to this city. I do not know but this Board are prepared to vote for it one Monday on a subject they thoroughly understood, and vote it down the next Monday; but I do not think they are. I stated upon reliable authority that there were eight or ten cases in which provisions would have been sent to the city unfit to go upon the table of any Alderman, had it not been for the Inspector upon the ground. I have been informed, and I believe it is susceptible of proof, that calves not more than two or three days old have been left at the abattoir, and would have been slaughtered there had it not been for the watchful eye of the Inspector upon the ground. Those facts can be substantiated by any Alderman who will take the trouble to send down to the Board of Health; and if those are the facts, there is no question but it is important that a man should be employed there at all hours of the day and night, if necessary. I have no doubt the superintendent of the abattoir is an upright and honorable man; but the Committee on Salaries investigated the subject thoroughly, and, if we can believe their report, the office is an important one, and $1500 is little enough salary for such a man as it is necessary to have there. Upon the passage of the order I call for the yeas and nays.

Alderman Breck—I agree with the Alderman so far as $1500 being little enough. It is too little altogether. An Inspector at the abattoir should have $3000, and an assistant, so that he can be relieved at night. It will be impossible for one man to do all the law requires, if it is all the Alderman suggests. But it is no more use having an Inspector there than here in City Hall. The Inspector in the city can do it as well. I think the Alderman has been misinformed in saying young calves have been carried there. They do not do that kind of business there. It is done out of the city. They would not dare to carry them there to be slaughtered. Many of those calves are slaughtered out in Middlesex County, in Maine and New Hampshire, and brought here by rail and steamer. The men interested in the abattoir would do everything to prevent poor beef from coming into the city, for it would be found out by the Inspector, who is around everywhere, and sees not only what comes from the country, but from the abattoir. I hope we shall not vote $1500 for the entirely useless office.

On motion of Alderman Viles, Dr. Durgin, chairman of the Board of Health, was requested to make a statement to the Board in relation to the matter.

Dr. Durgin—I have not heard one word that has been said up to this time, so that I can hardly know just exactly what is wanted.

The Mayor—The Board would like to know the necessity for this officer.

Dr. Durgin—I consider the necessity very great. The experience of a year or more has shown us that unhealthy animals are killed there and that after animals have died they have been dressed there, intended for the market. Animals have been condemned before death by the Inspector, and considerable meat has been seized and condemned after it has been dressed. During a period of four months and thirteen days there were 2227 pounds of meat dressed for market that was seized in that building by the Inspector and condemned as unfit for food. Within one month animals have been seen sick and unable to stand, and have fallen into Charles River and drowned, and they have been taken out by members of this association and dressed, and the owner thereof tried hard to make the Inspector believe that that meat was fit for market; but it was seized and destroyed. During the past April the Inspector has seized two whole beeves at that building and condemned them. Immature veals are brought there and slaughtered, and some of the meat has been seized and destroyed during the past year. There is much less at present than formerly; but that diseased cattle are slaughtered there and the meat dressed for market there can be no sort of doubt whatever. Within a few moments I have submitted a list of the meat seized during a few months of last year, which Alderman Clark has in his possession; and also a letter from the Secretary of the State Board of Health, who would be very glad indeed to state the reasons why that board labored hard for the Legislature to pass the act in regard to this subject. It was unanimously argued by the State Board of Health, and an act was passed in 1876, authorizing our board to appoint this officer, which we did a very few days after the act went into effect. The result is on paper before Alderman Clark.

Alderman Thompson—Could not the same officer (the Inspector of Provisions) attend to it the present year?

Dr. Durgin—I do not know that he can. Last year we considered it important to have an officer stationed there all the time. We failed in our efforts to get such a man as we wanted, and in lieu of that we secured the services of the Inspector in the city proper. He generally went there once a day, sometimes oftener. This year we determined to place a man there permanently.

Alderman Clark—Do you think it necessary that a man should be stationed there permanently in order that provisions intended for market may be properly inspected?

Dr. Durgin—I do, without any doubt whatever.

Q.—Have you ever heard of any young calves sent there to be slaughtered?

A.—I have seen them there myself; our officer has seized some of them.

Q.—How many has he seized?

A.—I could not tell without the record. I think several cases are shown on the paper before you. In the early part of last year there was considerable of it done, and I told the president of the association, Mr. Taylor, that those calves should not be allowed to go upon the premises; they attempted to throw some doubt upon the statement that those calves were sent there for slaughter. The presence of the Board of Health caused one man to gather up a large number of those calves that were unable to get up off the ground themselves; they had been left in a pen by themselves, and after we left another load was brought and unloaded into the same pen, where at least ten or a dozen were unable to get up. I should judge they were from one to three days old. They were picked up by those men who brought them there and put into a cart and driven away into a by-street, and there stopped until our Inspector followed up the wagon, and then the driver went on. The Inspector could tell you more fully as to where he was and about his chasing him that night than I can.

Alderman Breck—Has the inspector ever seized any veal after it has been slaughtered there?

A.—I think he has, although I should be obliged to refer to the records to tell you positively.

Alderman O'Brien—Do you intend to select a man who resides in that neighborhood, or will you send one from the city?

A.—It is best that he should reside at the place. It will be necessary for him to be there all the time, and to be up one morning early in the week as early as two o'clock to meet one train, and on other mornings about seven o'clock.

Alderman Thompson—Is he supposed to inspect every animal slaughtered there?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Can he inspect five or six hundred thousand a year?

A.—I should think it would be necessary to inspect that number. I have no doubt he can do it in a year. He can see every animal before it is slaughtered, and see the meat before it leaves the building.

Alderman Wilder—What sort of training would you require a man to have had for this place, to enable him to judge by the appearance of the animal before it is slaughtered, and also by the appearance of the meat afterwards?

A.—We should try to secure the best man we could.

Q.—Would a practical butcher be specially qualified for the duty?

A.—No, sir; I think he might not be. You might find a person outside the profession of butchering who is capable of judging of the condition of an animal or a piece of meat.

Q.—You think the inspection has been imperfectly done by reason of the Inspector having other duties to perform.

A.—He has labored under great disadvantage by reason of not being there all the time.

Q.—Then you believe that members of the association would not hesitate to furnish diseased meat, veal twenty-four hours old, or anything else, that people would buy, if it were not for the presence of the Inspector?

A.—I judge simply by the facts, even with the presence of the Inspector there.

Alderman Clark—Do you consider Mr. Terry a competent man for Inspector of Provisions at the abattoir?

A.—We do consider him a very good man for the business.

Q.—It requires all his time?

A.—I think it will require his whole time.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Have you appointed a man?

A.—Yes, sir.

Alderman Clark—When was this act passed?

A.—In April, 1876.

Q.—It authorized the Board of Health to appoint an Inspector?

A.—Yes, sir; one or more inspectors.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Did you ask for an additional Inspector last year, as soon as the act passed?

A.—We appointed one at once, but his compensation was simply the use of a team to get back and forth.

Q.—You mean that the Inspector of Provisions at Faucuil Hall was the inspector at the abattoir?

A.—The Inspector at Large in Boston.

Q.—With the addition of a team to enable him to get to the abattoir?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Don't you think the present Inspector could do this business if he had an assistant?

A.—If he had an assistant that could—

Q.—You thought all that was necessary last year was a team, and you did not think it necessary to come to this Board to ask for an additional Inspector. Do you not think now that the Inspector of Provisions with an assistant at a salary smaller than $1500 could perform that work better than it was done last year by one man?

A.—You want just as good a man, if not even better, to inspect the live animals and meat at that association than here in the city at large; and the assistant here would need to be just as good a man, if not better, than the Inspector himself; and to be in here any portion of his time would place him at a disadvantage in doing his whole duty at the abattoir. We do not consider that we did enough last year, but we did the best we could under the circumstances. The man who had been appointed by the Mayor and confirmed by the Board of Aldermen was a good man; we had seen his services for two years, and we appointed him to go there when he could find the time. That was his duty prior to the passage of this act.

Q. Then you did not deem it necessary to ask for a special Inspector last year?

A.—We did not deem it necessary simply because we could not find such a man as we wanted. We took one man out there and gave him to understand that the City Council would give him $2000, but he would not accept it. He was such a man as we wanted, and we would have appointed him. The next best thing we could do was to appoint a tried man and save the salary.

Alderman Burnham—Can a man looking at a live animal ordinarily tell if the liver or some other internal organ is diseased?

A.—I should think it rather doubtful. Such a man as we would be likely to appoint would have the advantage of seeing the animals approach the grounds, and if they were very sick they would manifest it; and if he is there all the time he would have the additional chance of seeing the meat.

Q.—In looking at the meat could a man judge whether the animals was diseased in the liver or some internal organ?

A.—In a very great many instances it is his only chance to see whether the meat is good or not. He even, if the animal gave no evidence of sickness while alive, after it is slaughtered he might find a condition of the internal organs which would justify him in condemning the whole, and sometimes only a part. Sometimes there are injuries which destroy a portion of the meat, while the remainder is suitable for food.

Q.—That being the case, is it not proper to have an Inspector upon the ground so as to witness the slaughtering of the animals, and to see the meat afterwards?

A.—It gives a very great additional security for him to see all he possibly can while the animals are being slaughtered. The same thing is done in Chicago, New York and Pittsburg; so that we are not the first to do it.

Alderman Clark—I wish to read the following communication:

OFFICE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH, }
BOSTON, May 21, 1877. }

Dr. S. H. Durgin, Chairman Board of Health:
Dear Sir—In reply to your inquiry, I have no hesitation in saying, from an intimate knowledge of the facts of the case, that an Inspector of animals and meat at the abattoir is a necessity of the very first importance. The Inspector, too, should be a first-rate man, familiar with his work. There is no other way, in my opinion, in which it is possible to prevent the introduction into our markets of considerable quantities of meat that ought to be condemned. This is a measure which the State Board of Health have urged for several years, and which has been adopted by special act of the Legislature at the request of our board.

Very respectfully yours,
CHAS. F. FOLSOM,

Sec'y State B. of H.

Here is a list of seizures made by J. H. Terry, the Inspector of Provisions, at the Brighton Abattoir:

May 13, 1876, 400 pounds beef, John W. Kelly owner.

June 10, 1876, 800 pounds beef, N. & G. D. Chamberlain owners.

July 19, 1876, 547 pounds beef, W. H. Monroe owner.

Aug. 19, 1876, 350 pounds beef, owner of same unable to be found.

Sept. 26, 1876, 150 pounds beef, owner of same unable to be found.

Dec. 7, 1876, two carcasses veal, owner of same unable to be found.

Dec. 11, 1876, 150 pounds of beef, owner of same unable to be found.

Seizures in April, 1877, two whole beeves, except a few pounds of one.

Those are the facts, Mr. Mayor, in regard to it.

Alderman Breck—I have no doubt an inspector is needed out there. The report just read by the Alderman is from the Inspector of Provisions at large, and what he detected then he can detect now. I do not see the necessity of fixing the salary at $1500, because I believe the work can be done no better for $1500 than it can be for $600. I move an amendment that the salary be $600 instead of $1500.

Alderman Clark—I have no fears after the information received from the chairman of the Board of Health, that any such amendment will be adopted by this Board. The chairman has stated the views of the Board of Health in regard to the office, and he has stated what was done last year to prevent the community from being imposed upon. He has stated that it requires the time and attention of a competent, able man, and, if that is a fact, $1500 is little enough. We pay the Inspector of Provisions at large $2200, and the duties do not so require his time but that he can run his own private business into the bargain. If that is the case, and we pay $2200 to an Inspector here, and he is enabled to carry on his own private business, then $1500 is little enough to pay the Inspector at the abattoir, where he will be required to give his entire time during the day and be up at two o'clock in the morning part of the time.

The amendment ($600) was lost—yeas 5, nays 7:
Yeas—Aldermen Breck, Fitzgerald, Robiison, Thompson, Wilder—5.

Nays—Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Dunbar, Gibson, O'Brien, Slade, Viles—7.

Alderman Wilder—I believe, from what I can learn in relation to the matter, that perhaps an Assistant Inspector might be valuable; but I believe they would be valuable only in relieving the Inspector of the duty of attending to another department of provisions. It is true that the present—and no one—Inspector can give attention and examination to the slaughtering of meat at the abattoir, or examine the same meat when it comes into Boston, and also give that careful scrutiny and inspection to the fish, oyster and lobster trade which perhaps all three deserve. But I have no doubt that any competent Inspector, if relieved of those departments by an assistant, would be fully able to give the citizens of Boston all the protection that it is possible for an Inspector to give them. What is the Inspector at Brighton going to do all the time, any more than look on? I stood there and saw eight sheep slaughtered in one minute. I do not know how a gentleman is going to be able to know a great deal about the vital condition of those animals when he has got to pass his opinion upon eight of them in a minute. As fast as they are killed one party takes off the hide, another party takes another part, and the carcass passes through several hands, and in the course of two or three minutes it is hung up. I can conceive that a man can walk through the rooms where the carcasses are hung up and give a casual glance at all. I do not value $1500 or $15,000 if it is to protect the health of the consumers of provisions; but I cannot feel it to be my duty to vote $1500 to pay for services which I know—and which any practical man must know—can be of but little value. Therefore I move that the salary be made $800.

Alderman Clark—I have the greatest respect for the opinion of the Alderman who has just taken his seat, upon some subjects, with which he is familiar, and particularly the specialty in which he is engaged. If a man should ask me to give my opinion upon a box of cigars, or a cart-load of tobacco, I should certainly go to the Alderman to be informed about it. But I understand that he went out to the abattoir one afternoon and was taken under special charge by the superintendent, and from that inspection of that institution he has formed his opinion. Now, sir, I say he is not so competent to give an opinion as the intelligent members of the committee in this Board and the Common Council, and Dr. Durgin, who have given this matter a careful and thorough investigation.

Alderman Thompson—The committee were not united.

Alderman Clark—The committee were so united that both the Aldermen voted to pay this Inspector $1500 a year. It may be that they have had reason to change their opinion. The Alderman from the Brighton District has stated that a man who performed the duty there would be worth $3000, and that he ought to have an assistant. Now they have found a man, Mr. Terry, who performed this duty to the satisfaction of the Board of Health, whom we appointed and to whom we pay salaries to look after the health of the city. This man has performed his labors to the complete satisfaction of the Board of Health, and they propose to pay him $1500 a year less than Alderman Breck says the Inspector at the abattoir ought to have; and yet the Alderman gets up here and moves that the salary be $600. There is no consistency in that. I presume that the Board will pass the order to pay $1500, and not go back upon the judgment it has rendered.

Alderman Breck—The Alderman did not understand me, I said the Inspector would be worth $3000, and he should have an assistant, and I repeat it. It would be impossible for a man to go there and do it without large pay. He would not only be obliged to get up one night, but he would be confined there every day and night. I should not like to be confined there for less than $5000 a year. I do not believe it is necessary to have an Inspector there at all. I believe the people who are slaughtering there will look after the health of the city, for it is for their interest. Every pound of meat brought here is inspected, and it will be impossible for them to do it without being found out, for the Inspector is around every morning. If we have this man appointed, it will be a double inspection; therefore I think it is no use to go any further unless we have it inspected when it comes into the city, and have a card marked that it has been inspected, so that the Inspector here can be relieved. I believe the Inspector in the city can do all that is required. The gentleman stated that 400 pounds were seized at one time. Now a large veal would weigh that, that is one veal slaughtered there that the Inspector condemned. He said it was not fit for meat and called the butcher's attention to it, and finally they explained that only a little of it was bruised; he took a part of it and all the rest came into market, and that is about the only unsound animal that was brought into the market from there.

Alderman Clark—I would ask if this Inspector here can inspect 450,000 cattle a year? That is 1500 a day. Can this Inspector attend to this and still perform all his duties here? I believe it is his duty to inspect everything in the shape of provisions that come here. Now, sir, it is my opinion that the meats which come from the abattoir do not receive a very thorough inspection by the Inspector at Large. It may be that there have been very few instances of diseased meat having been seized. It is simply because they had an Inspector there to look after it. But here are 400 pounds of diseased meat seized at one time, and 800 at another—enough to poison 400 individuals at one time and 800 at another. It may be that this is of no consequence; but I think it is a good deal of consequence, and that we should be protected against diseased meat from parties at the abattoir. I believe it is just as important a measure as the muzzling of dogs to prevent their causing death by hydrophobia.

Alderman Breck—The Alderman asked me how it is possible for the Inspector in the city to look after all the veal that is slaughtered. I say it is the easiest thing in the world to examine the dressed meat, compared to examining the cattle while alive. The Inspector must not only examine them when alive, but after they are dead and hung up. He has got to look after them before they are driven into the abattoir.

Alderman Clark—So much more reason for paying him a reasonable salary.

Alderman Breck—And so I say $1500 is not enough; he should have more. But that beef all comes into the city, and can be examined here as well as it can out there. The abattoir is conducted with the greatest care. It is for their interest to have no bad meat brought from there and condemned. Therefore, I think the office is entirely unnecessary, so long as we have an Inspector of beef in the city. Give him a horse and wagon, and let him go out and he can do the same business that the Inspector at the abattoir can do, and do it just as well exactly.

Alderman Slade—I want to say a word or two, myself. The subject of two or three hundred dollars salary has cost this Board three or four hours' talk. The fact is that an Inspector must be appointed at the abattoir because the law requires it. The Committee on Salaries were requested by the City Council to fix the salary of the Inspector, and they went out there. Alderman Wilder was invited to go out with us, there being a vacant place in the carriage on account of the absence of one of the committee, and he went. I do not think any person was in the care of the superintendent of the abattoir or any one else; we were altogether. After we got through, the matter of salary was talked over by the committee. I asked what they paid a good, smart, intelligent butcher; and I think $3 or $3.50 a day was the most. The Committee on Salaries disagreed in nothing but the amount of salaries, the difference being $300. The committee favored $1500, and I did not make a minority report. The only question before is on the matter of salaries, and I think $1200 is enough.

Alderman Wilder—I withdraw my motion to substitute $800, because I shall vote against any salary at all, on the ground that on my own judgment, without any leading, in any way, by the superintendent of the abattoir, or anybody else, I don't believe anybody can do the least good there.

Alderman Viles—The statute says the city must appoint one or more inspectors at the abattoir. If that is so, as the Alderman says one cannot perform the duty, I shall go in for appointing two at a good salary. I am also informed by the chairman of the Board of Health that an Assistant Inspector in Boston cannot go out there and seize anything but dead meat; and he also informs me that one of the seized pieces of meat was in charge of Mr. Taylor, the president of the abattoir.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved to make the salary $1200.

Alderman Clark called for the yeas and nays, and the amendment was lost—yeas 5 nays 7.

Yeas—Aldermen Fitzgerald, O'Brien, Slade, Thompson, Wilder—5.

Report and ordinance to provide for the issue of certificates of seven years' service to such members of the Fire Department as are entitled thereto.

Alderman Burnham explained that the ordinance was to revive an old custom which prevailed before the Fire Commission was established, and which was stopped because the ordinance did not have a clause authorizing the Mayor to sign the certificates. There will be no expense, as the city owns the plates.

The ordinance was passed in concurrence.

Order appointing Thomas Cunningham as a Field Driver and Pound Keeper in this city, and George A. Spear as a Fence Viewer. Passed in concurrence.

The Joint Standing Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Joseph H. Hunneman and others making a proposition as to price to be paid by the city for a surrendered estate on the Northampton-street district, having given the subject full attention, would submit the following report:

That in considering the subject, a hearing was given to the petitioners—afterwards it was deemed expedient to obtain from the City Solicitor, in writing, his opinion as to the time in which the valuation of land taken in the Northampton-street district and surrendered to the city should be made, his decision was—the date of entry by the city for the purpose of raising the grade—which was in February, 1874—the committee then found that it was best to effect, if possible, a compromise, the petitioners wanting $16,100 with interest; the award, as made by the city referees, fixed the value for 1874 at $12,710 with interest. The amount as agreed upon and accepted by the petitioners is $16,451.90.

The committee believing it to be for the best interest of the city that said amount be paid, would recommend the passage of the following order:

For the Committee,

HUGH O'BRIEN, Chairman.

Ordered, That there be paid to Joseph Hunneman and others, $16,451.90 in full settlement for estates surrendered to the city of Boston, situated on Hunneman street, so called, on the Northampton-street district, upon giving a deed and release of the same satisfactory to the City Solicitor, and an acquittance and discharge for all damages, costs and expenses connected with said surrender or connected therewith; said amount to be charged to the appropriation for Northampton-street District.

PUBLIC PARKS.

At 4½ o'clock P. M. the Board took up the special assignment, viz.—

Consideration of report of Special Committee on Public Parks (City Doc. No. 44), with orders to appropriate $1,000,000, for purchase of land for that purpose; to be raised by a loan for a period not exceeding thirty years, at a rate not exceeding five per cent.

The question was upon the passage of the order of the majority.

Alderman O'Brien—As chairman of the Special Committee on Parks, I desire to submit a few remarks in connection with the reports already submitted by this committee. The most important measures the City Government have ever been called upon to consider were a full supply of pure water, a complete and perfect system of sewerage, and parks for breathing places, for recreation, and for sanitary purposes. These three measures no large city can overlook or dispense with, and if we fail to provide them for our large and growing population, we fail in the performance of our duty. By a hard struggle water was introduced. No measure ever met with greater opposition. But, in the introduction of water, the short-sighted policy of the City Government only looked ahead a few years, and not long since the city was threatened with a water famine and was forced to provide an increased supply. In the meantime our business suffered, and large manufacturers, who would today be employing thousands of men, were driven from our city, because our water was so short it could not be sold for manufacturing purposes, and since it has been sold the price has been so high many of our manufacturers could not afford to use it and compete with neighboring cities. This, I repeat, was a short-sighted policy. When we consider that the supply of water for 350,000 inhabitants depended on a single conduit, and that conduit known to be out of repair, weak, and liable to give way, I cannot help thinking what a risk we ran, and how dilatory came our measures of relief. Surrounded as we are by salt water, what would become of Boston if our supplies were cut off for a single week, and what an immense amount of suffering would have been inflicted on our people.

The new conduit, connecting us with the Sudbury River, will be completed this year, and a full supply is secured, I will not say for all time, but for a long time ahead. This generation and the next will not be called upon to provide for any additional supply. I repeat, this work will be completed this year, but the expenditure of $4,000,000 for this purpose was opposed on the ground that it would make our taxes so burdensome that our taxpayers would not be able to bear up under the burden. It was opposed by men who make it a business to oppose every public improvement—who can see nothing ahead but disaster and trouble. Have our taxpayers ever looked at the matter and compared the result with these predictions? I will do it for them. The rate of taxation for thirteen years has been as follows:

Per $1000.		Per $1000.
1876.....	$12.70	1869.....	$13.70
1875.....	13.70	1868.....	12.30
1874.....	15.60	1867.....	15.50
1873.....	12.80	1866.....	13.00
1872.....	11.70	1865.....	15.80
1871.....	13.10	1864.....	13.30
1870.....	15.30

This year the rate of taxation will be about $13 per $1000, so that while this expenditure of $4,000,000 has been going on, an expenditure that was to bring such disaster on our taxpayers, the average rate of taxation has been the smallest for thirteen years. I do not say that this result will always follow, but I will say that when such a large expenditure of money was necessary for a great public improvement, it forced economy in the administration of city affairs, many of the sinecures and deadheads were cut off, and all expenditures more closely looked after and watched.

The sewer question is now under consideration. Our engineers are at work on the plan proposed by the late commission, but we failed to meet this question until it was forced upon us—until the filth of the Back Bay and the South Bay and the Charles River flats has almost made our best and most costly dwelling houses untenable. Is not this short-sighted policy? Can the metropolis of New England afford to be classed among the most unhealthy cities of the country? I hope this great improvement will be pushed forward by the Committee on Improved Sewerage. It should have been begun and completed ten years ago, before the South End and the Back Bay were filled up with costly dwellings. This work, I regret to say, will not be commenced this year, and it will be years before it is completed. Our taxpayers need not be alarmed about the cost, as the work will be distributed over so many years, the cost will be scarcely felt. This work will also meet with opposition from the men who oppose all public improvements—the croakers of this generation, who can see nothing but disaster and ruin ahead, who believe that Boston has ceased to grow.

For years the park question has been under consideration. The citizens of Boston have been called upon several times to express their approval of parks, and that expression has always been emphatically in their favor, and yet year after year this City Council fails to make a beginning, and precious time and splendid opportunities have been lost. The same short-sighted policy that has interfered with our water supply, and with our sewerage, is in full force against parks, and prevents this great improvement from making any progress. Parks are as much of a necessity for a large city like Boston at the present time, or as Boston will be in the future, as a good supply of water or perfect sewerage, and I intend to discuss this question from this standpoint. Parks are a necessity now, and will be a still greater necessity in the future.

Our city is yet in its infancy. From its first settlement, upwards of two hundred years ago, it has grown up without any system. Streets and lanes have been laid out to suit the convenience of parties for the time being without any regard for future growth, and this system has been continued, with few exceptions, to the present time. Our suburbs are now being built up without any system, and, in many instances, are no improvement on Turn-again alley, Crooked alley, and Blind lane of one hundred and fifty years ago. Looking ahead twenty or twenty-five years has rarely been a consideration, and when considered, we have always failed to realize the growth of the city for any length of time. Succeeding town and city governments have had about as much as they could attend to in making improvements on the short-sightedness of their predecessors. We have been building up only to pull down a few years later, and the extensive improvements that are being forced upon the city show that our work is still incomplete. The Park Commissioners' report has been the only systematic plan that has ever been presented to lay out and improve our vacant land on a system commensurate with our future growth. This vacant land will be the future residence of our citizens when Boston proper will be devoted almost exclusively to business purposes, and now, when the cost is comparatively trifling, we still hesitate to lay it out on some systematic plan—we still fail to realize what Boston will be twenty-five or fifty years hence. It is quite amusing to look back about one hundred and sixty years, and see how the Bostonians of that day divided up what is now the business part of the city—the wealth of the city at the present time. In 1713, with a population of 10,000 inhabitants, Boston was divided into eight wards and precincts, and what do we find? Let me give you a list of some of the most noted localities one hundred and sixty years ago, from North End to Boylston street, now covered with splendid warehouses and devoted almost exclusively to business. We find—

- Frog lane,
- Turn-again alley,
- Blind lane,
- Crooked alley,
- Hogg alley,
- Rainsford lane,
- Flounder lane,
- Crab lane,

Gridley's lane,
 Sconce lane,
 Jolliff's lane,
 Davy's lane,
 Rawson lane,
 Bishop's alley,
 Mackerel lane.
 Pierson's alley,
 Pudding lane,
 Spring lane,
 Leverett's lane,
 Link alley,
 Marshall's lane,
 Scotto's alley,
 Cold lane,
 Gallop's alley,
 Wood lane,
 Salutation alley,
 Sliding lane,
 Henchman's lane.

Gibbs lane,
 Cooper's alley,
 Tanner's lane,
 Cow lane,
 Belcher's laue,
 Long lane,
 Shrimpton's lane,
 Hiller's lane,
 Paddy's alley,
 Wing's lane,
 Green lane,
 Creek laue,
 Swing-bridge laue,
 Marsh lane,
 Elbow lane,
 Beer lane,
 White Bread alley,
 Lime alley,
 Greenough's alley.

With a few sprinkling of streets, this was Boston one hundred and sixty years ago, and it appeared to be the ambition of the men of that day to lay the city out in lanes and alleys. I have no doubt fully impressed with the belief that they were doing all that was necessary, not only for their immediate wants, but also for posterity. If the Bostonian of that day could only make an appearance and try to find out his favored locality of Paddy's alley, Elbow lane, Turn-again alley or Frog lane, he would be more bewildered than Rip Van Winkle after his twenty years' sleep. A few of the magnificent warehouses lately erected by our merchants, or a few of the splendid buildings erected by our insurance companies, are really of more value than the entire valuation of that period, but what vast amounts of money have been expended in making the city proper what it now is, and what vast amounts of money must be expended before it comes up to our standard. The city is still in its infancy, and yet we fail to see or provide for its future growth. The lessons of the past, the growth of the past, appears to be no guide for us. Is Boston to stand still, that we are so indifferent? There is nothing in the character of our people, in the enterprise and energy that has brought about so great a change as has taken place during the past 150 years, that would warrant such a conclusion. Fifty years from this time our city will contain at least 1,000,000 of inhabitants. If the percentage of increase is as large as during the past fifty years our population will be far beyond this figure. We may have occasional reverses, but all our leading cities must continue to prosper and grow rapidly. New York, before another century has passed away, will be the largest city in the world, and who that looks forward to her in that position but must think what a blessing her Central Park, and the new parks now in progress, the Morning Side Park, the Riverside Park and the East River Park will be if considered only from a sanitary point? In this connection let me read you a short extract from the New York Herald of the 14th instant, as follows: "The bright and cheery weather yesterday drew from the crowded houses of the city thousands of toil-worm men and women to the verdant, meadows and shady walks of Central Park. It is on this people's day that can be best appreciated the blessings which this breathing place confers on the dwellers in the crowded tenement houses of this city. In great streams the people poured in from all sides, and it was only necessary to watch them for a little while to become convinced that they enjoyed fully the health-giving beauties by which they were surrounded." Philadelphia, Chicago, Brooklyn and Baltimore must continue to grow and prosper, and these cities will grow and prosper all the better from the wisdom and foresight that has secured to each of these cities such magnificent parks. New York today, notwithstanding her Central Park, has 1000 men employed in laying out and completing the Riverside Park, and the men of New York are determined to make that city not only one of the most attractive in the country, but, also to place within the reach of every citizen delightful places for health and recreation. It is claimed that the Morning Side, Riverside and East River parks have natural advantages which are not to be matched by the suburbs of any city in Christendom. Is Boston to stand still and allow all the beautiful suburbs, now so easy to be obtained, all the vacant land now within our reach, the banks of the Charles River now within our grasp, without taking one step in advance? I have no hesitation in saying that we have far better material to make our city attractive than New York. Philadelphia or Baltimore, and the only difference between us is that while we hesitate to move they long ago commenced and are completing the work.

I am decidedly of opinion that now is the time to commence the work. I fear that the entire scheme of the Park Commissioners is beyond our reach, let us commence with the inner line of parks, although we run the risk of losing the finest and cheapest park of all—the West Roxbury park—now about the geographical centre of the city. Land is cheaper than it is likely to be for years to come, and the present opportunity should not be lost. It is true that we have a great many unoccupied stores and dwellings, but no more, if so many, as New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, or other leading cities. The late depression has, in fact, been felt in all business centres. New York is not discouraged or dismayed by the depression but is now creating new parks that will cost more than the entire Boston scheme. Philadelphia has just opened, with imposing ceremonies, the Main Building on her Fairmount Park, and every one who visited the Centennial must remember the magnitude of that Main Building, which is to be retained there as a permanent structure. Is Boston to stand still? Has all our vitality and energy and enterprise taken its departure? London, Paris, and all the great cities of Europe are constantly expending large sums of money in improvements, because these cities have not yet ceased to grow or lost their vitality. A few years ago, France was at the mercy of the German Empire, when the indemnity she had to pay led many to think she would become bankrupt; but peace was no sooner declared than her people went to work unanfully to redeem their losses. The year following the war the city of Paris expended $25,000,000 for improvements, and Paris today is the most prosperous city in the world. Is Boston to stand still? If any member of the Board supposes that because we have a great many unoccupied stores and dwellings our growth is checked, he cannot be a very close observer of passing events. Last year, the year of greatest depression yet experienced by business men, the estimated cost of new buildings and improvements was $8,062,576. There were erected 879 buildings and 141 stores, and additions and improvements were made to 1935 others. Does this look like standing still? These improvements, in one year, are more than twice the valuation of the city of Charlestown in 1840. These improvements were distributed as follows:

	Buildings.	Stores.	Valuation.
City proper.....	186	89	$4,393,425
Roxbury.....	174	17	827,180
East Boston.....	62	2	123,225
South Boston.....	79	8	183,100
Charlestown.....	55	10	399,175
Dorchester.....	95	3	240,500
West Roxbury.....	134	6	327,385
Brighton.....	94	6	233,140
Total.....	879	141	$6,727,130

These new buildings have been well scattered over the city, but about one-half of the entire number were built in Roxbury, West Roxbury and Brighton, showing that our suburbs are fast filling up, even in years of great depression in business. The location of the permits issued for alterations and additions for the year 1876 were as follows:

	Buildings.
City proper.....	690
Roxbury.....	336
East Boston.....	161
South Boston.....	220
Charlestown.....	186
Dorchester.....	133
West Roxbury.....	171
Brighton.....	39
Total.....	1936

The estimated cost of these improvements was $1,335,446. The building operations in the city, actually in progress May 19, was as follows:

	New Buildings.	Additions.
City proper.....	115	356
Roxbury.....	102	95
Dorchester.....	65	67
East Boston.....	42	54
South Boston.....	41	100
Charlestown.....	29	88
Brighton.....	34	32
West Roxbury.....	60	80
Total.....	488	872

This don't look like standing still; 488 new buildings are now in process of erection, and additions and improvements are making to 872 others—in all 1360. The number of new buildings included in the above table, the work now actually in progress, bounded by the Charles River, Arlington and Tremont streets, known as the Back Bay territory, was sixty-three, and additions and improvements are making to twenty-two others, and the season for building operations has hardly commenced. The estimated cost of the new buildings erected and the improvements made the past six years has amounted to $68,248,687, and the number of new buildings erected was 6590. These improvements, covering a period of only six years, exceed in value the valuation of any other city in the Commonwealth, and are about twice the valuation of the city of Charlestown in 1875. These improvements exceed the entire valuation of Boston in 1830. These are no fancy figures, but are taken from the reports of the Inspector of Buildings. These facts show that we are not standing still; and because we have a large number of unoccupied stores and dwellings (not many more than is usually the case) is no good reason why we should become discouraged. If you want to keep them unoccupied, stop all your public improvements, and this result will be sure to follow. If you want to fill them up, make your city attractive.

I am convinced that the business depression that has been such a drawback on our prosperity, for some years, has about taken its departure. Its marks are still visible, but there is now scarcely a branch of business that is not starting up on a sounder basis than for some years. The presidential question, so embarrassing to business the past year, has been settled. Our cotton crop, that was predicted would be a failure with free labor, has yielded a larger return than it ever did under the old system; our agricultural productions are of such magnitude that hundreds of vessels from Europe arrive in ballast to load with our surplus productions; nearly all branches of our manufacturing business are now comparatively prosperous, and, with the experience of the past few years, have a brighter future before them. With such immense resources, both mineral and agricultural, we cannot stand still. We cannot afford to go on as we have been going for ten years, giving our whole attention to destroying property. We must commence building up and laying out the city on some systematic plan, and no plan has ever been presented equal to the plan of the Park Commissioners. The opponents of parks give some remarkable figures about the expense that will follow their adoption, but they fail to show the benefits that always result from such improvements—work for the professional man, work for the mechanic, work for the laborer, a large increase of taxable property, and employment of surplus capital. The opponents of parks also fail to consider what previous mistakes have cost the city. The money expended for widening streets, improving and redeeming property allowed to be built up without any system, would pay for ten such park schemes as has been laid out in the commissioners' report. Let us take a glance at these figures:

Cost of laying out and widening streets.....	$24,916,785
Cost of Fort Hill improvement.....	1,575,000
Cost of Church-street district.....	1,178,491
Cost of Suffolk-street district.....	2,426,084
Cost of Northampton-street district.....	171,316

Total already expended.....$30,267,676

The proposed improvements are:

Atlantic avenue.....	} $10,000,000
Commercial street.....
School street.....
Boylston street.....
South street.....
Portland street.....
Hamilton place.....

And if we go on making all the improvements contemplated it is doubtful if the amount already expended and to be expended would fall far short of $50,000,000, all in consequence of want of system—all in consequence of not looking ahead and providing for the wants of our large and increasing population.

I have said that we have had no systematic plan in laying out the city; but an exception might be made so far as the magnificent streets adjoining our Public Garden are concerned. For this improvement we are indebted more to a private corporation and private enterprise than any wisdom that has emanated from City Hall. To the Boston Water Power Company, more than to any other corporation, we are indebted for the filling up of the Back Bay, and I sometimes feel, when this company is denounced as land speculators, that it would be well to consider what they have done for the city to make this spot so attractive. A large portion of our wealthy citizens now reside in that locality. Historical societies, art unions, schools of technology, private institutions of learning, the finest church edifices in the city or in the country, all are now to be found there, and the men who can go back twenty-five or thirty years can only have a conception of the vast improvement this has been, and how largely it has added to the wealth of the city. It has not only added to the wealth of the city, but it has given employment to our best architects, to our leading builders, to our mechanics and laboring men, because all this improvement has been the work of their creation. In this connection it would be well to consider the great increase of property in that neighborhood during the past twenty years, as follows:

The assessed value of the Back Bay basin in 1855, including all the real estate assessed to the Boston Water Power Company, was..... $1,100,000
Valuation in 1874..... 40,012,600

Increase in twenty years.....$38,912,600
Exempt property..... 4,688,900

Taxable valuation.....$34,223,700
Taxable increase..... 33,123,700

An increase of $33,000,000 in taxable property, yielding an annual income to the city of Boston of $500,000 per year. From a nuisance and an eyesore to our citizens, this territory has been made the most beautiful section of our city, paying a large percentage of our current expenses. It should also be remembered that all this building up, this $33,000,000 increase in our property, was the work of labor, gave employment to our workmen, and was distributed among them. While this improvement was going on you found no loiterers about city hall, appealing for work to keep them from becoming a charge on the city. I repeat, when workmen stand up and denounce these improvements they denounce what is their great gain, for it was their hands that did the work, and it was among them that these $33,000,000 were distributed.

The increase of property within a circle of six miles of City Hall has been almost marvellous. Have the Aldermen ever looked into this matter, and noticed our wonderful increase in wealth and population? No country in the world, no State in the Union, can show a better record. If we go on increasing in the same proportion, all the vacant land in the neighborhood will soon be occupied. The whole population and valuation of Massachusetts in 1830, 1840, and 1875, as taken from the census returns at the State House, was as follows:

	Population.	Valuation.
1830.....	610,408	$208,360,407

1840.....	140,585	113,068,844
1875.....	477,290	987,458,825

These figures show how rapidly we have increased in wealth and population. In thirty-five years the population in a circle of six miles from the State House has increased over three-fold, and valuation has increased about nine-fold, and this will give us some idea of this circle thirty-five years hence. The largest increase of population has been in the suburbs. Roxbury, with a population of 9089 inhabitants in 1840, now numbers 62,212 inhabitants. Dorchester, with a population of 4875 inhabitants in 1840, now numbers 15,788 inhabitants. Brighton, with a population of 1425 inhabitants in 1840, now numbers 6200 inhabitants. Brookline, with a population of 1365 inhabitants in 1840, now numbers 6651 inhabitants. And this large increase has all taken place in the short space of thirty-five years. These figures show that vacant land in the suburbs is being rapidly occupied, and that there is no time to be lost if parks are to be secured. The valuation of property 1830, now is thirteen times greater than in and eight times greater than in 1840. Are we to stand still for the next twenty-five or fifty years? Not if the figures of the past are the least indication of our future growth and prosperity, and are not the figures of the past the only true basis from which to estimate our future growth?

What surprises me most in relation to the park movement is, that the working men do not take a greater interest in pushing it forward. There has been no movement ever commenced or inaugurated by the city that will give so much employment to workmen. We expend $1,000,000 every year on our streets, but of this amount only one-third goes to workmen—the widening of streets may enrich the capitalist, but a small percentage of the cost goes to labor; but once establish your parks, and the work of laying out and beautifying them is almost exclusively the work of labor. When thousands of able-bodied men are pressing for employment, as they have been for some two years past, I have thought what a pity it was that some of the proposed parks had not been secured, so that we could give employment to some of this labor—so that we could have some place to set these men at work instead of supporting them at the expense of the city, or at the expense of the charitable. The Street Commissioners were appealed to for some improvement that would enable us to give employment to men who were quite destitute, to enable them to bridge over the late depression in business, and they could only recommend a street improvement at South Boston. I say emphatically that the adoption of the park scheme would do more for labor than any other scheme ever proposed to the city. The parks of the commissioners would be the vineyards of the laboring man, and would also give his family, now crowded in narrow streets and tenement houses, a place for health and recreation.

But it is said that most of these parks are placed beyond the reach of the poor man—that citizens from the North End, East Boston and Charlestown will not be benefited in the least. The West Roxbury park, the largest park of the commissioners, far ahead of all other parks in the country so far as natural beauty is concerned, is the most difficult to reach, but at the same time is easily reached by horse cars and steam railroads. It is more easily reached by the citizens of North End, East Boston and Charlestown than Fairmount Park in Philadelphia is reached by the mass of the people of that city; and an estimate made in 1875 showed that this park was visited by 11,000,000 people in that year alone. This shows what value is placed upon this park by the citizens of Philadelphia. The distance of a few miles does not prevent them from visiting it to the extent of 11,000,000 in one year; and I repeat, that for natural advantages and beauty of scenery it is far inferior to the West Roxbury park. Let this park once become the property of the city—the property of every citizen—and it would also be visited every year by millions of our people. The Central Park of New York is as far from the mass of the population of New York as the West Roxbury park is from the people of the North End, and who ever heard a New Yorker say that it was beyond his reach or out of the way? This extreme park, now looked upon as beyond our reach, is very near the geographical centre of the city, and, in the course of years, if laid out as a park, would be the most attractive spot in the country, surrounded as it must be by a large population. This park of 485 acres would cost the city about $1,250,000. It is already a park, and very little money would be required for improvements. No expensive filling would have to be made—no expensive stone walls would have to be built—and this park would, in fact, cost less than any of the other large parks selected by the commissioners. Nature has already prepared the scenery by the great variety of trees, the beautiful lawns and the extensive views of all the surrounding country. No expensive grading would have to be done there, for that work has already been accomplished by the great landscape Architect on High. I repeat, that the West Roxbury park, about the geographical centre of the city, is the cheapest of all our parks, notwithstanding its large area, and no scheme will be complete without it.

The Brighton park of 160 acres, costing less than $400,000, has also many natural advantages, is already a park, and would cost very little for improvements. If the land was secured scarcely a dollar need be expended upon it for many years to come. It is also within easy reach of all our citizens.

The Jamaica park, including the Jamaica Pond, the only natural sheet of fresh water in the city, is also a park of great beauty, and would cost the city very little for improvements. I have no hesitation in saying that it should be secured at once to preserve it from the further encroachments of the ice houses that are now increasing around it—destroying trees that would take years to replace. The City Council have visited this spot and can judge for themselves. Here we have a reservoir of water, supplied by natural springs, beautifully located, superior to any reservoir the Water Board could build for $1,000,000, and year after year we allow its natural beauty to be destroyed. I say, Mr. Mayor, that it is a shame to hesitate in this matter. The Park Commissioners ask only $500,000 to secure it, and but a small portion of this amount would be wanted for years, as arrangements could be made with most of the principal abutters to occupy their estates during life. I believe it would be a clear gain in dollars and cents to the city to secure it now. The old aqueduct corporation now supply a portion of Roxbury with water from this pond—come into competition with the Cochituate water, and supply our citizens cheaper than the Water Board rates. This company are willing to sell out all their rights and privileges to the city on very reasonable terms, although the income derived from water alone is about $15,000 to $20,000 per year. I repeat again, the natural beauty of this pond is fast being destroyed by the encroachments of ice houses, and at any rate the borders of the pond should be secured and the destruction of trees put a stop to.

The Back Bay park and the South Bay park have their advantages, and could not be left out of the plan without injuring it as a whole. It should also be remembered that on the Back Bay there is now more costly buildings in process of erection than in any other part of our city, and the South Bay park is placed in the midst of a dense population. The creation of both these parks would tend to abate nuisances that must sooner or later be abated, if we have any regard for the health of our citizens, and would add largely to our taxable valuation.

The Charles River embankment, about which so many extravagant estimates have been made for the purpose of putting a stop to this improvement, it will be seen, from a careful estimate of our City Engineer, is not such a costly affair as has been represented, when we consider all its advantages. We would have sixty-nine acres of land within five or fifteen minutes' walk of our densest population, reaching up to the North End of the city, on the borders of one of the finest rivers in New England. The site of this park once secured, the work of completing might go on for a long period of years, and would come so gradually that it would be scarcely noticed in our tax bills. The expense of filling up might be materially lessened by making it a dumping place for all the ashes and dry dirt of the city. With its driveway of nearly three miles along the borders of the river, and within so easy reach of the mass of our population, it would be a place of great resort. As it stands now it is simply a nuisance, and a nuisance that must sooner or later be abated.

I have thus alluded briefly to the largest parks selected by the commissioners, and will detain the Board but a few minutes longer. It may be argued that the scheme is altogether too large for the city, but the same argument was used when New York was about to establish parks. Mayor Kingsland, who was Mayor of New York in 1851, became interested in a series of articles written by Andrew Jackson Downing of Newburg on the subject of parks, and it was through the interest created by those papers that led to the establishment of the Central Park in 1857. Mayor Kingsland thought that a park of 160 acres would be sufficient for the city at that time, with a population of 500,000 inhabitants; and Mr. Downing fixed upon 400 acres. Neither of the gentlemen had the most remote idea that the city would grow to its present magnitude. The first Board of Commissioners, a board distinguished for its ability, fixed upon 1000 acres, and this vast domain is now in possession of the city, and is used by millions of New Yorkers without a cent of cost. As an instance of the short-sighted frugality that sometimes takes possession of city councils, when the City Hall of New York was built, the Building Committee of the City Council determined that it would be useless to waste white marble on the rear of the building, since that side would only be seen by persons living in the suburbs. The city now extends eight miles above the old City Hall.

I repeat, Mr. Mayor, that we have failed to meet the wants of our people. While we have been growing wealthier day after day, we have failed to realize that the accumulation of wealth is not the only thing that is needful for a great city. One of the leading physicians of the city told me only a few weeks ago that with parks and improved sewerage the death-rate of the city could be reduced twenty-five per cent. What, then, does all our wealth amount to if year after year the health of our citizens is lost sight of? What does all our boasted prosperity amount to, when our city year after year is becoming the most unhealthy of all large cities? His Honor the Mayor, after taking the oath of office, and impressed with the solemnity of the occasion, told us in a few brief but suggestive words, "Boston is now one of the most unhealthy of the large cities. I appeal for the truth of this statement to the eloquence of facts." These words have been ringing in my ears ever since. "Boston is now one of the most unhealthy of the large cities." What have we done? What has the City Council done to prevent this result? Nothing; absolutely nothing. While accumulating wealth we have forgot, and still forget, to provide for the health of our citizens. There is nothing in our climate, nothing in our surroundings, that would lead to such a result, except that we are so bent on accumulating money we overlook this important matter. The only breathing place we have, the few acres that comprise Boston Common, has become so sacred that millions would not purchase one foot of it, and there is no other spot our citizens can go to without becoming trespassers and intruders. We have failed to make improvements commensurate with our growth and prosperity, and how much longer is this short-sighted policy to continue? This is the important question that this City Council has to decide, and we shall only take a departure in the right direction when we adopt the order now before us and commence the work that our citizens have so many times demanded and indorsed.

Last year, when this question was before the Board, every Alderman, with scarcely an exception, was in favor of parks, but only two actually voted for the order to establish them. It was sent back to the commissioners to bond the land, to do something that was altogether impracticable and impossible. The object of this was to defeat the order. I hope this year we will have a square vote upon it. The commissioners have displayed admirable judgment so far as the matter can be safely intrusted to them. There is no possible way the city can be defrauded. Every movement is under the control of the City Council, and the commissioners believe that it will take some three years to secure the land after they have the power to purchase, as they intend to proceed slowly, cautiously, and pay only what the land is actually worth in cash. The advantage, it appears to me, is now almost exclusively on the side of the city. Land is more depressed than at any time for years, and parties who hold this property will have to negotiate at a time when high valuations cannot be sustained. I apprehend no trouble on the part of the commissioners obtaining the land on the very lowest valuations. They know every foot of land included in their report. They have given an extraordinary amount of time and labor and attention to the subject, and have done their work so thoroughly and understand it so well they cannot be deceived. I feel that the committee on the part of the City Council, who have taken occasion to visit all the parks selected, although they may differ about some things, will fully indorse this statement in relation to the work of the commissioners. Their work was a work of honor, and no work has ever been more faithfully performed. Their labor was in the interest and for the benefit of all our citizens, high and low, rich and poor alike, and looks solely to the future welfare and prosperity of our city.

My respected associate on the committee, the Councilman from the Charlestown District, who submitted the minority report No. 1, has made some extraordinary statements. He says that "were it not for a few landholders and speculators, some of whom are not even citizens of Boston, the park question would not have been brought before this City Government, who were elected on principles of retrenchment and reform." What are the facts? The subject was brought before the City Council eight years ago, and a joint special committee was appointed to consider it. It has been before every City Council since, and last year the subject was referred to the present City Government.

His Honor the Mayor in his inaugural address brought the matter again before the City Council, as previous mayors had done before him, and the subject was again referred to a special committee. Now, is his Honor the Mayor the agent of landholders and speculators, and have previous mayors for eight years past also been the agents of landholders and speculators? He says this is a City Government elected on principles of retrenchment and reform. I believe he has voted against every measure of retrenchment that has been proposed, but is very willing to expend $250,000 or $300,000 in the Mystic Valley. Parkways also appear to be very objectionable to the Councilman from Charlestown. Can a city be built up and laid out without streets and leading avenues? The parkways of the commissioners are nothing more nor less than leading avenues, that must sooner or later be laid out, parks or no parks. These avenues have been well considered by the commissioners. They circle the city from the North End to Dorchester, and the expense of laying them out would be very small, as the material is to be found around those parkways to grade and make them perfect. The gentleman in objecting to parkways—styled such very appropriately by the commissioners—is evidently one hundred and fifty years behind the times. I can imagine with what pleasure he would have laid out Crooked alley, Flounder lane and Elbow lane one hundred and fifty years ago. But I would ask this gentleman if a city can be laid out and built up without streets and leading avenues, or parkways if you please to call them such, or does he think it best to go back to the lanes and alleys of one hundred and fifty years ago. Then he winds up with "deserted wharves and grass-grown streets." I am not surprised that he recommended the whole subject to the next City Government. It was evidently too much for him.

The minority report of the Councilman from the West Roxbury District is carefully considered and written. The parks that he recommends are worthy of all that he has said so well about them, and only show the wisdom of the commissioners' selection. He also appears to be alarmed at the possible expenditure covering a period of thirty years, but the adoption of the scheme he recommends would destroy a well-considered plan. In the language of the majority report, "the several parts of the system have been so chosen and combined that the value of any one part taken in connection with the others is very much greater than it would be if standing alone. I am satisfied that he believes this as much as any of the majority, but fails to see that these parks will cost the city scarcely a dollar, if we take the experience of the creation of parks in other cities as a criterion or a basis. This has been demonstrated fully. I plant myself on the experience of other cities in the creation of parks, and this experience is far safer than his imaginary figures. I believe that what has been accomplished in other cities can be repeated here.

Will the finances of the city permit the commencement of this scheme of parks? I admit that our debt is now large, but we have also large resources and assets. The discussion of our financial condition has been so recent, it is useless to go over the ground again. Our Sinking Funds, with their prospective accumulations, are now large enough to pay our entire debt at maturity, not including the water debt. This fact is beyond a doubt. Thirty-year bonds of the city will sell at 10@12 per cent. premium. It was only a few weeks ago one of our bankers sold $500,000 at 111 to a life-insurance company. The premium that could now be obtained for a thirty-year loan, if placed in a Sinking Fund, with the betterments, would pay the park bonds and debt at maturity, to say nothing of the revenue to be obtained by the increased value of property that always follows their creation. The high school that we are about to erect is provided for in the order. The valuable property now used for high-school purposes will be nearly, if not quite, sufficient to meet the debt. Atlantic avenue should be completed in justice to the North End of the city, and will cost about $1,000,000. I do not believe in the street widenings that have been so extensively carried on, but this work should be completed because we are already committed to it and our commerce demands it. I regret, in this connection, that so many citizens at the North End have arrayed themselves against parks, because they imagine that the park scheme interferes with this improvement; but I am satisfied that if Atlantic avenue is defeated or delayed, it will be defeated by the men who oppose parks, because they oppose every improvement without regard to its necessity. These are the only large expenditures that appear to me necessary for the next ten years at least, except the intercepting sewer and parks, and instead of increasing our debt, I believe that it will be reduced even if all these improvements are carried out. There is now a margin of $7,000,000 over and above the limit allowed by the act limiting city indebtedness. The debt maturing and already provided for by our Sinking Funds, during the next ten years, amounts to $12,000,000. Some of the Sinking Funds are so arranged that a portion of the debt will be paid or provided for before maturity, so that we have a margin of at least $20,000,000 to carry on necessary improvements during this period, and still keep within the limit allowed by law, based on present valuations. I am confident that we shall cancel debt faster than it can possibly be created, with the high school, Atlantic avenue, the intercepting sewer and the park scheme in full progress. Our general debt is about $28,000,000, averaging some fifteen years, with a Sinking Fund of $13,800,000 to meet it, and it requires no great financial ability to decide that this Sinking Fund, mostly six per cent. city bonds, with its accumulated interest, betterments and other resources, will take care of this debt. The water debt is $12,770,000, with a Sinking Fund of $1,600,000. Most of this debt runs from twenty-five to thirty years, and with the increase of the Sinking Fund during that time. $100,000 raised yearly by taxation, with its natural increase, would take care of the water debt at maturity. Financially, we are in a condition to commence and carry on these improvements, and taxation will not be so high as during the past ten years, unless we have ceased to grow, a fallacy that no sensible man will in-dorse.

While we have been talking about parks, the city of Albany has commenced and created one. As it was the last park of any magnitude established, it may be well to show the results. The cost of this park, as per treasurer's report of Jan. 1, 1877, was $793,480. The increased assessed value of property in consequence of the park yielded an annual revenue of $82,821, a sum that exceeded by $49,470 the annual interest charge on account of the park, including maintenance, so that the remainder of the city was relieved from taxation yearly in the sum of $49,470, which, as the treasurer remarks, if it could be set aside for that purpose, would extinguish the park debt in twelve years. The treasurer also says, that during the winter of 1875-6, a winter of unusual distress, there was given employment, in the construction of the Boulevard, to an average of 150 men and many teams, men needy and in positive want; this fact the working men of Boston would do well to remember. I will not tax the Board with other figures. The same results have followed in other cities where parks are established, and this experience is better than the imaginary figures of the minority reports. All the leading cities in the country have established parks but Boston. Second-class cities like Albany, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Columbus and others, have established them. Is this creditable to our enterprise? Boston, today, is the wealthiest city in the country on the basis of population, and Boston today is far behind other cities in providing for the health, the recreation and pleasure of her citizens.

Apologizing to the Board for detaining them so long, I will say in conclusion that my only excuse is the importance of the subject. I think I have shown that Boston is not a dead city so far as business prosperity is concerned; that there is no good reason why great public improvements should be stopped; that we have increased remarkably in wealth and population; that all our public-improvements have been behind the times, behind the enterprise of our citizens; that the City Government have failed to realize the growth or the wants of our people; that if, after the experience of the past, we fail to improve our vacant land on some systematic plan, we are greater failures than previous City Governments.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have listened with a great deal of interest to the speech of the Alderman who has just sat down; and while he detailed the rapid growth of the city of Boston for the last quarter of a century, and the increase in her taxable property, the wonder with me was how it was accomplished without parks. The conundrum with me was, how it was possible that the city of Boston could have grown to such immense proportions without a great arboretum surrounding her. But I came to the conclusion that the city of Boston did get along, and flourish and thrive and become one of the richest cities in the Union, even though she had not this grand system of parks, those luxurious places of resort which are marked and mapped out so magnificently in the report of the Park Commissioners, and which have been so ably advocated by the Alderman who has just sat down. Now, I take the ground with the Park Commissioners, that parks are a luxury; that they are unlike sewerage and water. We need fresh air, pure water and thorough sewerage; but the commissioners themselves, in their report, say that parks are a luxury; and they are not to be classed with water and sewerage. They say—

"In a limited sense expenditures for parks are like those made for ornamental architecture and domestic decorations, and for amusements, theatres, music halls, and other luxuries appertaining to modern city life, though, unlike these, the enjoyment of parks is freely shared by the whole community."

In this admirable report of theirs the commissioners admit that the park question is unlike that of pure water or sewerage—that they are in a measure a luxury. Now, it seems to me that a wise economy and sound judgment would dictate to any individual, before he wanted to gratify his æsthetic taste, that he should first see how much he needs in the absolute necessities of life; how much he must expend in what is absolutely necessary in his household; and then after that, if his purse admit of it, and his tastes carry him in that direction, how much he should expend upon ornament and decoration which are akin to public parks, when you compare what the private man does to what a public corporation, like the city of Boston, should do for the welfare and entertainment and amusement of the people. First, we should consider what the cost is to be; second, whether the purse of the city of Boston can bear the strain; third, whether there are other things which are more necessary, which are crowding and which ought to be done before we enter upon this grand scheme for a park system. First, as to the cost. I have read the report of the majority of the committee and the report of the Park Commissioners over and over again; but neither the commissioners, the committee nor anybody else can enlighten us as to the ultimate probable cost of parks. The commissioners report that five millions of dollars will cover the actual cost of the land necessary for parks; but it has been my experience, and it must be the experience of every man connected with the City Government, that when the city needs a spot of land, if it be assessed for twenty cents, and the individual finds that it is needed by the city, he will ask thirty-five cents a foot for that land, and will refuse to sell it for anything less. As a proof of that, I refer to the chairman of the Committee on Public Instruction. For months we have been trying to obtain a suitable site for a schoolhouse in the Brighton District. We have selected a lot assessed for twenty cents a foot and the owner refuses to sell it for less than thirty-five cents; he asked fifty cents with a great deal of modesty, and he refused to take less than thirty-five cents. Take the land in the neighborhood of the proposed high schoolhouse. Four years ago it was bought for $255,000, and the same hue and cry was raised that if you did not buy it then you could not get it for double that; but it is not worth half that today. For five brick buildings in that neighborhood, which are assessed for about $14,000 each, they want the modest sum of $25,000; while I am confident that if they were put up at auction and sold under the hammer they would not bring the amount for which they are assessed. Wherever it is known that the city of Boston requires land for any specific purpose, you will find that the owners ask double the amount they would ask from ordinary individuals at a forced sale, by themselves. Pass this order for $1,000,000 to initiate this grand scheme, and commit the city to the proposed system of parks, and the land will be bought as dearly today as it can be ten years hence, and you would not get it for one dollar less; because, sir, many people have bought the land, or bonded it, for the purpose of selling it to the city of Boston, and some of them did so three, four or five years ago. These people have invested their money in the land, and much of it is heavily mortgaged. Do you imagine they will sell to the city at a loss, when they will know that the city must have it when the proposed system of parks is so nicely proportioned and mapped out from Point Shirley to Dorchester, that the beauty of the scheme would be destroyed if they did not have the whole, according to the remarks of the chairman himself. I venture to say that not $5,000,000, but $8,000,000 or $9,000,000 will be needed to buy the land before you get through with it. But I will take their own valuation of $5,000,000 in round numbers for all the lands taken; for the Charles River sea-wall alone and the filling up of the Charles River park, without any ornamentation, it requires $2,600,000 according to the cheapest calculation by the City Engineer, and $3,600,000 by the highest, and taking the medium one which he has given, it will be $2,114,900. For the Back Bay park $1,625,800 will be needed to fill it up and put it in a condition to prepare it for ornamentation; and, for the South Bay park $200,000 will be required for filling. Taking these three proposed parks alone, the amount necessary to put the land in condition for ornamentation will be $10,000,000, and I venture to say that four or five millions more will be necessary to put the parks in a condition to be walked over by seekers for fresh air and pleasure in the country. So before we get through with our proposed system of parks it will cost at least from fifteen to twenty millions of dollars. We have no estimate from any committee or the commissioners upon anything save and except the valuation of the land, the proposed wall around the Charles River basin, and the Back Bay and South Bay parks; and yet those, according to their own estimates, will foot up the enormous sum of $10,000,000; the ornamentation will cost $5,000,000 or more, and I venture to say that from fifteen to twenty millions will be nearer the amount which these parks will cost than the figures set forth by the majority of the committee. Now, in order to meet that, Mr. Mayor, what have we got? Those who have had charge of municipal affairs in many cities of the country became so reckless in their schemes for the proposed improvement of the cities, that the public became alarmed; and that alarm reached the State of Massachusetts, whose Legislature, in order to throw a safeguard around the treasuries of the different cities and towns of this Commonwealth, and prevent the selectmen and city fathers from running riot in fancy schemes and speculations with the people's money, wisely passed a law prohibiting any city or town in this Commonwealth from creating an indebtedness exceeding three per cent. of the valuation of said city or town, except what is required for pure water. Now, sir, what is the condition of the city of Boston? We owed nearly $44,000,000 on the 30th of April—$43,590,497.30. We call something a gross indebtedness and something else a net indebtedness, but there is no such thing; it is a mere fiction. Our debt is $43,590,497, and upon that we pay interest every year. On that debt we paid interest last year, from the 30th of April, $2,522,057.28; and in addition to that the revenue which went into the Sinking Funds was $1,087,018.78, exclusive of the interest which went into the Sinking Funds from bonds belonging to the city of Boston, which the Sinking Fund Commissioners hold; so that we pay interest on the full indebtedness, and more, making the total paid for indebtedness $3,659,066, equal to $5.25 per $1000 upon the valuation this year, which will not be more than $700,000,000 upon the real and personal property; and if we had no indebtedness our taxes, instead of being $12.70 on $1000, would be only $7 and some odd cents, providing this money did not go in this direction. We have a Sinking Fund, and the law limiting municipal indebtedness excludes the amount in the sinking funds, so that it can be taken from the gross debt, and that gives us a net debt, as we call it, of $28,153,454; and deducting the water debt, which is also excluded, according to the act, it leaves us an indebtedness of $15,376,743, which the $350,000 for the high school will make $15,700,000 in round numbers, or about two and two-sevenths per cent. on the valuation, leaving us five-sevenths per cent. or thereabouts, beyond which we cannot go in contracting more debts in improvements, in the building of sewers, or anything of that kind. That is the condition of the city financially. We have a margin of five-sevenths per cent., and we can create between six and seven millions more debt and no more from now. Mr. Mayor, if pure water be an absolute necessity; if this city of Boston is to be made healthy—I agree with the Alderman that pure air is a prime necessity, because without it we cannot live; and if that is so, there is one scheme which we must adopt before all others. We must have some kind of a system by which to provide pure air—or rather by which vitiated air can be prevented from entering the homes where people live more than half their lives. Today the city of Boston is unhealthy; and why? Because the sewers of this city are nothing else than conduits for conveying impure air that breeds malarial fevers throughout the whole of the South End and the Back Bay. If we are to have a healthy city, we must first have a city that is thoroughly seweraged; and that cannot be done at a less cost than about $6,000,000. I hold, sir, that before parks, before any other scheme, this system of sewerage should claim the attention of the City Council; and all we can add to our debt this year or next should be in perfecting this work, which cannot be delayed any longer, and which will cost at least $6,000,000, if not more. It is an absolute necessity in order to protect and preserve the lives of the little children and the grown-up people in our homes. A system of parks will cost, perhaps, ten or fifteen millions of dollars. Suppose we carry out that. They tell us it will annually cost the city of Boston but the amount that is expended for the city hospital, about $125,000, to lay out the parks in such a condition as to make it a pleasure to the eye and agreeable to walk in. I do not know whether it was intentionally drawn so or not, but the order reads—

"That the Treasurer be and he hereby is authorized to borrow, under the direction of the Committee on Finance, the sum of one million dollars for the purchase of lands for park purposes; the certificates of indebtedness to run for the longest term of years allowed by law, not exceeding thirty years, and to bear interest at a rate not exceeding five per centum per annum."

Well, sir, no certificate of indebtedness can run for that time for any park purposes. You cannot borrow money for any park purposes for a longer period than ten years. The law governing municipal indebtedness sweeps away that, and covers all your loans. It is a later law. It was passed on the 14th of May, and went into effect on the 14th of June. I have heard some gentlemen say that possibly the law authorizing the city to lay out parks and allowing the city to issue scrip was a later law. This law did not go into effect until June 14, and it covers all the loans you make for parks in the city of Boston, unless you receive such an act as was expected by the majority of the committee, and upon which their report was based. You cannot make a loan for a longer period than ten years. Suppose we issue the whole $5,000,000 now—because if you are going into this thing, you might as well bear all of it at once—what effect will it have upon our taxation? Five millions at five per cent. would be $250,000 a year; and we will be obliged by the law governing municipal indebtedness to lay aside annually an amount equal to eight per cent. of the sum borrowed, in order to meet the debt at maturity, which will be $400,000 a year; and that will be $650,000 added to the tax list every year for a $5,000,000 loan. Where the other money is coming from, I do not know. Where the money to build the sea wall, to dredge and fill up with, is going to come, I do not know; because under the act creating the Park Commission and giving the city authority to issue its scrip, the money borrowed can be applied only in paying for the land taken; and any money spent for filling, dredging or ornamentation must be raised in the general tax levy. We will have $650,000 a year sure to be raised for the next eight years to pay for the land, and if the other money is to be got out of the citizens of Boston, and the park is to be put in any decent condition, it will require at least $350,000 or $400,000 more to be added to the tax levy every year, which will make a million dollars. It will require more policemen—it will be joyful tidings to some of the gentlemen who have been applying for that honorable position—to keep the parks in order and make them safe for people to walk in. It will cost yearly—I exclude this sea wall; I exclude everything; and where the money is to come from I do not know, unless it is by a special statute such as was tried to be run through the Legislature without the consent of the City Council—I say it will make about $1,000,000 a year addition to the tax levy to meet the park expenditures. Can the citizens of Boston spare it today? Can we take up this park question and this sewer question, and the widening of Atlantic avenue altogether, and are we able to bear the burden? The Alderman spoke about the number of houses being put up, and about the panic being over. I do not see any sighs of it in the corridors in City Hall, or in the revival of business all over the city. Nobody else sees it. If they see anything at all, they will tell you they see the return of prosperous times a long, long, long way off. What is the financial condition of Boston today, and the people who must pay this money? Two weeks ago I asked that an order might be passed directing the Chief of Police to give the number of empty houses and tenements in this city. The Board refused to pass it. I said I would take it as evidence that the Board did not want to show the terrible condition of the city of Boston to the citizens of the State and the Legislature. I received by hard plodding—I was determined to find out as best I could—the number of empty houses and tenements in Boston, and I have it here. The number of wholly empty houses on the first day of May 1876, was 2159, and their taxable value was $11,782,700. Add to that the tenements and houses only half occupied, which the Assessors do not take, and I venture to say the taxable value of property in the city of Boston (which is empty the whole year round; because the first of May may be taken as a criterion) will not be less than $22,000,000—unproductive, so far as these houses are concerned. How is it with the people who pay taxes? I find down in the City Collector's office that on the first day of September, 1875, where were unpaid and uncollected taxes for 1875, on real estate, the enormous sum of $391,746.25, or $400,000 in round numbers, and the number of houses and estates advertised for sale last September, for unpaid taxes of the year preceding, was over 2900; I counted them up as best I could—representing, at $13 on $1000, about $30,000,000 worth of property on which the owners could pay no taxes. That is the condition of the people who will have to pay for the park scheme. The taxable value of the real estate will be about $500,000,000, and that is mortgaged to at least $250,000,000. Half of the personal property in the city of Boston, held in your stores and elsewhere, represents in a great measure the indebtedness of the people who own it; and it is all taxed. These are the people who will have to pay for this proposed park and for sewerage. What is the condition of the occupied real estate throughout the city? I appeal to any gentleman listening to me, who owns real estate, and I venture to say that, after paying taxes and repairs, it does not net three per cent. throughout the city of Boston; and the hardest money the poor man has to pay is the tax on the house which he paid three or four thousand dollars for three or four years ago, and giving a mortgage for twenty-five hundred or three thousand dollars. The papers are filled each September with a long list of delinquent taxpayers that almost startles people. How is it with our commercial men? Read the Commercial Bulletin. What is it but a list of failures? Yet we are told that times are prosperous! As a master in chancery, I know that when people sue they hesitate to arrest a man for debt, for fear of his going into bankruptcy. That is the financial condition of those who own houses and of those who engage in trade; and nobody can deny it; and those who feel it most are not the richest. The laboring man who has laid up the earnings of years, and who after a while purchased a house in Roxbury, Charlestown or South Boston for three or four thousand dollars, and mortgaged it for seventy per cent. of its value, has lost all by the shrinkage in value, and is trying to carry that immense load of a mortgage until better times come round. It is he who most feels all this heavy burden of taxation. Now, I ask any gentleman who has listened to me if the picture I present is not a true picture of the financial condition of the city of Boston today? The people are taxed more than they can bear, and now it is proposed to add this to the burden. And what is the grand argument? I heard a remark just now from a man here [among the spectators] who cannot keep down his feelings; and I will tell you what that argument is. There is one class of people that is always appealed to; and I am sorry to say in many cases they are appealed to with success. It is the laboring class. Whatever money is taken out of the city treasury; whatever money is to be paid for schemes of this kind, is to help the laboring man forsooth; and many of the laboring men are caught by this talk which I have heard everywhere in connection with this park question. They are spoken to and appealed to; they are told that idleness will cease; that the good old times, when they had work and plenty of it, will come round, and the millennium is coming for them, for a million dollars for the grand scheme of parks is going to be voted upon by the City Council. I do not yield to anybody in my desire to see laboring men employed; but I do not think the city or the State is a soup house. I think that public servants should try to so conduct the State and city that the working people will depend upon their own industry, and not upon the city, State or national treasury to aid them. I consider it criminal to be thus urging schemes in the name of the poor and unemployed, especially when not for their benefit. But this order is not for the benefit of the workmen. Not a dollar of this one million this year, not a dollar of the other million next year, not one single dollar, can be expended for labor. The report reads that "never was labor so cheap." That is an assertion in which I do not disagree with the majority of the committee. Never was labor so cheap; and materials were never so cheap. But what has that to do with the laboring man, when I tell him that not a single cent of the million dollars will give him an hour's work? If we pass the order and borrow a million dollars, not a single cent of it will go into the pockets of the laboring man; but it will go into the pockets of land speculators. I presume they did not know it before, and I propose to tell them that. There might be some strength in the argument if it could be shown that the laboring man is to be benefited by this. The act provides that the scrip we issue, and for which we receive money, shall be devoted to buying land, and nothing more. I would like to know where the labor is coming from. I will do anything to help the laboring men; but they can get no labor from it. The appropriation bill is passed, and the money for labor on parks can only be raised by putting it into the tax levy, and we can raise nothing more until next May. So that the argument that the working man is to be benefited by the passage of this order—an argument which has been reiterated throughout the city, an argument which has been used to threaten me if I did not vote for this park scheme—that argument has been industriously circulated, until I think many of the workingmen believe that the grand day of deliverance from idleness, and the time for giving work all round to every man, is coming if this park order passes. It is not so, sir. The intention of the Park Commissioners, the intention of the gentlemen who propose this order, is that the land shall be bought, that it may lie idle years; and in the sweet by and by, after some years, then the laboring man who comes to City Hall today can get work upon this public park. If the workingman is satisfied with that kind of prospect, and can be induced by it to go for a park, he has less sense than I give him credit for. I say it is a speculation to sell land—I do not mean by those who are honestly trying in the City Government to get it through; I do not mean them; but I mean by persons outside. It is simply a pressure brought by people outside of the City Government to get rid of lands which they own and are trying to make the city of Boston buy of them; and, when those lands are bought, you will not find those people demanding breathing places for people to go and expand their lungs in; their lands will be bought, and some others must come and make arguments for the workingmen of the city of Boston; they will have accomplished what they want and be satisfied. The other argument is that Boston, like New York, will be benefited by parks. Boston is unlike New York. Our people resort to the seashore. We have now, down at Revere Beach, a water park; our harbor is a water park which is frequented by thousands and thousands during the summer months. Thousands of people go to Revere Beach and breathe the pure sea breeze, for the sum of fifteen cents, an amount just equal (or nearly so) to that which it would cost to take them to any park, suburban or otherwise, in the city of Boston. And the theory of the rise of real estate in Boston compared to New York is not exactly correct. New York is like what Charlestown is today. There was no vacant land in New York, and it was obliged to create it in the region of Central Park. Of course, land in the vicinity went up to an enormous price; people bought around Central Park and held it, much to their grief. Boston has as much land as is needed for residences, and it will be years and years before people will go to live in the region of the proposed parks. It will be years and years before the city is so thickly filled up as that. The outlying districts and the suburbs of Boston are one series of parks. The residences in Roxbury and Brookline are but beautiful parks, not created at the expense of the city of Boston, but by the taste of the people living on the roadways. In that respect Boston is different from New York. I am in favor of parks; they would be a beautiful addition to Boston, and I should favor them at any other time than now. I think the people of Boston can better afford to pay ten dollars for parks years hence than they can afford to pay two dollars today. The record of foreclosures by mortgage is something terrific to look at. Such things have never happened before in the history of our savings banks. People cannot carry their mortgages along, and when the estates are sold they do not bring an amount equal to the mortgage. Nearly every sale of real estate is a sale for foreclosure. I have here a list of some property sold the other day in this city, as tending to show how everything has depreciated. On April 23, McClellan & Knights sold the estate 330 Beacon street, comprising a lot thirty-three feet on Beacon street by 180 on Fairfield street and a large three-story octagon front and rear brick dwelling, for $43,650; Mr. Wainwright, in the spring of 1873, was offered $70,000 for that estate. On May 16, Samuel Hatch sold the wharf property on Atlantic avenue, containing about 71,514 feet—the terms were $2000 down, one half cash and the balance on three or five years' mortgage at six per cent. interest; the property was free of encumbrance and was assessed last year for $192,000; it was started at $1 a foot and was knocked down at $1.42½ a foot, or about $109,505. A house on Beacon street, corner of Hereford, and the house 68 Pinckney street, were offered by auction to satisfy mortgages, the one of $50,000 and the other of $15,000, but no bid was offered near their value, the highest bid on the Pinckney-street house being $8000. So it is with property all over the city. Real estate is coming down to the amount of the mortgage; and yet people are trying to carry our municipal indebtedness away above what it ought to be. With a margin of only five-sevenths per cent., and with our sewerage and other improvements pressing upon us, cannot the park lands lie quietly a year or two longer? Especially as the argument, which is strongly used—that it is going to help the workingmen—simply amounts to nothing, and it is only an appeal to their prejudices for a scheme which can amount to nothing for them for five or six years. Not a single cent of this park scrip can be used for the workingmen. In consideration of all these things, I have made up my mind that it is inadvisable to commence this scheme of parks this year; and if it continues to be agitated for a year or two, I have no doubt the people of Boston, in their own good time, when the sewerage question—which will give work to poor people; every cent expended for sewerage, except the cost of the material, will be spent for labor—is settled. I am in favor of sewerage. I shall vote for $5,000,000 for a system of sewerage if it comes up this year, and I think it ought to take precedence of parks. If the argument that parks are going to help the workingmen is strong, I think it can be used with ten times the strength for sewerage, because five-sixths of the money for sewers will be spent for labor, while all the money you can appropriate for parks now will be of no benefit to the laboring man.

Alderman O'Brien—I merely want to say one or two words in answer to the Alderman. I am in favor of the intercepting system of sewerage; but that every cent of it goes to the laboring man is not true in any sense of the word. I suppose that one-half the cost of the sewer will go to the laboring man; the other half will go down East, or to some place where they manufacture brick or other material. One half the cost of this sewer will go out of the city, and perhaps the other half may go into the pockets of the workingmen. But still I believe in it, and I hope the Committee on Improved Sewerage will push it on with the greatest despatch possible. I don't believe it can be pushed this year, and I appeal to the chairman of the committee to explain it. Our City Engineer has not got through with making his estimates for the work, and I don't believe he will get through for months so that he can present a plan to this Board for adoption. It is a work that requires time, and it is a work that we did not commence in time. We were behind the time in commencing it. Now, the Alderman who has just taken his seat desired to appeal to the laboring men and to show that not one cent of this money that we ask for would go into their pockets. In the first place he estimates the cost of the scheme laid out by the Park Commissioners at from fifteen to twenty millions. The actual cost of the land is less than $5,000,000; and where do the fifteen millions of dollars to complete these parks go to? Every dollar of it goes into the hands of the laboring man. And why is it that the laboring man, the mechanic and the architect do not stand a fair chance in relation to this measure? It is because the Massachusetts Legislature cheated them out of it. An act was presented to the Legislature for leave to carry on this improvement on a thirty-year loan. The city authorities asked for it because they wanted to set the mechanics, architects and laboring men to work; and the men who are against parks defeated that measure in the Legislature, and cheated the laboring man, so far as that act was concerned. That is a fact, Mr. Mayor. The laboring man was cheated by the Massachusetts Legislature because they refused to pass an act that would put, as the Alderman says—if his estimates are correct—from fifteen to twenty millions of dollars in the pockets of the workingmen. They wanted to make this improvement upon a thirty-year loan. That is the true state of the case.

Alderman Robinson—I have no prepared speech, Mr. Mayor, and the facts and figures which have been given tonight by the two Aldermen who have spoken almost craze my brain to think of them. If I had Aladdin's lamp I would bring that genie on the middle of this floor tonight and direct him to have, before sunrise tomorrow morning, a system of parks with beautiful driveways all around this city. If I had as well the wishing cap that we have read of in the Arabian Nights, I would transport myself to the valley of Sinbad the Sailor, and capture about all the jewels, emeralds, rubies and pearls, and precious stones; and I would take a handful of them and give to my friend, Fitzgerald, and tell him to sell them for the best price he could and make the best system of sewerage any city ever had. I would set every man in the city of Boston at work tomorrow morning, and I would provide a dinner for the members of the Common Council at the Cattle Fair Hotel next Saturday, or the next fair day that they should chose to go to the parks. I would do something, gentlemen, for you all—every one of you; even my friend Thompson, who sells steel rails. But there never was but one Aladdin and never but one Sinbad; but the greatest of all those heroes was Jack the Giant-killer, who exists no longer, and we cannot make a raid upon him, and we have got to take things as we find them. Money comes now in very small quantities, and with confounded hard knocks, when it comes at all. We have got to see whether parks are useful and necessary, and whether we can build them. As to their utility, I think sufficient has been said by my friend Alderman O'Brien to show that they are useful not only in this country, but in every city of any considerable size in the civilized world you find that parks are an absolute necessity. If you take a voyage across the Atlantic and reach the old smoky town of Liverpool—so smoky that its suburbs are pretty much of the same character as Boston, and it has as much suburbs as any city in the world—there you find the Princess Park and another which they have laid out within a few years of 400 acres, for which they paid two and a half million dollars, and they are at work beautifying that park so that all the people can go there together.

If you go from there to London you find Green Park, James Park, Hyde Park, Regent's Park, Kensington Gardens, and innumerable squares. Pass over to Paris and you find the Bois de Boulogne at one end, and the Forest de Vincennes at the other; the Tuileries, the Champs des Elysees and all the innumerable squares where people congregate in the open air. Go to Marseilles and you will find parks, and people live there just the same as in Paris. At Naples you find parks; and pass over from there to old Germany and you will find in Berlin one of the largest parks in Europe, where there is no sewerage, and the smells are perfectly heartrending sometimes. You will find also a park of eight thousand acres. At Dresden and Munich you will also find large parks, where there are deer and all sorts of animals grazing side by side. But the best and greatest park of all is in Vienna, right in the centre of the city where the largest portion of the city want it. Here prince and potentate, rich and poor, meet upon the utmost equality. A person sitting beside you at one of the tables in the beer garden might be a member of the royal family, but no more notice is taken of that person than there is of any other. The wife of a gentleman high in rank told me of an incident that occurred to her while sitting in this very park in Vienna. As she sat there one day a party of ladies came along and took their seats at the booth by her side and called for beer, which they laughingly drank and went away. No attention was paid to them, and they seemed to be a happy, jolly party of ladies. She inquired who they were, and to her surprise and astonishment she found that the lady who attracted her attention most was the empress of Austria, and the rest were her maids of honor. To show how these parks are used by all classes, when I was in the capital of Saxony, Dresden; I saw a man who had been in the United States and, said there was no public place where a gentleman could go with his family and sit down with all classes of people. It was the dearest thing in Dresden to be able to go there and all the people meet perfectly free together, and no notice taken of any rank or station. While seated there I noticed around me a species of flies that resembled flakes in a snow storm. I asked what they were and was told they were something that came to that garden and nowhere else; that a new crop came every season. It seemed to me that those parks were so delightful that even these flies came there to spend the few hours of their existence in common with mortals. Now, gentlemen, and Mr. Mayor, it is said that Boston has a system of parks all around it. It has beautiful suburbs; but they are receding all the time. It is growing more and more difficult year after year to reach those suburbs; and now it requires an expensive horse and carriage to do so; and many people cannot afford to enjoy the beautiful suburbs of the city of Boston. And when they do go there to see those beautiful lawns and everything else that is attractive, they cannot go on to them unless by consent of the owners without trespassing. They are getting more and more distant every year; and it seems to me that we in Boston should put in the entering wedge so that we can have something like parks, and have a place where all our people can meet in common. I do not agree with my friend, Alderman O'Brien, that times look very prosperous. I do not see any very great improvement in business affairs. On the contrary, it looks worse today than it did a year ago. All of us around this Board know what a torment—if I may make use of the expression—it was to meet the workingmen last winter and feel at the same time that we were unable to give them the work that they begged for so hard. I see no reason now to believe that it will be any better another winter than it was last. The time is passing in which to begin our enterprises. I know of nothing at all that we have projected; and it has got so far along that any large enterprise can not be projected this year; and it looks to me as if in all probability next winter will be as hard as it was last. Some persons think the war in Europe will lead to business. When our war began there was hardly a cart or anything else, to carry troops to the field, or to carry on the war with at all. Those nations in Europe all have large standing armies, and they have been months and years gathering their supplies together. We have had four large mills working night and day making powder for Russia, and as many more were making powder for Turkey. The Providence Tool Company has been making arms for Turkey for three years, and those people are supplied with arms for this year. It was not till last fall that Odessa, the great exporting wheat country of the world, was so loaded down with grain that they were in a state of failure. Now they have sufficient supplies to last them this year and next. We cannot expect that that war in Europe can do us any good for this year. Now if there is any plan that can be devised in the City Council, in the purchase of the West Roxbury park, as has been suggested, or any other park, if we adopt that plan we shall have done our duty at least to our successors to give them an opportunity to employ men, as we have this season.

Alderman Thompson—At this late hour I do not propose to say much upon the subject of parks, only that I have been very agreeably entertained and instructed by the gentlemen who have preceded me. I desire to remark to the chairman of the committee, who introduced the subject, while he was entertaining us with his statistics, I regretted that he did not continue his figures. I noticed that he stopped at the year 1875 with his increase of valuation and population. I was surprised at that, because I thought he was going to give us the exact facts as they exist today.

Alderman O'Brien—If the Alderman will allow me to interrupt him one moment. The census returns are made up every ten years. In 1885 we will have other returns, and until that year it will be impossible to give him any more figures. I took the figures last made.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman can give ns the valuation for 1876 by sending down to the lower floor of this building, and he will find that, instead of $795,000,000, the valuation is $745,000,000. It is my opinion that when he calls there in September he will find the valuation reduced below $700,000,000; and if I could have my way, and estimate the valuation of the city of Boston at its market value today, it would be reduced one hundred millions. But I said I was not going to discuss this question of parks. I merely wished to remind my friend that he reflected upon his associate upon the committee—a gentleman [Mr. Stone] who comes from the district in which I reside—a little unjustly and severely, I think. He referred to him as having been a little out of the way in his statement; and then remarked that that gentleman could see his way clear to vote $250,000 or $300,000 for a sewer; while all they asked, and all he voted for has been $200,000, and what is the sewer for? It is to perfect property which is worth $3,000,000 to the city of Boston today. It is necessary to spend that amount to preserve that value to the city of Boston; and it is a work which requires no aid from the treasury of Boston. The Mystic Water Works support themselves today and turn into the treasury a hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year. Now, sir, a reflection upon a member of the City Council who is willing to vote to perfect property like that is unjust at this time. As I said, I do not propose to make any remarks at this time. I only wish to remark to the Alderman that it is a very different thing from voting for the scheme now before the City Council. Three-fourths, if not seven-eighths, of that $200,000 is going into the hands of the laboring people; and we have a proposition come up to us which provides that that expenditure shall be made to the laboring people of the city.

Alderman O'Brien—Last year I voted with a great deal of pleasure to appropriate $200,000 to purify the Mystic water. It was far purer than the Cochituate before Charlestown was annexed, but it became suddenly impure when Charlestown was annexed. I was very willing to do it because I became convinced that the people of Charlestown had been drinking impure water for a number of years. But the gentleman from Charlestown, talking about parks, said in his report that they are a public improvement which will cost twice as much as will be appropriated by the city of Boston, and I took him upon his argument and said the Mystic sewer will cost $400,000 upon the same principle. When people talk about parks, they bring forward any quantity of imaginary figures; but when you talk about any other matter, they come down to the real facts. I hope those gentlemen will treat this question not with imaginary figures, because they can get as many facts in regard to parks as any other improvement that is made.

Alderman Wilder—This question of parks is admitted upon all sides to be as great, perhaps, as any that can come before us. The Alderman [Alderman Fitzgerald] has given me some information which I did not have before—that the appropriation contemplated in this order was all to be spent in the purchase of land, and in no other way. I would not presume to doubt anything the Alderman says, but that statement being made, I want time to think it over. I have some well-settled opinions upon this matter of parks, but the lateness of the hour and the fulness with which this question has been discussed will prevent me from attempting to discuss it tonight, and I rise, Mr. Mayor, to move that the matter be specially assigned to half-past four o'clock next Monday afternoon.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Before we proceed further I would say that any one who read the twelfth section of the act creating the Park Commission would have no doubt whatever as to the intent of the act:

"Sect. 12. For the purpose of defraying the expenses incurred under the provisions of this act, the City Council of Boston shall have authority to issue, from time to time, and to an amount not exceeding the amount actually expended for the purchase or taking of lands for said parks, bonds or certificates of debt, to be denominated, on the face thereof, the 'Public Park Loan,' and to bear interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, and to be payable at such periods as said Council may determine. For the redemption of such loan said Council shall establish a sinking fund sufficient, with the accumulating interest, to provide for its payment at maturity. All sums received for betterments shall be paid into said sinking fund, until such fund shall amount to a sum sufficient, with its accumulation, to pay at maturity the bonds for the security of which the fund was established."

I would say further that I had an interview with the City Solicitor, and his idea was just that, too.

Alderman Clark—An attempt was made in the Legislature to get the right to issue bonds for the purpose of filling any of these lands when taken, so as to give the laboring classes employment. A very strong attempt was made, but it was at a time in the session when no new business could be entertained except by a four-fifths vote of the House. That act was passed upon unanimously by the Senate. They saw the necessity for giving to the city the right to issue bonds for the purpose of buying lands and filling them, by a long loan, namely, thirty years, and the Senate voted upon it unanimously. It went into the House, who voted by a large majority to give the city that right, but it required four-fifths of all the members to obtain that right, and a strong lobby was brought against it by members of the House and outside parties, and the city was prevented from obtaining that right simply because it required a four-fifths vote for it. If it had been introduced at a time when it did not require four-fifths, the city would have obtained the right. Now, this is only preparatory to entering upon the commencement of the work in the coming year. It will take the commissioners some little time to make their purchases and to get ready to employ those thousands of men who are standing around this hall from week to week, and give them employment, as it is proposed to do. I merely wish to make that statement. I am in favor of a postponement of this subject for one week. It has been very ably discussed for and against, and all the arguments that can possibly be raised against parks have been put to the Board in a very able manner by the Alderman from the Twenty-first Ward, so that I doubt whether anything new can be brought forward against the establishment of parks at the present time. But there never has been a time since Boston has been a city when there have been so many occupied stores as at present. There are a great many vacant ones; it is always so. But there have been seventy acres of store property built over in the last four years, commencing after the panic. I understand that in the number of vacant stores in Boston and New York, as compared with the population and business of each city, Boston is infinitely superior to New York today, notwithstanding the dull times. The Alderman has spoken of the rapid growth and prosperity of the city without parks; but he forgets that twenty-five or thirty years ago the Common was a public park sufficiently large to accommodate the inhabitants of the city; and he forgets that the city, instead of having a population of thirty or forty thousand, has a population of 350,000 or 400,000; and he forgets that the cities of Newton and Cambridge are fast growing towards us, and we are growing towards them, and that the time is not far off when Charles River beyond Newton will be the boundary of the city of Boston; and unless parks are provided for now we shall have no opportunities to obtain them. I propose at a future time to speak of the public parks of other cities and to show some reasons why the city of Boston should establish public parks now. I regret that we have so large a debt, but it is not large for what we have done, and there is no city in the world whose credit is at so high a premium. We must not wink out of sight the fact that ten millions of this debt has been put upon us by the negligence of our predecessors, in not laying out the city as it should have been. We must not forget that the great fire of 1872 forced upon us a debt of ten millions which we spent in creating new streets and widening old ones, which could have been done for one-tenth the cost twenty-five years ago. We owe nominally forty millions of dollars, and we have thirty millions to pay it with. It don't make much difference how much a man owes, if he has got $125 to pay $100 with or $200 to pay $150 with. It is a notorious fact that the building of the Public Garden and the improvement of the Back Bay territory has added to the taxable property more than fifty or sixty millions of dollars; no doubt about that. But I did not rise to make any remarks upon the general question of public parks. I merely wish to state that it is not proposed to spend this entire money in the put-chase of land. The entire estimate for lands is $4,900,000, which is probably a million more than we shall have to pay for them. The Alderman speaks of the immense rise in real estate when the city wants to purchase, and the fact that the city cannot buy land at thirty-five cents a foot which is assessed at twenty cents. It shows that real estate has not depreciated to the extent that he would have us believe. Don't you believe the citizens of Boston would be glad to sell land to the city for money as cheap as to individuals? It is a fact that no corporation buys land or gets work done so cheaply as the city of Boston, because the pay is sure. I am glad to know that the city cannot buy land for a schoolhouse at less than the assessed value. The Alderman tells a good many instances of real estate selling for a good deal less than it was assessed for. Why is it? Because the building has depreciated. You can build a house or store today for—

Alderman Gibson raised the point that Alderman Clark was out of order in discussing the main question, while the motion was to assign.

Alderman Clark stood corrected, but he wanted to impress some things upon the Alderman's mind and give him something to think of.

Alderman Fitzgerald, in reply to Alderman Clark, said there were many occupied stores, but the occupants are going into bankruptcy, refusing to pay rent, and failing at ten, fifteen and twenty cents on the dollar. He liked to hear Alderman Clark speak and revive the drooping spirits of the taxpayers, and hoped he would have an opportunity to show the cheery side of Boston's finances.

Alderman Clark said he was prepared to go on. He was well known as a believer in parks and in Boston's growth and prosperity, and he believed those who live through 1877 will see a greater prosperity than Boston has known. He favored the High School order, and believed more property is selling in Boston above its assessed value than there is selling below it.

The subject was assigned to 4.30 P. M. next Monday.

PLAYGROUNDS.

A report and order came up for the Committee on Common, etc., to provide playgrounds in several portions of the city, at a cost of $2000, and that the Committee on Finance provide the means.

Alderman Thompson moved the indefinite postponement of the subject.

Alderman Clark said the Committee on Common recommended the expenditure, and the order had been introduced by members of the Council who believed playgrounds should be provided. One is to be provided at South Boston, one at Jamaica Plain and one on the Back Bay, which will cost nothing but a trifle in levelling the ground. It is just to the youth that they should have some place to play.

Alderman Thompson said he had visited some of the playgrounds proposed, and supposed the proposition was to send the North End and Charlestown boys there to buy them back. A great deal of territory is lying idle that the boys can use. If the committee had provided a playground at the North End it would be some use.

Alderman Clark said Alderman Thompson did not understand the subject. The boys in each section are to have a playground. The use of some of the land is given, others are let for a small sum, and the city owns some suitable lots. He called for the yeas and nays.

Alderman Gibson said he would be willing to vote for the land that is to be free and not to hire any.

The motion to indefinitely postpone was lost, and the order to provide the means was passed in concurrence.

VENTILATION OF THE COUNCIL CHAMBER.

A report of minority of Committee on Public Buildings in favor of an improved system of ventilation of the Common Council chamber, at an expense of $3000 (substitute for the majority report "inexpedient" to legislate) came up referred to Committee on Finance.

Alderman Fitzgerald said the committee had investigated this subject and believed it best to leave it to the committee to provide ventilation, rather than expend $3000 in an experiment. You cannot regulate the temperature of any hall unless you regulate the tempers of those in the hall—some are hot, some warm and some cold; and if one is satisfied the others are not. They had seen the system and had opinions from various gentlemen, and voluminous reports from Mr. Wilbur.

Alderman Thompson had seen the system work, and had been perfectly surprised at it. He wanted the Board to see it. The vote in the Council was 57 to 0.

On motion of Alderman Thompson, the order was laid on the table.

CLERK FOR LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

A request of the License Commissioners for an additional clerk came up referred to Committee on Retrenchment.

Alderman Fitzgerald said that committee had reduced that office in clerical assistance and probably would not report in favor of granting the request.

Alderman Thompson moved that the request of the commissioners be granted, as they desire to get to work as early as possible.

On motion of Alderman Burnham, the matter was laid on the table.

Alderman Clark understood that it was necessary, as there must be a great deal of labor at this time. He moved a reconsideration of the vote to lay on the table.

Alderman Burnham understood they had one clerk already, and, as the committee had reduced the force, he thought the Board needed time to consider it.

Alderman Fitzgerald explained that a clerk in the City Clerk's office did this work, and that clerkship was abolished.

Alderman Gibson had understood that applications were coming in at the rate of 500 a day, and the assistance was much needed.

The reconsideration prevailed.

After some informal discussion, the City Clerk was called on to explain the duties of the clerk referred to. He said the law required him to keep a list of the licenses granted, alphabetically and numerically arranged. The custom had been to grant licenses, send notice to the City Clerk, and his clerk made out the license and sent notice to the parties. The Committee on Retrenchment, in abolishing the clerkship, had unintentionally crippled his office, as the clerk was used to do other work, and he [the City Clerk] had been compelled, in order to keep the work of his office up, to hire a clerk at his own expense.

The motion of Alderman Thompson was adopted as expressed in the following order:

Ordered, That the Board of License Commissioners be authorized to employ an additional clerk, at a salary not exceeding $1200; said salary to be paid from the receipts from liquor licenses.

POLICE.

Alderman Rohinson submitted the following from the Committee on Police:

Report in part on Mayor's appointments of police officers of 14th inst., recommending the confirmation of the appointment of William W. Mitchell. Report accepted and said nomination was confirmed.

Report on request of License Commissioners, recommending the passage of the following:

Ordered, That until otherwise ordered the maximum number of members of the Police Department of all ranks be fixed at 715.

Ordered, That the Chief of Police, under the direction of the Committee on Police, be authorized to detail fifteen men from the police force for permanent duty at the office of the Board of License Commissioners; the officers so detailed to be paid from the receipts for liquor licenses.

Alderman Clark understood this was an increase of the force, and that thirteen men are to be detailed at the commissioners' office, and it will entail an expenditure of $15,000 a year, which will reduce the net receipts from licenses that amount. He understood that fifteen men were detailed from the regular force last year.

Alderman Rohinson said the men were necessary; but he was not aware they were detailed from the regular force last year.

Alderman Burnham explained that these men were to be appointed specially for this duty, and it was not an increase of the regular force.

Alderman Thompson confirmed Alderman Burnham's statement.

Alderman O'Brien said he understood that these policemen were nothing less than detectives and informers. After selling a man a license he did not believe in putting detectives upon him.

Alderman Fitzgerald understood that these men were to be regular policemen, and that fifteen were to be detailed for this work.

The orders were passed.

PROTECTION OF PLANTS ON PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be and he is hereby authorized to offer a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of any person detected in stealing plants or flowers from the Public Garden and public grounds; the expense to be charged to the appropriation for Common, etc.

Alderman Clark explained that this was done last year, and served to protect the plants. There have been many complaints about stealing plants. The only cost had been advertising the notice.

Alderman Fitzgerald did not object to the order if it is intended merely to frighten people; but he did object to the principle of paying a reward for informers.

The order was passed. Sent down.

INDEFINITE POSTPONEMENT.

On motion of Alderman Slade, the report in favor of permitting William R. Cavanagh to remove two wooden buildings on Blue Hill avenue to Washington street, near Marston avenue; also, a remonstrance against the same by Malachi Lennon and others, were taken from the table and indefinitely postponed, the Alderman stating that the difficulties had been settled.

POLICE APPOINTED.

A communication was read from the Mayor appointing the following-named persons police officers: Daniel A. Sullivan, Dennis Sullivan, Thomas A. Simpson, John A. Fynes, Patrick Houghton, Jr., James Driscoll, John J. Leary, Daniel O. Felt, James F. McDonald, James Horgan, Cornelius Sullivan, Thomas J. Linton, Daniel A. Doherty, M. J. Nugent, D. J. Shaunessey and Patrick Melody.

Referred to Committee on Police.

NOMINATIONS CONFIRMED.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the executive nomination of L. Foster Morse to be Registrar of Voters was taken from the table.

Alderman Viles asked if the nomination was legal, as the statute says he "shall" be appointed in February or March.

Alderman Fitzgerald read a part of the act to show that a vacancy by death, resignation or otherwise may be filled at any time. The term of the present incumbent has expired.

Alderman Clark—I am very sorry to be obliged to vote against any appointment made by your Honor, and would not do so did I not believe the interests of the city would be injured by the displacement of Mr. Spinney, who has occupied the position since it was established and given entire satisfaction to the community. I believe Mr. Morse is well qualified for the position, but as I have reason to believe any charges made against Mr. Spinney are of a frivolous character, I shall be compelled to vote against Mr. Morse. I have heard no reasons for Mr. Spinney's removal, and I have been informed that he has given entire satisfaction to both political parties. I did not know him by sight even until the other evening he called to thank me for having said a good word for him a week ago. If there are good reasons for his removal I am ready to be convinced, and shall vote for another.

Alderman Fitzgerald—An excellent reason for voting for Mr. Morse is that he has been nominated and the other gentleman has not. His term expires by limitation and he has not been reappointed. I was always of the opinion that one Registrar was enough, and opposed more than one in the Legislature. Mr. Spinney is no more Registrar of Voters than I am.

Alderman Clark—I am well aware of that. I do not believe it would be safe to have only one Registrar, not even with Mr. Spinney or Mr. Morse.

It being my opinion that Mr. Spinney is the best man, I shall withhold my vote from Mr. Morse, hoping he will not be confirmed and that the Mayor may see fit to change his mind, for it may be that he has heard some charges that cannot be substantiated.

Alderman Viles—While I shall vote for Mr. Morse, I do so with a protest against the turning out of so faithful a Democrat as Mr. Spinney, who has had three years' experience, and putting in another Democrat without that experience. I have known Mr. Morse many years, and he will make an efficient officer, and I believe his Honor has used more than his usual good judgment in the selection. I shall vote for Mr. Morse, and let the responsibility rest with your Honor.

Alderman O'Brien—The mistake in this is the impression that Mr. Spinney is displaced. He has not. His term has expired, and your Honor did not see fit to reappoint him, and selected some other man. That responsibility has been placed upon you, and I do not think it is fair to stand up here and refuse to vote for one man because you did not nominate another. I sympathize with any man who loses a position at this time; but you have the responsibility, and as the integrity of the candidate is not doubted, I do not see that this Board can do better than vote to confirm.

Alderman Gibson—As gentlemen have said, your Honor has the right to appoint; and the members of the Board have the right to vote independently. I have known Mr. Spinney a long time, and feel that he ought to have been nominated. For that reason I shall vote against Mr. Morse.

Alderman Burnham—I have had a thirty years' acquaintance with Mr. Spinney and know his fitness for this or any other office which he in his good judgment would accept. Without questioning the right of your Honor, it seems to me the members of this Board have the same right to vote for or against it. The exercise of the right by your Honor at this time looks like a reflection upon Mr. Spinney; and, therefore, I shall vote against confirmation.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The great trouble is we are not all mayors to appoint whom we please. The responsibility rests on the Mayor to appoint, and on the Board to reject if he appoints an unfit man. Mr. Spinney's term has expired, and he has no more right to the office than any one else. Rotation in office is a principle that underlies all republican institutions, and I think it an excellent thing. I fancy that such a man as the people of Boston would elect to be Mayor would not accept a nomination made by any one else if he were required to make it. I know I should n't.

Alderman Clark—I do not propose to criticize the Mayor. I merely wish to say that were I a member of the Democratic party I should think the interests of that party would suffer by the displacement of Mr. Spinney, who has had three years' experience, and has been a leading Democrat. I don't propose to vote against Mr. Morse, but I propose to put myself on record against the removal of such a good Democrat as Mr. Spinney, and I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. Fitzgerald—No man in Boston is so peculiarly fitted by taste for this office as L. Foster Morse, and I know that the public interest will not suffer so far as he is concerned.

The nomination of Mr. Morse was confirmed—yeas 8, nays 4; Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Dunbar and Gibson voting nay.

On motion of Alderman Clark, the nomination of Henry W. Longley to be Fire Commissioner was taken from the table and confirmed. Sent down.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Robinson.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

MAY 24, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Order to remit taxes on forfeited estates, viz., for 1874, 124 West Castle street; for 1875, Albany, corner East Newton street.

Severally read once.

Order to make agreement with New York & New England Railroad Corporation for rebuilding bridge over Cottage street, and to relieve city from rebuilding or maintaining said bridge.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I don't really understand this order, and should like to ascertain whether this Cottage-street Bridge is a part of the Swett-street extension. At the time Swett street was constructed a bridge was built over the New York & New England Railroad, and the foundations for a bridge have been laid over West Chester park. I don't understand whether this is included in that matter or not.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18—A few years ago Cottage street was widened. It is in Dorchester, and is not a part of the Swett-street improvement. About six feet of the bridge have to be widened this year in order to collect the betterments. The Committee on Streets gave it careful consideration and came to the conclusion that the best parties to make a contract with are the New York & New England Railway Company.

The order was passed to a second reading.

FIRE COMMISSIONER.

An Executive communication appointing Henry W. Longley a member of the Board of Fire Commissioners for three years came down for concurrence in the confirmation of said appointment.

On motion of Mr. Pierce of Ward 18 the yeas and nays were ordered, and the appointment was confirmed in concurrence—yeas 41, nays 15:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brown, Cannon, Clarke, Coe, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, Ham, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McGaragle, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Perham, Reed, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Shepard, Sibley, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, E. R. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—41.

Nays—Messrs. Crocker, Danforth, Felt, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, McClusky, Mowry, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Sampson, Smardon, Thompson—15.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Brintnall, Burke, Cox, Cross, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Jackson, Loughlin, McDonald, Morrill, Pearl, Pope, Pratt, Warren, G. B. Webster—15.

Subsequently a motion to reconsider, by Mr. Sibley of Ward 5 (hoping it would not prevail), was lost.

CLERK FOR LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

An order came down to authorize the License Commissioners to employ an additional clerk at a salary not exceeding $1200 per annum, to be charged to the receipts for liquor licenses.

The question was upon giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—When that order was before us at our last meeting I moved its reference to the Retrenchment Committee, because in their original report they reported that this clerk was not necessary. Now it appears there is a difference of opinion between the Retrenchment Committee and the License Commissioners, and I thought it was quite proper to have a report from that committee, who are our organ in regard to these facts. The chairman of the Retrenchment Committee, on the part of the Board of Aldermen, declined, for his committee, to make this investigation; but I am now better satisfied that we ought to have a report upon this matter, and that it ought to be referred to some committee; therefore I move that it be referred to the Committee on Salaries, that they may make this investigation.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I think it is hardly necessary to refer the order. It is necessary that the commissioners should have a clerk. The discussion in the Board of Aldermen last Monday was very broad, and brought in the City Clerk, whose remarks I will read, with the permission of the Council:

"After some informal discussion, the City Clerk was called on to explain the duties of the clerk referred to. He said the law required him to keep a list of the licenses granted, alphabetically and numerically arranged. The custom had been to grant licenses, send notice to the City Clerk, and his clerk made out the license and sent notice to the parties. The Committee on Retrenchment, in abolishing the clerkship, had unintentionally crippled his office, as the clerk was used to do other work, and he [the City Clerk] had been compelled, in order to keep the work of his office up, to hire a clerk at his own expense."

Now, sir, it is evident that we need this clerk. Somebody has got to fill out these licenses after they are granted. The License Commissioners have only one clerk, whose duty it is to receive and file the applications. After the licenses are granted they need somebody to fill them out and transmit them to the City Clerk for his and the Mayor's signatures. It is important that it should be done at once, as every man in the liquor business is doing it illegally. The interest saved on the deposits they make will amply repay for hiring this clerk; and by the time this matter can go to a committee and be reported back and passed by both branches, a month will have passed. As I said, the interest saved at four per cent. on the amount deposited would amply repay for this expenditure, besides furnishing Mr. McCleary with some help and relieve him from hiring a clerk out of his own pocket. Therefore I hope it will not prevail.

Mr. Thompson—If I understand this order it is to provide an additional clerk for the License Commissioners, and not for the City Clerk.

Mr. McGaragle—The pay is to come from the fees received for licenses. Not a dollar of it comes out of the city treasury.

Mr. Thompson—I cannot see the distinction. It is taking it out of one pocket and putting it into another—apparently robbing Peter to pay Paul. As I understand, this is not a clerk for Mr. McCleary's office, but for the License Commissioners, at a salary of $1200 a year. I believe the commissioners will have work for him for a month or six weeks perhaps, and I don't know what his occupation will be the rest of the time. If it is to provide a clerk for the City Clerk, the order should be changed. But there still remains a disagreement in opinion between the Retrenchment Committee and Mr. McCleary. At the beginning of the year the committee thought the clerical force in the City Clerk's office sufficient to do the work; we acted upon that opinion and abolished the clerkship, and now we are asked to retrace our steps. It was known just as well then as it is now what the duties of the License Commissioners would be. The clerkship we abolished was in the City Clerk's office, and the one proposed to be established is in the office of the License Commissioners. I do not understand that the duties of the License Commissioners are more onerous than they were last year, and it seems to me that we should move slowly in the establishment of a new office. If it is necessary that the License Commissioners should employ another clerk temporarily I am willing to vote for an order to that effect; but this is establishing a permanent clerkship.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—Permit me to ask if it is necessary that an additional clerk should be employed the entire year? And if not, what time of the year is it necessary to employ one?

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I propose to answer that question. I had some talk with the License Commissioners, and they informed me that they did not propose to have an assistant clerk for the entire year, and only temporarily, until such time as they can do without him. At present they are receiving some three hundred applications a day, and they already have some 4000 on hand. It is impossible to file them away and put them in a proper condition for the commissioners to take them up for action. It is only intended that the salary shall be at the rate of $1200 a year, and they do not intend to keep this man employed any longer than it is absolutely necessary. After those applications have been heard and passed upon by the commissioners, all the licenses granted have to be recorded by the City Clerk in a proper book, and indexed under both the names and the numbers; and for that purpose

Mr. McCleary will require additional help in his office, and he will have to ask the City Government for it. The commissioners will employ this clerk only until such time as they cannot get along without him, and then they will discharge him.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I hope this matter will be referred to some committee. As I understand, the Retrenchment Committee have made a report substantially that they had provided all the clerks necessary, and I understand from the statement of the chairman of the committee on the part of the Aldermen that they think it is not necessary to have this clerk. I should like to hear some authentic statement as to the necessity for this clerk. If a clerk is needed for only three months I do not see why the order does not limit the employment to that time. I have no doubt that if the order is passed in this shape the clerk will be employed all the year round. I hope the matter will be referred to some committee to find out something about it.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—As long as we had an elaborate report from the Retrenchment Committee at the beginning of the year, and as they looked into this matter, they certainly must have known the duties of the License Commissioners then just as well as they do now. I certainly hope we shall have some information in regard to this matter from the Retrenchment Committee. It seems to me that they can give us some light.

Mr. McGaragle—I do not pretend to know as much about this business as some of the members do; but it is evident that when the Retrenchment Committee visited Mr. McCleary's office and made their report, the work of the License Commissioners was done for the year. This special work can last but a short time, as May, June and July are the months in which the heft of the work required of the License Commissioners is done. These licenses must be signed by the City Clerk, and he must keep a record of them in his office, which he cannot do with his present force, as he has had to pay money out of his own pocket to keep up the work of his office. This work can be done in two or three months, and then he will not be compelled to keep a clerk there if there is no work for him. This order should pass tonight in order that parties may receive their licenses and do business legally. Parties are willing and ready to pay their money for licenses.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—The gentleman from Ward 18 speaks of this order as if the clerk were to be employed by the City Clerk. Now, it strikes me that is not contemplated in that order. It seems to me that this work should be done in his office, as before, and I have a substitute in regard to that which I propose to offer.

The President—The question is upon the reference, and the substitute is not in order.

Mr. McGaragle—The gentleman from Ward 17 misunderstood me. I said the City Clerk is compelled to sign licenses, whether he goes to their office or whether they come to him.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I fully agree with the gentleman from Ward 8, and have no doubt an additional clerk is needed in the License Commissioners' office. The only point is that the committee reported that the clerk was not needed in that office and the clerkship was abolished; and it has gone broadcast over the world that there had been a saving of so much money. But now they are coming in here and asking for an additional clerk for a different department. I have no doubt they need a clerk, and I hope they will have one; but I hope it will be done in a proper way.

Mr. Thompson—For the purpose of allowing Mr. Sampson to offer his substitute, I will withdraw the motion to refer to the Committee on Salaries.

Mr. Sampson offered as a substitute an order—That the City Clerk be authorized to employ an additional clerk at a salary not exceeding $1200 per annum; said clerk to fill out the licenses issued by the License Commissioners.

Mr. Barry of Ward 22 moved the previous question. Lost.

Mr. Sampson—My reason for offering the substitute is the statement made in the Board of Aldermen by the City Clerk, which was read by the gentleman from Ward 8, and which I will read again. [Mr. Sampson read the City Clerk's statement, as printed above.] Now it seems to me wrong for the city to compel the City Clerk to hire a clerk at his own expense after reducing his salary a very liberal amount. As the clerk contemplated by this order can be employed only two or three months in the year, and as Mr. McCleary says he has used the clerk for other work, it seems to me hardly wise to pass an order giving the commissioners authority to employ a clerk a whole year for work that will take only a few months.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—There can be no doubt they need an additional clerk for a certain space of time; but it seems to me they do not need one for the entire year. If they have business for him for only two or three months, it seems to me we ought to pass the order in that way. Therefore I move an amendment that the clerk be hired for three months.

Mr. Clarke—If I understand this matter, we have got the cart before the horse, in this respect: The License Commissioners ask us to give them an assistant clerk for the time being, to be paid a salary at the rate of $1200 a year, and as soon as they can get along without him they propose to discharge him. At present his duties will be to receive the large amount of licenses now on hand and get them in proper shape to be presented to the commissioners; and those that the commissioners take action upon should be promptly entered and recorded in the office. The order is intended for that purpose, and not for a clerk in the City Clerk's office. Now, besides that, I understand that when these licenses get up to his office, if he finds it necessary, he will ask the City Council for an additional clerk for his office, and that will be done by a separate order. He has got to have them properly indexed and arranged, and if he finds he cannot do it with his present force, he will ask for an assistant. But this clerk is for the business in the License Commissioners' office before it reaches the City Clerk. They actually need one now, because of the large number of applications, and every one who is selling liquor today is violating the law. They wanted to get to work this week, and to ascertain who is selling illegally and who has not applied for a license. It is to save litigation and expense to those who have already made application that this order is introduced. It seems to me we ought to allow them this additional clerk. They do not propose to hire him any longer than they need him; and I think we have confidence in the commissioners to feel that they will not keep this clerk any longer than his services are required.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—It seems to me that in this matter of a clerk for the License Commissioners we have disregarded the idea of economy with which we started at the beginning of the year; and we have also to come before us the matter of fifteen policemen who have been called for to assist the License Commissioners to perform their duties. That is an expense of $15,000 a year for the policemen and $1200 for a clerk—about $16,000 additional expense that we are going to incur. We thought we did a great thing when we adopted the report of the Retrenchment Committee and cut down expenses at the beginning of the year. But here we are throwing away on one department a large portion of what we saved then. I do not know the necessity for it, and it seems to me that if we go on in this way the economy and retrenchment that we started with is not going to amount to much. Gentlemen may say it is not coming out of the treasury, but out of the fees; but it is plain that it will amount to the same thing, and the city will be just so much out of pocket. Last year we had so much coming into the treasury from licenses, and this year we are going to take out $16,000 in addition to what we took out last year.

Mr. McGaragle—While I am aware that the appointment of fifteen policemen is not now under discussion, I am entirely surprised to hear such a total misconception, by a legal gentleman, of the duties of the policemen to be employed by the License Commissioners. The asking for these fifteen men is nothing new. They had fifteen men last year going about in citizens' clothing as spies and informers, who were paid out of the fees for licenses. That system was obnoxious to all respectable citizens. These fifteen men are to be taken from the police force of Boston, and will wear the uniform of the police. They will not be any additional expense to the city. I think the substitute of the gentleman from Ward 17 is right and proper. Mr. McCleary needs more assistance, and if we adopt the substitute, the clerk can do the work for the License Commissioners and also relieve Mr. McCleary from paying for additional clerk hire out of his own pocket—a thing that should be done; for I think that every man employed in City Hall should be paid by the City Government, instead of out of the pocket of the head of a department; therefore, I hope the substitute will pass.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I think the gentlemen do not understand this question. The substitute is explicit that this clerk is for filling out the licenses. I do not know whether he will do it in the commissioners' office or in the City Clerk's office; but of course it is necessary to have it done. I was very much pleased to hear the gentleman from Ward 9 [Mr. Crocker] say "we" retrenched at the beginning of the year. That sounds singular to me. I believe, sir, that the gentleman had better look to the record of that long night we spent here and see how much he retrenched. The question before us tonight is, Do they need this clerk to do the business which the statute law requires them to do? I do not believe in it, any way; but that is not the question. The question is, Do they need the clerk? Everybody admits that they do, and now what is the use of trying to dilly-dally about it? It is just their harvest time, and why delay this matter? The business is delayed unless they have a clerk. I think this clerk can be hired for the space of three months, and when the business is over they can do away with him. The gentleman from Ward 22 says they may keep him as long as he is necessary. I think he should be hired now.

Mr. Thompson—It is easy to say we all think they need a clerk at this time. I understand the License Commissioners have two clerks now. We do not know that this one is necessary. I have this ground for believing that it is not necessary: The Retrenchment Committee, composed of five members of the Council and three Aldermen, believed it is not necessary. I did not surrender my judgment to the Retrenchment Committee, but I believed in some things they did say. I believe it should be investigated by some committee, and I move to refer the matter to the Committee on Salaries.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the amendment or substitute of the gentleman from Ward 17 will prevail, and I hope the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 19 will not prevail. He says what is the use of dilly-dallying with this thing, and wants it passed. Now, every member of this Council has confidence in the City Clerk, and if he finds that the clerk is not necessary for the service in his office, he will discharge him. I think the substitute of the gentleman from Ward 17 is the proper order to pass, and I move the previous question.

Mr. Sampson—If the gentleman will withdraw that motion I should like to offer an amendment, as I drew the order hastily.

Mr. Flynn withdrew the motion.

Mr. Clarke—I would inquire of the gentleman from Ward 17 whether the pay of this clerk is to come from the City Clerk's appropriation for clerk hire or from the receipts for licenses?

Mr. Sampson—I understand that it came from the license fees last year. Gentlemen do not seem to understand that heretofore the commissioners have granted the licenses, but they were issued from the City Clerk's office, and have to be signed by the City Clerk and Mayor. Therefore it is quite important that the filling out and indexing should be done in the City Clerk's office.

Mr. Spenceley—In answer to the gentleman from Ward 13, I desire to say that I have confidence in the City Clerk, and I believe that if he does not need a clerk in his office he will discharge him. But this clerk is hired for a specific purpose.

Mr. Flynn—He [Mr. Sampson] is going to alter the order.

Mr. Spenceley—Then if he alters the order I am willing to let it pass. I am in favor of giving them all the help they need. I withdraw my amendment.

Mr. Sampson offered the following as an amendment to the substitute:

"In addition to his duties in the City Clerk's office, the salary to be paid from the receipts from licenses."

Mr. Clarke—Some members seem to think that the License Commissioners had two clerks last year and the Retrenchment Committee cut off one. It appears that there were four clerks employed there last year; one was called the clerk of the board, and one an assistant clerk, and there was one clerk in the office of the City Clerk, and one in the Collector's office. The Retrenchment Committee cut off the last two clerks, but they did not cut off the assistant or the clerk of the board.

Mr. Sampson's amendment to the substitute was adopted.

Mr. Thompson renewed the motion to refer to the Committee on Salaries. Lost.

Mr. Sampson's substitute, as amended, was adopted, and the order as amended was ordered to a second reading.

On motion of Mr. Clarke the rule was suspended, the order was read a second time, and put upon its passage.

Mr. Crocker—I merely wish to suggest that it seems rather unusual to provide a clerk in the City Clerk's office to be paid wholly from the fees for licenses, whose duties only relate partially to the issuing of licenses. I only make that suggestion.

The order was passed.

On motion of Mr. Clarke the rule was suspended to allow him to move a reconsideration, which he did, hoping it would not prevail. The motion was lost. Sent up.

POLICE FOR LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

An order came down for fifteen men from the police force to be detailed for permanent duty at the office of the License Commissioners, to be paid from receipts for licenses.

The question was on giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I believe I was charged with misrepresenting this matter of fifteen policemen. I believe I made the remark, and I desire to repeat it, that it has been necessary to employ fifteen additional policemen, at an expense of $15,000, in order that fifteen of the old policemen may be detailed to aid the License Commissioners. That is, that an additional expense is incurred now, which, at the beginning of the year, we proposed to do away with.

Mr. McGaragle—I think the gentleman still wrong, and if he will allow me I will read from the report of the Committee on Police at the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen:

"Alderman Robinson said the men were necessary, but he was not aware they were detailed from the regular force last year.

"Alderman Burnham explained that these men were to be appointed specially for this duty, and it was not an increase of the regular force."

Last year fifteen men were appointed who had a roving commission and went about in citizens' clothing and visited places and made reports. They went in places without being in uniform and there was nothing by which they could be recognized as officers or anything else. This year it is proposed to substitute fifteen regular officers in uniform for those men with a roving commission. I was present and heard the discussion in the Board last Monday. They do not propose to increase the regular force a man, but instead of taking men at large, they take them from the police force and replace those by new appointments. It is virtually the same number of police officers that we have now.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—I think the gentleman who last spoke has only stated a part of the facts in this matter. As I understand it a portion of last year the License Commissioners employed fifteen men, but at the time the Retrenchment Committee made their report there were only five men in their pay. I see on page twelve of the Retrenchment Committee's report that they do not even consider that those five were necessary, and they propose to save the amount of $4695 which was paid for those men at $3 per day. Now the License Commissioners of this year find that instead of five men, which the committee considered unnecessary, they require fifteen. Those five men received $3 a day for each of 313 days, so that there was an expense of $4695, which the Retrenchment Committee proposed to save. Now the commissioners propose to add fifteen men to the police force, each at a salary of $1095 a year, so that the additional expense incurred by the city is $11,845. This is quite a little slice from the savings made by the Retrenchment Committee.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—There is one element in this order that I think needs some consideration, leaving out the fact that fifteen new men are to be appointed, which I think questionable; because at the beginning of the year the salaries of policemen were fixed and an appropriation made for their pay, and, in order to get these men in, the Board of Aldermen sanctioned the appointment of fifteen policemen, and this order is before us to authorize their payment from the fees received from licenses. Now, some months ago we passed an ordinance which changed the direction in which these fees go. Formerly they were kept as a part of the fund to pay off debt, and never got into the treasury; but now they are covered into the treasury, and I do not know how we are going to get them out unless by an appropriation. We have made efforts two or three times to amend or suspend an ordinance by the passage of an order, but as our joint rules stand we cannot do that. Although we have had a legal opinion that we can do that, yet I think we should not do a thing which our joint rules forbid. We are now attempting to suspend an ordinance by an order, which is wrong. If they are to be paid at all, let us appropriate the money, and not pass an order which is in violation of our joint rules.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—This question of license hinders our legislation about every session that the subject comes up. The commissioners ask for a few men to help them, and it is admitted that they need them. I think the question is pretty well understood, and I move the previous question.

The main question was declared carried. Mr. Thompson doubted the vote and called for the yeas and nays, which the Council refused to order.

The order was passed to a second reading.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order for a transfer of $10,000 to be expended in establishing a branch Library in West Roxbury. Passed in concurrence—yeas 57, nays 0.

Order for a loan of $350,000 for New English High and Latin School building. Passed in concurrence—yeas 63, nays 0.

Order to construct said building. Passed in concurrence.

EMPLOYMENT OF CITIZENS AND TAXPAYERS.

The order for boards and committees to award contracts for public work to none but citizens and taxpayers in Boston was considered under unfinished business, the question being on the amendment of Mr. Day of Ward 4, viz.: Unless otherwise ordered by the committee having the subject in charge.

Mr. Day—My reason for offering the amendment was this: The first order stated that no person could be employed unless permitted by the City Council. That, of course, would include both branches, and I thought there might be instances where a contractor might require the services of some particular person for some special work, and that it would rather facilitate matters to have it decided by a committee rather than have it come before the City Council. I thought a committee could act as well and more intelligently upon a simple matter of detail than the whole City Council.

Mr. Day's amendment was lost—19 for, 25 against.

The order was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I should like to make an amendment to the order by stating that no person shall be employed in any department of the city of Boston unless he is a taxpayer of the city.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I merely wish to say that it seems to me that this order will be quite mischievous in its effects. Unless an order is passed through both branches of the City Council, it prevents a contract being made with any firm, one member of which is not a citizen of Boston; and it will prevent the purchase of a great many patented articles which the city wants procured by contract. We do not want to be prevented from contracting for certain patent articles unless a special vote of the City Council is obtained. There are a great many occasions where the city has to do work on its water works out of town, and on other public improvements where it is inconvenient to employ citizens and taxpayers of Boston, and where it would be much more economical and reasonable to employ somebody where the work is to be done. It seems to me there are a great many ways in which the order will work mischief.

Mr. Barry of Ward 22—While I am in sympathy with the motion offered by the gentleman from Ward 19, I think it is in too wide a form. That would include the lady teachers in the public schools.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 offered an amendment, to add the words "And that in all work done in the several wards, no contract shall be given to a non-resident of a ward, and no laborer shall be employed who is not a resident of the same ward."

Mr. Howes—It seems to be the opinion of quite a number of members of the Common Council that this plan of getting things done, and restricting ourselves, is a good one. If it is good at all it is good to any length you wish to carry it, and I do not see why we should not apply it to any of the wards just as well as to the entire city. If anything is to be done in Wards 13 or 15, why should not the men there do the work, and what reason is there in sending to Charlestown for men to do it? and why should the contractors take a number of meals from the poor people of those wards? If we do anything at all, I certainly think we should do it thoroughly. I am free to say that I should not do anything of the sort. I do not believe in any system that restricts the city from taking advantage of the market. We have one case in the Committee on Common. We advertised for bids for a fence on Commonwealth avenue and the difference between the lowest Boston bidder and the man who got the contract was something like $2000, and it was not a very large contract either. The contract was given out for about $4000, and the lowest Boston bid was something like $6000. If adopted, this system would run all through the City Government; it would include labor as well as material, and everything that the city cannot furnish itself. There are many things used in building the new conduit, and in the system of improved sewerage, which can be done outside of Boston much better than in Boston. I imagine that in building the new siphon near Savin Hill, it will be necessary to go outside of Boston to get material and skilled labor; and this order would cut off that entirely. If we are going to carry it out, I believe, as several gentlemen believe about the prohibition law, that it had better be carried out as rigidly as possible, and in that way show its absurdity. Therefore I hope the amendment will pass.

Mr. Spenceley—I think the far-seeing gentleman from Ward 18 has stated the matter very correctly. He seems to understand all about it, and I move that it be referred to the Committee on Common and Squares.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—The gentleman from Ward 18, who offered, made one mistake in offering, his amendment, although I think it was unintentional. If there are any public improvements in Ward 18 I am very fearful they would have to go outside of the ward to get laborers to do it. I merely wanted to call his attention to it.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I had the honor to offer this order, and did so for what I believe to be for the best interest of the taxpayers of Boston. It is well known at the present time business is very much depressed, and we have in the city of Boston a great number of unemployed mechanics and laborers. I thought that it would be wise to have an order of this kind at the present time, and that it might help a large portion of the community. The gentleman [Mr. Crocker] speaks of this order covering the entire matter of materials. I think he is mistaken. For I very well know that a great deal of the material used in the water works is manufactured and contracted for in Philadelphia—such as the iron pipe. I think if the gentleman will read the order I introduced he will see it does not cover material. It covers only the matter of labor. I know that the order may look like being rather arbitrary in excluding non-residents and not taxpayers from being awarded contracts by the city of Boston. On the other hand, I can see no hardship, for I believe there are contractors in the city of Boston who can perform the work as cheaply and as well as the men from other cities who are employed to do work here. I would only call attention to the fact that last year sewer contracts were awarded to men from Providence; and also in the building department to men from New York. It is well known that the work was not so well performed as it would have been done by contractors here. So far as the paving department is concerned I cannot say; but I do know that a great many men were employed on the sewers at that time who were not paid by the contractors. Laborers were brought here from Providence to perform work on sewer contracts, and were left here. I hope that we shall pass this order, or something that will protect the contractors and the laborers of the city of Boston at the present time.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved the previous question.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I cannot help taking the time of the Council for one moment by saying that I hope the previous question will not be ordered. It is a matter of too much importance to the city to be passed upon under the spur of the previous question.

The Council refused to order the main question by a division—23 for, 28 against.

Mr. Crocker—As the order reads it could be easily avoided. It provides that a contract shall not be awarded to any person not a taxpayer of the city of Boston. It would be a simple matter for any person in New York to become a taxpayer in Boston by buying a square foot of land somewhere. Half a dozen might own a piece of land together, and pay their taxes upon it, if it were not more than a cent apiece. The whole effect of the order could be evaded in that as the order stands. It seems to me that this is a matter which might well be left to the different city officials who make contracts and employ laborers. It seems to me it is reasonable and desirable, so far as it is practicable, that they should give the preference to citizens of Boston in awarding contracts and employing laborers—more so, perhaps, than we are in the habit of doing. It is a thing that ought to be more taken into account than has been done, and perhaps the attention that has been given the subject in this body will tend to make them more careful as to the parties to whom they give contracts involving the employment of labor. It seems to me the matter may well be left in that way. If we try to make a rigid rule we shall make one that can be easily evaded—as I think I have shown in regard to this order—or else one that will cause mischief by the making of undesirable contracts.

Mr. Thompson—As I suggested at the last meeting, when a similar order was under consideration, if we want to accomplish this thing we must do it through the heads of departments and committees. We may pass orders as long as we choose, and it will take more legal ability than we have here to adopt a rule that will bind them. The only way is to pass an order authorizing certain work to be done and trust to their discretion in carrying it out; and if they do not carry it out we can call them to account. If gentlemen think it really desirable, let them bring in a resolve expressing that opinion, and let its merits be discussed pro and con. I am not prepared to say I should vote for or against such a resolve; but I think there are many things that might do good in the protection of labor. To pass an order of this kind is doing away with the entire value of the heads of departments. If you pass such an order you had better say to your heads of departments that they are simply head clerks. That is not what they are elected for. If you, as an employer, have any wish that you desire to carry out, tell them so; and from the little experience I have had in this City Hall you will find them only too willing to do so. If the gentleman wants a discussion upon the merits of the question let him put in a resolve.

Mr. Fagan of Ward 19—I desire to ask from the gentleman who offered the order whether it means that men who take contracts from the city shall be compelled to employ none but citizens of the city. I think that would work a hardship upon the contractor; and if some laborers had not their naturalization papers in their pockets, the contractor would have to wait until they could go home and get them. I think it would be well to include these employed by the city, but not those employed by contractors.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—One week ago I was in favor of this order, but since then I have been led to change my mind, and I think it would be very dangerous. We have heard one instance related by the gentleman from Ward 18. As I understand it this is adopting a policy worse than strikes, which I don't believe in. It seems to me that the gentleman from Ward 9 [Mr. Thompson] has covered this thing very well—that we should express our opinion or wish as to who should be employed.

Mr. Spenceley—I raise the point of order that the gentleman is out of order, the question being upon the reference.

The President—The point is not well taken.

Mr. Hibbard—I should like the gentleman from Ward 19 to get me on the track if I am off. I believe that in all contracts the right is reserved to reject any or all bids. I think that enough has been said in this Council Chamber already to satisfy the boards and committees that it is the wish of the City Council to employ citizens of Boston where it can be consistently done, and I think they will adopt the suggestion. Certainly they would if we offer a resolve in place of this order, and I hope it will not prevail.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—I do not know that another amendment would be in order; but I believe there are two objections covering the ground alluded to by the last speaker; and I had prepared an amendment which I proposed to offer. With the consent of the Council I will read it:

Strike out the words "otherwise ordered by the City Council," and add "unless it shall appear to the committee having the subject in charge that such action would be detrimental to the interests of the city of Boston."

It seems to me that would throw the responsibility upon the committee, who, knowing this feeling of the City Council, would be careful; and in any case they would give the benefit of the doubt to the citizens of Boston rather than to outside parties. In some cases it would be much more expensive to employ Boston contractors, and the committee would take the responsibility of giving the contract to out-of-town parties.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I think we have had a pretty good expression of opinion from the Council. In regard to the point which the gentleman from Ward 19 [Mr. Fagan] wished to understand, I would state that the original order did not contemplate employing only contractors; but an amendment to that effect was offered by the gentleman from Ward 22, and I offered this as a substitute.

Mr. Howes—There is one point I should like to make in regard to the records of last year. The contract for the nineteenth section of the new conduit was given to a Mr. McDonald of New York State for $64,200; and the lowest Boston bidder was for $272,895, nearly five times as large as the amount of the contract.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I should like to ask the gentleman to read the bids on the contract for the last two sections given out within a month or so. I think that two Boston parties were several thousand dollars less than any outside parties, and they got it.

Mr. Howes—I have not the record of that. I certainly trust the Boston parties got it.

Mr. Spenceley—It seems to me that the most intelligent way to get out of this is for the gentleman who offered the order to put in a resolve, and for that purpose I will withdraw my amendment.

Mr. Wilbur offered the following as a substitute:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the City Council the several boards and committees of the City Government, in awarding contracts for the construction or repair of any public work should give preference to citizens of this municipality, where it can be done without detriment to the interest of the city.

The substitute was adopted and the resolve was passed. Sent up.

CUSHING'S MANUAL FOR MEMBERS.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 moved a reconsideration of the vote whereby was referred to the Retrenchment Committee the order to provide a large edition of Cushing's Manual for members of the Council. He said he would not discuss it, but leave it to the good sense of the Council.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 hoped better reasons would be given. He judged from Mr. Webster's speeches that the book is needed.

Mr. Webster contended that if the Retrenchment Committee were to be sneered at in every matter, their services might as well be done away with. A small copy, to be kept permanently in the desks, might be desirable; but the members would hardly read a large one, and it would be of no practical benefit. It is too absurd to take up the time of the committee with.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 moved that the whole matter be indefinitely postponed. Carried.

Mr. McGaragle asked for the ruling of the Chair as to what had been indefinitely postponed.

The President said the whole matter had been indefinitely postponed.

Mr. McGaragle—I beg to differ. The question before the Council was on reconsideration.

The President—The Chair is of the opinion that the indefinite postponement carried the whole matter, according to the practice of the Council.

Mr. McGaragle—I shall have to appeal from that decision, though not very anxious about the order. The order was referred to the committee, and the reconsideration was on that motion, and not on the original order.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 quite agreed with Mr. Webster, but thought the ruling of the Chair might bear hardly in some cases. The reconsideration was not moved on the main question, and he thought the indefinite postponement of a subsubsidiary motion did not apply to the main question.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 thought this might make some difficulty in the future, and on his motion the rule was suspended; the indefinite postponement was reconsidered, the reconsideration prevailed, and on motion of Mr. Spenceley the order was indefinitely postponed.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

The annual report of the City Treasurer was presented. The amount expended during the year ending April 30, 1877, on general appropriations was $7,263,797.83; special appropriations, $4,417,423.41; total, $11,741,221.24; other payments, but not drawn for by the Auditor, including bank tax, State tax, interest on city loans, etc., $5,120,666.15, making a grand total of $16,861,887.39; balance in the treasury, $3,466,668.07.

The annual report of the City Collector was presented. Among the items included in the report is $8,379,746.13 for collected taxes, while the uncollected taxes amount to $947,643.09.

Severally referred to the Joint Committee on the Treasury Department. Sent up.

PERMIT FOR WOODEN BUILDING.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 submitted a report from the Joint Committee on the Survey and Inspection of Buildings, recommending the passage of an order—That the conditions contained in the order dated May 11, 1877, authorizing the Inspector of Buildings to issue a permit to the Highland Street Railway Company to erect a wooden building at 466 468 Blue-Hill avenue be so far modified as to permit the erection of said building with one brick wall built on its northerly side, in accordance with the requirements of said order. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

PROPOSED VISIT TO THE WATER WORKS.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 offered an order—That the City Messenger make arrangements for a visit by the City Council on Friday, June 1, to the works now being constructed for the introduction of water from Sudbury River; the expense of the same to be charged to the appropriation for Incidental Expenses.

Mr. Clarke explained that the city is spending a large amount of money on the work, and he thought it highly proper that the members should go and see how the work is done.

Mr. Spenceley desired to amend by naming June 17.

Mr. Felt thought that not in accordance with Mr. Spenceley's principles, the day being Sunday.

Mr. Spenceley moved to make it the 16th.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 favored the visit, but thought later in the season preferable, when the work was further along. Some of the work is scarcely commenced now. He thought some converts had been made to the park scheme from the elevation they saw on their recent visit; but he thought this trip should be later.

Mr. Clarke thought they ought to go before it is hot, as they would have to walk some eight or ten miles.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 preferred September, as it would give a better opportunity for viewing the work; and the fruit would be ripe also.

Mr. Spenceley withdrew his amendment.

Mr. Day of Ward 4 thought Saturday an inconvenient day to many, as the visit to the parks had shown.

The order was refused a second reading—13 for, 35 against.

DISPOSITION OF LICENSE FEES.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 offered an order—That the Committee on the Judiciary obtain from the City Solicitor his opinion as to whether an appropriation of license fees, under the ordinances, as they stand at present, is not equivalent to an appropriation of money from the treasury within the meaning of the joint rules 16, 17 and 18.

Mr. Thompson said he did not make his objection to the order for fifteen policemen clear, and there are legal doubts in the way which this will solve.

The order was read twice and passed.

WARDROOM FOR WARD 24.

Mr. Barnard of Ward 24 offered an order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be requested to provide a suitable wardroom for Ward 24, which shall be more centrally situated than the present one. Ordered to a second reading.

BACK BAY IMPROVEMENT.

On motion of Mr. Felt of Ward 18, the order to consent to the closing of a fifty-foot street described in indenture between the city and the State and the Water Power Company, dated Dec. 31, 1864, was taken from the table.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 said he had conferred with the City Solicitor, who says there is no objection to passing the order, and the city will not be committed in any way.

The order was passed. Sent up.

CIVILITIES TO DISTINGUISHED STRANGERS.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14 offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be authorized to extend, on behalf of the City Council, such civilities to distinguished strangers who may visit the city during the present year as may appear to be courteous and proper; the expense to be charged to the appropriation for Incidental Expenses.

The order was read twice and passed—yeas 49, nays 3.

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Danforth, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, Pearl, Perham, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Reed, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Shepard, Sibley, Smardon, Spenceley, Stone, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, G. B. Webster, Wolcott—50.

Nays—Messrs. Coe, J. H. Pierce, M. W. Richardson—3.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Crocker, Cross, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Howes, Loughlin, Mowry, O'Donnell, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Sampson, Souther, Thompson, E. R. Webster, Wiibur—18.

Subsequently Mr. Crocker of Ward 9 moved a reconsideration of the vote.

Mr. Crocker—I do so with some hesitation because it may seem as though it was dictated by want of confidence in the Mayor. No such reason as that induced me to make the motion. It is rather an unusual order. The amount is wholly unlimited, and the character of the persons to be entertained is wholly undetermined. I do not recollect that any such vote as this has ever been passed in former years. It seems to me that it will leave a door open to an unlimited amount of expense. Anybody that comes to Boston might be considered a distinguished stranger and the largest amount of junketing might be done under that simple order and a very large amount of money spent. I do not think anything of that kind ought to be done this year. We ought not to pass orders which will open a door and make it possible for such things to be done. If we pass this order this year it may be asked for next year, and the precedent having been established it will become a regular thing. If the Council vote to reconsider I will move to refer it to the Finance Committee, and perhaps they will report it back in some form by which there will be less liability to mischief. I am not prepared to suggest an amendment, as I have not had time to think about it; but it seems to me it is hardly wise to pass the order in the shape it is now. The whole appropriation for Incidentals might be spent in entertaining distinguished strangers; almost anybody from abroad might be considered a distinguished stranger, and the most expensive entertainments might be given them, and furnish an excuse for a very large number of people to participate in them.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—This order is exactly the same that was passed by the City Council last year at the meeting of Feb. 28, and I see no reason why it should not be passed this year; as long as it was passed then, I hope the reconsideration will not prevail.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I trust this motion will not prevail. I believe the Mayor of Boston, who appoints our commissioners when their terms expire, who has to sign all our bills before they are paid, and who is the executive officer of the city of Boston, is entitled to some of the respect due to his office, and I am willing to leave this matter entirely in his hands. There are occasions in which it is necessary. You cannot call a special meeting of the City Council and vote on each particular case. I believe we have a Mayor this year whom, if we trust in all the other important interests of the city, we can trust in this.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—The gentleman from Ward 14 has suggested to my mind an argument against the passage of this order. He cites the order passed last year as a precedent for passing this one. Last year was the centennial year; it was expected that a great many distinguished people would come to Boston—and they actually did—from every part of the world, and the order was passed then as an exceptional one; but now it is urged as a precedent for passing this order, although there are no reasons for supposing that any exceptional circumstances will occur for making expensive hospitality on the part of the city a duty. I understand that such an order was never passed before last year. The matter came up tonight totally unexpected by me, and I am not prepared to state the facts about it. I think there is a contingent fund of $3000 for the Mayor, of which he has entire control, and I think he can apply it to these purposes if it be necessary, and if it is necessary that amount can be increased, but the point I would make is this: An order was passed last year to meet an exceptional case, and if it passes this year, there being no exceptional circumstances, it will grow into a custom to have such an order every year, and it will finally come to be considered a part of the Mayor's duty to entertain, at the city's expense, every visitor to the city who considers himself, or whose friends consider him, a distinguished person. Speaking personally of Mayor Prince, I have no doubt the money would be expended with the greatest propriety; but it will be the foundation of a custom. It seems to me we are passing it without consideration. I should probably be willing to vote for it if it were reported upon by a committee. Let a committee take it and talk it over and see if an order in that form is desirable, and if not, let it be reported back in proper form; and let us vote upon it after having an opportunity to think upon it. I do not suppose there is any necessity for it immediately.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the reconsideration will not prevail, for the reason that both of the gentlemen who advocate it sat in their seats when the roll was called and shirked the vote, and did not vote on the question at all; and now they are entertaining the Council with long speeches when we ought to have got through an hour ago.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—I hope the motion will prevail; and as one of the very small number who voted against the motion when the yeas and nays were called, I desire to explain. I object to the Mayor having the whole amount of the appropriation for Incidentals placed at his disposal. I think the precedent is a bad one. In the appropriation bill I find there is a contingent fund of $3000 for the Mayor. Last year was the centennial year, and the order was passed as an exceptional case; but a very small part of the appropriation was used. In all probability the Mayor's contingent fund will be sufficient for this year; but if it is exhausted I should be willing to vote a further sum.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I am one of those who did not vote for or against the order for the reason that no one explained it; and as I did not understand a part of it, I did not want to place myself upon record against it if it were needed. I trust the reconsideration will prevail and that we shall understand the object of it. Last year such an order was passed for the first time. There was reason for it. We were expecting a visit from the Emperor of Brazil and representatives of other foreign governments; and it was thought that the Mayor's contingent fund would not prove ample for the expense of entertaining visitors. It did prove ample, however, and the appropriation for Incidentals was not touched for that purpose. I trust the reconsideration will prevail; and if the order is necessary, I shall be happy to vote for it.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—The reason I did not vote for the order was not that I objected to it, but I did not know what it was. I hope it will be reconsidered or postponed or laid on the table. If this is in anticipation of entertaining any distinguished visitors, I think it is time enough to pass such an order when the emergency arises. If it is merely in expectation that something may occur, and we don't know whether it is or not, it seems to me there is no hurry about it. I have confidence in the Mayor, and know very well that no money placed at his disposal will be improperly spent.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I do not know where this order came from, but I think if we refuse to pass it, or reconsider it, it might be construed as an insult to, and would imply a lack of confidence in, the Mayor. I do not see the least necessity for it, and I think we can leave it entirely to the Mayor.

Mr. Crocker—I am at a loss to understand how this can be construed as an insult to the Mayor. I protested against any such idea being entertained when I made the motion to reconsider. It seems to me it is a very extraordinary vote, to give unlimited authority to the Mayor to expend for the entertainment of strangers a sum limited only by the amount of the appropriation.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I would like to ask the gentleman a question. In case Mr. Cobb, for whom we voted, had been reelected, would Mr. Crocker have raised his voice against this order?

Mr. Crocker—If I am a judge of what would be my own conduct, I should, most decidedly. It was an unusual case last year; we expected a great number of strangers here, and it was wholly uncertain how many there would be, and how extensive arrangements it would be necessary to provide for them. It was thought that the special fund provided for such things would be insufficient. Now that my attention has been drawn to it, I think the order might have been restricted in amount; but it seems to me it ought not to be made a precedent. Because we were required to do it last year under unusual circumstances, an effort is made to have this thing go on indefinitely, because if you stop it, it will be an insult to the Mayor for the time being. It seems to me it ought to be stopped now. I made the motion out of no ill-feeling toward the Mayor, and hesitated to make it because some such interpretation might be put upon my conduct.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—On March 16, 1876, a similar order was passed and the gentleman [Mr. Crocker] voted for it. In the Council the vote was—Yeas 6, nays 0.

Mr. Crocker—Was I present?

Mr. Flynn—Yes, sir.

Mr. Crocker—I will merely reply by saying that I do not deny voting for it last year. There seemed to be special reasons for passing that order last year which do not exist this year.

Mr. Thompson—Since there has been an attempt to place this opposition upon personal grounds to Mayor Prince, I want to state distinctly that that is not my feeling. I am sorry to have that word applied to me, and personally I would be willing to trust Mayor Prince with all I have in the world. The gentleman from Ward 13 has applied the disagreeable word "shirk" to the refusal of myself and other gentlemen to vote. I did shirk the vote, because when the order was offered I did not take in its meaning. I was very loth to vote in opposition to the Mayor, and I did not see just what reason there was for objecting to it, but I felt that the order was not a wise one. I do not want my action to be construed as being personal to our Mayor, but as being based upon a doubt of the general propriety of the order.

On motion of Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19, the main question was ordered.

The reconsideration was lost, by a division—14 for, 31 against. Sent up.

NEW SCHOOLHOUSES.

Mr. Shepard of Ward 4 submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Buildings:

Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to erect a primary schoolhouse of brick, on the Weston-street lot owned by the city in Ward 19, to contain eight rooms, the plans for the same to be prepared by the City Architect and approved by the Committee on Public Instruction; the expense, not exceeding the sum of $40,000, to be charged to the special appropriation for building a primary schoolhouse in the Sherwin District.

Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to erect a temporary building for school purposes on land owned by the city, situated at Egleston square, Ward 21, the building to be of wood, and to contain two rooms, the plans for the same to be prepared by the City Architect and approved by the Committee on Public Instruction; the expense, estimated at $3500, to be charged to the special appropriation for building a schoolhouse at Egleston square.

Severally passed to a second reading.

EXPLOSIVE COMPOUNDS.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 offered an order—That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to report such ordinances as are necessary to give effect to the statute of 1877, section 216, relating to the transportation and storage of explosive compounds within the city. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

INSPECTION OF HALLS, ETC.

On motion of Mr. Mowry of Ward 11, the motion to reconsider the vote whereby was passed the order for the Inspector of Buildings to report on the expediency of making any changes in means of egress from schoolhouses, halls or churches, was taken from the table. The reconsideration was lost. Sent up.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the order to contract for a report of the proceedings of the City Council for the year beginning July 1st next, was taken from the table.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 offered as a substitute an order—That the Committee on Printing be requested to arrange for the publication of a synopsis of the proceedings of the City Council, and that on and after July 1st, 1877, the publication of the verbatim reports of the proceedings of the City Council be discontinued.

Mr. Howes—This year was started as one of economy, and I imagine that one of the best economies is to cut off unnecessary expenses. It seems to me that the publication of the proceedings of the City Council, to the extent that it has been carried for some time passed, is an unnecessary expense to the city. We can do as most deliberative bodies do—publish a mere abstract of votes passed and measures adopted, and possibly those defeated, at a very small expense. As far as the debates in the City Council are concerned that might be left to the attention of the five or six gentlemen in the corner, who, I think, can give to the public all the points that are necessary. This custom of publishing the proceedings at length is an erroneous one, in my opinion. It is not adopted in the English Parliament. A short time ago there was quite a debate in the House of Commons on the subject of publishing the debates in full, after the manner of the Congress of the United States, and it was voted down by a large majority. I know, sir, from personal experience, that if it were not for the debates being published at length, the other papers would, as a matter of news, give more full reports of all debates which take place, or of those portions of them in which the public have great interest. Now, sir, a large part of the talk here is for the sake of producing an immediate impression, and the public have no interest in much of the eloquence we have here. Therefore, I do not see the necessity of continuing the reports, except for the purpose of lumbering up the archives of the city and supplying the private libraries of members. The debates might be preserved, and they would be, so far as the daily papers are concerned, in the daily newspapers, and I think that is all that is necessary for this Council to do.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—It becomes my duty to say that in this matter the Committee on Printing will be governed entirely by the action of the City Council. The committee have had the whole matter under consideration, and it has been suggested that we ask the City Council to give us directions as to how much of the debates ought to be printed—whether as a verbatim report, or nearly so, or somewhat condensed. At present the reporter takes the responsibility of reporting as much as he sees fit, and I believe he has sometimes expressed the wish that he might be relieved of that responsibility. I think the Committee on Printing, and I am quite sure the present reporter would be very glad to have some action taken in the City Council as to the way in which the debates shall be reported. My own impression is that it would be quite proper to take the responsibility from him by the specific action of the City Council. My own private opinion is that a very considerable report is desirable.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I heartily concur in what the gentleman from Ward 18 has stated. I have never seen where $6000 were well expended in giving verbatim reports of the proceedings of the City Council. They may be well in after years to look back to, in order to contradict us, perhaps; but I do not see the reasonableness of it in any other way. We come here and talk; and what do we get from it in print? I thought several times that I should move that this matter be indefinitely postponed. In years gone by I have seen the Council journal which gave a synopsis of the proceedings, and I think that is better.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—I cannot say that I am in sympathy with the substitute. I understand that this verbatim report is published as much for the information of the public as for the gratification of members. For instance, a great deal of information can be obtained from the report of the debate on public parks. I think the money is well expended in giving the public a knowledge of the inside working of the City Government, and I think it is best to keep on as it has been in the past.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I indorse the remarks of the gentleman who has just sat down. This money is well expended in putting in accessible shape before all the people of the city a full statement of all we do here and the reasons for what we do. A great many acts are done by the City Government which are not easily understood unless they can be stated to the public; and if it were not possible to convey to the public the reason therefor, by means of the printed report of the proceedings here, I have no doubt it would often be necessary for gentlemen to rush into print with communications to the public. Gentlemen on committees would often be called to make statements to the public regarding measures, and that would have to be done by letters to the public press. Even then they would not get before the public as fully as they do now. I believe it is desirable that the public should thoroughly know what we do here, and the reasons for all we do; how much of folly and how much of sense we talk; and they will be better able to judge whether we deserve to be sent back again. A bald statement of the mere votes and orders we pass here would give comparatively little idea of the reasons for what we do. I believe that the money has been well expended, and that the citizens of Boston take a great deal of interest in that report; more than that, we see the folly of a great deal that is said here.

Mr. Barry of Ward 22 moved the previous question.

Mr. Spenceley—The gentleman from Ward 9 says the public are interested in this report. I would like to ask him what is the circulation of the Transcript compared with that of the other papers? It seems to me that that would answer the question as to whether the public are interested in them. When a question comes up which would benefit the laboring classes, the gentleman [Mr. Crocker] always calls it buncombe; and yet he says that a man who gets up here and talks well ought to be sent back. I would like to ask where is the consistency of a man who talks like that? If a man comes here and works and pleads for the poor, he says that man ought not to be sent back; and if a man takes up time in talking nonsense on a public measure he should be sent back.

Mr. Crocker—I am called upon to answer these questions. One question was about the circulation of the Transcript. I had occasion to look into that some years ago, when I was on the Printing Committee, and found it quite large compared with other papers in the city. There are one or two others that have a larger circulation than the Transcript; but it has a large circulation. The gentleman says I charged other people with talking buncombe. My impression is that he will not find that expression in any of the printed reports of my speeches; and one advantage of the printed report will be to enable the gentleman to investigate and find that expression.

Mr. Spenceley—I will find it for you.

Mr. Crocker—I do not think that word has been used by me in any of the speeches referred to, or in any others.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I would ask the gentleman [Mr. Howes] if he considers that such newspaper reports as are given of the Legislature would be full enough. I have looked at the reports of the Legislature for two or three important subjects, but I could not find any reference to what was going on.

Mr. Howes—I think that far greater interest is taken in the affairs of the city by the readers of Boston papers than in the affairs of the State, and on that account the reports of the Legislature are not so full as the reports of the City Council would be if there were not a full report in one paper. Taking the matter of parks. I think that where a question of this kind came up, if we had no full report the other papers would go to the expense of making more full reports than they do now. I do not know but we should have as full a report as is necessary for the public to know, if we merely gave the action of the City Council.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—I wish to call attention to the fact that if the reporting is done by the newspapers, we shall have no record of the proceedings kept in any form, as we now have. Of course, the files of the newspapers could be referred to; but they are bulky and could not be referred to by many of us. It seems to me that it is important that many of the debates should be kept for reference. For instance, the public park question was discussed to a certain degree last year, and to new members coming here this year it is very convenient to refer to them and see what arguments were used at that time. And so it would be if the subject is postponed this year. The reports will be of value next year. For that reason I think it is important that there should be some official report.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—It seems to me that this matter will keep another week, and therefore I move that the Council adjourn.

The motion was lost.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—In regard to the remarks of the gentleman from Ward 19, as regards the circulation of the Transcript, I think it is increased by the publication of the reports—certainly to the number of the parties who desire to ascertain what is done in the City Government. My understanding is that it is by no means certain that the Transcript will publish the report. Bids are to be advertised for and the contract may be awarded to the paper having the largest circulation. The circulation of the paper would be increased to the amount of those taking this report.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—There is another advantage in leaving the matter as it is. No member of this Council can act intelligently during the year unless he has a good idea of what the Board of Aldermen do; and you can say the same of the members of the Board of Aldermen. Take, for example, this park question. Alderman O'Brien made a speech which, the papers say, may be called a manual of information on the subject; and Alderman Fitzgerald made a reply. In case we had a mere synopsis of those speeches, which might be six or eight lines, I should like to ask how any member of this Council could form an idea of those remarks, unless the speakers had them printed, as Alderman Burrage did last year? I believe the report is of more value than it costs. Of course we say many things we should not say; and if we do, it is undoubtedly well enough that the people should know it. It is of great advantage to file away what is said and done; and there is no session of the City Council but that somebody has occasion to refer back six months, or a year or two years, and see exactly what was said and done. A synopsis is very indefinite. You are apt to miss the entire sense. Each reporter uses his own judgment, leaves out one thing and puts in another. It seems to me that if we have any record at all, it is better to have it full.

Mr. Barnard of Ward 24—I think we are all prepared to vote for this, and I move the previous question.

The main question was ordered.

Mr. Howes's substitute was lost.

The order was passed. Sent up.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Vose of Ward 24.

WARD ROOM FOR WARD FOUR.

Alderman Thompson presented the petition of Oliver Brine, et al., that a portion of the Wyman estate in Ward 4, at the junction of Main, Bunker Hill and Medford streets, be secured as a site for a wardroom and police station.

Alderman Thompson—The citizens of Ward 4 ask for a ward room and police station, as there is none within one mile from that section of the city, it being at the extreme northerly end of the city. I think it would be wise for the Committee on Public Buildings to consider this subject favorably.

The petition was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings. Sent down.

MIDDLESEX RAILROAD.

A petition was received from the Middlesex Railroad Company, for track in Cove street and turnout track at Old Colony and Boston & Albany Railroad depots.

On motion of Alderman Thompson an order was passed for a hearing on the same on Monday, June 11, at four o'clock P. M.

HEARING.

No one appeared to object at the hearing on the sewer in Adams and Fairfield streets. Recommended to Committee on Sewers.

NORTHAMPTON-STREET DISTRICT.

The order to pay J. H. Hunneman $16,451.90 in full settlement for an estate on the Northampton-street district, surrendered by him to the city, was considered under unfinished business.

Alderman Thompson—That subject came before a sub-committee of the Committee on Claims, and a proposition was made to Mr. Hunneman. I should like to inquire of the committee from whom this order emanated if the amount proposed here is the same that the sub-committee recommended last fall?

At the request of Alderman O'Brien the Mayor read the report of the Committee.

Alderman O'Brien—In explanation of that report I would say that the valuation of the property at the time the city became liable and responsible for it was $16,100; and that was the sum claimed by Mr. Hunneman. The Committee on Claims last year selected three experts to fix a value upon this property when the city took it in 1874, two years before; and they fixed the value at $12,700. To settle this matter the committee split the difference between the assessed valuation of the land as made by the city of Boston in 1874, and that placed upon it by the experts in 1876, which would give Mr. Hunneman $1600 more than the experts allowed him; and it would be $1600 less than the valuation of the property by the city at the time it was taken. After consulting with the City Solicitor the committee thought it was an equitable and just way of settling the claim.

Alderman Thompson—My reason for inquiring into the matter was that I was under the impression that Mr. Hunneman declined to accept the award of last year, and that other matters connected with the Northampton-street district were referred to these experts. My opinion was that Mr. Hunneman had waived his claim to $16,000, and that it was to be decided at the same time the others were. If the committee are satisfied, I have no objections to offer.

The order was passed. Sent down.

VACATION SCHOOLS.

The order for the transfer of $2000 from the Reserve Fund to be set aside for a special appropriation for vacation schools, to be established by the School Committee, was considered under the head of unfinished business.

The question was upon the passage of the order.

Alderman Thompson—That adds two thousand dollars to the School appropriation. I move as an amendment that it be charged to the appropriation for Public Schools.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope that amendment will not pass. We cut down the school appropriation so low that there is scarcely any margin left. No department has been cut down so much as public instruction. If all the other departments in the city had been cut down in the same proportion as the school department, our appropriation bill would have been a great deal less. The amount is so small which they ask for for this object, and it is such an excellent one, that I think the Board should not hesitate about granting it. I scarcely think it worth while to argue the question, it was argued so thoroughly when the question was before us a few weeks ago. I hope the amendment of the Alderman will not prevail, and that the report of the Finance Committee will be accepted.

Alderman Thompson—I have not changed my mind in regard to the necessity of advisability in this matter. It seems to me when a committee have a million and a half of dollars, or in that vicinity, appropriated, and desire to try what is certainly an experiment for a few weeks—and if it works well it is going to add some $50,000 to our expenses every year—they should take it out of the money that they have without getting it from the city treasury. I certainly hope that it will be charged to their appropriation, for the reason that I believe the money will be used more economically if they realize the fact that it has got to come from their appropriation. We should consider that we are now encroaching very fast upon our appropriation for incidentals, and that the Committee on Public Instruction when they made the appropriation for Public Schools, left a large latitude for certain exhibitions and fancy arrangements for the School Committee. I have no doubt that they can use a portion of that fund for this purpose, if it is of so much importance that they pretend it is. I regret that I was not able to be present at the second hearing of the committee, which amounted to just nothing at all. I call for the yeas and nays upon the amendment.

Alderman Fitzgerald—In connection with this matter, I would also state that an erroneous impression prevails in regard to these vacation schools. Some persons spoke to me a short time ago about them, that they were under the impression that they were for the compulsory education of children during vacation, and were astonished that anybody should pretend to wish to compel them to go to school during the summer months. It is optional with parents to send children to these schools. They are half-time schools, but will be kept open during the whole day. The children who go in the morning will not go in the afternoon. It is optional with parents to send them to that school during vacation. From the list of applications the School Committee intend to select those children whose parents desire to keep them out of mischief a part of the day.

Alderman Clark—I have no doubt that the object of the vacation school is a good one—whether it is to keep children out of mischief, or whether it is to instruct them in mechanics or any other branch of education; but as I believe the appropriation for Public Schools is sufficiently large to take this amount from, I shall vote for the amendment offered by Alderman Thompson. The appropriation for Public Schools is sufficiently large for them to take two thousand dollars from it to experiment with, and believing so, I should hope that the amendment would be adopted.

Alderman Burnham—I trust that the amendment will prevail. I regard this as an experiment that, under certain circumstances, might be a good thing, but I regard it as an experiment that will fail. If, as an experiment, these vacation schools would draw into the schoolroom that larger class of vicious boys and perhaps girls that are found in the street, and keep them away from mischief, I should regard it as a good expenditure. But I fear that the little boys and girls who do not need to be drawn into a schoolroom, and are well enough, and who need air and outdoor exercise during vacation, are not the ones that parents, or those having control over them—there not being any officer to compel the attendance of older ones in school—are the ones who will fill the school during vacation; and it seems to me that they are not the children who should be gathered into the school room during vacation. If those having the school affairs of the city in charge desire to try such an experiment, it should be done from the appropriation for schools.

Alderman O'Brien—I feel as does the gentleman who has just taken his seat, that this experiment will fail if we adopt the amendment of the Alderman from Charlestown. The School Committee have well considered this matter, and they would not come before us and ask for $2000 if they could try this experiment out of their own resources. If we fail to pass the order as it comes from the Finance Committee, I believe that will be an end of these vacation schools. It is a small matter, and I believe the experiment should be tried. Whether the $2000 comes out of one pocket or another does not make much difference, and if we adopt the amendment of the gentleman from Charlestown, I have no hesitation in saying that it will be an end to the vacation schools this year.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I judge from the speeches of the gentleman on my right [Alderman Burnham], and the member of the Finance Committee [Alderman Clark], who reported this order, that possibly the amendment of the gentleman from Charlestown will pass. In their own case, the money may be expended by the School Board, and by and by they will come to us for an additional appropriation, which we cannot refuse them. It is far better to give it in the shape in which the original order was worded than to have the expenditure made from the school appropriation. They will spend their money, and when they get through they will come to this Board, and this Board cannot refuse them. We have cut down the appropriation for schools so much that if the School Committee don't make any change in the salaries, as recommended by the Committee on Public Instruction, before the end of the year they will have to come here for more money, or else they will have to close the schools. Some of the salaries of the school teachers have been cut down more than ten per cent., and the contingent fund has always been cut down very low. The money appropriated for the school festival—which I was opposed to—can be used for these purposes far better than in the exhibition of music. However, that is all done, and the Music Hall festival will be. The incidental fund is very low, and if this sum is taken from the appropriation for schools, at the end of the year we will have to take something from our Reserved Fund and help them out. I am glad, however, that in this case we shall have the vacation schools. I shall vote against the amendment; but if it passes, I shall feel that we ought to have the vacation schools, and I shall vote for the order as it will be amended, and by and by the School Committee will have to come to us for more money.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman's argument is substantially this: that if we appropriate the money, well and good; but if not, the School Committee will go ahead and call upon us to make up the deficiency. Now I don't propose to be bulldozed into voting for the measure by any such threat as that. The School Committee have rising a hundred per cent. larger appropriation than is given in any other city in this Union, and they should get along with this appropriation. It has been intimated to me that notwithstanding the City Council reduced salaries, the School Committee have been considering whether they should do it or not. Well, sir, if they choose to take that responsibility they are welcome to it; but under those circumstances I would not yield. They know how much money they can spend, and they must make their expenses according to the appropriation. In view of the intimation that they are coming to us for an additional appropriation, I should certainly think there was more reason in voting for the amendment than I should under other circumstances.

The amendment was adopted—yeas 10, nays 2, Aldermen Fitzgerald and O'Brien voting nay.

The order as amended was passed. Sent down.

Alderman Thompson moved the reconsideration of the vote just taken, hoping it would not prevail.

The reconsideration was lost.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Before the reconsideration was moved I was going to ask from what fund in the school appropriation this money was to come.

Alderman Thompson—Incidentals.

Alderman Fitzgerald—From what branch of the Incidental Fund? Will the Alderman inform me?

Alderman Thompson—It was left optional with the School Committee.

Alderman Fitzgerald—A similar estimate as made by the Alderman was made by the Committee on Public Institutions, but the gentleman who had charge of that was so strenuous about it that it was put back and the figures made out for the contractors for public institutions. I know that the Alderman has an idea that fuel will be a great deal lower. Possibly it may be, but if the schools depend upon the price of fuel I am afraid they will not have anything to spend for them. The whole Contingent Fund is so emptied out here that I don't know where the rest of the money is coming from. I should be sorry to see it defeated upon that ground.

Alderman Thompson—I am very glad that the Alderman reminded me of my views upon the Committee on Public Institutions. The committee allowed the contractors $6 per ton for fuel; and they have contracted for a ton at $4, and are allowed twenty-five cents drawback for delivery.

Order for Inspector of Buildings to report, before May 31, on the expediency of making any changes in the means of egress from schoolhouses, halls or churches. Alderman Fitzgerald explained that the Inspector made a similar report last year, and contended that there is no need of creating an unnecessary panic by passing such an order, as the Building Committee are doing all they can. On his motion the order was indefinitely postponed. A motion to reconsider was lost.

Order to consent to closing up and building over the fifty-foot street laid out along land of the Boston & Albany Railroad Company, between Columbus avenue and Dartmouth street. Passed in concurrence.

the city may occupy their land beyond the location of said bridge as widened, with the slopes of said filling, so far as may be necessary or convenient for said slopes, and that they will maintain and support the sides of said filling upon the land without expense to the city; and the Mayor is also hereby authorized to release to said corporations all the claims of this city upon them, or either of them, for land and flats on either side of said Chelsea Bridge, beyond the line of construction of said bridge, to a width not exceeding sixty-six feet, as before mentioned, and also to release said corporations from any claims for betterments which may be assessed on them by reason of the construction of said bridge.

Ordered, That the order passed by the City Council and approved by the Mayor June 9, 1876, and the order passed by the City Council and approved by the Mayor Dec. 15, 1876, being orders relating to releases of the aforesaid corporations, be and the same are hereby rescinded.

Alderman Thompson explained that the parties with whom the committee had been in negotiation had agreed to the arrangements proposed, and this order is to concur with the aforesaid orders in the change made in the agreement of last year.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent down.

SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Alderman Slade submitted the following:

The Committee on Markets and Weights and Measures, to whom was recommended the report and order relative to the appointment of Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures, beg leave to submit the following report:

The powers and duties of the Sealers of Weights and Measures have been greatly increased by the recent change in the law.

As the law now stands, the Sealers and Deputy Sealers are required to give notice annually to all persons using scales, weights and measures for the purpose of buying or selling goods or commodities, to bring in such scales, weights and measures to be adjusted and sealed. At any time after publishing said notice the Sealers are required to go to the houses and stores of the inhabitants and test and seal their scales, etc.

For the purpose of doing this the Sealers are allowed to carry with them duplicate sets of standards. Sealers are also required to visit annually every hay and coal scale, and every dormant or other platform balance, that cannot be easily removed, and seal and adjust the same. Formerly, sixty days were allowed persons using scales, etc., in which to bring them to the office of the Sealers, and the latter could not make their annual visits until the expiration of that time. The Sealers were not allowed to take their standards with them, so that, excepting hay and coal scales and dormant balances, very few scales were sealed, excepting such as were carried to the office of the Sealers. The law was, therefore, comparatively a dead letter. It will be seen that a larger force is necessary under the present law than formerly, and the committee are of the opinion that not less than four deputy sealers should be appointed. This will increase the force from three to five officers.

The committee are decidedly of the opinion that the Deputy Sealers should be paid a salary. The fee system has been tried in Boston and proved a failure. As the law now stands, if Sealers are not paid a salary, they may demand double fees, and the result would be that an onerous tax would be laid upon all persons using scales, weights and measures. It is for the interest of the public that scales, weights and measures should be correct, and the public should pay for the protection afforded it. The committee respectfully recommend the passage of the order attached to their former report.

Accepted and said order passed, and on motion of Alderman Clark the committee were authorized to report nominations.

PLAY GROUNDS.

Alderman Clark submitted a report from the Committee on Common, on the report in relation to play grounds, with an order—That the Auditor of Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund the sum of $2000 to constitute a special appropriation for the purpose of defraying the expenses of providing play grounds as set forth in the order of the City Council, approved May 22, 1877. Read twice and passed—yeas 12, nays 0. Sent down.

STONY BROOK IMPROVEMENT.

Alderman Viles submitted the following:

The Committee on Sewers, to whom was referred the reports of the Board of Health and of the Street Commissioners upon the present condition of Stony Brook and its proposed improvement, report that by the terms of the act of the Legislature the proceedings in taking land and making a new channel must be performed by the City Council of the city of Boston; and for the purpose of bringing the matter before both branches of the Government, they suggest that they be discharged from its further consideration and, that the subject be referred to a joint special committee. Accepted.

Alderman Viles, from the same committee, offered an order, That ——— with such as the Common Council may join, be a joint special committee to take into consideration the reports of the Street Commissioners and the Board of Health upon the improvement of Stony Brook.

Passed, and Aldermen O'Brien and Dunbar were appointed on said committee. Sent down.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Reports and order to build sewers in Boylston street between Church and Charles streets, in Gibson street, in Dorchester avenue between Gibson and Centre streets, and in Mather street. Orders passed.

PUBLIC PARKS.

The Board took up the special assignment for 4.30 P. M., viz.:

Consideration of report of Special Committee on Public Parks (City Doc. No. 44), with orders to appropriate $1,000,000 for purchase of land for that purpose, to be raised by a loan for a period not exceeding thirty years, at a rate not exceeding five per cent.

Alderman Burnham—This subject is before us for consideration and I shall beg the attention of the Board while I present some of my own views in relation to the subject. At our last meeting we listened to the extended and eloquent remarks of the Alderman on my right favoring the park scheme as seen from his stand point. It was as able an argument as any man could have made upon that side, backed up by figures gathered from city, county, State and national statistics and census returns, and great indeed must have been the diligence and patience to bring us such an array of figures. We also listened to the able argument in opposition, from the eloquent Alderman on my left. He, too, brought us a great array of figures, as seen from his stand point, which, being nearer home, and in closer relation to the business view of the subject, made his information, I believe, more valuable for our guidance.

Others, in a more general way, presented parallels with parks in foreign cities. We had also, to some extent, comparisons of Boston's park wants as measured by other cities in our own country. Now I propose from another stand point to attempt to present my own convictions of this park subject in the clearest, matter-of-fact way, and aside from theories, without underrating local interests, deal with the Boston of today. I believe this Board of twelve Aldermen should sit as jurors on this park question, determined to hear the whole evidence, and come to our conclusions only when the evidence is all in and well weighed in the balance of common sense. We have then before us for our immediate consideration the report of the special committee on the subject of parks for Boston. Of the majority report favoring the park scheme I shall attempt only to speak.

The committee present us eight propositions. From a careful perusal I can only see in their first, second, third, fourth, sixth and seventh propositions what Boston's eloquent son of the past defined in that never-to-be-forgotten sentence of two words—glittering generalities.

These propositions, as arguments for public parks, apply alike pertinently to any future time as to today. In the fifth proposition they say, "The citizens of Boston desire that public parks equal to the wants of a great and growing city should be established." Possibly this is true; but maybe this proposition might be included with the others. It is so general a statement, I would so include it, had they not referred us to the history of the steps that have been taken to establish public parks in Boston. In Appendix B, annexed to the "Report," we are furnished with all these steps in detail, and they cover the whole history, and in them we have all the proof there is that "the citizens of Boston desire public parks." Now I appeal to every gentleman of this Board, if, on a consideration of this history, he has not come to this conclusion, in that the essence of the whole matter is found in this minute part of the record.

"At a special election held June 9, 1875," (the Legislative park act) "was accepted by the people; yeas 3706, nays 2311." That record is the weight that turned the scale in favor of public parks.

Now, I desire to ask if we are justified in saying that, because of this record, made two years ago today, the citizens of Boston desire public parks? I ask you here and now to look at the business record of Boston for these two years intervening. Why, sir, our business men have grown old ten years in two! The great anxieties in business, great margins of loss, great shrinkage in values, great depletion on every side, have hurried their record into our very vitals. Now, with the picture fairly before us, tell me, is there a member of this Board who honestly believes that if the question of public parks was submitted to the property owners of Boston (the men whose estates will in the end pay the bills), there is one in a hundred would vote today for public parks. I am not now speaking of land owners and speculators, who suppose they are to be personally benefited by the laying out of the public parks. They are advocates for them, of course; why should they not be? Some of them, although doing business in Boston, are not among the tax-paying citizens of Boston. But I am speaking of the men whose property must, in the end, pay the $20,000,000 the parks will cost. Will they vote for parks? Under proposition 8, two very pertinent questions are asked—

First—Can the city afford the entire system?

Second—Is it expedient to commence the work now?

The committee answer both in the affirmative, but the business outlook of today compels me to answer both in the negative, and so to vote, and yet in so doing I by no means subscribe to the conclusions of the committee on p. 3, viz.:

"If Boston cannot afford such an expenditure to secure the priceless benefit of parks, it must be because she has entered the ranks of cities like Newburyport and Salem, which have ceased to grow. If, twenty years from now, our wharves are to be deserted, our manufactories idle, our streets grass-grown, then, indeed, it is unwise to enter upon this or any scheme calling for an outlay of money; but if Boston is to increase in wealth and population, as we believe she is, there can be no question but that we can well afford all the money necessary to give us this system of parks."

I say I by no means subscribe to their conclusions. I say for Boston she has not entered the ranks of cities like Newburyport and Salem—cities which have ceased to grow; but if we desire her to enter the list, load her down with a $20,000,000 debt in addition to the present freight, load her as New York and Philadelphia and Chicago are loaded. No, sir, I believe Boston is to increase in population, business and wealth. The Alderman opposite who spoke so earnestly and eloquently on the other side, portraying our future for the next ten years, spoke truly. I believe we shall have our railroad North and West, via Hoosac, and South and West via Poughkeepsie Bridge. I believe the vast products of our great and growing West and Northwest, the petroleum and flour, the grain and hemp, the beef and pork, and other merchandise, will come from the interior to Boston, not only for home consumption and traffic, but in their outgo to the Old World, South America and the islands of the broad ocean. And the imports in return, to meet the growing wants of our vast interior, will in Boston be exchanged from ship to storehouse and to rail car; but I cannot on that belief build up an honest and true argument for entering upon this great scheme of parks in the present condition of business, thereby adding to our already heaped-up millions of debt. The committee, and those who favor parks, it seems to me, are viewing this matter not only from a false standpoint, but with a hampered vision. They ignore our present condition; they see only in part; not like a man who puts his hand at a distance from his eyes, between them and the object toward which he is looking, and then says, I see, because he sees so much that is not hidden by his hand, but like the man who brings his hand so close to his vision that it shuts out every object—is thus looking at the park question singly and alone. There is much else beside that must be seen. I trust our vision will take in the whole field before we act. I see, and I want others to see, that Boston will not suffer if her park grounds, simply as park grounds, are not increased for a quarter-century. I see no justification for the assertion that the public-park grounds of Boston are inadequate to a city of our rank. The assertion is made only by comparison. What if New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, have larger parks than we? Do we of necessity need what they need? Do we, with East Boston and South Boston jetting out into the sea, and with our Charles and Mystic rivers on the north, and our Neponset River on the south, need parks as much as they do? Has not our railroad system, wherein it differs from theirs, much to do in settling our park question for us? Shall we overlook our harbor gems—islands than which none on which the sun shines are more beautiful; our Revere and Nantasket seashores, such as no other city has? Why not claim that our water and sewerage systems should be patterned by other cities? We want water and sewerage adapted to our individual necessities, not theirs; and our want of parks can take no measure from other cities. Boston is no pent-up city, without breathing space. Her surroundings wonderfully meet the needs of her people. As has been said, and it can be said of no other city, "the very horse cars run through miles of the most beautiful parks that nature ever provided for any city," breathing spaces with a country air as pure as earth affords, and our annexations for the past few years have made them ours. And besides, we are not so very poor, in the possession of our Common and Public Garden, our Reservoir Driveway and our squares; and to be added still, our harbor and beach excursions, open to all for their enjoyment at the smallest minimum cost. Had we 10,000 acres of parks, the people would go to them instead. Now, Mr. Mayor, I have this feeling—with our present debt we cannot afford an added outlay for parks; we have enough for today, we can purchase more tomorrow. Consequently, this is the wrong time to enter upon such a scheme. It may come in the future—then, if need be, let it come. If we refuse today, the saving will make us able and ready then.

The interest account for a ten years' delay, added to the cost of keeping up our parks for ten years, will, ten years hence, sink out of sight any rise in real estate that under any circumstances will be the good fortune of our city to experience, and enable this city, without injury to her credit, to build parks then with a magnificence not yet conceived of.

Don't let us forget our adversities in business, and talk and act as though we are rich. Luxuries and adornments (and parks to Boston are nothing else) belong only to times of prosperity, and should consequently be made dependent upon times of prosperity. That is a law, and we cannot change the law. You cannot hide the fact that the burdens of taxation (for first cost and maintenance) will be increased by any move we may make in the direction of parks at a time when they should be lessened instead, and the burden will fall upon the active business men. Such a course is not wise. Why is a city different from an individual? Who doubts the wisdom of cutting down personal expenses by lopping off luxuries when the income is cut off? Not one.

Do not, then, let us be misled by the assertion that land for parks is cheaper today than it will be in the future. I do not hesitate to assert it and to maintain it, that all the land in the whole programme of a park system as presented to us, keeping our interest account in view, can be bought at a less price in the future than today. Who does not know that in times of business depression and adversity real estate is the last thing to come down, and that in times of coming prosperity it is the last thing to advance? I know it and I can see no loss in waiting; and I frankly say that in looking about to find reasons for entering upon a park scheme now, simply as a park scheme, thus far I find none at all.

I turn now to look at the matter from another point, and here there are two of the locations which have been recommended that engage my serious attention, and in reference to these the reasons for are not valid as against parks alone, but involve other considerations. These considerations, in time, will be forced upon this City Government. They come to me as reasons for a supply of pure water come; as reasons for good and healthful drainage come, impressing one with the idea of necessity to be met when it comes, at any reasonable cost. These locations are Back Bay and South Bay.

Here, to this city of Boston, are two great inevitable, standing, increasing, yet to be unendurable, nuisances that in time must be abated.

It is not our fault that they exist; but the charge that rests upon us is that by the mistake in filling in Back Bay we have precipitated the time for abating the nuisance there, and taken the burden upon ourselves, that need not have been borne for generations to come. Again, it is our fault—and those best able to judge can see it most plainly—that we have filled up so much of South Bay that what nature designed to be, and but for our mistaken art in filling up might have continued to be, the most beautiful bay of inland water any city in the world could boast of, is instead become a great cesspool, demanding now at our hands an intercepting sewerage system that will cost more than every inch of the filled territory is worth. There stands the fact. It is ours to see the condition of things as they exist, to admit that something must be done, and to do it. I am ready then to say that more than good sewerage is needed, and that need touches the question of public parks.

The accumulating sewerage filth of the coming years, increasing as population increases, must be carried off; and the accumulated sewerage filth deposit of the past (now the cause of such just complaint) must be covered up; and therefore I conclude that to these two locations we should apply our first expenditure for parks. With this view of the matter, much of the reports of commissioners and committees, so far, seem to me to be at fault, and for these reasons: Back Bay seems to hold in their minds a disproportionate place. And why? I answer, because it is the lesser nuisance of the two. South Bay, in the very heart of the city, is by far the greater, and consequently the first to demand our attention. Again: The Back Bay nuisance can be held in abeyance at small present cost. We have already before us for our consideration a Back Bay plan, to intercept all the sewage now flowing into Stony and Muddy brooks, for their entire length—every sewer—and to carry the deposit into Charles River, there to be diluted by the flow of waters, and thus temporarily controlled; so that for years we shall have no more difficulty with the sewage of these polluted streams. This will cost $75,000. Then $25,000 (or less) will cover the accumulated sewerage filth in the creeks and on the flats, and thus that existing nuisance be temporarily controlled; and $25,000 more will do dredging in Charles River that shall sink the outflow of this miniature intercepting sewerage system, and all the other sewers there, out of sight—and out of smell. More: At this small cost Back Bay can be and is to be regenerated from its present condition of death-dealing miasma to a condition of sweetness and health; and, Mr. Mayor, it will stay regenerated, at least, until our great intercepting sewer (needed for future generations) is completed.

But the other locality, South Bay, the very heart of the city, is a different affair. This is a great catch basin; it holds all that comes into it via Roxbury Canal and every other sewer, and holds it with a fearful grasp, fostering disease and death to be dealt out somewhere in the future with a lavish hand. Our action toward intercepting sewerage shows we are awake in some measure to our condition; shows that the truth has dawned upon us—that the accumulating sewerage filth of all time to come must be carried off. But just as plainly has the truth dawned upon us that the accumulated sewerage filth of scores of years—more than a century—here deposited must be covered up. I see no relief so accessible as by a double work here to be done in an outlay for parks. The nuisance is one of vast magnitude, and to successfully abate it I believe that all the land between Chester park (extended Swett street) and Boston street will be needed, and it will be found a territory none too small when the matter is more fully understood. This whole territory should be raised to grade by taking from the bottom of South Bay all the material that can be placed upon the territory and covered up with a surface covering of clean soil; thus, by dredging and deepening the water territory and raising and grading this land territory, we shall ultimately find the grade of health for by deepening the whole of South Bay so that there shall always be at least ten feet of water, we can have in the very centre of our city a sheet of pure water, sweetened twice in every twenty-four hours by the tidal flood—worth more to the great city of the future, as a reservoir of pure air and a promoter of healthy breathing, than all the vast scheme before us can give. And wonderfully, too, is the territory adapted to it; Swett street thereby becomes the broad central avenue across the entire city—open on one side to what can be made a beautiful sheet of water, and on the other to the broad acres of public park; accessible because central, and made more so by the New York & New England Railroad crossing it at right angles, and nearly in the middle, giving diversity to the plan and the cheapest transportation. And I have this to add, that the deepening and the raising processes I have spoken of by the use of the present improved steam dredge machinery will be brought down to its minimum cost.

Again—The spots I have indicated are the only spots where there is a shadow of a chance for betterments to tell to the credit of the vast expenditure—for these (at present two great cesspools of a great and growing city) are valueless to the owners of the land if they must keep and pay the taxes on them for the next ten or fifteen years, and therefore their consecration to parks will bring with it a value they can never have without.

Mr. Mayor—It is only in these two localities that I see work to be done for a long time in the direction of public park improvements.

The must do is already stamped upon these territories, and here is work of sufficient magnitude to expend all the money we have to expend, even if it be done on a thirty-year loan. As I said, whether we will or not, the work will be forced upon us in time—and when it comes it should be undertaken and with steady advance be made to move forward for years before its completion. Now, Mr. Mayor, in closing what I have to say at this time, I am ready to express my desire that this park order may be so amended by the friends of the measure as to call for investigation in the direction I have indicated—and before we vote one dollar for parks, in any shape, I trust it will be had.

Mr. Mayor, long may the patient live when the extremities are diseased, but if the heart become diseased there is no remedy, the patient must die. Let us consider if these urban centres, as compared with suburban extremities, are not as the heart to the extremities,—and if so, like wise physicians in care of the body, let this City Council be wise in time. Let there be more Park Commission investigation and planning, more estimates on a new basis, more engineering to develop the cost, and let the planning be in harmony with the natural topographical defects and excellences that so self-evidently exist, and all this, I say again, before we move at all. We cannot be wise to embark in this great scheme involving such weighty interests, holding in its grasp the health and the credit of a great city, until we have more fully canvassed Boston's individual needs by reason of her inherited defects, and mapped out without the possibility of a mistake the results to follow our action. It is not for me to offer the amendment I have indicated, but without such an amendment it is for me—and, as I see it, for us all—a duty to vote against the entering upon any and all park schemes whatsoever.

Alderman Wilder—It would be useless for me, Mr. Mayor, to attempt to go over and discuss the whole park question. It has engaged the attention of the people of Boston, more or less, for several years, and is one which I believe of more importance to the citizens of Boston than any other question that will come before us for our action; and being in a position where it becomes my duty to give a vote upon this question, I desire to occupy a few moments in stating upon what grounds and for what reasons I shall give the vote I shall give upon its final passage. Mr. Mayor, my colleagues and myself are, to a certain extent, representatives of Boston and the people of Boston. They have confided to us the power of voting their money out of their pockets, and it becomes us to consider well before we take such a vote whether we are the real representatives of their wishes and interests, the truest exponents of the best principle for the benefit and prosperity and growth of the city we love and which we are bound by oath to protect. First, for a single moment, let us see who wants parks. I beg to differ slightly with the Alderman who has just taken his seat. He says that the question was not an expression of the people of Boston by a vote in which there were about 3000 votes in the affirmative and some 2000 in the negative. I believe the citizens of Boston have expressed their opinion at other times in other ways, and in some of the most unmistakable ways. The manner of treating this question as one of a personal nature, and as one of land speculation, and also of stock speculation, and its having any personal bearing whatever upon a member of this Board, is not worthy of our consideration. We know better. We suppose that intelligent men among our most intelligent business people know tolerably well what they ask for, and in answering this question of who wants parks I will call your attention to a copy of the petition, as the City Clerk was so kind as to furnish me with all the names of taxpayers who have come of their own accord, and asked the former City Government to take action upon the report of the Park Commissioners as submitted. The number of those petitioners is 8606. I have the original petitions in my hand with the original signatures attached. And now let us see for a moment who some of those 8606 people were. We find the names of Marshall P. Wilder, Benjamin F. Stevens, Nathaniel J. Bradlee, J. Huntington Wolcott, Henry Saltonstall and 549 others attached to one of these petitions. To another petition we have the names of Dr. Bethune, Dr. Charles E. Buckingham (my old family physician, who I am sorry to say has since passed away), R. M. Hodges, Dr. J. M. Bigelow, J. P. Curtis, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Dr. E. H. Clarke and 680 others. Now, Mr. Mayor, I do not need to take time to tell you who they are. I have had their evidence in the public papers, over their own signatures, and their valuable testimony from the platform at Faneuil Hall, where a voluntary meeting of citizens gathered to ask and urge upon the last City Government to do something in regard to parks. They ask for it for sanitary reasons, for such names as I have read here, for those 8600 who have joined them and who have heeded to our business, whose capital makes Boston a commercial city, the men who pay the taxes which we expend here—if I should name you the amount they represent you would say it is fabulous, but I have something to say upon that point in a moment. If those are not the men who know what they want and who know what is best for Boston, where shall we turn for information? Now I regard it as my duty—and I presume my colleagues regard their duty in the same light—to pay some attention to men of that class and character. They are the men to whom we look for everything that makes Boston a live city, and to whom we look for examples to lead us to the right course for progress and prosperity. I believe that it is my duty, in a measure at least, to heed some of their opinions—of course, tempered and restrained by my own judgment; but in considering such a petition as that, the thought has occurred to me that due heed and caution was not quite our whole duty. There are, sir, on that list, almost 9000 voluntary petitioners, composed of our bankers, our merchants, our leading manufacturers, and the leading men of Boston. They do not quite represent Boston alone; and standing here in a measure, as I do, as an humble representative of that capital and business enterprise, I feel that I have a still further duty to perform as their representative. There are issued from the Collector's office 87,000 tax bills. I was surprised when I learned how many of those tax bills represent simply and purely a poll tax. When I name the number, which I believe is correct, as taken from the books, I believe many of you will be astonished. When you remember that a man who owns property—no matter if it is mortgaged to the extent that my friend suggests, the larger portion of the equity is still in him, and his tax bill is more than two dollars. But out of that 80,000 tax bills which represent $730,000,000 of taxable property, 70,000 of them were for $2 for a poll tax. More than one-half of the property owners in Boston is represented on that petition. But, sir, what about these 70,000 men that do not pay anything more than a poll tax? Who are they? They are made up of laboring men, clerks, mechanics and students, and more than 30,000 of them are householders, men living in our city and paying but a $2 poll tax, it is true; but that is not the extent of their benefit to Boston. Why, sir, it is their hard hands that build up cities. Have those men no rights which it does not become 17,000 property holders of Boston to remember to whom they are indebted for a measure of the increase and accumulation of their property? Are not those 70,000 men just as good citizens; have n't they just as deep an interest in the wealth, the morality, the health and the progress of Boston as any other men? Mr. Mayor, let me tell you that those 70,000 men do not lack in intelligence; they know and they remember, and they have pictured to themselves the fact that they own just as much in the public domain as your millionaire, and it is right that they should. [Applause among the spectators.] And right here I want to say that the fortunate citizen who has gathered together his hundred thousand or more, who begrudges the little pittance of an addition to his tax bill that would make a free highway in which those poor men could go with their children and enjoy a frugal lunch, and feel that he is eating his bread upon his own domain, I say that the millionaire citizen who would withhold that pittance fails in his duty as a good republican citizen. [Applause among the spectators.] Mr. Mayor, I don't propose to occupy much more time of the Board; I have already occupied too much. I wrote down a few questions here—Who wants it? What is the necessity for it? What is the cost, and what is our duty? I guess I got a little mixed, and have spoken upon what is our duty in the first place, and mixed it up a little with who wants it? but I desire to speak for a single moment upon the necessity of it. I am understood to be in favor of parks. I am, Mr. Mayor, in favor of parks, so far as they will benefit the city of Boston; so far as it is judicious; although careful, far-seeing and far-thinking men may disagree upon the subject. In regard to the general operation of parks upon American cities we have all the statistics that we need. I believe I hazard nothing in saying that no park which has ever yet been projected and carried forward to any degree of completion in any American city as yet—looking at it purely and entirely as a financial measure—has not been a success. Those tables have been prepared and presented by others, and I simply content myself with this simple assertion, believing it to be true. If it is not true I am not responsible for it, for such are the facts that are published. And now, when my distinguished friend and colleague [Alderman Fitzgerald] stands up and says we cannot afford to do this thing; that we must first study economy; why, sir, it seems to me that if there is any measure in the world that is purely a measure of economy, it is the one in which the city shall put its money where it is sure of a good return for it; and the kind of economy that would deter a man today from voting for an appropriation to carry out a measure which he was fully satisfied was going to pay financially, would be the same kind of economy that would prevent a man from making an outlay for seed to plant in a soil that never failed to return a remunerative crop. The Alderman who has just taken his seat showed forth to some extent, and I don't know but to a very full extent, what are his views and what he thinks should be done. Still, I am not prepared to offer any amendment. I propose to give you exactly what I would do if I was supreme in this matter, or if I owned the city of Boston, and could do just as I was a mind to with it. This brings me to what is the proposition of the gentleman who has last addressed us upon this subject in regard to the Back Bay. I agree with him fully and entirely; only I go a little farther than he does, because the nuisance is somewhat more intolerable than he pictured. He does not believe that we ought to do anything at present, except to abate that nuisance on the Back Bay and on the South Bay, and by so doing put in two links in that admirable chain of parks which is recommended by the Park Commissioners. No, Mr. Mayor, I propose to consider our present position financially and otherwise, with is as full an appreciation as any man can have of the depreciation of business. I believe we fully appreciate the caution which has restrained and governed me in voting my constituents' money out of their pockets; and I believe this feeling is paramount among all of us, excepting only the determination to do our whole duty, if we can find it out. I would go farther than my friend, though thoroughly indorsing what he does. I believe it is a fact beyond all question that the inner line of parks is going to be adopted by the citizens of Boston, if not by ourselves, by our successors; if not this year, next year; and if not next year, the year after. Now, this year I would esteem it a great calamity if this Board of Aldermen should, by reason of any unimportant differences in details, or for any other reason—I say I would esteem it a calamity if this Board of Aldermen should go through this year without paying the slightest heed to the desires of the people, and deferring the whole thing; and in order to prevent that which I believe to be nothing less than a calamity, I propose to be exceedingly conservative myself, so much that I shall come down to the two single points of my friend Burnham if that is all that the Board want. I may say right here that I should change the plan of the commissioners—I am speaking now as if I owned Boston and had it all my own way—I should change the plan, as in the taking of a hundred acres I should come up to Parker street in the easterly line, and on the southerly line come down to Boylston street; then I should make Parker street the easterly line of the water basin, and Boylston street the northerly line; and I should build a driveway eighty feet wide, nearly two-thirds of which would be completed by the completion of Boylston street and the widening of Parker street, which must be done; and I should have then a hundred acres of water instead of thirty, as they proposed, with ornamental grounds on each side.

But for the sake of the health and for the sake of saving expense, I would take that hundred acres and surround them with a driveway eighty feet wide, completely macadamize it, pave the gutters, and using the material for dredging as underfilling for the driveway, and covering it with clean gravel, surrounding it with a wall, that it should make it a perfect water basin. Understand me—I do not mean to put in retaining walls to make a reservoir, but just a water basin; and I undertake to say—and I know what I am talking about—that the hundred acres can be prepared for this purpose, and the driveway completed, and giving, if necessary—which I do not believe in—a plank sluiceway, for the channel of Stony Brook sewer (including $50,000 for the cost of that, and including the building of Boylston and Parker streets, which is about $90,000), and I propose to say that the nuisance on the Back Bay can be forever and eternally abated, and we can have one hundred acres of water renewed with pure water from the ocean or from Charles River twice in every twenty-four hours; and that that whole programme can be carried out for less than $800,000. I believe, sir, and for good reasons, that the land itself, including the hundred acres, can be acquired for park purposes for a sum less than $500,000. Now I ask, gentlemen, if that statement is a fact, if now is not emphatically the time to do it? Why, I can give you some other reasons. There is nothing but plain, straightforward logic in this kind of a proposition that I ask my colleagues to consider at the present time. There is, today, directly affected by the nuisance of the Stony Brook sewer—and let me say right here that the deposit from that sewer itself is not a nuisance, for if you spent $75,000 and carried that sewage to Charles River it would not abate the nuisance; because, sir, for fifteen years the deposit from that sewer has been made on those flats, and at every low tide it lies there festering in the summer sunshine, and breeding disease to be wafted over the most populous part of the city. You have got to cover it up with pure, clean water and keep it there, and the work is done. But this is a digression. Now, I say that more than one hundred millions of the property of Boston is affected directly, more or less, by the contagion coming up from that cesspool on the Back Bay. Your assessors, if they do their duty—and I have no doubt they will—will take into consideration the fact, in assessing the property so affected. What is going to be done with these Back Bay flats. Were I on that Board of Assessors I believe I should act intelligently—and I certainly should try to act honestly—and if I went down there tomorrow to appraise the property affected by it, and believed that you had a City Government who understood the whole question, and I understood that you were not going to abate that nuisance, it would make a difference of $40,000,000 in my estimate of that $100,000,000 of property. If your assessors did not take that position this year, and this nuisance is not abated, some future assessors will. And so I say, to take 100 acres of that Back Bay and change it from its present pestilential character into a place of beauty and health, is a piece of economy that no man can say anything against; economy, to say nothing about life and health, but simply on the ground of preserving already existing property, for the value you will save by its abatement will twice or three times pay the interest on its cost. It is a necessity, Mr. Mayor, and I remember one passage in your inaugural, in which, if I quote it aright, you said that necessity vindicates itself. I leave the Back Bay at that, and simply say that I should go on and secure a parkway through the orchard, up to the rocks over this side of Parker Hill, and so on around Parker Hill, by the commissioners' plan, to the shores of Jamaica Pond. Why? Because at the present time every owner upon the borders of Jamaica Pond is anxious that that beautiful sheet of fresh water shall be one of the places of ornament for the city of Boston. I would not spend a dollar there, but simply do what is necessary—I mean a dollar in improvement—but I would simply do what is necessary to secure that park. I would secure the borders of that pond, not because, perhaps, it may cost a little more a few years hence; but because I would preserve every tree and every portion of that pond, that will be beautiful to retain as a park, and would prevent any future desecration of its beautiful borders by the erection of more ice houses or the acquisition of any portion of it by parties who would buy it up in order to get a high price for it. There I would stop and take the risk for the future, in regard to following the Commissioners' plan by the parkway up to Bussey Woods. The Bussey Farm is all right; it is a free gift to the city of Boston for this generation or the next; they ask nothing for it except to take it when you can afford to build parkways and lay out paths; and you have 350 acres there free. Then following up the line across the railroad, they pass up over that romantic new road to the hills and rocks and dales of the immense park in West Roxbury. Mr. Mayor, I do not think that land is going to be any higher than it is at the present time; I do not think anybody is going to buy it; and I don't think we need encroach upon our appropriation of $1,000,000 to secure that. Then we come along to that magnificent estate for park purposes owned or controlled by General Sargent. That estate is certain to be a part of the system of parks for Boston; it is sure to come. I don't want to appropriate any part of this million dollars for that, for it will keep; but I would go along down, spending no money until I came down to South Bay, which I will not say a word about, because Alderman Burnham has told you all about it, and just as it is. But I want to repeat that, in my judgment, it will be a calamity to the city of Boston if we, by any difference of opinion, fail to secure in this very modest way the future completion of that system of parks that shall give Boston the right to say that she is in accord with other cities in this distinguishing evidence of progress and civilization. The Alderman has congratulated us upon our Common. True, we are not destitute of breathing places. We have forty-five acres of Common, and ten acres of Public Garden. It is a pleasure, to think, Mr. Mayor, that we had belonging to the by-gone generation men so far-seeing for the future of Boston as to dedicate that little path to the public. Why, sir, for commercial Boston alone, for the aid of our commerce, that little patch on Boston Common has been the cheapest advertisement that Boston commerce has ever had. Now, what is a park going to do for us? What do people say about parks? Take the merchants who come from the West and South to make purchases; they make lengthy visits to Eastern cities for business purposes, and they also couple pleasure with business if they can do so; and if they can afford it they bring their families with them. They go to the city that has parks. The Alderman [Alderman Fitzgerald] says we differ from New York in our location. Perhaps we do; but we do not differ from New York and the rest of mankind in human nature. We do not differ very much in the impulses that govern and actuate men generally. I see by the papers that 102,000 people visited Central Park in one day; and they were not all citizens of New York. It cost, from thirty to sixty millions; but for what would they sell it? At what price would they cut it up into house lots? They differ from us, but they do not differ from us in one respect. We, like them, are an Atlantic seaboard city and have got to live by commerce, and by competition with New York and every other city; and the man who does not believe it will pay—to say nothing about health and the increase of the happiness of our citizens—to make Boston attractive, that men I do not sympathize with, and he and I would differ in the way in which we would manage our business.

Mr. Mayor, I beg pardon of my colleagues for occupying so much time. I did not write any speech. There is one thing I have forgotten. I had written the word "cost" here, and I will tell you why I did it. I did it because the Alderman on my right [Alderman Fitzgerald] last week said we did not know anything about the cost. He said the appropriation as recommended by the commissioners was somewhere between four and five millions, and he estimated that the land would cost nine millions; and then he went a little farther, with his vivid imagination and matchless eloquence and oratory, to work up a load of taxation under which the community would struggle hereafter—fifteen or twenty millions. I do not know exactly what data the Alderman had for that. He is always very guarded and careful in what he says; but I apprehend that if he were going to build a house, or going into any kind of an outlay, even if it did not amount to more than ten thousand dollars, he would not rely upon his own opinion; but he would hang up his green bag for a moment, and apply to some engineer or trained mechanic, and take his judgment in preference to his own. Now, these estimates are made upon the assessed values in 1874, I think—was it 1874?

Alderman O'Brien—1875.

Alderman Wilder—Well, I don't believe that those values were any too high. I believe, and the Alderman believes, that with proper care given by judicious parties to go forward and estimate the value of that property, it can be bought for a great deal less. Nobody knows today that this one million dollars would not buy every acre recommended. I don't say it would; but I say nobody knows it would not. I would go just as far as my money would allow; but I would be certain that no land speculator made an improper combination out of all this. I believe we are competent to deal with this subject in such a way as to make such purchases as our million dollars will make, and in such localities as not to interfere with the final completion of this whole and beautiful system; but to make it at the points suggested by the Alderman who has spoken upon the question today; and if I could have my way I would go a little farther, just as far as the million dollars would go, and I would obtain all the land that I could at the price satisfactory to the Park Commissioners and the City Council.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Can the Alderman tell us how much land was bonded by the Park Commissioners when they were authorized to do so last year; what per cent. of all the lands were bonded at a certain price, and how many were willing to do it?

Alderman Wilder—I thank the gentleman for asking the question. It is a very important one in connection with the subject. This Board is made up of professional men, who are quite as conversant with business as commercial men. The Park Commissioners were given authority to bond land. The owners of land came into their office and said, We understand you have authority to bond our lands for park purposes, for so and so. The commissioners answered yes. Well, said they, are you going to buy it? The commissioners said, We don't know anything about it; we simply have authority to permit you, without any consideration whatever—purely a one-sided movement—to take your bonds for your lands at the prices the assessors fixed last year. If you choose to do it you can do so. The owners say, What advantage are we to receive from it? What authority have you? Mr. Dalton is a fair man, and said, We don't know what advantage it is to you.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Did he say that as one of the Park Commissioners?

Alderman Wilder—I do not know that he said so, but I should say that he would say so.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I do not want the gentleman to draw upon his imagination; I want him to state the facts as they are.

Alderman Wilder—I do not want to draw upon my imagination; but the fact is, the commissioners had authority to bond land without the slightest consideration; and under those circumstances thirty per cent. of the owners did bond their lands. So much for the question; and I believe it is answered. I do not know that I have anything more to say; but I do want to make one single reference to the real pith and the stroug point of my friend's opposition speech. In the first place I must confess myself surprised at hearing such a speech from my friend, because from what I know of him I thought he had enough of the Young America element in his composition not to stand up here and oppose what the people and all his friends ask for; and nothing short of that eloquent speech could have convinced me that he proposed to vote against any such measure. I do not mean to say exactly that he was going to take that order as it is, for I want to put him in the foreground of those who are careful to protect his constituency, even if he votes against parks, and I am quite glad he is here. I expect him to change the bill a little and then vote for it. But to the pith and strong point of that speech. He turned round and told these men [the spectators] that they could not get a single dollar of that money. That was his strong point. I cannot say it is not true. All these people know that before their services can be required this land must be bought, and plans made, and we have got to get ready to give them employment. We have to make the first expenditure of a million dollars; and if the gentleman succeeds in postponing this appropriation to another year it will be still another year before we can get ready to have the work done. Now, why could we not go to work upon that Charles River? It is a most magnificent scheme, and if it came up this year I should not vote for it. That land will not cost one cent. Those sixty-nine acres belong to the city of Boston just when the city of Boston needs them.

I am not ready to vote for it this year because it is not necessary to abate nuisances; but I am ready to go to work upon the points that the Alderman from South Boston has referred to, and also ready to go further. Now, in relation to this one million dollars, the reason the act was defeated in the Legislature was because it was brought in so late in the session that, although it was passed by and unanimously voted in the Senate, it required a four-fifths vote in the House, which it did not receive, although it obtained a very large majority. But it did us no hurt. We could not by any possibility use any part of the money for the developing of park lands if we had got it. We can get ready and we can assure the people of Boston that the City Government of 1877 commenced parks and that it is not ready to subscribe to the doctrine that Boston is destined to be a cemetery. I want it to be done so that it will be safely guarded. I want to do it with such a certainty that if it shall be a failure in the future—which I have no fears of—any man who voted for it may be able to stand up here and defend his vote in favor of this one million of dollars. I appeal to you, my colleagues, to let no differences of opinion upon unimportant points delay this matter. Let no sophistry from my most eloquent friend [Alderman Fitzgerald] change you from your purpose to do your duty. I put it on that high ground. I say that as the representatives of the people of Boston we are conservators of the health of Boston, and it is no less than a solemn duty which we owe to the people to abate this nuisance, even if you don't build parks.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have just listened to one of the most eloquent addresses ever delivered on this floor—but I will not say the most argumentative—on this subject; and the pith of his speech consists in an argument in favor of the Back Bay park, and an appeal to the people who have nothing to pay but a poll tax. He has striven to tickle the poor man who pays nothing but a $2 poll tax by telling him that though he has only $2 to pay he owns four or five hundred thousand dollars; and if he wants to devote a portion of their money not to help, aid and assist them to bread and butter, but to give them an opportunity to bask in green fields, to live during the summer months among luxuries, and drinking not the nectar of the gods, which should be part and parcel of the whole thing, but eating stale bread and cheese. Sir, I am tired, in a republican community like this, of hearing this kind of talk to the laboring men of this city and elsewhere. There never has been a project for the purpose of aggrandizing those who are rich, that the poor laboring man is not made the cat's-paw by which they are to pull the chestnuts out of the national, State or city treasury. It is bringing into this republic the sentiment which obtains in France, and is a fruitful source of revolution there; and it is time that it should be stopped. Here was this public meeting got up, and the people crowded in there. I know how it was got up. I know the true inwardness of these public meetings. They were engineered by men who had land to sell; and I know it. I know it, Mr. Mayor; and I know that when posters are put up around the city of Boston that Rev. Mr. Bodfish and my friend Mr. Collins, and several others were to speak upon the park question, why, of course, that was sufficient to cram and crowd Faneuil Hall. If they were announced to speak upon muzzling dogs it would crowd Faneuil Hall just as much.

That is no criterion at all. The poor people are told that it must be done for their benefit, and a great many are converted by that idea. I do not yield to the gentleman on my left [Alderman Wilder] in my desire to see poor men of this city obtain work and employment; but I should not demean myself by appealing to them by telling them that the money is not coming out of their pockets, but out of the pockets of the rich, who can afford to pay for it. I should not speak of that kind of argument upon the park question. It is not an argument. I repeat it, that not one cent spent for parks this year can go into their pockets, and the commissioners themselves say that the land may be bought and lie idle for a few years. I should like to know how the laboring man is going to get any work out of it. If sewers are a prime necessity, and if they are provided for in a short time, then the laboring man will go to work, and while the city is aiding him it will be providing for the health and wealth of its inhabitants. In looking over the debates in past years I find an argument made by the gentleman opposite [Alderman Clark] in 1875, stating that sewers should claim our attention first. It is so. If I were assessed for 174,896 feet of land on the Back Bay on the east side of Parker street between the estates of the Boston Water Power Company and Aaron Healey, for $52,500, I should see perhaps why there should be a park on the Back Bay; I should see why it is necessary to build a park down in that direction, and see it was more necessary to have a park there than anywhere else; and I should honestly see it. We are sure to be warped in our ideas and judgment by outside and external considerations, and I can well see how a man can be convinced that if his interest lies in one direction that the public will be aided and benefited in that same direction, and I could honestly do it. I am in favor of whatever will add to the material prosperity of the city of Boston. I intend to vote according to the advice given by the Alderman on my left, and I think the best interests of Boston demand that the city should not go into the park scheme at present.

This order is defective in two things. First, the legislative act forbids any park loan for a longer period than ten years. The moment you pass this order it takes itself out of the hands of the City Council to say where this land shall be taken for parks; and I hold that no land should be bought for parks unless we know just where they are to be located. That I consider a fatal defect in this order. I do not intend to reiterate the arguments I made use of the other day when I spoke. I think the argument made use of by the gentleman in relation to the poor men should cease being used in discussing public questions. True, the poor man pays nothing but rent for his house; when there are high rents and taxes, somebody pays for them, and the high rents and taxes are all paid by the laboring men. So long as there are high taxes, so long will there be high rents, so that the rich man may pay them directly into the treasury; but indirectly all of it comes out of the poor man. I say that we are not in a condition to go into this business this year. When we get sewers will be time enough to talk about parks. The sewer question will come up before the park question. The engineers are at work preparing plans, and in a short time we shall have the scheme before us. If the argument that it will benefit the poor man is a strong one for parks, it is much stronger for sewers. I addressed myself to this poor man question because it was made use of in the debate; and I should not have done so had it not been for what others have said.

Alderman Wilder—I am entirely in favor of some system of improved sewerage, and I want to allege right here that I do not believe the sewerage of Boston can be made perfect without the use of a large quantity of water for flushing those sewers. I want to state still further that there is not any place for a water basin but the one to which I have alluded, and that was one of the strongest points in my argument that I left out. Some one asked me, why not flush from Charles River? They forgot that a portion of Charles River is navigable, and that if Boston desired to do it she could not dam up Charles River without the consent of the United States Government. That is impracticable and absurd. I undertake to say that no system of sewerage will be complete without a basin for flushing the sewers every twenty-four hours.

Alderman Clark—The public-park question has been under discussion for so long a time, and so ably presented by the chairman of the Committee on Parks, and by gentlemen who have spoken on the other side, that very little remains to be said upon the subject. But having been an advocate of the establishment of parks from the beginning, I may be pardoned if I occupy a few moments in stating my reasons for voting for the order offered by the majority of the committee. I presume it is unnecessary to say anything in commendation of the work done by the Park Commissioners. The system of parks which they recommend meets with general approbation. Even those who are opposed to establishing parks join in praising the admirable manner in which the commissioners have performed their duty, and I believe, concede that if parks are to be established, no better system could be devised to accommodate all sections of the city. And here, sir, let me say that the plan of the commissioners is not the "impracticable scheme of an enthusiastic artist, existing only on paper," but, as those who like myself have visited the location of the proposed parks well know, it is a scheme which is entirely practicable and needs only the indorsement of the City Council to become a great reality. It is a system complete in detail, comprehensive in its adaptation to the wants of the several sections of the city, and entirely capable of realization. The principal objections brought against the establishment of parks are, First—That their cost would increase the burden of taxation to a disastrous extent, and, secondly, that they are not necessary, from the fact that our present pleasure grounds, together with the beautiful suburbs of the city and the facilities which exist for reaching them, are all-sufficient for our present wants. The cost of parks cannot be definitely stated, for the reason that the expenditures depend entirely upon the discretion of this and future City Councils. We can estimate the original cost of the park territory with a considerable degree of accuracy, but of course its future development and adornment depend upon the action of future City Councils; for it is wholly within the province of the City Council to regulate the sums which shall be expended annually, and thus prevent the tax of any one year becoming onerous or burdensome. The estimates of the cost of parks which are given in the report now before you were undoubtedly prepared with great care, both by the Park Commissioners and the City Engineer; but I believe that the actual cost will fall far short of the estimates. But assuming that the estimates are correct, and that the sum of $9,000,000 will be required, it remains to be considered whether the city can afford the expenditure. In order to ascertain this, the effect upon taxation must be looked at. The majority of the committee went over this part of the subject very carefully, and the result, as stated in the report, was that to pay the principal and interest of a thirty-year loan for the above amount will require an annual tax of eighty-three cents on the thousand on the present assessed valuation of the city, if the bonds were to be issued at one time. But as the bonds will only be issued at such times as the money is needed, the annual tax will only be a little over nine cents on the thousand for each million of the bonds issued. It must be remembered that in this estimate no allowance is made for the revenue arising from betterments and from the increased valuation of property surrounding the parks. I believe, sir, that setting aside the betterments, the city will realize from the increased valuation more than enough to pay the cost of constructing and maintaining all the parks, long before the bonds would become due. Experience elsewhere has shown that parks are sources of public profit. I see no reason why the experience of other cities should not be repeated here. Take, for instance, the facts given in City Document No. 105, 1874. Central Park, commenced in 1857, had cost up to 1874, $13,902,515.60. The increase in valuation in that time (from 1857 to 1874) in the three wards adjacent to the park was 768 per cent.; in the rest of the city 91 per cent. Work was commenced on Prospect Park, Brooklyn, in 1866; the real estate valuation of the city, not including the wards adjacent to the park, increased sixty-two per cent.; the valuation of the wards adjoining the park increased 117 per cent. In Philadelphia, from 1868 to 1874, the real-estate valuation of the city increased twenty-one per cent., while in the neighborhood of Fairmont Park it increased over 400 per cent. In Baltimore the increase in the valuation of the whole city from 1860 to 1874 was sixty-nine per cent.; the increase of the lands adjoining Druid Hill Park was over 400 per cent.

We might go on and multiply instances and figures, but I think that the above showing will satisfy any one that the effect of parks is to greatly increase the valuation of adjoining real estate and throughout the entire city. I see no reason why the same results would not follow the establishment of parks in Boston. If you will look at the commissioners' plan you will see that almost all the locations of the proposed parks are in the midst of property affording eligible building sites and capable of being made the most beautiful portions of our city.

I think that this is particularly the case with the location of the Back Bay Park. It is in this direction alone that the city proper can grow. Every other foot of land is occupied, and unless one desires to go to Roxbury, Dorchester, Brighton or West Roxbury, the Back Bay is the only place available for the building of private residences. We know, sir, how much the improvement of this territory has added to the taxable value of Boston. The figures show that the taxable increase since 1855 has already been over $33,000,000, and this is due entirely to the private enterprise which converted a comparatively valueless territory into a location for some of the finest public and private buildings in Boston. The development of the city in this direction still continues. Even the prevailing hard times have not checked it here as elsewhere. One-half of the new buildings in progress of erection in the city proper are in this locality.

For the information of the Board I would state that there are going up on the Back Bay, between Charles River and the Providence Railroad, buildings which, with the lands, will bear a taxable valuation of over one million dollars—new buildings commenced during the present year. Calling the buildings one half the value, there is an increase of a half a million dollars since the first of January in these dull times.

Now, sir, I believe that if the plan of the commissioners for a park in this locality is carried out it will be a fresh incentive to the growth of this portion of the city, and that the increase of taxable property will counterbalance the cost.

Good judges estimate that on the completion of the Back Bay Park, fifty million feet or eleven hundred acres of land would be bettered at once from five cents to one dollar per foot, making, at a low estimate, an increase in the assessed valuation of $45,000,000. The land comprised in the area, bounded northerly by Beacon street, easterly by Parker street, southerly by Longwood avenue, and westerly by Brookline avenue, contains 16,027,156 square feet. In 1876 the lowest assessed valuation of any of this land was ten cents per foot—the highest, thirty-five cents per foot. Calling the average assessed valuation twenty-five cents per foot, the amount realized by taxation at $12 per 1000 was $48,081.46. A park laid out on this land would increase the valuation of the whole tract at least fifty per cent. the first year, and in fifteen years would show a property valuation of over fifty million dollars, upon which the annual tax would be $600,000. If this amount were put into a sinking fund, the interest on it would in thirty years pay the entire cost of all the parks proposed by the commissioners.

In fact, sir, judging from the experience of other cities, the effect of establishing parks will be to increase the valuation of real estate to such an extent that the parks will not only cost us nothing, but will actually yield a revenue to the city. I believe that in a pecuniary point of view the establishment of parks will prove one of the most profitable enterprises ever undertaken by the city, to say nothing of the sanitary benefits which will accrue and the advantages of recreation and amusement which will be afforded to our citizens.

Statistics have been presented to show that property in this city is depreciating, that our commercial interests are declining, and that the burden of taxation is already more than the people can bear. I do not believe that the facts will bear out the statements. I venture to say that there has been no real estate, situated in eligible localities, sold for less than the assessed valuation. The sale of estate No. 330 Beacon street was cited as an instance of this depreciation. This estate contained 5000 feet of land, assessed at $4 a foot, and a three-story octagon front and rear brick building, assessed for $26,500, making the total assessed valuation $46,500. The estate sold for $43,650, or $2850 less than the assessed valuation. All persons familiar with real estate will see at once that the land brought more than its assessed valuation, and that the depreciation was on the building. We know that building materials are fifty per cent., if not more, lower than when the building in question was erected, and it brought its fair market value at present cost prices. It is not to be supposed that any one will pay $50,000 for a house when he can build one equally good for $30,000, and if builders erect buildings in advance of the demand and on a falling market, and fail to realize, it is not an evidence of a depreciation in the value of real estate. The building alluded to has since been resold for $45,000, so that real estate on the Back Bay has already commenced to jump upward.

Wharf property has not held its value owing to the decrease in the number of sailing vessels employed in our trade. The conditions which once rendered our wharves valuable, no longer exist. Our commerce has increased, but steamers have taken the place of the sailing vessels which once lined our wharves. When it is remembered that one steamer has the carrying capacity of almost thirty sailing vessels, and occupies only as much wharf room as two good-sized schooners, the reason for the decline in wharf property is obvious. Boston has today no more dwelling houses fit for habitation than are sufficient for the wants of its population. It is one of the most densely populated cities in the United States. It contains 42,748 dwelling houses and 75,446 families. Deduct the vacant dwelling houses, and we have nearly two families to a house. There are 8.46 persons to a dwelling. Philadelphia has six persons to a dwelling. If our people lived like the Philadelphians we should require 60,000 dwelling houses to accommodate them. One reason which partly accounts for the number of unoccupied dwelling houses is the taste for living in family hotels, which has developed rapidly within the past few years. Another reason is the fact that during the mania for speculative building which prevailed a few years ago, a great many cheap houses, unfit for habitation, were erected in undesirable localities. These buildings would not be occupied under any circumstances, and instead of being evidence of a depreciation in real estate, they are really monuments of the folly of the savings banks who furnished irresponsible parties the money with which to build them. The fact is, that ninety-five per cent. of the dwelling houses in Boston are occupied today, and the number of new buildings which are now being erected indicates that the supply does not exceed the demand.

I find that the actual prices paid are so close to the assessed values of 1875 and 1876 that a fair average would just about sustain the Assessors. The real loss and discrepancy occurs in the value of the buildings on the land, but if the same land were now vacant new buildings could in almost every instance be erected at so much less price than the original structures cost that the assessed value of the land would be sustained by the sales. As regards sales of store property on the burnt district, what few actual sales are recorded are just about the values placed on them by the Assessors of last year (1876).

The two stores on South-Market-street extension—

1. Sold one in September, 1876, at.....	$49,700
Was assessed in May, 1876, at.....	41,000
	$8,700
2. Another sold in December, 1876, at.....	$41,700
Was assessed in May, 1876, at.....	40,000
	$1,700

Purchaser to pay taxes of 1876 in addition to the $1700.

The lot of land sold on South street, corner of Summer, was assessed at $23 per foot, and sold for about $38. The lot corner of Channing and Federal, which sold last week at $18 per foot, was assessed in 1876 at $15 per foot. I find also that in the Roxbury, Highland and South Boston districts, estates of moderate cost have in almost every instance sustained the Assessors. The great shrinkage is in high-cost city and suburban buildings. I have taken no note of sales made under mortgage orders, as they are really no criterion of true market value. I also find that in the real centre of the city (or the burnt district) at present but few desirable stores are vacant, and those are at the extreme limit (as Fort Hill or Lincoln street) of the circle. I am told by the leading real-estate brokers that it is extremely difficult to purchase any desirable improved store property in a good location at anything like its assessed value, many investors being willing to buy if they can be assured of say five per cent. return on their investment.

The chairman of the Committee on Parks has given you a statement of the amount which has been expended for some of the improvements made necessary by the growth of the city. The cost of these improvements has been a heavy tax upon our citizens, but I believe that our resources have increased in proportion to our expenditures. A favorite argument with the opponents of the park scheme is, that real estate in the city is in such a terrible condition that owners are unable to pay the taxes and carry their mortgages, that savings banks are compelled to foreclose, and that the estates when sold do not bring an amount equal to the mortgages. Let the facts given in the report of the City Collector show that the percentage of unpaid and uncollectable taxes is no higher now than it was in 1869, and is much lower than it was previous to the war. It is being reduced every year. The amount of unpaid and uncollectable taxes Sept. 1, 1876, was stated to have been $391,746.25, but it has been reduced to $69,000, and collections have not stopped. Another significant fact is that we have yet to find a case where real estate has irredeemably passed out of the owners' hands on account of non-payment of taxes.

The fact is, all business men are aware that the outlook is brighter than it has been for years, and the feeling in business circles is that the long-continued season of depression is over, and we have entered upon prosperous times once more. During the quarter ending April 1, 1876, there were in Boston one hundred and fourteen failures, with liabilities amounting to $6,157,000; for the quarter ending April 1, 1877, there were thirty-one failures, with liabilities amounting to $1,059,000. This shows a falling off of about seventy-five per cent. in the number of failures, and a decrease of about five-sixths in the amount of liabilities. I take from the Commercial Bulletin the following statement:

"BOSTON COMMERCE. There are some features of the foreign commerce of Boston which are deserving of a passing notice, most of them being of an encouraging nature. Perhaps the pleasantest of these is the steady increase in our import trade. During the first twenty weeks of the current year the imports at this port have amounted in value to $18,123,015. In the corresponding weeks of 1876 the imports were valued at only $14,348,534. A comparison shows the increase to have been $3,774,481, or nearly $200,000 a week. This is a gain of more than twenty-five per cent., while new York, on the contrary, with all her boasted facilities, finds an increase in her imports thus far this year of less than a million, in a total of $128,000,000—less than one per cent. Our exports of leading lines of merchandise are also steadily increasing. In the month of April, 1877, there was exported from Boston $345,500 worth of raw cotton, against $117,648 for the same month in 1876. The exports of manufactured cotton goods in April of this year amounted in value to $238,514, a considerable increase upon last year. Our exports of refined petroleum show a large increase, being $132,500 in April, 1877, against $51,000 worth in April, 1876. The exports of many other articles show a similar increase. On some accounts the increase in imports is of more importance, because it demonstrates an enlarged market and the growing importance of this port as a distributing point."

I am satisfied that the establishment of parks will be an advantage to the business interests of the city, by making it attractive to merchants from abroad. Every business man knows the effect of Central Park in this respect. Purchasers coming East are often attracted to New York by the desire to visit that beautiful garden. Boston loses a considerable amount annually on this account. Our merchants appreciate the situation, and you will find the strongest advocates of parks among the representatives of our commercial interests. The names of many of our leading firms appear upon the petition in favor of parks, as will appear by the following list, containing the names of forty-seven firms:

George C. Richardson & Co., Jordan, Marsh & Co., Parker, Wilder & Co., Upham, Tucker & Co., Wright, Bliss & Fabyan, E. R. Mudge, Sawyer & Co., Morse, Shepard & Co., Pingree, Woods & Clark, Wheelwright, Anderson & Co., C. F. Hovey & Co., Hogg, Brown & Taylor, J. L. Bremer, Brother & Co., William Claffin & Co., E. & A. H. Batchelder, Jenkins Lane & Sons, Field, Thayer & Co., James O. Safford & Co., Clement, Colburn & Co., Coon, Crocker & Co., John B. Alley & Co., Whitten, Burdett & Young, Macular, Williams & Parker, Miner, Beal & Hackett, Isaac Fenno & Co., Beard, Moulton & Daniels, G. W. Simmons & Co., Harris, Chipman & Co., Lord, Whittemore & Putney, Baldwin, Botume & Co., Baldwin, Farnum & Shapleigh, Fishers & Chapin, Rice, Kendall & Co., Abram French & Co., J. H. Chadwick & Co., Palmer, Bachelder & Co., Lewis Colman & Co., Denny, Rice & Co., Fairbanks, Brown & Co., J. R. Osgood & Co., Converse, Stanton & Davis, Chase & Co., H. & J. Pfaff, Laforme & Frothingham, G. Tuckerman & Co., William Bond & Son, Howard Snelling & Co., Naylor & Co.

The names of some individuals have been referred to by Alderman Wilder, and I find among the petitions for parks presented to the Board last year one containing 6739 names of citizens in favor of parks alone, and also another containing 549 for parks alone. In addition to that are petitions containing the names of three or four thousand persons asking for the establishment of parks and improved sewerage.

Now, Mr. Mayor, it has been stated here, publicly and earnestly, that no one but land speculators are in favor of parks, and that the public at large do not require them. Now let us see who are these land speculators and land grabbers. We find one petition headed by Peter C. Brooks, Martin Brimmer, F. Gordon Dexter, Edward Brooks, George H. Kuhn, George P. Upham, Royal E. Robbins and 150 other names of like character which I have taken the pains to copy from these petitions; and 150 names among those 6000 petitioners represent property worth $150,000,000. On one of these petitions is Barney Corey, who has a park in front of his estate, and whose firm probably pays the largest amount of taxes—taking the whole concern—paid by the members of any firm in the city. That is the class of men who are represented to this Board of Aldermen as being land speculators. I do not believe that there is on this entire petition a single individual who will be benefited by the laying out of parks. Among the signers is Nathaniel P. Bradlee, the late candidate for Mayor of Boston. Most likely the citizens, understanding that it was necessary to have a candidate for Mayor who was in favor of parks, took the precaution to nominate Mr. Bradlee, knowing that the opposing candidate was in favor of parks also; so that on two occasions at Faneuil Hall and in the late elections the people have given evidence that they are in favor of public parks.

The next question is, Do we need public parks, or are our present facilities sufficient for the wants of the people? Within the last twenty years public opinion in this country has been awakening to a sense of the importance of procuring in all large cities open spaces for air and exercise, both as a sanitary measure and as affording to the inhabitants the means for rational enjoyment, which the conditions of city life do not otherwise permit. The necessity of providing such "breathing spaces" has been so strongly felt, that in many cities they have been furnished at much greater cost than would have been necessary had the necessity been sooner understood and anticipated. Experience has shown that the great advantage which a town finds in a park lies in the addition to the health, strength and morality which comes from it to the people, an advantage which is not only in itself very great and positive, but which as certainly results in an increase of material wealth as good harvests or active commerce. The reason is obvious: all wealth is the result of labor; individual wealth is, on the whole, increased by the labor of the community; Labor is an expenditure of force, and it follows that without recuperation and recreation of force the ability of each individual to labor is diminished and his power to add to the wealth of the community is lost. This recuperation and recreation can only be obtained by presenting to the senses and imagination scenes entirely different to those with which they are daily associated. The increasing intense intellectual activity incidental to city life makes recreation more and more necessary. Hence the resident of the city finds in rural life that stimulus and recuperation which his tired senses demand, and it is the object of parks to place within the reach of every citizen, however humble, these means of relief which otherwise only those who have been favored by fortune could enjoy. Now, sir, I maintain that this is just what is needed in this city. Boston, usually so progressive in all things which relate to the moral and educational improvement of its citizens, is singularly behind the age in this respect. In or near London there are 10,718 acres of public parks. Dublin has 1752 acres; Liverpool, 190 acres; the Prater Garden in Vienna contains 1500 acres; Schöbrunn, near Vienna, contains 711 acres; the garden at Versailles, 3000 acres; the Bois de Boulogne, 2158 acres; St. Petersburg has 350 acres; Berlin, 200 acres; Munich, 500 acres; New York, 996 acres; Brooklyn, 900 acres; Philadelphia, 2700 acres; Baltimore, 680 acres; Cincinnati, about 1000 acres; Chicago, about 2700 acres; Providence, 430 acres; while Boston has only about 76 acres. How insignificant does this appear beside other municipalities, and yet the conditions which render parks necessary are the same here as elsewhere. I know that in answer to this it will be said that the suburbs of Boston are parks in themselves, and that the facilities for reaching them are within the means of every citizen; but how long will this continue? We know that the rural line is yearly becoming more distant from the centre of population. We know the changes which have taken place within the last twenty years, and we can easily predict what the next twenty will bring forth. There are those, however, who, I am sorry to say, have no faith in the future of Boston; who believe that she has reached her growth and will henceforward remain stationary. I regret that such views were entertained by the majority in past years, and the heavy expenditures which we have been compelled to make for improvements, rendered necessary by our continued growth, is the consequence of their short-sightedness. Let us not repeat the mistakes of our forefathers.

Boston will continue to grow. A great city is a maelstrom, which continually draws in the population of the surrounding country. I believe that the Boston of today is only a nucleus of the Boston that is to be, and that what we now term our suburbs are destined to be the most densely populated portions of the city. Then, sir, if we fail to avail ourselves of the opportunities now within our reach, we or our successors will have reason to lament our folly and short-sightedness. But to what extent do our beautiful suburbs meet the wants of those by whom public parks are more especially needed—the working classes in the community? What relaxation, what enjoyment, can they find in walking along our country roads and gazing at pleasures which they are forbidden to enjoy? Is there anything of the freedom, the sense of possession, which is felt by even the humblest citizen when visiting the people's pleasure ground—a public park? I believe not, sir, and I think that to argue against the establishment of parks on the ground that the suburbs of the city are beautiful is to show a misconception of the object of parks and a failure to appreciate the wants of the people.

Other cities possessing equal facilities for reaching their suburbs and the neighboring seashore resorts have found it expedient to establish parks. New York, for instance, possesses better facilities than Boston, and yet in a paragraph from a New York paper quoted in his remarks at the last meeting of the Board by the chairman of the Committee on Parks, we are told that on a certain afternoon "thousands of toil-worn men and women were enjoying the verdant meadows and shady walks of Central Park." Why did not these men and women avail themselves of the facilities provided for them and go to Coney Island or Jones's Wood, and thus disprove the theory that a public park is the people's pleasure ground?

It is for the toil-worn men and women of our own city that we are asked to provide parks; and from whom does the request come? One of the most remarkable facts in connection with the park question is that the petitions in favor of the project are signed by persons who will have to pay the largest proportion of the expense, and who will derive the least direct benefit from it. Let me read you some names taken at random from the petitions in favor of parks. From the names of those I have read it will be seen that the names of some of our heaviest taxpayers are upon this list. Most of them own country seats, and are absent from the city during the months when the advantages of parks are the most freely enjoyed. It cannot be said that they are animated by any selfish motive. I venture to say that not one of them owns a foot of land which will be needed for park purposes. They are not land speculators, anxious to get rid of their land, but far-seeing, public-spirited citizens, who are desirous that Boston should have all the advantages possessed by other leading cities of this country.

I believe the establishment of parks to be a peculiarly popular work. The rich do not need them. They can surround their houses with beautiful grounds. They can have parks of their own. The public parks are for the people, for the masses of the people. They are places where the artisan, the laborer and the poor seamstress can seek rest and recreation with a free sense of ownership. I believe that they are necessary; that the money expended upon them will be wisely invested, and that as the years roll on and the spread of population and demands of trade invade the most retired places in our city, we shall congratulate ourselves upon the provident foresight which secured to us and our descendants the inestimable benefits of public parks.

Mr. Mayor, in my official course as a member of this Board, I have upon several occasions expressed myself in favor of public parks. I have spoken upon the question freely, and without reserve, and I desire not to stand before the public as a man of no opinions, or a man of such mixed opinions that the result has no character at all. On the contrary, I desire to stand as one bound to his principles by the frankest avowal of his sentiments on all important and interesting subjects involving the growth and prosperity of our city. I am not partly for and partly against parks; I am wholly and altogether in favor of them.

I disdain altogether the character of an uncommitted man upon a subject of such vital importance. Our action today may affect the welfare of all New England, for upon the action of this City Council depends whether the metropolis of New England shall be made the most beautiful and attractive city in America, or whether we shall allow the opportunity to pass and let future generations suffer for our want of comprehending the necessities of a rapidly growing city. I am committed against anything and everything which will interfere with our maintaining our position as the second commercial city in the country and which will prevent Boston from becoming what she ought to be, the first.

I am committed in favor of such a system of sewerage as will, in connection with public parks, improve the health of the city. I am committed in favor of such improvements as will afford the most ample railroad and shipping facilities from and to all sections of the country. And I am committed, unalterably committed, in favor of the capitalists, the owners of real estate and the business men of Boston, doing what the same class of people in Baltimore and Philadelphia have done with such great advantage to those cities, viz., the establishing of a line of railroad to the West and South, which will be entirely in the interests of Boston. These, Mr. Mayor and gentlemen, are my opinions. They are not the sentiments of the moment, but the result of much reflection and of some experience in our municipal affairs. I believe them to be such sentiments as are compatible with the future growth and prosperity of Boston.

Alderman Slade—I feel almost ashamed to get up here and attempt to make any remarks after listening to the speeches we have had upon this subject. When I say that I am committed to parks I don't exactly mean it; but my former action would indicate that, inasmuch as I voted for parks, and was one of a majority in about 5000 votes in favor of them, and why the people are so indifferent upon so vital a question as that as not to take the trouble to go to the polls and vote at all, I have always been at a loss to know. It is very easy for men to grumble and complain at what others do, especially if they do wrong. As I said before, when I voted for parks I had little thought I should be placed in so tight a spot as I am now. At the same time, I am going to stand up to the rack when the time comes. I was in the City Government at the time the question of the Public Garden came before us. I voted for that and was abused for it afterwards by people living in that vicinity. I have never regretted it, and I do not believe there is a man in the city today who would give his vote to do away with the Public Garden and use it for the purposes that the people then thought that it should be used for. We are all thankful to our ancestors for saving a portion of the land of the city which is now called Boston Common. That ground is getting to be almost too sacred to step upon. At the same time who would lift his finger to use one spot of it permanently. I believe myself that something should be done in the direction of parks. I don't believe that this whole system will ever be swallowed by any City Government, and that it has got to be done in smaller parcels than it is brought before us in. The Committee on Parks have given us three reports, and I doubt that if it should be referred to the whole Board of Aldermen if we would not have twelve separate reports, and that none of us would agree. I regret one thing that I have heard in this Board so many times, and that is what seems to me to be a uncombed appeal to the poor people of the city. I am sorry that there is a man in the city of Boston who feels that he must come to the City Government for employment. I wish every man would be more independent. The laborer who comes to the city for help and labor, and the man who comes here and asks to be put upon the police, or to hold any position under the City Government, has at that moment lost his manhood. The pay is not much and they spend almost all they earn, and after laboring fifteen or twenty years they find themselves poor men. I advise almost every man, whether young or old, to keep his hands off the City Government. I regret that so much has been said which seems to encourage laboring men to depend upon the city for bread and butter. Now, Mr. Mayor, I am not ready at this time to vote for this bill. I do not like it, and if I must vote tonight I shall vote against it; and I do not want to do that. I think this Board ought to take more time and consider this subject well, and do something besides turning it over to another City Government. I am ready to vote by and by if some plan can be matured, which I think will not only be satisfactory to us but to all our people. I have not seen a man among my constituents who is satisfied with the bill as it is; nor have I seen a man who would be satisfied to have it carried over to another year. Almost everybody thinks something should be done. Now with these few remarks I am going to move that the further consideration of the subject be postponed for four weeks; and in the meantime it seems to me we can consult about it, come here, and perhaps do something to make a start upon this subject.

Alderman Robinson—If the gentleman will withdraw his motion for a moment, I should like to offer an amendment for the consideration of this part.

Alderman Slade—I will withdraw. I don't wish to stop the debate at the present time.

Alderman Robinson—I will read the amendment which I have offered.

Add to the order the following: "That the amount be used for the purchase of the Back Bay Park, so called, the West Roxbury Park, so called, and the South Bay Park, so called, and no money be expended for the park driveways."

Alderman Wilder—We are fast approaching the midsummer heat. I do not mean to say that we can do much that will do any good, but it seems to me that four weeks is a little too long. Would the Alderman modify his motion by making it two weeks from today? I believe we can get about as much information upon that subject in two weeks as in four.

Alderman Slade—This is a subject of immense magnitude, and I am in no hurry. We have got six months of the year left, and there is no hurry about taking action. I have no axes to grind. I have no interest in lands anywhere that will be affected by this matter, and I want to take time enough. I don't think four weeks will be any too long, and if we are not any better united then than we are today, let it go four weeks longer. Let us do something this year.

Alderman Wilder—I entirely subscribe to what the Alderman says. I am perfectly aware that no member of this Board has axes to grind or laud to sell. The thought of that did not come into my mind. But I will tell you what I did think. Usually the summer vacation of the Council comes shortly after the 1st of July, and any one who has watched the legislation of the Council will find that very little important work is done just before the vacation. The Council is a larger body than this Board, and they will want their own time to consider the subject. I fear it will not receive full consideration before the vacation, but will come up next fall, and, like many other matters, stand a chance of having done with it just what the Alderman says he does not want done—laid over to some other City Government. That was my only purpose in making the suggestion. If we can be sure of action in four weeks, and can dispose of it before vacation, I am satisfied.

Alderman O'Brien—I am satisfied that if the matter is left as it now is, and if a postponement of four weeks is made, we shall start precisely where we left off without gaining one inch in advance upon this measure. My idea is that there are certain men in this Board who believe in the entire scheme; that there are certain other men who believe in no parks at all and will vote against them; that there are certain men who believe in some portion of the plan, and these are the men that I want to stand up here and say precisely what they want. There are enough in this Board to carry a park measure if the men who advocate some portion of the plan will stand up and state precisely what they want; and they will find that the majority who believe in parks as a whole will go with them and put this measure through. Now I should like to have this matter left in this way; if we are to consider it one, two, three, or four weeks, I want a committee selected from the men who have stood up here and said that they believe in one portion of this park scheme, and I want them appointed a sub-committee to consider the matter and to come in here and tell us precisely what they want, if they can agree among themselves. Then we can come to some conclusion. Unless we can appoint a committee of gentlemen who are in favor of some part of the scheme, we will make no further advance than we will have made when we leave off. I don't know whether it is my fortune or my misfortune that I don't own a foot of land on the Back Bay, so that my judgment would be warped in relation to a park. I do not know whether it is my fortune or misfortune that I do not own a foot of land in South Boston, and like my friend from South Boston do not live in any neighborhood where a park is to be established. I do not know whether it is my fortune or misfortune to live a long distance from the West Roxbury Park or any other park. Still, I will stand up here and advocate the whole scheme because I believe in it, and I do not care what speculator or landholder is benefited by it. I believe it is a scheme that will add to the wealth and prosperity of the city, and that alone is the reason why I advocate it.

The remarks of the Alderman from the Highlands [Alderman Fitzgerald] conveyed the impression that the Park Commissioners in their report admitted that parks are a luxury, and are not to be classed with water and sewerage. This, it appears to me, places the commissioners in a wrong position, because their report is based almost exclusively on the necessity of parks. On page 4 of their report we find the following:

"The commissioners have felt that the Back and South Bay parks were, in fact, matters of prime necessity, rather than choice, in a sanitary sense, and that no suburban parks, however beautiful and extensive, would at all compensate, either now or in future years, for the want of open spaces in these low and dangerous localities, bordering as they do upon the most densely inhabited parts of the city."

They regard parks as a necessity, and it is on that basis that their whole report is written. Again, on page 9—

"One of the strongest objections has been that Boston at this time should not increase its debt for any purpose not absolutely necessary. We think that the necessity exists from a sanitary point of view, and that the experience of other cities proves that the question of cost need not stand in the way of immediate action."

They appeal to the citizens of Boston wholly because it is a measure of necessity. Again, on page 5—

"The scheme thus briefly outlined includes the two systems, urban and suburban, the former having water fronts on the harbor and the river, with intermediate parks; the whole designed mainly with reference to the requirements of the public health, but valuable also for the daily pleasure of the citizens; the latter, selected more with reference to the recreation of the people, will also, as the city grows, become essential to the health of the population then living in their vicinity. Referring to sanitary considerations, always paramount to such as are purely financial, the report of 1874 says, 'Nothing is so costly as sickness and disease; nothing so cheap as health. Whatever promotes the former is the worst sort of extravagance; whatever fosters the latter is the truest economy.'"

"The requirements of the public health," Mr. Mayor. If that is not a necessity I should like to know what a necessity is? Again on page 29, we find—

"The report on the sewerage of Boston (City Doc. No. 3, 1876, page 15) refers to this Back Bay region as follows:

"Between Dorchester Bay and Charles River we have a surface a thousand rods long, about half as deep at its widest part, and only six feet above extreme high tide. If this territory should be largely occupied by houses of an inferior class, thorough sewerage, at best a difficult matter, would be made even more so. A reservation of land, therefore, especially with an open water basin, as proposed by the late Governor Andrew, could not fail to be of great benefit to the city, in a sanitary point of view."

That, Mr. Mayor, is an expression of our great Sewerage Commission who made a report last year. No matter what is done in sewerage, if the Back Bay territory is allowed to grow up in a certain way sewerage cannot save them. I hope the chairman of the Committee on Improved Sewerage will take that into consideration. Again the commissioners, in referring to the Back Bay, say—

"This belt of land and water forever to be kept open, over which the prevailing winds of summer must pass before entering the town, cannot but have a good sanitary influence upon all that part of the old city lying to the eastward. A sufficiently broad opening has been made to Charles River to insure the free circulation of air at the northern end."

Now, after these positive statements of the Park Commissioners as to the necessity of parks, and also the extract given by them from the sewerage report, sustaining their position, let me give you the quotation from the report selected by Alderman Fitzgerald, to show that they look upon parks, as he looks upon them, as luxuries:

"In a limited sense, expenditures for parks are like those made for ornamental architecture and domestic decorations, and for amusements, theatres, music halls and other luxuries appertaining to modern city life; though, unlike these, the enjoyment of parks is freely shared by the whole community."

In a limited sense all great improvements are luxuries. The narrow-gauge road described so eloquently by the Alderman, as answering all the purposes of parks, running down to Revere Beach and conveying our crowded citizens to a spot where they can breathe fresh air, is a luxury. I have tried it and found it so from experience. I am afraid, however, that he has looked into this narrow-gauge road so much that it has warped his judgment, and that in consequence he fails to see in the well-developed scheme of the Park Commissioners something more worthy of the wealthiest city on this continent.

The Alderman has given us the number of unoccupied houses, but he fails to make a comparison with previous years. Let me do it for him. The number of houses in Boston and the number unoccupied on the 1st of May for a number of years have been as follows:

	Houses.	Vacant houses.	Valuation of vacant houses.
1876.....	39,804	2,159	$11,782,700
1875.....	39,707	2,008	13,436,700
1874.....	39,106	1,626	10,704,000
1873.....	30,461	1,423	10,704,300
1872.....	29,736	1,253	9,265,600
1871.....	28,880	971	6,358,950
1870.....	27,457	812	7,684,800

It will be seen that the percentage of vacant houses does not vary materially. In fact, in May, 1876, the date at which the last count was made, the value of vacant houses was only $11,782,000, against a valuation at the same time in 1875 of $13,436,000, and the percentage was less in 1876 than the percentage of valuation for the previous four years. I believe it is due to the best interests of the city to make this comparison, because if the vacant houses are given for one year, solitary and alone, without a comparison with previous years, it conveys a wrong impression. This year, as near as I can learn from reports of the Police Department and from real-estate brokers, the number of vacant houses is less than last year. In all large and growing cities there must of necessity be more or less vacant houses, and the percentage appears to me small—only about five per cent. It certainly is not large enough to make capital of, or to show to the business world outside of Boston that we are going behindhand. Now, Mr. Mayor, as I stated when I arose, I believe we shall make no progress unless the gentlemen who are in favor of some portion of this scheme will be appointed a special committee to consider this matter during the one, two, or three weeks that they ask for. I should like to see—if I may be allowed to say so—Alderman Slade, Alderman Robinson and Alderman Thompson made a special committee of this Board to let us know what portion of this scheme they will go for; and then I believe we can do something. But if we postpone this matter for four weeks we shall come in here and start precisely where we began. I should make that amendment, Mr. Mayor, if it is in order, that the three Aldermen I named be a special committee to consider this matter, for one, two or three weeks if they desire, and make a report to this Board.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I am sorry that the few remarks which I made last Monday should have been the cause of so much uneasiness to the gentlemen who are in favor of public parks, or that the Park Commissioners should have been hurt because I quoted from their report. I quoted from their report, not because I thought they were any better judges whether parks were luxuries or necessities, than any other members of this Board or any citizen of Boston; but I quoted it as tending to confirm the opinion that I had formed in relation to parks. I still maintain that they are luxuries, and are not absolutely necessary to promote health and comfort as are water and sewerage in any large city. I was reading yesterday a very interesting article in a paper called the Nineteenth Century, published in London, in which was an essay upon contagious diseases, and, as tending to show how necessary drainage is to a city, it was stated that some years ago disinfectants were put into some of the main sewers of the city of London. The sewerage was so bad in all that section of the city that the disinfectant was perceptible in every house. It showed that the effluvia and gassy substances from the drains of the city are communicated to the air in every house, and that they fill the air which the people breathe, and of course must necessarily breed malarial fever, from which death will ensue. No such argument as that can be brought as tending to show the necessity of parks. I maintain, still, that parks are a luxury, and that with all their bias in favor of parks, the confession of the commissioners that parks are a luxury in a limited sense is a good confession from them. Now, what is the argument made use of to show the necessity of parks? There is a place called the Back Bay and another place called the South Bay which are in a terrible condition so far as drainage is concerned—ergo, parks are necessary. Because Back Bay and South Bay are in a bad condition, ergo, as an abstract question, parks are a prime necessity. There is no reasoning in it. It only shows that the Back Bay and South Bay are in a bad condition. It does not prove that parks are a prime necessity for the city of Boston. I mean parks in the abstract, and am not speaking of parks in any particular location. Now, the Alderman from the Highlands speaks of the number of occupied houses in the city, and he tells us that Boston is not in such a terrible condition. If his statistics are true, they show that the number of empty, vacant houses has been increasing for the last five years, and he gives what will probably be the result of this year. I wish he had voted for the order which I proposed, so that he could have had the information without any approximate estimate. But, sir, the number of vacant houses does not show a deterioration of the property in the city of Boston. I appeal to every man here who owns property and ask him how many tenants pay their rent? I do not own a large amount of property, but I know that the little I do own does not pay me three per cent. after paying the expenses and repairs. And I am sure that last year it did not pay that. It is in South Boston, and is nearly all occupied. I appeal to the Alderman who comes from that section, who owns houses to some extent, whether real estate pays three per cent.

Alderman Burnham—Two.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It don't pay but two per cent. I appeal to the Alderman on my left [Alderman Wilder], and he will tell you that he owns some houses that have not paid him a dollar, because the people could not pay their rent. Never was Boston in such a terrible condition as it is today. Rents have gone down and are as low as they were before the war. You can hire a house today as cheaply as you could before the war; and although you let it as low as that you are not sure you are going to receive your month's rent. That has been my experience, and it has been the experience of the Aldermen to my right and left. I do not know what has been the experience of my friend opposite [Alderman Thompson]. He bows his head, which indicates that it is his experience, and I venture to say that it is the experience of every man who owns real estate in the city of Boston. Now, while our population has increased one hundred per cent. since 1860, our taxation has increased 206 per cent. That is the condition of the city of Boston, and that is why I am opposed to any park scheme, when this sewerage question has come upon us in order to drive miasma from the Back Bay and South Bay. But there is one thing I took special notice of in connection with this park question. The only person who took any notice of it was the Alderman from the Dorchester District. If Boston is to have a park that will be a benefit to the citizens, it should be the one proposed in Roxbury, and I was surprised that the gentleman who so ably advocated parks for the future health and happiness of the people of Boston, if he wished to behold the poor man starting out with his lunch in order that he may sit under his own vine and fig tree, so that he can call it his own, even if he cannot have paid for it, according to the argument of my friend on the left; I am surprised that they did not select the pleasantest place for a poor man's park—a place where they could ride or walk to commune with nature, and not with brick walls or mortar; where it would be a park indeed. I am surprised that nobody advocated what is the only park in the city of Boston where a man could walk in the cool of the evening. The only gentleman who has referred to it is my friend from the Dorchester District [Alderman Robinson]. I mean the West Roxbury Park, which is the only place in the city of Boston approachable by horse cars. The Metropolitan and Highland cars go right up close to it, and I am astonished that anybody advocated it but my friend from Dorchester. It seems to be the only location that approaches anything like Central Park, and yet, with all the anxiety which the advocates of parks have exhibited for amusing and instructing the people and giving them an opportunity to see nature improve by art, you never would have heard of it but for the Alderman opposite. The advocates of a park go down to the sickly district of the Back Bay and select a place for the poor man to eat his lunch and look over upon the $75,000 houses and envy the people who live inside of them. That is a surprising thing to me. The West Roxbury Park can wait for a long time to come, they say; the other places can wait for a long time; but this sickly place down there must be bought. Nature must be seen in that mud; there is the place for the poor man to go for recreation and amusement. It struck me very forcibly that if I were an advocate of parks I should certainly advocate the scheme selected by the Alderman from Dorchester as affording the only place that will cost less to purchase and improve. Nobody thinks of that except my friend from Dorchester. Now, Mr. Mayor, I suppose that if the gentlemen who are in favor want a postponement of this matter, they will have it. They are a majority of this Board, I presume. But if they have any scheme, would it not be better to give it here, so that we shall know something about what is going to be done, and that we may have it to think over during the next three or four weeks? I am more particular myself, because, if the park bill is going through, I wish to put in some amendments, in order to perfect it as nearly as I can. As a member of this Board, I suppose I have a right to do that. I intended to offer an order—

"That the Park Commissioners be requested to report to this Board the probable cost of the land to be used for the Back Bay Park, West Roxbury Park and the South Bay Park; also the probable cost of draining, filling and ornamenting said parks, and putting them in proper order to be used."

I think that is a legitimate subject to be inquired into in connection with this order. We ought to know how much it will cost—not only the lands, but the putting of the thing in such a condition as will make it pleasing to the eye and inviting to the poor persons for whom it is intended.

Alderman Clark—I am very glad to see that we are making some progress. I am glad to see that the Alderman from Ward 20 is in favor of public parks in some sections of the city. After one or two meetings I hope we shall be able to hear what he wants. He asks why the West Roxbury Park has not been recommended by the advocates of parks. Simply because the subject was recommended and recommended again, and he would have seen it if he had read the report. He would find that it has presented itself to the majority of the committee and that the advocacy of it here was not considered necessary. Mr. Mayor, the legal voters of Boston have declared in favor of a system of public parks. The only question is, where shall they be located? The commissioners have recommended certain localities, and among others are parks on the Back Bay and South Bay. They have given most excellent reasons for them, and they have been advocated by some members of this Board besides myself. And it has been shown that in these localities the increase of taxable property would in a very few years pay for the construction of the entire system of public parks. That, perhaps, is the only reason why the Back Bay and South Bay parks have been placed before this Board more prominently than the West Roxbury Park has been. The latter is a public park already. Very little money needs to be spent upon that locality to make a magnificent park. But the filling up of a territory like the Back Bay and the South Bay requires more explanation than perhaps the establishment of the park in West Roxbury or in Bussey Woods. I don't wish the fact to be lost sight of that the majority of the committee are in favor of adopting the entire system as recommended by the Park Commissioners, and are ready to vote for the entire project, or are ready to vote for the amendment offered by the Alderman from Dorchester, if that is all that can be done, although I should hope he would include the surroundings of Jamaica Pond. Now the building of this sewer which the Alderman is so anxious about, does not relieve the Back Bay and South Bay territory of the nuisance which exists over an area of 1000 acres at least. It will not improve the territory to such an extent as to disinfect the foul air from those thousand acres of marsh and flats, which are a disgrace to the city. That can be remedied, in my opinion, by just what the Park Commissioners have recommended—commencing this improvement which will lead individual enterprise to fill up that entire property, and making that 1000 acres become what the Back Bay, bounded by the Charles River, Arlington street and Dartmouth street, has been made by private enterprise.

Now, the Public Garden and the Common are guarded jealously by the citizens of Boston; and well they may be, for there is no spot of their size in this or any other country that is more beautiful. As I walked across them this morning the thought struck me, for what amount of money would the people of Boston part with that spot? I do not believe the people would part with the Common and Public Garden for twice the amount of the debt of the city, even calling it $44,000,000; and when we reflect that those areas which we propose to take in the Back Bay and South Bay may be made as beautiful as the Common and Public Garden and their surroundings, I submit to this Board whether, while all the facts that can be obtained go to show that the improvement in the surrounding territory would pay for this improvement within the space of fifteen or twenty years, in the increase of the taxable valuation of the property, to say nothing of the betterments—I submit whether it is not a subject upon which we ought not to take immediate action. But, as I said before, I am not quite sure but that the Alderman is coming around in favor of public parks. I hope we shall not postpone this subject for four weeks, because if we do it will not get to the Common Council until after its adjournment for vacation; and very little business is done after they come together in the autumn, except to get ready for the fall election. For one I am desirous of having a vote upon this question. I have had it upon my mind for the last five years. It has been recommended by every Executive we have had since the days of Mayor Gaston. It was recommended in the first inaugural of Mayor Cobb, and in each of his successive inaugurals; and it was recommended by your Honor. The public press were unanimously in favor of parks when they were recommended by Mayor Cobb. They advocated and indorsed the position which he took, and I am at a loss to know why some of them have changed their views. It seems to me that they are afraid that this is so popular a movement, and so much in the interest of the public, that they do not wish a Democratic City Government to inaugurate this measure, for fear that they will have too strong a hold upon the suffrages of the people. That is the reason, Mr. Mayor, in my opinion, why some of the journals oppose this measure today, for it is in the interest of the people. The rich and the poor have an equal interest in this. It does not propose to cater to one class more than another. All classes desire the establishment of public parks. They demand them, and will not be satisfied until they get them. Now, that may be, Mr. Mayor, why some of the public press oppose this measure to a certain extent at the present time, for I believe, with a single exception, it was advocated by the press as recommended by the late Mayor, and supported as a general thing by you. The public are in favor of parks. The only question is where shall they be located and to what extent. For one, I desire a vote from the members of this Board, so that we can know just exactly where we stand. I am prepared to vote for the amendment of Alderman Robinson. I did not suppose the order would pass this Board as recommended by the committee, and I had prepared another order which I hoped my friend [Alderman Thompson] would offer as a substitute for the one recommended by the committee. With your permission, Mr. Mayor, and with that of the Board, I will read it:

Ordered, That the City Treasurer be and he hereby is authorized to borrow, under the direction of the Committee on Finance, for park purposes, as authorized by chapter 185 of the Acts of 1875, the sum of $1,000,000, which sum is hereby appropriated to pay for lands which may be taken by the Board of Park Commissioners by purchase or otherwise, under said legislative act, the bonds or certificates of debt to be issued in negotiating this loan to be denominated on the face thereof the "Public Park Loan," and to bear interest at a rate not exceeding five per centum per annum, and to be payable at such periods as the Committee on Finance shall determine; provided, that any and all purchases of land made under authority of this appropriation shall be confirmed by the City Council and approved by the Mayor before the final consummation of the purchase is concluded.

That, Mr. Mayor, would bring the whole subject back to the City Council. Not an acre of land could be taken without the consent of the City Council, approved by his Honor the Mayor; so that if the Park Commissioners should determine to take the West Roxbury Park, they would have to come to the City Council for approval, and the City Council would have control of the whole subject. It would not be in the hands of the Park Commissioners, but of the City Council, to say whether or not a purchase of land for parks should be made. I do not offer this order as a substitute, but I had it prepared, and I did hope that we should make progress enough to adopt it as a substitute, to say the least.

Alderman O'Brien—I hold in my hand the Proceedings of the City Council of 1875, and I will read an extract from a speech delivered on the park question:

"I will go further, and say that with all the drawbacks in the city of Boston in regard to area, that little Common, with its 115 or rather its 49 acres, is more to the people in the shape of recreation and fresh air than are the thousands of acres in the Central Park of New York. And why? Simply because it is come-at-ible and easy of access. We want a park so near that the people, the laboring classes, can be benefited by it. The rich can take care of themselves in the heat of summer as well as in the cold of winter. We want it preserved among the poor people; we want it so near them that in five or ten minutes they can walk forth from their homes on a summer evening, after the labor or heat of the day, and get into the park, be it small or large. And that is why the Common is of so much utility to the citizens of Boston. It is easily reached from all parts of the city. The suburbs, as yet, need nothing of that kind. I have heard the gentleman from Ward 15 speak of the people of Boston and South Boston wanting to get recreation on a summer evening. Just fancy a poor man upon the South Cove, after his work is done, taking his children forth on a summer evening, marching to Corey's Hill, when the thermometer is up to 90°; just imagine these people of South Boston and the North End going forth on a summer's evening to enjoy the benefits of the park which Boston, in its wisdom and philanthropy, has furnished for the laboring classes. It is all well, sir, to put it down upon paper; but you will find that the public parks established upon that grand plan will not be so much benefit to the people whom you propose to benefit as it will those who can ride in carriages. If I am rightly informed, the parks of London are scattered through an immense city, and not in the suburbs, where you have to ride five or six miles to reach them. Is not that so?"

These were the remarks of Councilman Fitzgerald in 1875. He never appeals to the laboring man. He never brings up the rich, and makes a comparison with the poor. Why, here is a direct appeal to the poor man and to the laboring man, made two years ago; and yet he believes in this park in the suburbs.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I do not. I don't.

Alderman O'Brien—But, Mr. Mayor, he says that no man has stood up here and advocated the West Roxbury Park. I do not know what to think of myself, if after standing up here and advocating that park to the best of my ability, he now says the only man who advocated that park is the Alderman from Dorchester. He says that is a park beyond all parks, and he is surprised that no member of this Board stands up here and advocates it; and yet two years ago he said it would be a shame to send a laboring man to a park five or six miles away after a hard day's work.

Alderman Fitzgerald—In the speech which I made that night in the Council, I was opposed to parks; I am opposed to them now. In the speech that I made then I was speaking upon the supposition that I was a strong advocate of parks. If I was as strong an advocate of parks as is the gentleman [Alderman O'Brien] and the gentleman on the other side [Alderman Clark] the sickly region of the Back Bay would not strike me as the place; and I pictured what struck me as the proper place, in case I was an advocate of parks,—the Park in West Roxbury. He knows I would not vote for it. In reply to his remark about the reference in my speech to the poor man, I will say what I said was in answer to this same argument that it would be a benefit to the poor man, and that is why I introduced it in answer to the false argument that is continually brought up here. I did not first introduce it. If one had read part of my speech besides the extract, he might say I was trying to make capital of the poor man. The extract read alone would convey that impression, and the Alderman is trying to make a point upon it; and he can make the best of it. I was opposed to a park in West Roxbury in 1875, and I am opposed to it now. The speech I made in lauding the West Roxbury Park is the kind of a speech I would make if I were an advocate of parks as is the gentleman here and the gentleman opposite. That is the reason I was opposed to parks then and am opposed to them now. I introduced the poor man then in answer to arguments made by others. The Alderman could easily take an extract from my speech made here the other night and say I introduced the poor man, when in reality I was opposed to it. He has made a very good point, and he can make the most of it.

Alderman Slade—I want to renew the motion to postpone, but I will change the time to two weeks. I do not believe in this special committee. Let every man be a committee for himself, make a bill and report it in two weeks. I move that further consideration of the subject be postponed for two weeks.

The motion to postpone for two weeks prevailed.

Alderman Clark—I hope now that a special committee will be appointed. We have had this subject before us five or six weeks, and the Board are just as much divided in opinion as they were when the committee reported. That will be the result two weeks hence unless some committee is appointed to consider and report to the Board what they will be satisfied with. I hope the committee will be appointed, and that Aldermen Thompson and Slade will be upon it.

Alderman Wilder—And Alderman Burnham.

Alderman Clark—I move that a sub-committee be appointed to consider and report two weeks from today upon the subject of a location for public parks.

Alderman Thompson—It will be inconvenient for me to attend to this duty. I am engaged upon the army and navy monument business and that will take pretty much all my time between then and now.

Alderman Clarke—I hope he will be appointed so as to take his mind off the army and navy monument, for if we are desirous of having his services this year I think we must do something to relieve his mind of that subject. Furthermore we want to know how the Board stands upon this subject.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Take a vote upon it.

Alderman Clarke—I am ready, but it has been postponed. If the committee is not appointed we shall come together two weeks hence in precisely the same condition that we are in now—unable to agree upon anything.

Alderman Gibson—This committee would require more time to look it over, as they give only one-third of their time here. West Roxbury park would alone require a week to make up the figures. It will put a large amount on the tax bills, and we want to do only what is equitable. We want to know whether we are able to go into it now; and whether we have not got as many things on our hands as the taxpayers can carry out the next six years. Everybody knows that articles of necessity come in before luxuries. We have just put $350,000 into a new schoolhouse and $200,000 for the Mystic sewer. Then we shall need five or six millions to improve the sewerage, and within a few years I believe we have got to spend at least $3,500,000 for a new court house. I believe it is admitted that all these are prime necessities. In nearly the same time the city will require a new House of Correction, to cost $4,000,000—all articles of prime necessity. And with freeing the East Boston ferries—that is not a prime necessity—as I figure it up, there are about $16,000,000 of prime necessities that we will require in the next five years, and which we cannot get along without. This park scheme could not be carried out for less than $15,000,000; and besides the cost of the land and improvements it will require at least fifty policemen and the Committee on Common would have to call for $350,000 a year to keep the flowers in order. I do not see how we can afford to invest in such luxuries in this great depression when the citizens of Boston are hardly paying their expenses, but are living upon the accumulations of the past. Many who were considered rich three years ago are not worth a dollar today. I should be willing to go into a park if it was suitable. The city owns the Chestnut Hill driveway, and why that is not taken into the scheme is a mystery to me. The only reason I can assign is because nobody but the city owns the land. That section is better fitted for a park than any in New York or Philadelphia. I undertake to say we could get a thousand acres at the reservoir and carry the people out there free, running a train every thirty minutes, and it would not cost a quarter of what this scheme will. There you have land and water, just as fine a situation as can be selected, and far nearer the centre of population than are the parks of New York and Philadelphia. There is no comparison between New York and Boston. New York lives entirely below the park, and the park is the only green patch they have, except Union square and a few spots where they do not allow the poor to go. We have horse railroads and eighteen avenues, and people can go to every section they please. If we could make one grand park without continually having to add to it I would be willing to go into it; but I don't believe a committee can look the whole subject over in so short a time.

Alderman Robinson asked to be excused from serving on the sub-committee, as he would be busy in the Paving Department.

Alderman Clark said he was glad Alderman Gibson had referred to the Brighton Park, which showed he had not read the report of the commissioners or the committee, because it is one of the most beautiful parks recommended by the committee, with ravines, rocks and trees all ready, at the very small expenditure of $400,000, more or less. But there are so many opinions as to where parks should be laid out, that it is almost impossible for any one to advocate one certain locality without being charged with being interested in real estate or something of that kind. He did not wish the fact lost sight of that the majority of the committee favor the entire scheme as recommended by the commissioners. He did not like to see members skirting responsibility.

Alderman Burnham thought Alderman Gibson's figures about the prime necessities were not easily wiped out. As he had said before, the "must be" is already stamped upon the Back and South Bay territories, and he did not see why they should not be considered as one of the prime necessities in connection with parks.

Alderman Thompson did not like the charge of shirking responsibility. He contended that Alderman Clark's rosy picture of Boston's prosperity was not true to the life. It was only a few days ago that the owner of a Chauncy-street store was offered $50 a month for it, and another store was offered for sale, but a bid on it could not be obtained. The Alderman instanced other cases of sales of property at depressed prices.

Alderman Clark said his statistics were of sales actually made. The stores in Chauncy street were only put in temporarily after the great fire, and could not be expected to maintain their high rents.

Alderman Fitzgerald thought Alderman Clark had so long been giving such rose-colored views of Boston's prosperity that he actually believed them. If Boston were prosperous he would not hesitate about parks. The system of the commissioners is an excellent one, but he could not vote for it because of the state of business. He was surprised at the paternal feeling manifested by Alderman Clark for the welfare of the Democratic party. He thought the public press a true indication of public sentiment, and they feel that the people are unable to bear the burden. Nobody opposed parks as parks; but he simply opposed parks at the present time.

Alderman Clark said the press, as a whole, are not opposed to parks. The most enterprising paper in Boston, and as enterprising as any in the United States—the Boston Herald—is a strong advocate of parks. The Traveller, the Globe and the Post are advocates of parks at present; but some of the papers who were in favor of parks as advocated by the late Mayor are now somewhat equivocal upon the subject, to say the least.

The motion for a special committee was lost—5 for, 7 against.

DOVER-STREET BRIDGE.

Alderman Thompson submitted a report from the Committee on Bridges, representing that Dover-street Bridge had been reopened, which necessitated the reestablishment of the salary, and they recommended the passage of an order—That the salary of the Superintendent of Dover-street Bridge be established at the rate of $2500 per annum, beginning April 1, 1877, and continuing until otherwise ordered; the said compensation to be in full for the services of himself and assistants. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

TRANSFER.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from the Committee on Market recommending the approval of transfers of lease of estates 53-55 Faneuil Hall Market, by C. & O. Rice, to John J. Ware; and by J. H. Russell, 17-19 Faneuil Hall Market, to G. H. Russell. Accepted.

LAND DAMAGES.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board: Order to pay Hattie B. Prescott $324 for land taken and damages occasioned by the widening of Mill street. Read twice and passed.

Report and order for hearing on June 19, at 4 P. M., on petition of Boston Land Company for assessment of damages by location of Winthrop & Point Shirley Railroad. Order passed.

WALES-STREET DRAINAGE.

Alderman Viles submitted a report from the Committee on Sewers that it is inexpedient to take action upon petition of Laban Pratt and others, that Wales street, Ward 24, be provided with drainage facilities.

Alderman Clark asked what it was proposed to do, as some drainage should be provided.

Discussion ensued. Aldermen Viles, O'Brien and Gibson explained that the land was high, distant from sewerage, and could not be drained short of an expense of two or three hundred thousand dollars. The residents themselves petitioned in order to get some suggestion from the city authorities.

Aldermen Robinson, Slade and Fitzgerald, of the Paving Committee, concurred in the opinion, saying the residents had put in water before they had drainage, and were overrun.

Alderman Clark said his object in asking the question was to obtain information. He doubted whether the city was not bound to furnish them drainage.

Alderman Wilder suggested that they had had a report from an able committee, and while he highly respected Alderman Clark's views on Crocker he preferred the opinion of the Sewer Committee on Drainage.

Alderman Clark fully coincided with Alderman Wilder; and if the latter had made any further investigation in regard to the abattoir, he would like to have him report to the Board what the Board of Health found out there last week.

The report was accepted.

CLAIMS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Claims:

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of Mary Coulter, for compensation on account of personal injuries occasioned by a fall on sidewalk, and Catherine Driscoll, for compensation for personal injuries by fall on Orleans street. Severally accepted. Sent down.

PUBLIC PARK MEETING.

Alderman Clark presented a petition from Nathan Appleton and others, asking for the use of Faneuil Hall, June 6, for a public meeting in favor of public parks. Referred to Committee on Faneuil Hall.

PUBLIC LANDS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Lands:

Orders to remit taxes of 1876 on lots No. 4 West Brookline street, No. 154 Shawmut avenue, and 25 Olivcr street, said lands having been forfeited for breach of conditions of sale. Severally read twice and passed. Sent down.

Whereas, the City of Boston now owns certain of the fourteen lots abutting on Winship place, so called, and shown on a certain "plan of land appurtenant to Agricultural Hall, Brighton, to be sold at public auction on the 23d day of October, 1844, Joseph Bennett, Surveyor," recorded with Middlesex South District Plans, Book 1, Plan 49, and which were conveyed by the Massachusetts Society for the Promotion of Agriculture to various parties by deed recorded in said Registry of Deeds; and whereas each of said deeds contained a condition in substantially the following terms, namely: "Upon condition that the said grantee, his heirs and assigns, shall pay their just proportional share of the expense of keeping at all times in good order and repair the said avenue, place and circular plot, and such of the fences enclosing or abutting the same as do not form the boundary of any one of the said fourteen lots"; and whereas it is represented that said society is willing that such conditions should be released in such manner that there shall not be any liability to forfeiture for any past or future breach of said condition, but that the same shall remain in force only as a restriction, easement, or covenant, running with the land, or otherwise, so that the same might be enforceable in equity; it is therefore Ordered, That the Mayor be and he hereby is authorized, for and in behalf of the City of Boston, to sign a request for the release by said society to the corporations or individuals holding title under said deeds to said fourteen lots of land of that portion of said premises by them respectively holden, according to their respective titles, and all the said conditions and all right of equity for past breach or breaches thereof.

Read twice and passed. Sent down.

POLICE FOR BATH HOUSES.

Alderman Viles offered an order—That the Chief of Police be directed to detail a police officer for attendance at each public bath house in this city from June 1 to Sept. 30, until otherwise ordered.

Alderman Robinson moved that the order be laid on the table.

Alderman Viles said it was customary to detail the officers for this purpose. The usual amount was stricken from the police appropriation, and as the Bathing Committee had no money for it they were required to come to this Board.

Alderman Robinson said men could be obtained for $2.50 a day without calling on the police when they have extra duty because of the vacations.

Alderman Viles said the Bathing Committee tried to get the appropriation through for the Police Committee, but they could not, and now they must call on the Board for the men.

Alderman Robinson said it was not proper to have part of the expense of baths charged to the police appropriation; but the committee should show just how much each bath cost.

Alderman Slade said he could not see why any department should be particular about not paying for work in other departments. The city don't care which appropriation it comes from.

Alderman Clark concurred in the view of Alderman Viles, and Alderman Gibson thought some of the old policemen could do the duty.

After further discussion on the same points the motion to table was lost and the order was passed.

SUPERINTENDENT OF LAMPS.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved to take from the table the Executive nomination of James K. Fagin as Superintendent of Lamps, and called for the yeas and nays. The motion was lost—yeas 2, nays 10.

Yeas—Aldermen Fitzgerald, O'Brien—2.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Burnham, Dunbar, Clark, Gibson, Robinson, Slade, Thompson, Viles, Wilder—10.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Thompson, to Tuesday, June 5.

Lot 25 Oliver street.
Severally ordered to a second reading.
Order to pay at the rate of $500 per annum the assistant in City Architect's office, heretofore paid at the rate of $1 per day. Ordered to a second reading.

STONY BROOK IMPROVEMENT.

An order came down for a special committee, consisting of Aldermen O'Brien and Dunbar, with such as the Council may join, to take into consideration the reports of Street Commissioners and Board of Health upon improvements of Stony Brook.

Mr. Perham of Ward 25—As this is a very important matter, I move that the committee on the part of the Common Council consist of five members.

Mr. Blodgett of Ward 8—I move to amend that motion, by referring it to the Joint Special Committee on Improved Sewerage.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I hope that motion will not prevail, for the reason that there are members of the Council who are well acquainted with the troubles in the Stony Brook Valley, and if a special committee is appointed it seems to me that they can make their report upon this sewage running into the Back Bay, and also at the same time take into consideration the sewage of what is called Muddy River, which also flows into the Back Bay by the outlet of Stony Brook. In my section of the city the whole sewage is emptied into Muddy River, which passes under Brookline avenue about half way down the line to Beacon street into the Back Bay, and there it flows all the sewage of that section, and the section above Brookline avenue into the Back Bay. If a special committee take this matter into consideration they can make such a report as would be satisfactory to the Committee on Improved Sewerage, and would cover all that territory which requires immediate attention, rather than have to wait for the project of a main sewer which is now before the Committee on Improved Sewerage. It is a matter for the temporary relief of those portions of the city, and a special committee can take it up independently of the question of improved sewerage, and if the latter committee find that it interferes with their plans, we can discuss the matter when it comes up. It looks to me as though it ought to go to a special committee for immediate consideration.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—I concur with the remarks of the gentleman last up, that this matter should go to a special committee. As he has said, it is a matter of very great importance, and it is necessary that a special committee should be raised to take it into consideration. The Committee on Improved Sewerage have their hands full, and I hope it will not be disposed of by reference to them.

Mr. Blodgett of Ward 8—The gentleman from Ward 22 says it ought to be referred to a special committee who have nothing else to do, and I agree with him in that. The Joint Special Committee on Improved Sewerage have met once this year and organized; that is all the meeting they have had, and I very much fear we will not have anything more to do unless we get something more. I think this is part and parcel of the business that is before them and should be referred to the same committee, who have nothing else to do but attend to it.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14—It seems to me there are already two committees of the City Council on sewerage. If any more are created they may conflict, and perhaps the city's interests will suffer in consequence of it. I think the Joint Special Committee on Improved Sewerage is the proper committee for that purpose.

The motion to refer to the Joint Special Committee on Improved Sewerage was lost by a division—15 for, 25 against.

The motion to make the committee consist of five on the part of the Council was adopted and the order as amended was passed. Messrs. Brown of Ward 23, Flynn of Ward 13, Pratt of Ward 21, Wilbur of Ward 20, and Thorndike of Ward 2 were appointed on said committee. Sent up.

CHELSEA BRIDGE.

Orders came down to procure certain releases of claims against city on account of construction of Chelsea Bridge, etc., and an agreement that the city may occupy specified land, etc.; authorizing claims of the city to be released, and rescinding stated orders on the subject.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Can any one give an explanation of this order, tell who offered it and why it has been introduced?

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I do not rise to offer any information, but I see it is a matter of very great importance. Any one who reads the order will see that it involves the release of property amounting perhaps to several hundred thousand dollars. Unless that matter has been referred to a committee who have reported upon it, I should certainly desire more information upon it. It involves the repeal of orders passed in 1875 and 1876, and the taking of releases, and I cannot vote for it without more information. I move that it be referred to the Judiciary Committee.

The motion prevailed.

NORTHAMPTON-STREET DISTRICT.

A report and order came down to pay to Joseph Hunneman and others, $16,451.90, in settlement for estate surrendered on Hunneman street, as therein set forth.

The order was passed to a second reading.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I move a suspension of the rule, that the order may take its second reading tonight, for the reason that some of the Hunneman heirs, who live at the West, are at present in this city, and desire to return home. This matter has been before the Committee on Public Lands for the last two months, and it is very desirable to settle it at the present time.

The rule was suspended and the order was passed in concurrence.

SALARY OF SUPERINTENDENT OF DOVER-STREET BRIDGE.

A report of the Committee on Bridges of the Board of Aldermen came down, with an order to fix the salary of Superintendent of Dover-street Bridge at rate of $2500 per annum from April 1, in full for services of himself and assistants.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 12—Have the duties of this Superintendent been increased? His salary has heretofore been $1400; that sum was recommended by the Salary Committee, and I thought the Retrenchment Committee recommended the same. Without his duties are greater I should oppose an increase.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—At the time the salary was $1400 there was a draw which two men could swing off; now it is a double draw and he is obliged to employ two men to do the work. The work is double what it was before.

Mr. Reed of Ward 17—If the gentleman will look at the report of the Retrenchment Committee he will find that they left that salary till the bridge should be finished.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—In fixing the salaries of the several city officers, the Council adopted the report of the Retrenchment Committee, so that we have in general their judgment upon what salaries should be paid. I think we should keep the same standard, for if we change and take the judgment of another committee it may be felt that the other superintendents have been treated unfairly. For the purpose of getting their opinion upon it, I move that the subject be referred to the Retrenchment Committee.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I hope this will not be referred to the Retrenchment Committee. When the gentleman last up wants to make a good joke he moves to refer a matter to the Retrenchment Committee; and if a salary comes up he wants it referred to—

Mr. Thompson—I beg pardon for the interruption; but I do not see what ground the gentleman has for the remark. I made the motion in earnest.

Mr. Spenceley—I think the Retrenchment Committee did their work well. This matter has been brought to our notice, and I do not see why every salary established by the City Council should go to the Retrenchment Committee. I believe we ought to pass it as it is, and not have this salary dilly-dallying about a week or two in order to please somebody.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—The Special Committee on Retrenchment has for this year taken the place of the Committee on Salaries. In the routine of an ordinary year, the salary of any officer would be referred to the Salary Committee, who are supposed to be acquainted with the standard upon which salaries should be fixed. This year the City Council chose to adopt the standard of the Retrenchment Committee instead of that of the Salary Committee. The gentleman may think, because I have made this motion several times, that I intended it as a joke. It is not so. It is necessary, in a parliamentary body, to transact business properly, and any matter that comes in here should be referred to the proper committee. This year our Salary Committee is the Retrenchment Committee, and it is proper that they should apply their minds to the standard of this salary. If, in their judgment, they say that $2000 is sufficient for this man, that should be his salary, because if we give him proportionately more than we do the other bridge superintendents it will be unfair. They have settled in their minds what is the fair standard of salaries for these officers, and we know by the report of the Committee on Salaries that their standard is considerably higher; and if we should refer it to them I would expect that they would put it about ten per cent. higher than the keepers of the other bridges. It is not the duty of the Committee on Bridges to fix salaries, and I do not believe the Committee on Retrenchment is the proper committee to consider this subject.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I would like to ask of the gentleman from Ward 13 how much the Superintendent has to pay for his assistants, and what are the duties of this Superintendent in comparison with those of others?

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—The number of vessels which pass through Congress-street and Broadway bridges is ten times greater than through this, and the salaries there are only $300 more than have been reported by this committee, and there is the same number of assistants to employ. I think myself the salary is too high.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14—The new bridge over Dover street is similar to the one that has been in operation for two or three years over Federal street. It is a double draw and two horses are required to work it. On Federal-street Bridge the salary has been $3000, and the Committee on Retrenchment recommended that it be reduced $300. The expense of running Dover-street Bridge is the same as Federal street, and it seems to me that the salary is not too high.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I do not understand that this matter has come from any Salary Committee, and I should like to inquire what committee makes this report?

The President—The Committee on Bridges of the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—As long as there are some doubts about the propriety of establishing this salary, it seems to me it would be as well to let it go to some committee to investigate. I hope it will be referred to the Retrenchment Committee, as that is virtually the Salary Committee of this year.

Mr. Clarke—It seems to me it ought to go to the regular Salary Committee. I do not see why they should be ignored in all matters that come before the City Council relating to salaries. In years before they have usually been referred to the Standing Committee on Salaries, the members of which are capable of attending to their duties. Since the Retrenchment Committee have made their report, matters relating to salaries have been referred to the Salary Committee, and the Council ought to have confidence enough in them to refer it to them. I move that it be referred to the Salary Committee.

Mr. Spenceley—Just a single word. This matter has been before the Committee on Bridges, who know all about the salaries paid the different draw-tenders. I presume they have investigated the subject and can just as well decide how much this man ought to be paid as any committee we have here. To refer it will only be putting upon another committee work that has already been done by the Bridge Committee. I am acquainted with some of the members of that committee and do not think they would vote to pay this man more than is paid other superintendents. As they have had all the facts before them, it is well enough as it is.

The motion to refer to the Salary Committee was lost, and the subject was referred to the Retrenchment Committee by a division—30 for, 16 against. Sent up.

VACATION SCHOOLS.

The order for a transfer of $2000 from the Reserved Fund for the establishment of vacation schools came down with an amendment that the expense be charged to the appropriation for Public Instruction.

Mr. Wolcott of Ward 11—I hope we shall not concur in the amendment that comes down to us from the Board of Aldermen. The nature of and reasons for this scheme for vacation schools were very fully explained to the Joint Committee on Public Instruction by a member of the School Committee, and the reasons for them seemed so cogent that I believe every member of the committee from this branch voted to approve the order. The chairman read a letter which he received from the Superintendent of Schools in Providence giving the result of a similar experiment tried there, which was begun in the face of considerable opposition, and was finally carried by a small majority. It was carried on six weeks, and it was then found that 1100 children had attended at an expense of $1600, or a little over $1.50 for each child. The result commended itself to the hearty approval of all. I would remind the Council that a very great reduction was made in the appropriation for school expenses, which was deemed the maximum reduction possible. I voted with some unwillingness for the whole amount of the reduction, believing that it would not impair the efficiency of the schools, and that a reduction was needed at the present time. The action of the Board of Aldermen will, I think, if concurred in, be equivalent to the indefinite postponement of the whole matter; and I hope we shall insist upon our original action and non-concur in the amendment.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope we shall not concur in the order as it came from the Board of Aldermen. There is no doubt we crippled the appropriation for the School Committee very largely; but in addition to that, there is to be a musical festival at the Tabernacle, which required a large amount of printing, and the noble-heartedness of the School Committee in furnishing members of the City Council with two admission tickets to that place has no doubt crippled their funds. Although I think the vacation schools are not needed, still, I think the appropriation will be crippled by the amendment; and I should hope that we will non-concur with the Board of Aldermen on account of the magnanimous manner in which the School Committee have treated the members of the City Council.

The Council non-concurred in the amendment. Sent up.

PLAYGROUNDS.

A report and order came down to transfer $2000 from the Reserved Fund to provide playgrounds.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 stated that if anything was to be done this year it is about time that it should be started, and on his motion the rule was suspended. The order was read twice and passed, in concurrence—yeas 54, nays 1; Mr. Morrill voting nay.

RELEASES ON WINSHIP PLACE.

A preamble and order came down for the Mayor to sign a request for a release of conditions by the Massachusetts Society for the Promotion of Agriculture to those holding titles, under the deeds referred to therein, to fourteen lots of land on Winship place, as therein set forth.

The order was read twice and put upon its passage.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—Has any committee examined into the merits of the case?

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—That matter came before the Committee on Public Lands, who reported it to the City Council, recommending that the Mayor sign the releases.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I move that it be referred to the Judiciary Committee. I see there are several conditions annexed to the releases, and they may be of some importance.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I did not exactly hear the reasons given for referring it to the Judiciary Committee; but I would state that it came before the Committee on Public Lands, of which I am a member, and I believe it is a very simple matter. Certain lots were conveyed to various parties subject to conditions about a certain way, and the city of Boston has become the owner of one of those lots. In order to get mortgages upon their lots, some of the parties desire to get the conditions removed from their lots; and the parties who put the conditions on are willing to release them if all the owners of lots unite in the request. All that it is proposed to do is that the city join in the request to have them removed. If granted it cannot harm the city, but it will benefit the city's lots as well as those of other people. As I said, some of the parties are waiting to get mortgages upon their lots.

Mr. Mowry—What is the nature of those conditions?

Mr. Crocker—The conditions, as stated in "the order on page 379 of the proceedings of the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen, are as follows:

"Upon condition that the said grantee, his heirs and assigns, shall pay their just proportional share of the expense of keeping at all times in good order and repair the said avenue, place and circular plot, and such of the fences enclosing or abutting the same as do not form the boundary of any one of the said fourteen lots; and whereas it is represented that said society is willing that such conditions should be released in such manner that there shall not be any liability to forfeiture for any past or future breach of said condition, but that the same shall remain in force only as a restriction, easement, or covenant, running with the land, or otherwise, so that the same might be enforceable in equity."

It certainly cannot hurt anybody, and must benefit all the lots, one of which the city owns.

The motion to refer was lost, and the order was passed in concurrence.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order to remit taxes on forfeited estates, viz.:

For 1874—124 West Castle street.

For 1875—Albany, corner of East Nowton street. Severally passed in concurrence.

Order to make agreement with the New York & New England Railroad Corporation for rebuilding bridge over Cottage street, and to relieve the city from rebuilding or maintaining said bridge. Passed in concurrence.

Order to provide a wardroom for Ward 24, more centrally located than the present one. Passed. Sent up.

Order to erect a brick primary schoolhouse on city lot, Weston street. Passed. Sent up.

Order to erect a temporary building for school purposes on city lot at Eggleston square. Passed. Sent up.

Order to report ordinances to give effect to chapter 126, statutes of 1877, relating to explosive compounds. Passed. Sent up.

POLICE FOR LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

The order for fifteen men from the police force to be detailed for permanent duty at the office of the License Commissioners, to be paid from receipts for licenses, was considered under unfinished business.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 moved to amend by adding "and to be discharged when their services are no longer needed by the License Commissioners."

Mr. Thompson—I have taken some pains to look up the facts in regard to this matter, during the past week, and I think they are substantially these: Last year and the year before, the License Commissioners employed a number of men who acted as the detectives for the office. The number varied from fifteen to five; they employed fifteen during the busiest season, and when their services were not so much needed part were discharged. When the Retrenchment Committee made their examination, only five men were in the employ of the License Commissioners, and the committee recommended that these five men be discharged, they considering their services unnecessary; and City Council concurred in the recommendation of the committee. There now comes to us from the Board of Aldermen an order which needs to be considered in connection with an order previously passed by that Board. The Aldermen have power to fix the number of policemen and have adopted an order—

"That until otherwise ordered the maximum number of members of the Police Department of all ranks be fixed at 715."

This increases the permanent police force. Then follows the order now before us—

"That the Chief of Police be directed to detail fifteen men from the police force for permanent duty at the office of the License Commissioners; the expense to be paid from the receipts for liquor licenses."

This, then, is really an attempt to increase the police force under cover of supplying the needs of the License Commissioners, and the effect will be that, after the requirements of the commissioners have been fulfilled—which, judging from the experience of last year, would be within a few months, when ten of these men might be discharged—these men would become permanent members of the Police Department—under the direction and control of the Chief of Police. The License Commissioners would no longer require their services, but they would not be discharged; they would be retained for the use of the Police Department. Now, if it is proposed to increase the number of policemen, let that question come before the City Council to be investigated and decided upon. But that is not the way in which this question is placed. Here is a case, they say, which calls for special action. We are going to change the policy of the past, when we employed men in citizen's clothing who could come upon people doing business without license, and if there was a breach of the law they could find it out. Now, it is not to be presumed that men doing business without license would be such fools as to commit breaches of the law openly in the presence of men with the city police uniform on; and it seems to me that the usefulness of those men will be wiped out by being in uniform, and if the question were here upon its merits that point might be discussed. But there seems to be a feeling that the License Commissioners are entitled to have some men, and I think that all they can ask for is to give them the men for such time as they need them; and for that purpose I put in my amendment, so that fifteen men should be detailed from the police force, and when their services are no longer needed they should be discharged. The Board of Aldermen have confirmed the appointment of fifteen men for that purpose; and the only question is, Shall we increase the police force so that those who come after us will find 715 men on the permanent pay-roll instead of 700? In its present form the increase is not merely to meet the requirements of the commissioners. The license bill may be repealed next year, and if it is, that would not do away with these fifteen policemen, for the order fixing the maximum number would not have been rescinded; and although the appropriation is made from the receipts for licenses this year, next year the appropriation for Police will have to be increased to meet the demand for these fifteen men. I hope the amendment will prevail.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I should like to know what the Council has to do with discharging those men, or adding an amendment like that, providing for their discharge. As I understand, the Board of Aldermen have already passed an order increasing our police force fifteen men. We can concur with them in providing for the pay of these men from the liquor licenses, and when their work under the License Commissioners is done, they will go back into the police force, and the chief can put them where he has a mind to; but that we have anything to do with that, is simply nonsense. We have nothing to do with it whatever. As I have said before, I believe it to be right that we have nothing to do with discharging those men. The Aldermen have voted to increase the force, and they send this order to pay the men for the time being from the receipts for liquor licenses. If we adopt the amendment we will send it back to the Aldermen, who will send the order back again to us, and there we shall be dilly-dallying along. I believe the License Commissioners have started out with the idea of carrying this law into effect, and I am willing to give them all the help they need. They say that if they don't enforce it the fault will be with the City Council. Now, I do not believe in a license law; but if we have one upon our statute books, and the commissioners ask for help to carry it out, I think we ought to give them the force necessary to do it. They ask for fifteen men, whom it is proposed to detail from the police force; and when their work is done they can go back to their regular duty upon the force.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9—I have noticed, Mr. President that when any matter comes before us affecting the License Commissioners, it has always seemed to me that we have acted unfairly with that board, who are on the same footing with other boards of the City Government. There seems to be a prejudice against them. That is the way it appears to me. Sometimes it has seemed to partake of personal considerations; at other times members have allowed their feelings upon the matter of temperance or intemperance to have an effect upon their views on this question. We have reduced the salaries of the commissioners from time to time until now it seems to me we have got it down too low to make them an effective and efficient board. I look upon this board as not less important from a pecuniary standpoint than any other commission in the city of Boston. They bring a large amount of money into the city treasury from the licenses which they sell. We ought to make them as efficient as we can, and we ought to see that they have a force to collect as much money as they can. By a former vote we concluded to accept the provisions of the act passed by the Legislature and to allow persons to be licensed to sell liquor in this city. Now, let us make provision that every person selling liquor shall have a license and that the treasury shall not be defrauded of a large sum of money. In order to do that they must have an efficient force of policemen to assist them. I think it is important for another reason: When the prohibitory law was in force you remember we had a State police who enforced the law in this city, and that our local force under the Chief of Police had very little to do with it. All prosecutions were under the control of the State Constables in Pemberton Square, and they became very unpopular with the citizens of Boston, who thought it an interference with their city affairs. We thought our local force was capable of enforcing all the laws of the State, and that a State force ought not to be sent into the city. Now we have control of this matter. The State force do not make many prosecutions. That is done by the local police. Let us keep it there. If we want to avoid what the citizens of Boston look upon with horror—the appointment of a metropolitan police force by the State—you better see that your own police officers execute the laws of the State. In order to do that, the commissioners say they want fifteen men; and I contend that that is none too many to carry out the law. Let us give them all the force they require and in the manner indicated in the original order; and if we find that they have not enough, let us give them more. It is no use to talk about any other method or any other time; it should be done now. Somebody has said that their duties will cease in a few days. They will not. Violations of the terms of the licenses are occurring almost every day. Somebody must be prosecuted for selling liquor unlawfully, and no better persons can be found to do that than the regular police of Boston, wearing the uniform of police officers of the city. I am heartily opposed to having persons in detectives' clothing going into people's back yards. There are many evils connected with the system, like we had a few years ago, when men went about receiving pay from the State. Let those who enforce the license law be under the control of Chief of Police Savage, and let him and his whole force cooperate with the License Commissioners in trying to make this law as effective as they can.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Were it not for the fact that the salaries of these fifteen men are to be paid from the revenue accruing from licenses, this matter never would have come before the Common Council at all. The Board of Aldermen have power to appoint as many police officers as they see fit; but in this case they save the salaries of the officers by deducting the amount from the revenue from licenses granted by the commissioners. Last year, the gentleman says, ten or twelve men were discharged. They were never appointed with the consent of this Council; they did not come here and ask permission, as in this case. There are many members of this Council from the suburbs who think that more men are needed. I know they are in South Boston, and I think they are in Dorchester. I have heard from members out there that citizens have employed private watchmen to protect their property. I hope the order will not be amended, but be passed as it came from the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Thompson—The gentleman from Ward 19 has changed his opinions somewhat since the passage of the retrenchment orders. He was not so anxious then that the License Commissioners should have all the force they asked for; on the contrary he voted for the discharge of the five officers they had, and now he is in favor of giving them fifteen. The gentleman from Ward 13 has raised the question which ought to be, but which is not presented here, and that is, is it necessary for the proper police regulation of Boston to employ fifteen additional officers? It is true that this body has nothing to do with the appointment of police officers, and that the Board of Aldermen can fix the force at such number as they please. But fortunately this body has some control over the appropriation; and although the Board of Aldermen can appoint, they have to come to us for the pay of the men, and the appointment is of no value unless we consent to the payment. The appropriation for the Police Department was passed upon the Retrenchment Committee's recommendation, provided for the pay for the number of officers which we then thought proper. Since then, the Board of Aldermen have decided to increase the police force, and for the purpose of obtaining the means to pay them have called upon us to join in making an appropriation of the fees received from licenses. The gentleman from Ward 13 says that if the police officers are so paid, the money will be saved to the city; but how? If it is not used for this purpose it will remain in the treasury and the taxpayers will be saved just that amount.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—One-half of the revenue from licenses goes to the State.

Mr. Thompson—I believe that one-fourth of the total receipts go to the State, and from the other three-fourths we pay such expenses as are properly chargeable to them; and the balance goes into the city treasury. I have the appropriation bill in my hand:

"The amount of expenditures for salaries of commissioners, clerks, and all other expenses connected with the issuing of liquor licenses, to be defrayed from the amount of fees received for licenses; all excess of revenue over expenditures to remain in the treasury, at the close of the financial year, subject to the order of the City Council."

So that the less you vote for any outside purpose like this for the payment of the police, just so much more money will there be in the treasury on the 1st of May, 1878, and just so much less money will you have to raise by taxation.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—How much less is it proposed to pay the fifteen officers this year than last year?

Mr. Thompson—I make no comparison with what was done last year in regard to salaries. I understand that last year fifteen men were employed, and when the Retrenchment Committee made their examination, all but five had been discharged.

Mr. McGaragle—Did they not receive $3 a day last year, and will they not receive $2.50 this year, making a saving of $.75 a day?

Mr. Thompson—I do not know how that is. That has nothing to do with what I have stated. It is not a comparison between the salaries paid for this year and last year. I make the statement that if we pass this order, the first of May, 1878, will find $16,000 less in the treasury than if we do not, and that the citizens of Boston will have to pay $16,000 more taxes in 1878 than they would if we did not pass this order. It may be necessary to make some appropriation for this purpose. It may be necessary for the commissioners to have more men; and the question is, how many men do they want and how long do they want them? This City Council made up its mind that they did not need even five men, and they were discharged. Now the commissioners want fifteen men. The Retrenchment Committee thought they were saving $7500 from that department to the citizens of Boston; but $18,000 will be added on account of this order. If we are to pass this order and increase the police force, let us place it fairly and squarely where it belongs; let us know if there is reason for it. The only reason assigned is that the extra force is wanted for the License Commissioners. I am not going to oppose that; I would only limit their employment to the time for which they are needed. I do not know but my amendment is objectionable, and I beg leave to offer the following instead:

"The officers to be paid from the receipts for liquor licenses so long as they are needed by the License Commissioners."

That will accomplish my object. We have not the right to interfere with the number employed, but we have the right to determine what amount shall be appropriated. It is just the same as the salaries of the school teachers. We have no right to say what the salaries of teachers shall be; but we have a right to say what amount shall be appropriated for schools. We put that amount into the hands of the School Committee, and, if they show a proper respect for the wishes of this City Council, they will fix the salaries so that our wishes will be carried out. So in regard to the Board of Aldermen. They are a separate board; they are practically a board of commissioners to appoint policemen; but if we give them only a certain amount of money, they cannot go beyond that. They can have no means of paying those men unless we provide the means. The amendment I offer meets that; as long as the commissioners need those men, they will be used and paid. But if the Committee on Police think the force is not sufficient, our joint rules provide that they should come in here and give us their recommendation in black and white to transfer money from the Reserved Fund, or some other fund which the Committee on Finance may provide, to pay those men. That is what they are doing now. They say the commissioners need those men, but they should be made permanent policemen, and it is attempted to increase the police force under cover of the License Commissioners, to which I am opposed. I do not say I would vote against an increase of the police force, if the Committee on Police would come in and say that it is needed; but I do oppose our blindly increasing the permanent police force under cover of the License Commissioners, and I hope we shall show that we are still the conservative branch of the City Council, and refuse to do it.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—The gentleman did not make his objections to passing this order clear, and offered an order referring this matter to the Judiciary Committee. I had the honor to hand the opinion of the City Solicitor to the gentleman from Ward 9 [Mr. Thompson], and for my own information I would like to have the opinion read.

Mr. Thompson—The chairman of the Judiciary Committee [Mr. Crocker] has the opinion in his hands, and I presume he will present it.

On motion of Mr. Crocker of Ward 9, the rules were suspended to allow him to submit the report of the Judiciary Committee, which he did, it consisting of the following:

CITY SOLICITOR'S OFFICE,
2 FEMBERTON SQUARE,
BOSTON, May 31, 1877.

Gentlemen—In reply to the question you propose to me, namely, "Whether an appropriation of license fees, under the ordinances as they stand at present, is not equivalent to an appropriation of money from the treasury, within the meaning of the Joint Rules 16, 17 and 18," allow me to say that, in my opinion, those rules are not applicable to the proposed expenditure of money received for licenses for expenses connected with the office of the License Commissioners.

In the general appropriation bill it is provided that all expenses connected with the issuing of liquor licenses shall be defrayed from the fees received for licenses, thus making a specific appropriation of the revenue derived from this source for all expenses connected with that commission. The expenditure proposed by the order now before the Council from that fund is for the payment of police officers rendering service to the commissioners. I, therefore, do not see that the expenditure proposed by that order differs in principle from the expenditure from any other fund in the treasury for the purposes to which it was appropriated in the general appropriation bill.

Very respectfully,

Your obt' serv't,

J. P. HEALY.

The report of the Judiciary Committee was accepted, and the discussion of the order was resumed.

Mr. Thompson—I should like to say, in regard to the opinion that has just been read, the gentleman from Ward 13 has had the advantage of the committee. I only received it from the gentleman from Ward 13 after I took my seat tonight, but this ruling seems to cover the ground of the necessity for an amendment. The ruling, as I understand it, is that the license fees are appropriated for a specific purpose, like all other appropriations in the bill; and therefore we can direct payments out of that fund for the purposes contemplated by the appropriation bill. Now, the purposes contemplated by the appropriation bill were the expenses connected with the issuing of licenses. Now, as long as the policemen are employed by the License Commissioners they can be paid from the license fees, but when they are no longer needed by the commissioners and are returned to regular duty with the Police Department, the payments from license fees must be stopped.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I want to say, in behalf of the City Solicitor, that I did not have any advantage over the committee. I met him coming up in the elevator, and he requested me to give the opinion to Mr. Thompson; so that I had not seen it up to the time it was read by the gentleman from Ward 9.

Mr. Britnall of Ward 5—I hope this appropriation will not be made for fifteen additional men, for the reason that, so far as doing any good, the force will be too small to accomplish anything. In my opinion it should be done by the whole police force. The commissioners will require the cooperation of the whole force to enforce the law to the satisfaction of the people. We all know that everything has been unsatisfactory during the past two years, not only to those opposed to the law, but to its friends. The idea is to have this license law enforced in such a way as will please its friends and not its enemies; and everybody knows that fifteen men will not be able to do any good, and that it will require the whole force. For that reason I cannot see that this order should be passed. I should judge by the order that the fifteen men would report to the License Commissioners instead of the Chief of Police, which I think is wrong. Those gentlemen are not familiar with police duties and might err in judgment. As we have a Chief of Police of thirty years' experience I should hope that his judgment would be given in a matter of such magnitude for the interests of the city. In order to have it satisfactory to every one I think we ought to have it done by the police. I understand there are twenty or thirty applications for every appointment; so it seems there is great anxiety to get this position, and there would be some jealousy among policemen, which would operate badly upon the trade. For that reason I am opposed to having the law enforced in any such way. It is the same way in which it was done last year and under the State police. I think the law should be enforced to the letter; then everybody will be satisfied, and Governor Rice will be glad he vetoed the prohibitory law.

Mr. McGaragle—If the gentleman will read the order he will see that the Chief of Police is to detail these men. All the gentleman's eloquence has been thrown away.

Mr. Britnall—The gentleman misunderstood me. I object to their reporting to the License Commissioners instead of the Chief of Police. As this subject has been pretty well ventilated, I move the previous question.

The main question was ordered. Mr. Thompson's amendment was lost and the order was passed in concurrence.

Subsequently a motion to reconsider by Mr. Ruffin, hoping it would not prevail, was lost.

A request was received from the School Committee for immediate action in providing suitable accommodations for the East Boston Branch High School. Referred to Joint Committee on Public Instruction. Sent up.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18 submitted a report from the Special Nominating Committee recommending the election of Alfred T. Turner as Auditor of Accounts. Accepted. Sent up.

Mr. Felt—As the present incumbent of this position is so well known to all members of the Council, and has so satisfactorily filled the position at all times, I move a suspension of the rule, that we may proceed to an election of Auditor of Accounts tonight.

The rule was suspended and an election ordered. Committee—Messrs. Felt of Ward 18, McClusky of Ward 13, Wilbur of Ward 20.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 submitted reports from the Joint Committee on Fire Department, as follows:

Vacations of Firemen. Report in favor of passing the resolve, that in the opinion of the City Council it is expedient that the members of the Boston Fire Department shall be allowed an annual vacation without loss of pay, in addition to that already allowed, providing it can be done without detriment to the public service.

The report was accepted and the resolve was put upon its passage.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I would like some explanation. The firemen have a vacation similar to the policemen, except that they have a vacation once a week or a month, whilst the policemen have theirs all at once. If we propose to give them a vacation in summer all at one time, in addition to what they now have, it looks to me as though the policemen will be in here next week and want the same provision for a temporary vacation in addition to the regular one.

Mr. Spenceley—I would like to ask the gentleman if he knows how many hours the policemen are on duty?

The resolve was passed.

Subsequently a motion to reconsider, by Mr. Spenceley, hoping it would not prevail, was lost. Sent up.

Allowance of Crew of Fire Boat. Report on order to inquire what reduction has been made in the pay and allowances of the crew of the fire boat William M. Flanders, and submitting the following statement from the Fire Commissioners:

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF FIRE COMMISSIONERS,
CITY HALL, BOSTON, May 31, 1877.

Alderman Choate Burnham, Chairman of Committee on Fire Department: Dear Sir—In replying to a request to furnish your committee with a statement of the changes which have been made in the pay and allowances of the "crew" of the fire boat, it is proper that a statement of causes that influenced the board to make the changes should be given.

It has been the rule of the board since its organization to conduct the department with that economy consistent with security which will reduce the cost of its maintenance, and where it is manifest that a saving can be made, by reduction or disuse, they have not hesitated to do it. They have been impressed with the importance and the necessity of continuing in that course, by the public demand and by the action of the City Council, in its course of retrenchment and in other ways, indicating what might be the result. And such being in entire accordance with the feelings of this board, they have not only rejoiced to see that their acts in that direction are approved, but emphatically incorsed.

When the commissioners examined the subsistence bills of the fire-boat crew on their assuming office, it was found that it cost per annum the sum of $2163.63, or $309.09 per man, being $25.75 per month; they felt that that sum was larger than it should be, as the raw material only was furnished, all other conveniences for cooking, etc., being also found by the city; and as table board could be had in a first-class mechanics' boarding house for about $16 per month, they decided a reduction should be made, and an order was issued limiting them to the sum of $15 per month per man, and the captain has repeatedly stated that they lived well enough on that sum.

On making further investigation it was ascertained that elsewhere, in other cities having a fire boat in service, New York in particular, by personal inspection it was seen that their "boat," larger than ours, with more men, was placed on the same basis as their permanent companies, furnishing their own rations and receiving the same pay. It was also found that the steam tugs doing their work in our docks and around our wharves were not "rationed," and in view of the fact that our "boat" was always within hail of the wharves, there was no occasion why they should not come into line on the same lay as other permanent members of the department. There was still another reason that prompted the board to make the change. The Committee on Retrenchment in their report say that they are of the opinion that the service of the fire boat can be dispensed with, thereby saving $14,000 per annum. The board did not feel that the abandonment of the "boat" at present was quite a safe thing to do, and though the expense of running it is only some $10,967.04 for 1876-77, they hoped by reducing the cost as they have done by some $1820, by this act it would have an influence in retaining it in service until it became more manifest than at present that its use could be safely done away with.

The action of the board equalizes the conditions of the permanent force, and though the crew of the boat have nearly twice the amount of "leaves of absence" as the other permanent men, it is offset, perhaps, by the limit of their quarters.

Trusting that the reasons above named will be sufficient for justifying the action of the board,

I remain, very truly,

Your obedient servant,
DAVID CHAMBERLIN,
Chairman.

The report was accepted.

NINTH STREET.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14 offered an order—That the Committee on Streets be requested to report at the next meeting of the Council on the expediency of building Ninth street.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—This matter has been before the Joint Committee on Streets, and a sub-committee was appointed to report the estimated cost. We have been unable to get a report from them, and I think the committee will be unable to report by next Thursday.

Mr. Ham—The sub-committee reported to the committee some time ago, and have been endeavoring to get a report from the committee. This order is to assist them. The order was passed. Sent up.

IRON FENCE ON COMMONWEALTH AVENUE.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 submitted an order from the Committee on Common and Public Grounds—That said committee be authorized to contract for the erection of an iron fence around the squares on Commonwealth avenue between Fairfield street and West Chester park; the expense therefor to be charged to the special appropriation for fencing and grading Commonwealth avenue.

Mr. Howes—The City Council has already appropriated the money for this purpose in the general appropriation bill; but the committee cannot use it until they have liberty to do so. The work is to be carried on forthwith, and we are merely waiting for the money.

The order was passed to a second reading, and Mr. Howes moved a suspension of the rule.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I am disinclined to favor a suspension of the rule in order to put this thing through tonight. It seems to me to be rather a doubtful expediency to appropriate money for putting up an iron fence there this year. It would really seem to me that the money would be better saved this year. I should prefer to have it lie over, that I may think about it during the coming week.

Mr. Howes—Some two months ago, I think, there was a very lengthy debate upon this particular subject, and I imagine the members were very well informed upon it from that debate. The necessity or advisability of this action was fully discussed at that time, and it seems hardly necessary to delay it any further. With the exception of the fence the work is about all completed. The City Council have voted a large appropriation to grade and put the avenue in order, and all that is necessary to do is to put up the fence. The street is to be built upon very largely this summer, and I understand that a large building is to be put on the corner of Chester park and Commonwealth avenue within a few months, which shows that the street will need all the improvement that the city intends to make there.

Mr. Crocker—The gentleman says it has been discussed; but a discussion in regard to the fence is not within my recollection. The street is to be graded and put in order, which can be done without an iron fence. It really strikes me tonight that this expense—now that we are retrenching in so many ways and saving money—for a fence might just as well be postponed for another year, and even two years.

The rule was suspended, the order was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—Is this the appropriation of $6000 which was discussed, it I remember, six or seven weeks ago? That was an appropriation of $6000 for building an iron fence on Commonwealth avenue. Is that the labor which the committee wish to go upon?

Mr. Howes—I did not understand all that the gentleman said, but I judge from the amount stated that he wishes to know whether the $6000 appropriated for an iron fence is the money we ask for. I would answer that it is for the purpose of obtaining this money that the order is put in.

Mr. Richardson—I asked for the information because I remembered the discussion. If that is the same money I think the order ought to pass.

The order was passed. Sent up.

HOOR OF MEETING.

Mr. Brown of Ward 23 offered an order—That when this Council adjourn it be to meet at 8 o'clock P. M. on Thursday next, and that that be the hour for meeting until otherwise ordered.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—Has not an order of that kind been defeated by the Council?

Mr. Brown—An order of that tenor has been presented and I voted against it; but I have changed my mind and I want to vote for it.

The order was refused a second reading.

MANAGEMENT OF THE FIRE BOAT.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2 offered an order—That the Fire Commissioners be instructed to allow the crew of the fire boat William M. Flanders, for the purchase of provisions, an amount equal to the amount allowed for that purpose previous to the promulgation of general order No. 60, and to refund to said crew the amounts expended by them since then.

Mr. Burke—I desire to say a word in explanation. About two months ago I had the honor to offer an order requesting the Committee on Fire Department to report what reductions and allowances were made in the crew of the fire boat William M. Flanders. That report has been made tonight in a very elaborate manner by the Board of Fire Commissioners, and a great many statements have been made which I am prepared to say are not correct. Before I go any further I wish to say that this order does not interfere with the work of the Committee on Retrenchment, who had nothing to do with fixing the salaries of the fire department, except the chief officers. A large reduction was made in the pay of the crew of the fire-boat William M. Flanders by the Fire Commissioners. I, being a member of the Committee on Fire Department, received a note from the chairman of that board asking me to drop in to the office. I called one day and found that he had prepared a list of reductions, and among other things my attention was called to the reduction on the fire boat William M. Flanders. I remonstrated against it at the time and told him it was an unjust act, and he told me that the rest of the committee had agreed to it. It appeared that I was the last one consulted about the matter. Our committee really had nothing to do with the matter, and the chairman of the board did not forget to tell me so, but the board thought they would ask our opinion. I told him that things of that kind were not customary in boats of that class, and that I did not think the committee were familiar with boats of that kind. However, the order was issued and the men were deprived of their rations in addition to the reduction of their salaries. I believe that the Board of Fire Commissioners, as first established, was as able a board as was ever organized. On August 10, 1874, the following special order was issued:

* * * III. "The captain is authorized to expend for provisions for the boat an amount not exceeding fifteen ($15.00) dollars per month per man, the bills for this expenditure to be presented and passed upon monthly as heretofore." * * *

This is a certified copy from Mr. F. W. Smith, Jr., clerk. In the report read this evening it is stated that in boats of that class the men are not kept. I know that in a majority of boats of that class the men receive so much per month, and in seven out of thirteen boats around Boston the men are found; and I can name boats on which all the men are found. Furthermore I would state that in the boats where the men are not found, they do not work from eleven to twelve hours a day on an average, eating breakfast at home, carrying dinner with them, and going home at six o'clock in the evening. It is a well-known fact that the crew of the fire-boat are not allowed to leave their quarters on board the boat except on regular days allowed them by the Fire Commissioners. As to the statement made in regard to what other cities have done, I do not think that Boston proposes to imitate other cities; and in mentioning other cities, and New York in particular, no other city is cited except New York. The committee would have been glad to investigate the matter as I desired, but they thought the order did not reach that. But they feel prepared, if this order is referred to them, to make all the necessary inquiries about the matter. Therefore I leave the matter with the Council.

Mr. Spenceley—I had the honor to hand in the report from the Fire Commissioners, who answered a great many questions; but the main question asked was not answered. The question was what difference had there been in the pay of the crew of the fire boat this year and last year; and they go into an elaborate discussion, thus and so. They have simply cut off the rations and have cut down the pay by discharging one man. The committee we asked about. I do not know what is the custom on boats of that capacity in the harbor. I thought it no more than right, if these men did not get any more pay than the permanent men do; but it seems to me that it is a matter that requires investigation, and I move that it be referred to the Committee on Fire Department.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should like to ask the gentleman from Ward 2, as a matter of information, How many cities, other than New York and Boston, have fireboats, by which the commissioners could judge of the pay?

Mr. Burke—I was not aware that any other city had. I simply stated that they said in their report that found in other cities, and New York in particular. I do not know whether New York has a fireboat or not. While I am up I desire to say one word in regard to the pay of the crew being the same as that of the permanent force. I do not wish to depreciate the value of the engineers running steam fire engines, but it is well known that a marine engineer really receives more pay than an ordinary one.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—What is the comparative pay of the men employed upon the boats to which the gentleman refers and those upon the fireboat?

Mr. Burke—The pay of the crew is now the same as the permanent force. The captain gets about $100 a month. Men on boats of that class generally get from $60 to perhaps $90 and $100 a month, and perhaps from five to twenty per cent. on the amount of work that they have to do in what they call "stacking"; and even in these dull times they will average $100 a month. Such engineers as we have on the fireboat at the present time generally receive about $125 a month, and are found. I can name more than one who has received that salary, and they are working for the city.

The order was referred to the Joint Committee on Fire Department. Sent up.

DRAINAGE OF MUDDY BROOK.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 offered an order—That the special committee appointed upon the improvement of Stony Brook also take into consideration the necessity of improving the sewerage of Muddy River from the Brookline line to its outlet on Back Bay.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—It seems to me that it is not necessary for the city of Boston to go to much expense in investigating that matter. The town of Brookline is at present at work upon a very complete system of sewerage, which is to divert into Charles River the sewage now running into Muddy River, which will relieve that river of its impurities.

Mr. Clarke—If that is the case the committee will so report. Probably the committee will have very little to do, but I am in doubt what will be the result. The Board of Health have complained of the territory on the easterly side of Brookline avenue above Francis street for the last ten years, and the expense which it has cost the city to make the examination and report would have paid the whole cost of relieving that territory of its imperfect drainage. It never has been attended to by the city, and has always been an eye-sore between Boston and the town of Brookline, because of annexation; and we have let it alone. It has been before several Boards of Aldermen, but they have felt that they would not do anything about it because the town of Brookline preferred to do their own sewerage. The town tried to get the city to help them build that sewer, but they could make no impression upon the Sewer Committee; and now I am in doubt whether the Brookline sewer will carry off the sewage from a portion of that territory. They propose to construct a sewer upon the westerly side of the Brookline Railroad; and they would have carried it on the east side of the railroad if Boston had joined them; but Boston took no interest in it and the result is Brookline is taking care of itself and leaving Boston out in the cold. It seems to me that this is a proper matter to take into consideration at this time, because they propose to run the sewer from Parker street to Charles River. If the sewage of Boston is carried on the easterly side of Muddy River it will empty into the Back Bay; and if the two are carried off together and emptied into Charles River it can be done cheaper than if acted upon independently. If there are going to be any accommodations allowed by means of the Brookline sewer the committee can very easily make their report. At any rate we want something done.

On motion of Mr. Howes, the order was referred to the Special Committee on Improved Sewerage. Sent up.

TICKETS FOR SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23 offered the following:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the Common Council the opportunity to accommodate invited guests at the school festival to be holden at the Tabernacle on Saturday next, June 2, is so much greater than heretofore, that the sub-committee of the School Committee having the matter in charge should be able to furnish the members of the Common Council with five additional tickets each, and they therefore hereby request of said sub-committee this favor.

Read twice and passed.

Adjourned on motion of Mr. Vose of Ward 24.

VACATION SCHOOLS.

The order to appropriate $2000 for vacation schools came up with the non-concurrence of the other branch in the amendment that the expense be charged to the appropriation for School Expenses.

Alderman Thompson—This Board voted that the School Committee be permitted to try this experiment, the expense to be charged to their Contingent Fund. Since then I have understood that the School Committee have that authority without the consent of this Board, and it seems to me that the expression of the Board will be carried out by indefinitely postponing the subject. The committee will then have it in their power to try this experiment just as they please; and under these circumstances I move the indefinite postponement of the whole subject.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The indefinite postponement of this order simply means the non-providing of these vacation schools. Under the order as passed by this Board, the Auditor informs me—and it was exactly what I knew before and stated at the last meeting—that if the schools were established and the teachers employed, the money cannot be paid because there is nothing with which to pay them. The Contingent Fund specifies the object for which each and every item is devoted, and the Auditor will refuse to audit and the Treasurer will refuse to pay any bills contracted for vacation schools. If the Board do not want vacation schools they can say so by a direct vote, but I do not believe in killing it by indirection. If the Board believe there should be vacation schools, we should give them the means to carry them out. Under the amendment of the gentleman from Charlestown the expense is to be paid from the Contingent Fund; but the Auditor will not audit any bill sent in that way, and the money cannot be paid. The proper way is to pass the order as it originally came from the Finance Committee. I think the Auditor informed the Alderman opposite, who is a member of the Finance Committee [Alderman Clark] precisely what he informed me. I hope the original orders will be passed, because I believe that no $1500 will be spent so well and to so good purpose as the money for these vacation schools.

Alderman Thompson—Have not the School Committee the right to spend their appropriation for incidental expenses as they please, without consulting the Auditor? If not, then I have learned something new this afternoon. I did not know that either branch of the City Council are obliged to specify to the Auditor how they shall spend their contingent funds. My object is to have the School Committee try the experiment with the funds they already have. That was the opinion of the Board last week. I think the Alderman has not stated exactly what is the fact in regard to their having no right to spend the Contingent Fund as they please. I am sure no member of the Committee on Public Instruction knew for what purpose the appropriation for Incidentals was to be used. I am satisfied that this experiment can be tried from that fund without coming to the City Council.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The money devoted to Incidentals has separate items. For instance, so much is appropriated for text books for poor children, so much for drawing books, for the musical festival, for the exchange of books, for globes and drawings, and other things of that kind. The $25,000 appropriated for text books cannot be spent for fuel, and the amount appropriated for fuel cannot be spent for text books; and so on through the various items. Nobody would say that, the School Board could expend for something else the $50,000 appropriated for janitors. The money appropriated for Incidentals can be used only for the purposes for which it was appropriated, and as a consequence there is nothing in that fund from which this expense can be paid. The Auditor came to see me after the order passed, and said it was tantamount to killing the whole vacation school order.

Alderman Clark—I have stated heretofore that I was in favor of a trial of vacation schools, but I thought that the cost should be paid from the school appropriation. I was not present at the meeting of the Finance Committee when this order was considered, and had I been present I should have recommended that the amount be taken from the School Fund rather than be charged to incidentals. I was not present, and, therefore, am ignorant of any conversation that took place.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Auditor said the whole matter was discussed in the Finance Committee, and they finally came to the conclusion that the only way it should pass is in the original order. The Auditor informed me that the Alderman was not present, and he thought that if he had been he would have advocated the order as it came from the committee. The Mayor was present, and I think he will state that that was the conclusion to which the Finance Committee came upon this question.

Alderman Thompson—If the Board will look at page 73 of the appropriation bill they will see that the School Committee have $1,411,520; and there are items of salaries for instructors, officers, janitors, supplies, fuel; and for incidentals is $100,000. The committee recommended that the estimate for incidentals be reduced from $113,300 to $100,000, and the estimate for janitors, supplies, fuel, etc., be reduced from $153,000 to $145,000. There are $100,000 for incidentals, and if the School Committee see fit to spend $2000 to try this experiment with, I do not think there will be any difficulty in prevailing upon the Auditor or Finance Committee to pay the bills. We do not know how this $100,000 is to be expended. The objection is all imaginary that there is not sufficient margin for any such little expenditure as this. It is nonsense to say that the School Committee cannot appropriate $200 from incidentals for any measure they deem proper. The Alderman stated that they had to take the incidentals from the janitors, supplies and fuel; but they have $100,000 and so he must be mistaken, so far as that item goes. Really, all the items that they are required to explain are stated here and provided for; but we don't know what they are going to do with this $100,000. Certainly they have a much larger fund for incidental expenses at their disposal than have the City Council.

Alderman Clark—I hope this subject will not be indefinitely postponed, and I move that it be laid upon the table.

Alderman Thompson—I have no objection. The subject was laid upon the table.

BUILDING OF NINTH STREET.

An order came from the other branch for the Joint Committee on Streets to report at the next meeting of the Common Council on the expediency of completing Ninth street.

Alderman Burnham—I was about to state some reasons why the committee should be called upon to report, though I hardly know that it is necessary. This matter has been a long time delayed, and I say there is no disrespect which originated in the other branch. It has been four months in the hands of the committee. It was not a new matter, but came from the files of the Street Commissioners. It had received their consideration and came to us with the recommendation that it was a street improvement that might be entered upon in the interest of the city. That the interest of the public demands the improvement there can be no question, and the improvement has been long delayed, not that it could for a moment be condemned, but because it could be pushed along in the supposed exercise of economy in the management of our city affairs. This I believe to have been a mistake, because I can show that it is not a local improvement of the kind to be delayed, but for the interest of our city as a whole. When it comes before this branch I will be prepared to show that it was intended in the original laying out of the place to be a continuous street, and it is simply completing the original plan; and I will also show that the completion of Swett street makes it imperative upon us now. It can be done now at small cost and give employment of a type that returns a value received for every $1 expended. The owners of the territory make liberal offers to the city, so liberal that it must be admitted by every fair-minded man that personal interests have nothing to do with the pressure for its construction. I will show you that taxation will be increased to an extent that the city treasury will not suffer. It is asked for the public good; 60,000 residents of South Boston and 30,000 in the Dorchester and Highland districts are interested in the making travel direct, and lessening the detention to travel in the opening of bridges, as well as overcoming the rise of the hill. It will save the whole territory at the head of Dorchester Bay to regularity and order in the laying out of streets, instead of the confusion now stamped upon the territory in the present projected streets. The bills cut down in filling will remove some of the most objectionable features of the plan and open one of the best localities to be built upon. Mr. Mayor, this is a spot where the development of a territory for business purposes is within two miles of State street and about 1/4 miles of Chester park, and although a comparatively small matter, yet so far as it goes, it transcends any development of grounds for pleasure only, and therefore demands our attention, as business should have attention before pleasure. In a business point of view the gain and saving in the repairs and opening of the bridges alone would be a full compensation for the whole cost, while the gaining in time alone will annually exceed double the amount we shall expend. Business prostration may be a reason why we should not build parks, but it is no reason why we should not meet a real want like this. Let us see this as we did Commonwealth avenue in making an appropriation of $150,000 there. That was a proper thing to do. We were committed to do it some time. We might have spent $50,000 a year for three years and met our obligations and satisfied everybody, for there was not the necessity there that Ninth street presents, but we voted that $150,000 with hardly an objection to it. Mr. Chairman, when Commonwealth avenue is completed there will be but little travel on it, but here is an improvement that will cost less money and make a level and continuous avenue across our city from South Boston Point to Cambridge, over which, in my opinion, there will be a rate of travel of more than fifty to one as compared with Commonwealth avenue. Why, then, should not the want be met? Why should the idea in the committee that it is local improvement, or any other idea, delay reporting, and thus push off its construction? Is it more local than Commonwealth avenue? I cannot see it. I hope the committee will report upon it at once. And on the report I believe the City Council will deal fairly with the matter. I believe the order should pass.

Alderman Clark—This discussion is entirely out of order. The subject has not been reported by the committee and it is not a question whether Ninth street shall be laid out and extended. I believe the question is upon concurring in the passage of the order instructing the committee to report at the next meeting of the Council. This subject came before the Street Committee and a sub-committee was appointed to see upon what conditions the abutters and owners of the land could be treated with for the purpose of laying out the street. Upon that sub-committee were the Alderman from the Bunker Hill District and two members of the Common Council from South Boston; and they have not yet been able to make satisfactory arrangements with the abutters to justify them in recommending that that street be laid out. That is the way the matter stands. It would be utterly impossible for the committee to prepare a report for next Thursday evening. Several parties from that district have given notice that they desire to be heard in opposition to laying out Ninth street, and it will be utterly impossible to give them a hearing and report to the Council next Thursday evening.

Alderman Burnham—The Alderman says this matter is not open for discussion. I did not intend to open the discussion, and if he had paid a little more attention he would have heard me say that I was prepared to discuss it when it came before the Board.

Alderman Clark—And he went on to compare this improvement with others made. The proper time to discuss it is when the report is made to the City Council.

Alderman Burnham—How long would the committee need to make up their report? I should be happy to amend the order so that they should have reasonable time.

On motion of Alderman Clark the order was amended by substituting "within four weeks" for the words "at the next meeting," and as amended was passed. Sent down.

SALARY OF DOVER-STREET BRIDGE SUPERINTENDENT.

The order to establish the salary of the Superintendent of Dover-street Bridge came up referred to the Committee on Retrenchment, etc. Concurred.

Subsequently Alderman Thompson stated that the reference had been concurred in without his notice, and on his motion the vote was reconsidered. He referred to the fact that this salary had been omitted in the Retrenchment Committee's report on salaries until the bridge should be completed. The bridge was opened in the latter part of March, and the superintendent has been obliged to employ another man, the bridge having a double draw, precisely like Federal-street Bridge, requiring a man on each side to attend to opening it. This man has been there since the latter part of March and has received nothing. The salary of the Superintendent of Federal-street Bridge, which is precisely like this, was $3000, and the Retrenchment Committee reduced it to $2700. This bridge not being opened quite as many times, the Bridge Committee made the salary $2500, and he felt quite sure the Retrenchment Committee would indorse it. The Superintendent of Broadway Bridge receives $2900. The principal object in having the order go through is that the men can get their compensation, and it will be a hardship to them if they cannot do so.

Alderman Burnham confirmed the statement of Alderman Thompson, adding a correction of a statement made in the other branch that another bridge was open ten times where this one is once. It is open two-thirds as often as others where the superintendents receive a larger salary. It was opened over 5000 times last year. Its proximity to the Old Colony Railroad track requires great skill in the Superintendent and his assistants.

The Board refused to concur in the reference, and adhered to the vote by which the order was passed. Sent down.

VACATION OF FIREMEN.

A report and resolve came up that the firemen of this city should receive a vacation without loss of pay.

The question was upon the acceptance of the report.

Alderman Burnham—This report is in favor of passing the resolve expressing the opinion of the City Council to the Fire Commissioners, that it is expedient that the members of the Boston Fire Department shall be allowed an annual vacation without loss of pay, in addition to that already allowed, providing it can be done without detriment to the public service. I feel called upon to say it had not the unanimous vote of the joint committee. It was not concurred in by the members of the committee on the part of this Board, and yet the matter was not by them deemed of sufficient importance to present a minority report, as it was only a resolve. The minority of the committee could see no reason for the Fire Commissioners increasing the expenses of the department—over $10,000—in this direction. The members of the Fire Department now have twenty-four days' vacation in the twelve months—that is, they draw pay for twenty-four days for which they render no equivalent in service. They also can have the vacation this resolution seeks by application to the commissioners and supplying a substitute that shall be acceptable to them. No one denies the desirability of an occasional vacation, and the rules of the Fire Department do not forbid it, for in that they provide for it and admit of it. If the firemen wish it they can have it. It was argued that the firemen had a confined life—which is true—but the minority considered that the fireman accepted the life, with the full knowledge of its conditions, and this confinement was set over against the enjoyment of days of comparative ease. It was also considered that the firemen themselves had not expressed the wish, and neither did the commissioners feel that it would be for the best interest of the force; if they had it would be given the department. Therefore I have only this to say—that while I have no unwillingness that the Fire Commissioners should consider the matter, I see no reason for its adoption.

On motion of Alderman Burnham, the whole subject was indefinitely postponed in non-concurrence.

WATER DEPARTMENT.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Water:

Cochituate Water for Watering Streets. Report of leave to withdraw on petition of A. E. Pratt to be furnished with Cochituate water free of charge for the purpose of watering Tremont street, Boston Highlands. Accepted. Sent down.

Work on Mystic Valley Sewer. Report on order to have work on Mystic Valley sewer done by the recommending the passage (in place thereof) of the following:

Resolved, That in consideration of the present large number of laboring men in our city who are without employment, it is the sense of the City Council that in the construction of the proposed sewer in the Mystic Valley, the work should be done by day labor, and that none but citizens of Boston should be employed; and it is therefore hereby Ordered, That in the construction of the proposed sewer in the Mystic Valley the Boston Water Board be authorized to have the work done by day labor, provided that none but citizens of Boston shall be employed.

Messrs. Fraser and Jackson, of the committee, dissent from the foregoing and recommend the passage of the original order, which was referred to the committee, directing the Water Board to do the work by day's labor, and employ none but citizens of Boston.

The question was upon the passage of the resolve and order of the majority.

Alderman Clark—The original order directs the Water Board to do this work by day's labor. The passage of the resolve and order of the committee will accomplish the same purpose, by authorizing, instead of ordering them to do the work by day's labor. That is the only difference between the two.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Have they not that power now?

Alderman Clark—They have no authority to expend over $10,000 except by contract, and they are obliged to advertise for proposals for all contracts exceeding $10,000. This order authorizes them to do this entire work by day's labor, and advises that they employ none but citizens and taxpayers of Boston.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If I understand it, the difference between the two orders is this: The first order is mandatory on the commissioners and the second order simply gives them authority, and they can do it or not, if they deem fit: I move to amend the order by inserting "and recommended" after "authorized." It would not be mandatory upon them, but will show the disposition of the City Council.

Alderman Clark—I have not the slightest objection to the amendment; I accept it.

The resolve and order as thus amended was passed. Sent down.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted reports and orders from the Committee on Paving, as follows: Report that petition of Howard Snelling & Co. et al.; for crosswalk on Kilby street, at Doane street, be granted. Accepted.

Order of notice to Middlesex Railroad Company that in the opinion of this Board the public safety and convenience require that Charlestown street, from Haymarket square to Causeway street, should be paved with small granite blocks, and that said company be directed to pave on said street the space occupied by its tracks with small granite blocks; said work to be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of the Superintendent of Streets. Passed.

Report and order to pay Thomas Manning, George O. Sears and Robert Scott $889.29 for grade damages at 6-8-10 Oliver street.

Alderman Thompson asked an explanation, and Alderman Robinson said the Superintendent of Streets had authorized those parties to go on and perform the work of raising the sidewalk, etc., and this is simply the vouchers for the expenditure. The committee did not think any damage had been done to the estate.

The order was read twice and passed.

Report and order to repave Charlestown street from Haymarket square to Causeway street with small granite blocks; estimated cost, $12,000. Order read twice and passed.

Order to close Franklin avenue, between Court street and Cornhill, against the passage of vehicles and foot passengers until the building operations now in progress on said avenue shall have been concluded. Read twice and passed.

Reports and orders for brick sidewalks in front of estates of James McDonald, 236-238 Havre street; A. J. Bamford, 92-96 Brook avenue; R. W. Williams, 321 Dudley street; and estate of Fabien Ross, Warren street, near Gaston street.

Order to pave India street, between Central and Custom House streets, with small granite blocks; estimated cost, $5000. Read twice and passed.

Lyman, Patrick Houghton, Jr., David O. Felt, Daniel W. Sullivan, Thomas J. Linton, Michael J. Nugent. Report accepted and said nominations confirmed.

MUZZLING DOGS.

Alderman Bréck submitted the following, which, on his motion, was laid on the table and ordered to be printed:

The Committee on Ordinances, to whom was referred the orders that all dogs found running at large unmuzzled, and that all female dogs found running at large should be killed, and who were requested to consider the expediency of requiring that all dogs shall be muzzled or restrained from running at large, having considered the subject, beg leave to submit the following report:

The statutes in relation to dogs have been the subject of careful consideration from a very early period, beginning in 1715, when a provision for killing unruly and ravenous dogs was included in a statute encouraging the killing of wolves. The laws have been amended from time to time with a view of providing for the most perfect protection to persons and property. The laws in force at the present time are as follows:

Every owner or keeper of a dog is required to have it licensed annually, and to cause it to wear around its neck a collar distinctly marked with its owner's name and its registered number, and to pay for such license—for a male dog two dollars and for a female dog five dollars. (1867, chap. 130, sect. 1.) Any person keeping an unlicensed dog is liable to a fine of fifteen dollars, five dollars to be paid to the complainant and ten dollars to the city treasurer. (Ibid., 5.) The assessors of cities and towns are required annually, on the first day of May, to take a list of all dogs owned or kept in their respective cities and towns and to return the same to the city or town clerk on or before the first day of July. Any person or keeper of a dog who shall refuse to give just and true answers, or shall answer falsely to the assessors, relative to the ownership thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding ten dollars, to be paid into the city treasury. (Ibid., 6.) Mayors of cities are required annually, ten days from the first day of July, to issue a warrant to one or more police officers, directing them to proceed forthwith either to kill, or cause to be killed, all dogs within their respective cities, not licensed and collared, and to enter complaint against the owners or keepers thereof, and any person may, and every police officer shall, kill, or cause to be killed, all such dogs whenever or wherever found. (Ibid., 7.) Police officers to whom the warrant shall have been issued are required to return the same, on or before the first day of October following, to the Mayor, and state in said return the number of dogs killed, and the names of the owners or keepers thereof, and whether all unlicensed dogs in his city have been killed, and the names of persons against whom complaints have been made, and whether complaints have been entered against all persons who have failed to comply with the provisions of law. (Ibid., 8.) Mayors of cities are required to transmit annually to the district attorney a sworn certificate of the service of the warrant and whether the same has been duly executed and returned; and it is the duty of the district attorney to prosecute all officers who fail to comply with the provisions of the law. (Ibid., 9.) The mayor and aldermen may order that any dog or dogs within the limits of the city shall be muzzled or restrained from running at large during such times as shall be prescribed in such order. After passing such an order and the publication of the same, said mayor and aldermen may issue their warrant to one or more police officers, who shall, after twenty-four hours from the publication of such notice, kill any or all dogs found unmuzzled or running at large contrary to such order. (1877, chap. 167, sec. 1.) The mayor and aldermen may cause special service of any order passed by them respectively to be made upon any person, requiring that any dog owned or kept by such person shall be muzzled or restrained from running at large, by causing a certified copy of such order to be delivered to him. Any person who, after receiving such certified copy, shall refuse or neglect, for the period of twelve hours after receiving such notice, to muzzle or restrain such dog, as required by such order, shall pay a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars. (Ibid., 3.) Whoever suffers loss by the worrying, maiming or killing of his sheep, lambs, fowls or other domestic animals by dogs is entitled to be paid the full amount of such loss from the treasury of the city. The treasurer may bring an action of tort against the owner or keeper of any dog concerned in doing damage to domestic animals to recover the full amount paid on account of such damage. (1867, chap. 130, sec. 10 and 12.) Every owner or keeper of a dog shall forfeit to any person injured by it double the amount of damage sustained by him, to be recovered in an action of tort. Any person may kill a dog that shall suddenly assault him while he is peaceably walking or riding without the enclosure of its owner or keeper; and any person may kill a dog that is found out of the enclosure or immediate care of its owner or keeper, worrying or wounding any neat cattle, sheep or lambs. If any person so assaulted, or finding a dog strolling out of the enclosure or immediate care of its owner or keeper shall, within forty-eight hours after such assault or finding, make oath thereof before a justice of the peace or police court for the county, or before the clerk of the city or town where the owner of the dog dwells, and shall further swear that he suspects the dog to be dangerous or mischievous, and shall give notice thereof to its owner or keeper by delivering him a certificate of such oath, signed by the justice or clerk, the owner or keeper shall forthwith kill or confine it; and if he neglects to do so for twenty-four hours after such notice, he shall forfeit ten dollars. If, after such notice, the dog is not killed or confined, but is again found strolling out of the enclosure or immediate care of the owner, any person may kill it. If a dog, after such notice to its owner or keeper, shall by such assault wound, or cause to be wounded, any person, or shall worry, wound or kill any neat cattle, sheep or lambs, or do any other mischief, the owner or keeper shall be liable to pay to the person injured thereby treble damages, to be recovered in an action of tort. The city council may make such additional by-laws and regulations concerning the licensing and restraining of dogs as they may deem expedient, and may affix any penalties, not exceeding ten dollars, for any breach thereof. (General Statutes, chapter 88, sections 59 to 67.) A city ordinance provides that on complaint being made to the Mayor of any dog within the city which shall, by barking, biting, howling, or in any way disturb the quiet of any person or persons whomsoever, the Mayor shall issue notice thereof to the owner or keeper of such dog; and in case the owner or keeper shall neglect to cause such dog to be forthwith removed and kept beyond the limits of the city, or destroyed, he shall forfeit and pay one dollar for every day during which such neglect shall continue after such notice; provided, that the justice before whom the case shall be tried shall be satisfied that the dog had, in the manner aforesaid, disturbed the quiet of any person or persons in the city. (Ordinances, page 233.) It has been held, in an action to recover damages for injuries inflicted by a dog, that "the wrong done to the person injured consists not in the act of the master in owning or keeping, or neglecting to restrain, the dog, but in the act of the dog, for which the master is responsible" (117 Mass., 109); and further, that, to recover damages, "it is not necessary to allege or prove that the owner knew of the dangerous character or habits of his dog, or that the dog was in fact accustomed to bite." (3 Allen, 191.) It will be seen that while by the law a dog is property, the weight of responsibility is placed upon the owner, and the law only protects him so far as to prohibit the injuring of that property without cause. Although existing laws would appear to afford reasonable protection from dogs, there is a feeling of insecurity on the part of some of our citizens. Hence the requests for further legislation. The excitement on the dog question occurs at irregular intervals with more or less violence. At times it assumes almost the form of an epidemic and travels from place to place, gaining strength as it extends. An extraordinary number of cases of dog-biting are reported; the papers are filled with accounts of deaths from hydrophobia in localities where the disease was rarely or never known before, and the excitement usually culminates in a demand for the extermination of dogs. Much of this excitement is due to the natural antipathy which many persons have against dogs, while a greater part arises from a dread of the disease known as hydrophobia and the popular ignorance of the subject. If hydrophobia was as common as the number of reported cases would lead us to suppose, it would be well to consider whether it would not be a duty to exterminate the whole canine race. But it is really one of the rarest known diseases—so uncommon as to lead scientific observers to doubt its existence—and it has been proven that the majority of deaths attributed to hydrophobia can be traced to other causes, while it is believed that many deaths have been caused simply by fear and the power of imagination. If the latter is the case the danger would be greatly reduced by spreading in the community a true knowledge of the facts, and would be still further diminished if the public were made familiar with the symptoms of rabies, so as to be able to detect it in its incipient stages and, by immediate action, prevent its propagation. The Legislature has recognized the wisdom of doing this by ordering that the symptoms of hydrophobia shall be printed on every dog license. Another step in the right direction would be to publish them once or twice a year in the newspapers of the city.

Believing it to be a matter of public interest, and also that an authoritative statement of the facts will have a beneficial effect in allaying the unnecessary excitement which exists at the present time on the subject of hydrophobia, the committee submit a brief compilation of the opinions of the best authorities on that subject.

Canine rabies is not a sudden disease, appearing all at once, like apoplexy; it does not suddenly carry the dog it attacks from the most flourishing state of health to a condition of furious delirium. It is a popular error to suppose that the appearance of the disease is immediately characterized by acts of madness. It has its premoni-tory signs, which are so marked that when known they cannot be mistaken for anything else. The Council of Hygiene of Bordeaux published the following statement of the symptoms of rabies, for the purpose of protecting the public against the dangers of hydrophobia:

"A short time, sometimes two days, after the madness has seized the dog, it creates disturbances in the usual condition of the animal which it is indispensable to know.

"1. There is agitation and restlessness; the dog turns himself continually in his kennel. If he be at liberty he goes and comes, and seems to be seeking something; then he remains motionless, as if waiting; he starts, bites the air, seems as if he would catch a fly, and dashes himself, barking and howling, against the wall. The voice of his master dissipates the hallucinations; the dog obeys, but slowly, with hesitation, as with regret.

"2. He does not try to bite; he is gentle, even affectionate, and he eats and drinks; but he gnaws his litter, the ends of the curtains, the padding of cushions, the coverlids of beds, the carpets, etc.

"3. By the movements of his paws about the sides of his mouth, one might think he was trying to free his throat of a bone.

"4. His voice has undergone such a change that it is impossible not to be struck by it.

"5. The dog begins to fight with other dogs; this is a decidedly characteristic sign, if the dog be of a peaceful nature.

"The numbers 3, 4 and 5 indicate an already advanced stage of the disease, and the time is at hand when men will be exposed to the already dangerous fits of the animal if immediate measures be not taken. These measures are to chain him up, or, better still, destroy him."

A very early symptom of rabies in the dog is an extreme degree of restlessness. Frequently he is almost invariably wandering about, shifting from corner to corner, or continually rising up and lying down, changing his position in every possible way. If he is at liberty, he will imagine that something is lost, and he will eagerly search round the room, and particularly every corner of it, with strange violence and indecision. He seeks quietness, likes retirement and obscurity, and conceals himself in the corners of rooms and under furniture. He begins to gaze strangely about him as he lies on his bed. His countenance becomes cloudy and suspicious. A peculiar delirium is an early symptom, and one that will never deceive. The dog sees imaginary objects, he gazes wildly around, he snaps and barks, and he rushes at his imaginary foe. The attachment of the dog towards his master seems to be rapidly increased. His affection increases with his sufferings. Even in the paroxysms of the disease he obeys his master's voice. His fatal desire to bite is overcome by the power of his attachment. The dog refuses his natural food; he frequently turns from it with an evident expression of disgust; at other times he seizes it with greater or less avidity and then drops it, sometimes from disgust, at other times because he is unable to complete the mastication of it. This palsy of the organs of mastication, and dropping of the food, after it has been partly chewed, is a symptom on which implicit confidence may be placed. The appetite becomes depraved and the animal will swallow articles entirely unfit for food, and which in his natural state he would reject with disgust. A symptom of short duration, seldom lasting more than twelve hours, is an increased secretion of saliva. It however never equals the increased discharge which accompanies epilepsy or nausea. The stories of mad dogs covered with foam are altogether fabulous. A dog recovering from or attacked by a fit may be seen in this state, but not a rabid dog. The increased secretion of saliva soon passes away. It lessens in quantity and becomes thicker, viscid, adhesive and glutinous. It clings to the corners of the mouth and probably more annoyingly so to the membrane of the fauces. The dog furiously attempts to detach it with his paws. It is an early symptom, and can scarcely be mistaken. If the dog, while doing so, loses his balance and tumbles over, there can be no longer any mistake. As the saliva becomes more glutinous, the dog is afflicted with insatiable thirst. If he continues to have power over the muscles of his jaw, he will lap water. If his jaws and tongue are paralyzed, he will plunge his muzzle into the water to his very eyes, in order that he may get one drop of water into the back part of his mouth to moisten and cool his dry and parched fauces. Hence, instead of the disease being characterized by the dread of water in the dog; it is marked by a thirst often perfectly unquenchable. There is a marked and peculiar change in the dog's voice. His barking is entirely different from its normal tone. He becomes suddenly aggressive towards other dogs, and will attack them in preference to any other animal. There are other appearances, such as insensibility to pain, weakness in the hind quarters, and a desire to wander away from home, which accompany the disease, but sufficient has been quoted to show that the symptoms of rabies are discernible in season to prevent danger. The authorities on dogs agree substantially as to the symptoms of the disease.

Professor Dick holds that rabies is essentially an inflammatory affection, attacking peculiarly the mucous membrane of the nose, and extending thence to the interior part of the brain, and so giving rise to a derangement of the nervous system as a necessary consequence. This train of symptoms constitute mainly, if not wholly, the essence of an occasional epidemic not unlike some forms of influenza or epizootic disease, and the bite of a rabid animal is not always, to an animal so bitten, the exciting cause of the disease, but merely an accidental concomitant in the prevailing disorder. Also the disease hydrophobia, produced in man, is not always the result of any poison introduced into his system, but merely the melancholy, and often fatal result of panic fear and of the disordered state of the imagination. Those who are acquainted with the effect of sympathy, and imitation, and panic, in the production of nervous disorders, will readily comprehend the meaning of the professor. The testimony of all writers on the subject is—

First, that rabies is only propagated by inoculation; second, that a dog does not suddenly go mad, but that the disease incubates and has its promitory symptoms; third, that rabies is more frequent in temperate and cold than in hot climates, and is more likely to occur in winter and spring than in summer or autumn; fourth, that rabid dogs never have fits, do not avoid water, but desire it, do not dash through the streets, foaming at the mouth—the dogs which are seen in that condition being affected with epilepsy, to which dogs are extremely subject—and do not run with their tails between their legs, unless pursued and frightened; fifth, that the statistics of hydrophobia show a very considerable ratio in favor of escape from inoculation when bitten, that the bite of a rabid dog by no means invariably causes hydrophobia, and that prompt cauterization of the wound by a skilful surgeon may be considered an almost certain preventive of the disease; sixth, that tetanus and other spasmodic affections have often been mistaken for hydrophobia in man, and that the effect of the bite of a dog, whether hydrophobic or not, upon a person of nervous temperament may be sufficient to produce a train of symptoms resembling the disease itself.

It matters little, however, whether a death is caused by hydrophobia or by fright occasioned by the bite of a dog. In either case the result is the same, and it should be the aim of all regulations to diminish the chances of being bitten at all. The orders which were referred to the committee propose doing this either by killing, or muzzling, or restraining all dogs. These measures would, undoubtedly, accomplish the object, but it is believed that it can be accomplished as effectually by measures more consonant with the feelings of humanity. Undoubtedly dangerous dogs exist, and it is against such that restrictive measures should be directed, but the whole race of dogs should not be held responsible for the ill deeds of a few of its members. The wholesale slaughter of dogs in the public streets should not be permitted under any circumstances. The sight of such butchery, with its attendant scenes of bloodshed and sickening cruelty, would be repugnant to the majority of our citizens. Whenever it is necessary that dogs should be killed, the work should be done in as merciful a manner as possible and without publicity. It is believed that to muzzle dogs would tend rather to increase than to diminish the danger. Canine rabies, as has been stated, is a disease of the nervous system. Anything which irritates or annoys the animal will favor development of the disease. In the head of the dog are located his most important nerves, and the pressure of the muzzle upon such a sensitive spot cannot fail to cause constant and irritating pain. The dog perspires only by the mouth, and to close his mouth is to interfere with that important function. The muzzle prevents free access to water, which the dog requires in large quantities. Considering the important part which the dog's mouth plays in the economy of the animal, to confine it cannot fail to cause great suffering. If muzzling dogs will not cause madness, it will be liable to make them morose and ferocious and increase the danger of their biting when the muzzle is removed. Another objection to the use of the muzzle is that it destroys the usefulness of the dog as a means of protection against thieves and tramps, who would undoubtedly be glad to have these faithful guardians of our suburban homes restrained.

Finally, a dog that requires to be muzzled should be killed, for an intelligent and properly educated dog uses the weapons which nature has given him only in self-defence or for the protection of that which is intrusted to his care.

Restraining dogs, by which is meant confining them or chaining them up, is open to the same objections as muzzling.

While the committee believe that in ordinary times the present regulations, if properly enforced, would be sufficient for the protection of the community, in view of the unwise excitement on the subject of hydrophobia, they would recommend the adoption of two measures, which they believe will have a beneficial effect. They would recommend, first, that a statement of the symptoms of rabies be published one or more times during the year in the newspapers of the city, together with a request that dog owners will notify the police of the appearance of sickness in their dogs, and that they will chain the animal up until the nature of the ailment is discovered. This, it is believed, will have the double effect of preventing a scare by teaching the public to distinguish between rabies and the many harmless maladies to which dogs are subject, and also of eventually extirpating the disease, by destroying the rabid dog before he has an opportunity to propagate it; for it has been demonstrated that rabies is only propagated by inoculation, and one writer on the subject asserts that if all dogs could be quarantined for eight months the disease would disappear. Second—That the Committee on Police be authorized to make arrangements for capturing all dogs found running at large unmuzzled or unaccompanied by their owners or keepers, and to take all dogs so captured to some suitable place of detention, there to be cared for and kept for at least three days, during which time their owners may have an opportunity to redeem them by the payment of a fee. All dogs remaining uncalled for at the expiration of a certain time to be put to death in a painless manner under the direction of some suitable person. If this measure is adopted owners of valuable dogs will be careful not to allow them to run at large unaccompanied. Even the dogs will learn to avoid the risk of being captured. The effect will be to confine the dogs to their owners' premises, where it is presumed they have a legal right to be. It will also have the effect of ridding the city, in a humane manner, of a large number of worthless curs, who are responsible for most of the mischief done by dogs. It is believed that the receipts for the redemption of dogs will nearly, if not quite, pay the expense of capturing and destroying them.

In conclusion, the committee desire to express the opinion that more good will be accomplished by well sustained preventive measures than by occasional violent enactments. If the whole community could understand and would remember the early symptoms of canine rabies, but little danger need be apprehended. This knowledge, together with the effectual enforcement of the present laws, will be more efficacious in protecting the public than any violent measures.

The committee respectfully recommend the passage of the following orders.

CHARLES H. B. BRECK.
CHOATE BURNHAM.

Ordered, That the City Clerk be directed to publish annually in the newspapers of the city a description of the disease in dogs known as rabies, together with a request that dog owners will notify the police of the appearance of sickness in their dogs, and that they will chain the animals up until the nature of the disease shall be ascertained.

Ordered, That the Committee on Police be authorized to make suitable arrangements for capturing all dogs found running at large unmuzzled or unaccompanied by their owners or keepers, and for killing such dogs in some painless manner after keeping them in a suitable place for a period of not less than three days, during which time the owners of said dogs may redeem them upon payment of a fee to be fixed by said committee.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Reports and orders of notice for hearings on Monday next, at ten o'clock P. M., on expediency of constructing sewers, as follows:

In Jamaica street, between South street and White avenue; in White avenue, between Jamaica street and land of Mrs. C. A. Connor; through land of Connor to Centre street; in Centre street, from land of Connor to Orchard street, and in Orchard street.

In Wyman street, between Curtis and Lamartine streets; in Lamartine street, between Wyman and Centre streets, and through land of Gaffield, Boston & Providence Railroad and Willard Q. Phillips.

In Savin Hill avenue, between Dorchester avenue and Sagamore street, and in Sagamore street, between Savin Hill avenue and Romsey court.

Orders severally passed.

Report and order for construction of a sewer in Fairfield street, from the passageway north of Commonwealth avenue to the passageway south of the same. Order read twice and passed.

Ordered, That $153.82 be abated from the assessment levied upon Henry Fifield for a sewer in Clayton street, on account of land damages; that $68.86 be abated from the assessment levied upon Peter Higgins for a sewer in Rockland avenue on account of overestimate of land; that $13.45 be abated from the assessment levied upon Linn Ryan for a sewer in Greenwich street on account of overestimate of land; that $15.45 be abated from the assessment levied upon Hiram H. Herick's heirs for a sewer in Haynes street.

Read twice and passed.

EXAMINATION OF BONDS OF CITY OFFICERS.

Alderman Viles offered an order—That Alderman —, with such as the Common Council may join, be a committee to make the annual examination of the bonds of the several city officers. Passed, and Aldermen Viles and O'Brien were appointed on said committee. Sent down.

TAKEN FROM THE TABLE.

On motion of Alderman Clark, the annual report of the Commissioners on the Sinking Funds was taken from the table and sent down.

On motion of Alderman Breck, the same action was taken in reference to annual report of Directors for East Boston Ferries.

STONY BROOK IMPROVEMENT.

Alderman O'Brien stated that at their last meeting the Common Council voted that the Special Committee on the Stony Brook Improvement should consist of five members on the part of that body. He moved that an additional member be added on the part of the Board. The motion prevailed, and Alderman Burnham was added to the committee.

ASPHALT PAVEMENT.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Order authorizing the Committee on Paving to pave Columbus avenue with granite blocks or asphalt pavement, as they may deem expedient; at an expense not exceeding $60,000.

Order authorizing the Committee on Paving to pave North Market street with granite blocks or asphalt pavement, as they may deem expedient; at an expense not exceeding $11,000.

Alderman Robinson moved that the orders take their second reading.

Alderman Clark—It is a pretty important matter, and I hope the order to pave those streets with granite blocks or asphalt, at the discretion of the committee, will not take their second reading at this meeting, but will lie over for one week.

Alderman Viles—The Committee on Sewers have had under consideration the rebuilding of the sewer in North Market street, and I ask that the order in regard to that street be laid over until the Committee on Sewers can consider the subject. If the street is to be repaved it is necessary to put in the sewer first.

Alderman Robinson—The orders were not intended to be conclusive, and the matter is left to the Committee on Paving to investigate which is the more proper pavement for those two streets. So far as North Market street is concerned it will not be paved unless the street has proper sewerage. The orders are intended to authorize the committee to see what is best to be done in those two streets.

Alderman Thompson—Which is the more expensive, granite blocks or asphalt?

Alderman Robinson—I have not looked into the matter sufficiently to be able to state.

Alderman Thompson—I move that the two orders be recommitted to the Committee on Paving until they have made up their minds which it is better for the interest of the city to recommend to the Board of Aldermen—whether granite blocks or asphalt, and the difference in cost; and then we can act understandingly upon this subject.

Alderman Robinson—I do not see what particular object can be gained by recommitting the matter. The committee would not have made the report unless they believed it was for the benefit of the city to use either granite blocks or asphalt. If it is found that the asphalt costs a larger amount than is proper to produce as good a pavement as the granite blocks, they would recommend a pavement of that kind. They brought these orders here to get the matter before the Committee on Paving, so that they could hear all sides and judge what is best for the interests of the city. That was the object of offering the order.

Alderman Gibson—I was in the Board when the experiment of paving Columbus avenue with wood was tried, and some four or five parties put down their paving there. The part of the street paved with chestnut is good today, and will be for six years to come; and the last time I passed that part of the street where it is proposed to spend this $60,000, I was satisfied it could be repaired and coaxed along a year or two longer. We paved a large amount of it in 1873, and it seems to me we ought not to duplicate it again; but if we do, let us put down granite blocks, which there is no experiment about, and which we know is the most desirable pavement that can be put down. As for asphalt, I shall oppose every inch of it. I don't believe in it. I have seen a great deal of it in different places, and it is expensive at any price compared with granite blocks. The street could be paved with spruce blocks for a dollar and a quarter or a dollar and a half a yard. In 1872 it was proposed to pave Beacon street with spruce at $2.10 a square yard, the blocks being burnettized in Maine; and I have no doubt it can be done now at $1.50 a yard. Possibly that can be done cheaper than granite blocks, and the interest on the difference would pay for the excess in a short time. If you put down asphalt, it will continue but for a few years. Columbus avenue has been the finest avenue in the city for a considerable length of time, and the pavement there can be made to do service a while longer, and I think there are other portions that deserve a little attention. At any rate, I desire that it may lie over for a week, that I may look into it.

Alderman Robinson—As you all know, we voted to put horse-car tracks on Columbus avenue. I was opposed to it, but the Board thought differently, and an arrangement was made by which both the Highland and Metropolitan companies were given a location there; and that leaves fifteen feet on each side of the tracks to be paved. A certain portion is paved with chestnut blocks, which will do for some time. Those tracks were put down against the wishes of a large portion of the people who live on that street, merely to accommodate those who live in the outlying wards; and one of the strongest arguments used for placing the tracks there was that the street would have to be repaved and put in good condition. I know very little about the asphalt pavement myself, except that my attention was called to a piece of it in front of the Fifth-avenue Hotel in New York, where it is crossed by Broadway, and where 20,000 carriages and vehicles pass it every day. Not a cent has been laid out upon it in repairs in the last five years, and it is not broken in the least. This order is not to put asphalt down there, but to bring these different parties here, that the committee may find out and exercise their judgment which is better, granite blocks or asphalt. If it is left to the committee they will endeavor to act for the best interest of the city. All parties interested will have a hearing, and that will be done which the best judgment of the committee dictates.

Alderman Clark—What I object to is the indefiniteness of the order. It proposes to give the Committee on Paving authority to lay either granite blocks or asphalt, as they may deem expedient. Now, the committee may have examined into the preparations used for paving streets in Washington or New York, but the members of this Board know nothing about it; and in an expenditure of $60,000 it seems to me that the Board ought to understand and know what it is. Inasmuch as the Committee on Paving, who have examined into this matter, have made no report to the Board, I think it is proper and right that they should report what other materials should be used besides square granite blocks. I believe that something should be done to Columbus avenue, because the pavement is in a very bad condition; but it is a question in my mind whether it cannot be paved with thoroughly burnettized wood—not just the ends dipped, as was the case when the avenue was paved before, but with the wood thoroughly prepared. It is known that wood thoroughly impregnated with that preparation will stand a hundred years without decay, though of course it will wear away, just as stone wears away, in time, on Washington street. I hope the committee will make an investigation and report to this Board what in their judgment is the best material to pave Columbus avenue with—whether granite blocks, the Trinidad material, or the material which has been used in the city of Boston during the year. I believe the asphalt used here has given great satisfaction. I think there is a piece of asphalt pavement at the junction of Commercial and State streets, opposite the custom house, where the travel is as great as it is on any piece of Trinidad pavement in New York. Here it is traversed by heavy teams, while in New York it is mostly traversed by light travel. I have not examined this pavement at the custom house, but I understood last year that it had showed no signs of wear. A piece was put down in Endicott street, which I suppose the Paving Committee have examined. I understand that there are other kinds of asphalt supposed to be superior to the Trinidad, and I should hope that the committee will investigate all these materials; and if something of that kind can be used as economically as square granite blocks, I shall be happy to vote to have it used upon streets traversed by light teams, as is Columbus avenue. It is absolutely necessary that something should be done to the pavement on Columbus avenue, for it is in a dangerous condition; but before we pass this order authorizing the committee to expend $60,000 either in stone, wood or asphalt, as they may deem expedient, it seems to me we ought to understand a little more about it. I hope the orders will be recommitted to the Committee on Paving with a request that they report what they know about it and what they have learned about these different paving materials, except granite blocks.

Alderman Gibson—Taking chestnut at its present price, I have no doubt it would be the cheapest pavement we could lay, and that the rest of Columbus avenue could be paved for $1.75 a yard. The chestnut paving there is all perfect, and is good for seven, eight or ten years more. It is the wood used by railroads for sleepers, and lasts a great number of years. If it were continued out on the avenue it would make an elegant drive and attract travel there that would not be attracted by any other pavement. Tremont street, from Dover street to Chickering's factory, is all laid in cobble stone. It is a great thoroughfare and I believe it needs paving much more than Columbus avenue. The avenue needs some little repair, which can be done for a few years at a little expense, and it will be economy for us to do it. We ought to pave with wood one or two thoroughfares going one way, and another going another way, and the saving in the wear and tear of vehicles will be very great. As cheap as wood is now, you may rest assured, gentlemen, that it will be worth double any asphalt you can have. I have seen a good deal of asphalt in different sections and have very little faith in it. Our teams are allowed to carry ten or fifteen tons, while in New York if they catch a man with a heavy load on a team they make him take it off. You can count sixty-one barrels of flour to a pair of horses any day passing our ferries, while in New York fourteen is a load. Take such a load of flour, 5000 pounds, and put it upon asphalt with the thermometer at 100°, and it will make a great impression. In a short time, under such teaming, it will be used up and gone. It may be used in Washington, where there is no heavy teaming. I never saw a team in New York carry more than what we call half a load here. If you put it down in this city, where a team is allowed to carry three times the load allowed in any other city, it will very soon wear out.

Alderman Burnham—Both the Aldermen who have just spoken have presented this matter in a light that has let some light into it at least; an expenditure of $60,000 in a locality like Columbus avenue should not be entered into without an understanding by the Board of the relative value of the different kinds of paving. Columbus avenue was taken as the place to test several kinds of wood pavement, and certain kinds that were put down in 1873 proved a failure and others proved a success; and it seems to me that we ought to have some figures showing the relative value of the different kinds of material. It is true that wood is much cheaper now than in 1873. Spruce lumber which sold then for $22 and $25 can now be furnished at $11 a thousand, which is a considerable item. If it be a fact that spruce blocks can be put down at $1.75 a square yard, the matter needs to be weighed so that we may see the relation between the cost and durability of that and other materials, especially this new asphalt or Trinidad pavement it is proposed to introduce. It seems proper that we should have from the committee a recommendation to this matter, and figures stating the relative cost at the present time, so that we of the Board may judge whether stone blocks, burnettized spruce or asphalt will be the cheapest and most durable in that locality.

Alderman Slade—We all know well enough what stone paving is. People were once perfectly satisfied with pebbles, because they knew of nothing better. Since they have used granite blocks everybody wants the pebble pavement taken up, because it is not so pleasant to drive over, and the wear and tear is harder on cobbles than on blocks. I am not quite certain that there is any real asphalt pavement in this city; but if there is anything better than granite blocks we want to know it. I am not certain there is. I had the pleasure of visiting a city where one kind of asphalt is being put down; and I examined the whole process and am strongly of the impression that if that paving was introduced into Boston, in ten years there would be as strong a cry for it as there is now for granite in preference to pebbles. If there is anything better than granite we ought to know it and use it, if the cost does not stand in the way too much. The asphalt paving I saw in Washington cannot be broken by any team I ever saw drawn in Boston. I saw a sixteen-horse team there draw an immense stone, weighing probably fifteen tons, over this very pavement, and that is as big a load as you will ever see drawn in Boston. The way that pavement is put down, it is impossible to break it any more than solid granite. It is mineral, and has no vegetable in it, and consequently there is no decay. I am very much in favor of giving that pavement a trial in Boston. The expense is just about the same as granite blocks. I am speaking now of the preparation which I saw. In the first place six or eight inches of concrete are laid on the foundation; then this preparation is put upon the top and there is no more danger of breaking it through than there is of breaking a carpet upon a strong floor. I know that this pavement will give satisfaction to everybody driving over it as long as it lasts; and the only question is, How long will it last? I saw a piece in Washington that had been used for five years, with thousands of carriages passing over it daily, and I don't think the wear is over half an inch in any place, which speaks well for that kind of paving. We don't exactly know what it will cost to lay it down here, but the expense is about the same as granite blocks. The only question for us is whether it wears as well; and if it will it is certainly a great deal better. It is impervious to water, and I believe there is no instance where frost has gone more than five or six inches below the surface, so that there is no danger of frost getting in our water pipes. I feel well enough about it to take the matter into consideration if the Board see fit to give the committee the privilege of using their best judgment in the matter. Of course they will do nothing but what will be satisfactory to every member of the Board. I have not much doubt but that Columbus avenue could be patched up to last another year; but it must be closed up to build the bridge for the entire autumn and must be paved in another year; and it will cost considerable to keep it in repair. It may just as well be done this year, and let some dilapidated stone pavement stand another year. We all know that spruce would not last more than six, seven or eight years, at the longest. I know from experience that while hemlock would last but six or seven years, chestnut will last about twenty; but of course it will wear out. A great deal of attention has been given to asphalt pavement, and, if we find it is as good if not better than granite, it seems to me that the pleasure of riding over it is so much more—and I don't think it will cost much more than granite—to justify the trial. I don't care whether this is sent back to the committee or not. If it is, the first thing we would do is to report the cost of the different kinds of pavement. The question is whether we will try an experiment upon something which everybody will want just as they now want granite.

Alderman Thompson—I made the motion to recommit because the order came in rather crooked shape. I never knew an order to emanate from that committee as this one has—that this large expenditure shall be made in that locality as they choose. If I am to vote $60,000 for paving Columbus avenue, I want to know whether it is to be of asphalt or granite; and whether we are going to Washington for asphalt while we can get just as good here or in some neighboring city. The committee propose to decide what kind of asphalt shall be used in Boston. If the order passes at all we should know what kind of asphalt is to be used. I do not believe asphalt should be put in Columbus avenue. It should be done in some street where there are no car tracks, and where it can be made to wear. With the committee undecided as they are, the proper course is to send the orders back to them until they can bring in a report with some recommendation. I shall vote against the orders, for I want the committee to make up their minds.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The order was put in that shape at my suggestion, because the committee did not feel determined which was the better style to put upon Columbus avenue or North Market street. Two members of the committee are undoubtedly agreed, and one almost convinced, that Columbus avenue shall be paved this year. Any one who has passed there and seen the decayed condition of the wood taken up must be convinced that it needs repaving; and if it is paved at all, the best time is in August or September, while the new bridge is being built. The question then arises whether asphalt or granite blocks should be put down. We have had applications from owners of peculiar styles of asphalt, each claiming to have the best. I am unable to say which is best— asphalt or granite. I know that asphalt is easier to ride over than any granite pavement; but whether it will be more durable, with its cost equal to granite, and whether it will prove like the experiments in wood on Columbus avenue and go to pieces in a few years, I am as yet unable to say. I was under the impression that, rather than have a positive order to pave Columbus avenue with any one kind of pavement, the committee should have the privilege of paving it with either granite or asphalt, after a thorough investigation. I see it is the opinion of the Board that the Board itself should decide the question. I have not the slightest objection to that, and the committee have none. They desire to do that which will best promote the convenience of the citizens, and the committee do not object to reporting back to the Board. I never saw but one kind of asphalt tested, though I have seen samples of several kinds in the office of the Superintendent of Streets. The kind I examined certainly impressed me very favorably while riding over it in a carriage. All parties have asked to be heard, and we intend to give them a hearing. Because the order was put in that shape it does not follow that asphalt will be laid in Columbus avenue. I should have to be first convinced of its durability, and whether the kind I have seen is better than others. The cost of the asphalt I have seen is about the same as granite, and I understand there are other kinds which are cheaper. I am convinced that Columbus avenue should be repaved. When wooden pavement goes you cannot repair it; and a notable instance of that was one piece which was repaired and in three or four weeks the blocks could not be brought together.

Alderman Burnham—The Alderman opposite [Alderman Slade] stated that this asphalt had not been affected by frost more than four or five inches. Now, it must be considered that we have much more severe frosts here than in Washington or New York, and that there is no case where it has been laid north of this locality. This asphalt is procured from the island of Trinidad, and was introduced into this country some twenty years ago, and applied to various uses. I have had a personal experience in testing this article as a stockholder in a manufacturing company. It was at the time Mr. Downer first introduced it in distilling certain kinds of oil from it, and I recollect that it would not stand frost. If it is to be introduced as paving in our climate, the committee should thoroughly investigate the various improvements made in the article in this line alone. There may be other points, but this one suggested itself to me in a very strong light. Therefore, I hope it will go back to them.

Alderman Robinson—My associates on the committee have looked into this matter more than I have, and I know no more about one kind than another. This kind is supposed to be entirely impervious to frost. A certain amount is placed at the bottom, then there is another layer; and that process, I think, is common to all kinds of asphalt. On top of that it is made hard—I believe they call it a cushion—two or three inches thick, and that is where the wear of the paving comes. In case of repair, all that is needed is to take up this matter on the top, so that the expense of repairing is not more than  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. for a certain number of years. In 1871 my attention was called to one kind of asphalt pavement by a member of the City Government of London, lying between St. Paul's Church and the Bank of England; and probably your Honor may have seen it. It is about half a mile in length and is the only asphalt pavement I have seen. I saw it a year afterwards and noticed no perceptible difference. Six months afterwards I saw it and noticed no difference; and then a year and a half afterwards I could see a small mark made by the carriage wheels. There are larger carriages there than those Alderman Gibson speaks of, because the brewery teams and trucks in London are three times as large as those we have here; and they carry an enormous weight over the pavement. I believe some of those pavements will supersede granite; but whether this particular pavement is the proper one I do not know. This asphalt that is placed on top is subjected to a heat of 350 or 400 degrees. Boiling water is 212 degrees, and consequently anything like water in that asphalt goes off into the air. That makes the asphalt just as impervious to frost as possible, and it cannot go below the surface.

Alderman Gibson—I have entire confidence in the committee, that they intend to give us the best they can. But I want to ask gentlemen if this pavement can be repaired after the men come along to repair the sewers, gas and water pipes. The street will be dug up many times in a year, and I should like to know if it can be readily repaired.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I asked one of the gentlemen precisely the same question, and he said that in the first place frost cannot get into the pipes; but in case the frost gets into the pipes, he would show us how it can be repaired. He went on Pennsylvania avenue, and at his request I selected a spot. He called a laborer, and in our presence a piece of asphaltum some eighteen inches square was taken up from a pavement put down by contract. The asphalt was brought to us. The upper layer was hard; under it was what they call the cushion, and beneath it all was this cemented concrete. The whole thing was put back in our presence, and in four or five hours the carts and wagons were passing over it; and the next morning I could not detect any difference between it and the other parts of the pavement. But that is neither here nor there. The proper course is to refer it back to the committee and let them get all the information in regard to the different kinds of pavement.

The orders were recommitted to the Committee on Paving.

SUPERINTENDENT OF LAMPS.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved to take from the table the nomination of James K. Fagin to be Superintendent of Lamps, and called for the yeas and nays.

The Board refused to take the nomination from the table—yeas 2, nays 10—Aldermen Fitzgerald and O'Brien voting yea.

POLAND & PEABODY'S OMNIBUS LINE.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald the Board took from the table the report of leave to withdraw on petition of Poland & Peabody to run an omnibus line from South Boston to Causeway street.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered the following as a substitute for the report:

Ordered, That leave be granted to Poland & Peabody to run a line of coaches and carry passengers for hire from Dorchester to Causeway street and return, over the following route, viz., starting on Dorchester street, between Eighth and Ninth streets, thence running through Dorchester, Fourth, Dover, Albany, Kingston, Summer, Hawley, Milk, Devonshire and Washington streets to Haymarket square, thence through Haverhill street to Causeway street; thence returning through Causeway and Canal streets to Haymarket square, thence through Washington, Hanover, Court, Tremont, Bromfield, Washington, Beach, Albany, Dover, Fourth and Dorchester streets to the point of starting; provided, said Poland & Peabody carry passengers for a sum not exceeding five cents for each for any distance between said Dorchester and Causeway streets.

Alderman Wilder—I hope the substitute will not prevail. This question has been very fully discussed at the hearing in the early part of the year. I think the Board are prepared to vote at the present time, and I call for the yeas and nays on the substitute.

Alderman Burnham—Mr. Mayor, this matter has been a long time under consideration. I have congratulated myself that by the almost unanimous action of this Board by which these petitioners had leave to withdraw, you had been spared the infliction of a horse-railroad speech, or, what is worse, a railroad omnibus speech. But I find by the present aspect of the question I was disappointed, and I see no other way but for you to endure it. I will first call your attention to the report of a meeting held in South Boston, and among the resolutions adopted I find the following:

"Resolved, That we, the citizens of South Boston, in public meeting assembled, respectfully request our Alderman, Choate Burnham, Esq., to use all honorable means to secure the passage of an order by the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, by which Messrs. Poland & Peabody may secure the license asked for by them."

There have been several articles in the local paper, one of which I will give you:

"Men who have hitherto taken but slight interest in the new coach line are now evincing concern in the matter, and the political death of the man who is instrumental in defeating this project is everywhere boldly predicted, and is sure to follow the calamity he causes."

Now, Mr. Mayor, from these quotations you will notice the kind of pressure attempted to be brought to bear upon me in my representative capacity; and it is under such circumstances that I propose to present to you this matter from my own standpoint in as brief time as may be. I call your attention to the fact that there is a large opposition party, very much larger than those who advocate it—I should say at least ten to one. And by them I am pressed to present to you, and to favor, the other side. Now I do not propose to have any personal bias toward either side; and more than this, admitting that, as a representative of the section of the city most interested in the matter, it is possibly my duty to give to all local interests a hearty support. I also believe I should hold myself as a member of this Board to represent local interests as they exist in their relation to our whole city. Amidst all the representations and misrepresentations that have been made, it was at first somewhat difficult to arrive at the real want and sentiment of the people. There was no difficulty in arriving at the views of the South Boston Horse Railroad Company, or their very numerous class of friends, who arrayed themselves in a marked opposition. On the other hand, it was easy to see through the thin veil that, in the hands of paid advocates and personally interested promoters of the coach line, was likely to mislead us, by hiding what should be seen; and yet however used, it does not hide the fact that the enemies of the horse railroad company, for reasons we need not here discuss, are advocating this line in a spirit of retaliation,—it does not hide the fact that some expect to dispose of real estate, and some to find employment, and some, perhaps, to get notoriety out of the advocacy of this coach line. Now, turning from these extremes, we have on the one side, a horse railroad company with certain granted rights to be used in their possession for the interests of the people who travel, and the proposed coach line on the other hand, asking for the right to be granted to them to do the same kind of work for the same end. And I have this to say, that aside from the representations of both, and seeking the best interest of each, as well as the best interest of our people, I have become convinced we should not attempt by coach travel to add to our present facilities of horse car travel, for the present means of transit are the right kind and sufficient for today, and are the only ones needed for future extension, and hence I recognize the question now before us to be simply a question of comparison. With a chartered company to do a certain thing, and now doing it, we have an existing condition of things that will be either improved or made worse by the granting of this petition.

Before, then, we permit the innovation which these petitioners ask, in all fairness we are bound to take a just measure of the horse railroad company. What they are; what they are doing; what they will do; and since they are now in possession, and performing a certain work, will they do all that the public have a right to ask of them. After this, comes the consideration of the coach line, and if they will be a benefit to the community, provided they receive the privileges asked. The horse railroad company is a chartered stock company, with an invested capital of $565,000, all of which has been honestly invested. I cannot see, Mr. Mayor, from what investigation I have made, that the stock has ever been watered a single dollar. They have their buildings, track, and equipment, all paid for by the creation and sale of stock and by borrowed money. The cost of the whole plant is as low as that of any similar corporation, even lower than some, as may be seen by reference to the Railroad Commissioners' Report. They exist to carry the people to and from the city to City Point. They may not be perfect, but as far as I can find, they are doing this work in a manner that should be commended rather than condemned, and in a manner that entitles them to our protection.

In the first place, we see the railroad is running for the whole population—running now from the Northern depots of the city to City Point—over the sections that do not pay, as well as those that do. The petitioners ask to care for a part only—i. e., those people living on the best-paying part of the route. Probably 20,000 of the inhabitants reside east of Dorchester street, and on this territory the coaches do not propose to run at all. They only ask to start in the centre and to run through the most thickly settled part, while the railroad proposes to furnish all the territorial accommodations needed. The railroad runs day and night—runs at all times, for all the people, paying and non-paying cars as well. This they are doing for the travelling public; this they will continue to do. And more, now that this coach line comes to us claiming the public are not provided for on Dorchester street, this central cross street, they are ready to add accommodation as soon as this Board grant them the right to lay the track and run the cars, switching off from Eighth street, through Dorchester street, and on to Broadway track, and reversing the same as need be—thus supplying horse-car travel for the very territory over which the omnibus line proposes to run—from its starting point.

Now, as to the future of the South Boston Horse Railroad Company, we cannot but see that the material interests of the road forbid they should fail to care for the interest of the public. On the faith of their charter they have already expended $565,000, and that investment commits them to pursue a course that shall cause the largest number of people to ride. Whenever the means of travel are insufficient, they must and will provide more. What other railroads do, they must do. The Middlesex asked us to go to the Southern depots; we granted it. The South Boston road asked to go to the Northern depots, and we have granted it.

Again, in my judgment, the talk about granting this license because the railroad needs the spur of competition to quicken it to a broader care for the interest of the public, is sheer nonsense. So far as the past is concerned, the hearing on this petition showed this horse railway in a more favorable light. The only complaint that had a shadow of weight was the non-providing of sufficient cars for 1½ hours in the morning and the same at evening, but it was proved that for the meeting of this deficiency cars were despatched on an average every three minutes or less. This morning and evening travel is a state of things it is exceedingly difficult to manage. It is no fault of the railroad that an industrious laboring population of more than 10,000 people need transit from South Boston to the city in the morning, or to return in the evening, in so short a space of time. Because rents are low over there, in these hard times, a great many people of this class have come there to reside. They are good citizens, and we shall be sorry to lose them; but, undoubtedly, when times improve, this feature will change. However, as it has been, in providing means of travel the former government of the railroad did well in despatching a car every three minutes. Possibly they did not do all they could; we cannot tell; but we find on inquiry of the present government that they are planning to crowd upon the line all the accommodations that can be given, to meet this want. As I said, their interest prompts them in this direction, that they may secure the largest income within their reach, and this is sufficient guarantee that the public will be provided for. Therefore, I say they can, and will, do all which the people in justice may ask. The people desire only sufficient travelling facilities. If one line will do it, far better the one than two. And the fact is clearly demonstrated that the railroad can better serve the public without the coach line than it can be served with both. Nor is there any question but the confining this carrying of the people to one corporation and the directing of it to be done by the horse-railroad company now occupying the route, will greatly prevent the crowding of our streets; and if this be so, why should additional means of travel be granted? Broadway with its double track offers all the facilities we need on that street, and yet this line proposes to add to it, running parallel its whole length, side by side the horse cars. I am astonished at this part of the proposition, and I can but ask where is the justice in such a request. Again, I am astonished that the people of South Boston are presumed to be so antiquated as to desire to return to the old four-wheeled omnibus line travel. Is the entry to coaches so much preferable to the easy ingress and egress of the horse cars? Is the rumble over the pavement desired instead of the smooth rail? I for one cannot so see it; nor do I believe the most urgent advocates of the coach line would ride in them if we had them. In looking then, Mr. Mayor, for what the coach line will do for the public, we must seek it beyond the leaving the railroad track at Broadway Bridge, for what we have already considered fully shows that all the wants of the public are, or can be, and will be, met and abundantly provided for, by the horse railroad company to this point, and as fully shows, that to allow the coach line to enter upon it is, thus far, to simply give them a chance to share patronage with a company which, by their great investment of money, if from no other motive, are committed to supply our need. We must seek then the reasons for granting this petition in what the coach line will do after (as I said) leaving the line of railroad.

At this point (the extension of Broadway from Dorchester avenue) the coach line proposes to pass on over the bridge to Albany street; this location of the coach line we are asked to grant because it is an accommodating connection with the South End. Now, is this so? We find the nearest connection with horse cars to the South End is at Harrison avenue; the petitioners ask only to go to Albany street (Harrison avenue and Albany street are some thirty or forty rods distant from each other); over this space the coach passengers must walk, while the railroad passenger is brought to the corner of Harrison avenue and Beach street, and can step out of the South Boston car into that of another line to the South End. The car fare with exchange check is eight cents, while to gain this travel the coach line takes five cents; the passenger walks the distance between the streets, and pays a car fare of six cents more to go to South End—whole cost to South End per coach line eleven cents. But there is one thing more; the car passenger for his eight-cent fare can at the corner of Washington and Boylston streets, and Boylston and Tremont streets, step out of the South Boston car and into cars going to the South End, to the North End and to the West End—this plea then for a coach line thus far seems also to fail. Again, from the point in Albany street to which we have now arrived, it was claimed that it made a line to the northern depots direct. That this claim is disposed of I have only to say that our vote has already, while this matter has been in the committee's hands, opened the pathway of the South Boston Horse Railroad to the northern depots, therefore we should not encumber our streets with this coach line travelling in the same direction for a purpose provided for and accomplished in the granted line of horse cars to the northern depots. Thus far, then, we fail to find reasons for additional travelling facilities of the kind petitioned for; and, Mr. Mayor, I ask if, then, there be so little need of this line of coaches, if you believe, as you must, they come here asking the rights of another—if to be a successful line they must encroach upon a corporation now established—and having expended $565,000 already, is abundantly able and determined to do all that is needed in the future; and if in these hard times, because the people are too poor to ride as much as formerly, railroad receipts are greatly diminished, and this parallel line of coaches would still further decrease their receipts. Shall we really serve the public to grant this petition? I see it in this way: There was but one ration, before these depressed times in business, to support one body. It was only sufficient for that purpose—only supporting it after paying a fair profit (only a fair profit) for the interest and risk. Now, the want of employment is such people do not ride, the ration is greatly shrunken, and a proposition comes to us to divide it, and undertake to support two bodies instead of one. Must it not inevitably follow that both recipients must starve? And here the question comes to us, and fairly comes to us, Will not the public be better served by one efficient, well-fed, healthy service than by two starvelings?

Neither is it, Mr. Mayor, an equal division of the ration. It is manifestly unfair to the railroad company to put on a line of coaches in the same street and same direction, to run free of cost to themselves over the street, and put the burden we do on the railroad company in the paving, first cost and repairs which they are required to do. The damaging effect of a coach route on the paving between and each side the tracks, every one knows. If not, ask our Superintendent of Streets to see his record of repairs, and you will be convinced.

I have interviewed Mr. Richards, president of the Metropolitan Railroad Company, in regard to the assertion that the Hathorne line added to the receipts of his company. He says there was never any foundation for such a declaration; that if the omnibus line was taken off his receipts would be increased by just the amount of the omnibus receipts—and of course his equipment would have to be correspondingly increased. Before the Highland road started, the Metropolitan ran only hourly to certain districts. This, of course, threw the travel into private vehicles and the steam cars. When the Highland put on its cars, giving increased accommodations, it allowed the disuse of private carriages and took from the steam cars, and thus promoted horse-car riding, and the increase of horse-car facilities had a tendency to increase building and to enlarge the population. It did so, and there is a population who ride—but in our section it is not so; for while South Boston horse cars have increased the number of trips since 1873, their receipts per trip have regularly diminished. It is not the company who fail to supply good and sufficient transit, it is the people who fail to utilize the conveyance supplied by the railroad in excess. The reasons for it are those I have already named—the lack of employment on the part of the laboring population, and the consequent inability to ride.

I will only add that in the establishing of this line we certainly should make an unwelcome precedent. If we grant this line, how in justice refuse when a line shall be asked for on Shawmut avenue or Tremont street, since the reasons for coaches there to share patronage with the Metropolitan and Highland railroad companies are as pertinent as for this. Had this projected enterprise been a little more modest, had they asked for anything but a parallel line to run over the best part of the South Boston Horse Railroad Company's track, the case would have been different. Had they asked, for the benefit of the people of South Boston, to run down Sixth or Seventh street, and over Dover-street Bridge or over Swett street, there would seem to have been a lack of intention to cripple one of our best institutions; that would have warranted a more favorable consideration of their request; but, asking for what they do, I cannot see how this Board can for a minute consider their prayer. I do not deny, Mr. Mayor, that South Boston, with her 60,000 people, needs her line of horse cars through Federal street direct to the northern depots—and she ought to have it. I do not deny she needs another line the length of Atlantic avenue, and she ought to have it; and unless we soon arrive at a plan of a central terminus at Scollay square for every horse railroad that comes into this city, and arrange an equitable system of commutation tickets, you will soon be asked to grant these routes. I can see no other way to disentangle this snarl of conflicting railroad interests, and every listener to the horse-railroad hearings before this Board sees plainly that each new petition of railroad or omnibus line engenders controversies which drift us in this direction. At any rate there is no relief in omnibus lines; they only block our streets, and make matters generally worse—better far accept horse-car locomotion as the institution for our passenger travel, and make the best we can of it.

Now, Mr. Mayor, from my examination of this matter I am prepared to say that if this coach line has $100,000 or more—for a good coach line will cost it—to invest for the benefit of the South Boston travelling public, better join with the present chartered horse-railroad company, and then come to us asking a way over Dover-street Bridge or Swett street, and thus promote our true interest, and secure a chance for a paying investment somewhere in the future. At least in so doing they would recognize the fact that this is the nineteenth century, when the turnpike and stage coach have given place to the steam rail car, and the old city omnibus to the horse car, as the living institution. I do believe, then, Mr. Mayor, that the act that would divert city-passenger travel from the horse car would be in the wrong direction, that to grant this coach line would be such an act; that the people want no such arrangement for travel; and, therefore, these petitioners should have leave to withdraw.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I already know what the result of the substitute is to be, but I offer it because I believe in competition, which has been the spirit in which the Legislature has dealt with horse and steam cars. Any company can organize under the general laws and run a steam railroad where they please. We have not got so far as that with horse railroads; but it appears to me that omnibus lines are altogether different from horse railroads. I know the present Board is rather prejudiced against omnibus lines. The people of South Boston are differently placed from any other section. Charlestown and West Roxbury and the North End have competition in the shape of horse cars and omnibuses; and horse cars have a monopoly of travel in South Boston alone. The only question with me is whether it will promote the interest of the travelling public. We are not here to take care of horse-railroad stock; our business is to take care of the convenience of the public. While I did all in my power to facilitate the South Boston road getting to the northern depots, I think the omnibus line will be of no material disadvantage to them. The rule I propose will accommodate a great many people at the South End. It is not on the line of the horse cars. I believe in the substitute, though I believe it will not pass this Board.

Alderman Viles—Last year the Committee on Licenses, of which I was a member, had this matter under consideration a long time. They gave all the parties a hearing and carefully considered the matter in all its aspects, merits and demerits, and they were unanimous in giving the petitioners leave to withdraw. I have seen nothing to change my opinion. I know Mr. Poland well and would go out of my way to do him a favor. He is an enterprising young man; but I cannot vote to give him this omnibus line.

The substitute was rejected—yeas 3, nays 8:

Yeas—Aldermen Clark, Fitzgerald, O'Brien—3.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Burnham, Dunbar, Gibson, Robinson, Slade, Viles, Wilder—8.

Absent—Alderman Thompson.

The question was upon the acceptance of the report, and Alderman Fitzgerald called for the yeas and nays.

Alderman Clark—When this subject first came before the Board I was strongly opposed to granting the prayer of the petitioners; but after learning that what appeared to be a large number of people of South Boston, including members of the Common Council, desired this additional accommodation, and that the young men who propose to put on this line are amply able to carry out their intentions, I changed my views, because

I believe in competition not only between New England and the West, but between all sections of this city. If we permit Hathorne's line of omnibuses to run through our most crowded streets, and another line to run from Cambridge to Summer street, why should we not permit Poland & Peabody to put on omnibuses to accommodate the people of South Boston? Those who took part in those meetings were respectable and responsible citizens, and did not hesitate to express their desires. If I were to act according to my private feelings I should vote against granting this petition, for I have received a letter showing that I ought to vote against it. But believing that the people of South Boston require and want this line, and that there are no more reasons why we should not grant this permit than there are reasons why we should allow Mr. Hathorne to run his coaches, I shall vote against giving Poland & Peabody leave to withdraw, as I have already voted for the substitute.

Alderman Burnham—The argument of the gentleman last up is based upon the conviction that the people of South Boston want this line of omnibuses. I do not know how he learned the fact. Living there, I have used due diligence to get at the real sentiment of the people; and I do not hesitate to assert that thirty or forty or fifty to one have expressed the desire to me that the omnibus line should not be granted. As the matter has been presented to me by the investigation I cannot see that the people require it. On the contrary I believe that South Boston people, by a large majority, do not want an omnibus line from Broadway Bridge. It is a very long route across a main thoroughfare, and they do not want any such convenience for travel. I think, from the vote we have had, that this matter is safe, and that we shall act right.

Alderman Clark—The people in favor of the line came together in a public meeting and expressed their desires; but those opposed to it took no action. We only know from the statement of the Alderman that anybody opposes it. We are to be guided by the facts we learn. When the people of the Highland District wanted to come down to Columbus avenue they held public meetings. We have but one sentiment indicated to us about this matter, and that is the feeling expressed at the public meeting, in which very respectable men took part, among them being the President and members of the Common Council. Those are my reasons for voting to give a license to this firm.

Alderman Burnham—Would the gentleman grant a permit to any omnibus line that should apply to run parallel with the railroads, simply because somebody asks for it?

Alderman Clark—We have already granted a permit to an omnibus line to run parallel and in competition with three horse railroads in Washington street. We have done that in four years. It is no new thing.

Alderman Viles—And within two months we have refused such a license.

Alderman Clark—That was to an opposition line outside of the city.

Alderman Fitzgerald explained the substitute and said the people did not care about the stock of corporations or the omnibus lines. They wanted facilities for travelling. Having lived in South Boston many years he knew the people desired this accommodation.

Alderman O'Brien thought the Board had made a mistake in rejecting the substitute. The expression of feeling in South Boston in favor of the line was very strong. It will accommodate many poor people at the South End who now have no accommodations for travel.

Alderman Gibson alluded to the crowded condition of the streets, and thought South Boston already well accommodated.

Alderman Wilder said one of the petitioners is a son of an old friend of his who was to furnish some of the capital to commence the operation. Being a nice old man, and a former member of this Board, the Alderman felt he could not be a party to Mr. Poland's losing his money in such a wild business operation. If he did not know that they were respectable men who put in this petition he should think it was a put-up job to get a license and pinch something out of the railroad. He believed the estimate of Alderman Burnham not far from right in regard to the sentiments of the people of South Boston.

The report of leave to withdraw was accepted—yeas 9, nays 3—Aldermen Clark, Fitzgerald and O'Brien voting nay.

PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSICAL EXHIBITIONS.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That notice be sent to the School Committee that in future no musical exhibition by the school children of this city can be held without the consent of this Board being first obtained therefor, as provided by law. (Chapter 172, acts of 1877.)

Alderman Fitzgerald—It cannot be held now without the consent of this Board. We made an appropriation for that festival and I was opposed to it. It was especially agreed in the appropriation bill that it should be done. I knew from past experience that it would give rise to jealousies and heartburnings, as all those exhibitions of special studies have done, and from which those most interested—the parents and friends of the children—have been excluded, because those connected with the School Board have the giving out of tickets. I am satisfied it does more harm than good to the schools, and that it does harm to the children, and gives an undue impetus to special studies. I was opposed to it in the committee, and the chairman will remember it.

Alderman Thompson—The law I refer to has been passed since we made our appropriation, and consequently if another festival is held without the consent of this Board it will be in violation of the law. The act I refer to was passed on the 28th of April, 1877, and consequently the Alderman was mistaken in saying he knew of it when the appropriation was made.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The law he refers to was that which prevents the exhibition of circuses, theatres, etc., without a permit from the Mayor and Aldermen, and it provides that children may be exhibited in musical or school festivals with the permission of the Board of Aldermen. The spirit of the law is to prevent children from being exhibited in circuses.

Alderman Thompson—The law was passed April 28, 1877, and could not have been carried out subsequent to that. I will read the closing sections:

"Provided, however, that nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent the education of children in vocal and instrumental music, or their employment as musicians in any church, chapel, school or school exhibition, or prevent their taking part in any concert or musical exhibition on the special written permission of the Board of Aldermen of any city or the Board of Selectmen of any town.

"This act shall take effect from its passage."

That law is in force now, and it is not proper for the School Committee to give an exhibition without permission from this Board. I have no doubt that this Board will be ready to grant any request that the School Board ask for, but it seems to me they should be reminded that there is a law which should be observed. I hope the order will meet the approval of this law-abiding Board of Aldermen.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope the Board will not pass this order. The School Board know what they are to do and do not require this Board to instruct them. If such a law has been passed, I presume they will take notice of it; and if they have another exhibition of this kind those gentlemen will come here and ask leave. The object of that law was to prevent little children from being exhibited in circuses. The appropriation for this exhibition was discussed in the committee and was granted, and we thereby gave them leave to hold the exhibition.

Alderman Thompson—The appropriation has nothing to do with the act of the Legislature. A member of the School Committee who was a member of the Legislature was here this afternoon and told me he was not aware of the law, and that is the case with other members of the School Committee. If a gentleman who is a member both of the School Committee and the Legislature did not realize there was such a law upon the statute books, I do not think members of the School Committee who are not members of the Legislature would. It is our duty as protectors of the law of the Commonwealth to see that the laws are properly executed and carried out. We know there has been one violation of the law recently, and it is proper, under the circumstances, that the law should be carried out. If they come here and ask this Board to do what they desire, I shall be ready to grant it; but I think they should be obliged to do so.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It seems to me that the chairman of the Committee on Public Instruction has been derelict in his duty in not informing the School Committee before last Saturday that they were violating the law. Now, when the festival is over he informs them of it; and at the same time informs them that we have winked at a violation of the law. I presume that the Board of next year will know what their rights are. This looks like slapping the School Board in the face simply because they did not give us four tickets to the festival instead of two.

Alderman Thompson—I plead guilty to the charge that I have not been quite as diligent as under other circumstances. My attention was called to it last Friday, and I was requested to take some steps in regard to this matter; but I found that if anything was done it would be very troublesome to a great many of our citizens. I think I may be excused for not having thought of it before when a member of the School Committee, and the Legislature was a party to this violation of the law without knowing it. I had a note sent to me by a member of the other branch, calling my attention to the duty of this Board in this matter, and to the fact that it was an open violation of the law, and expressing the opinion that some notice of it should be taken; and this is the first opportunity I have had to bring it to the attention of the Board. I hope the Board will realize the fact that there has been a violation of the law.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Suppose we send an order to them that no schoolhouse shall be built without a special appropriation from this Board? That is the law. I hope this Board will not pass the order. I hope it for the sake of this Board, and not for the sake of the School Board.

Alderman Thompson—I should, if the higher power votes that that shall be the law. I am not responsible for the law. If the higher says they shall not build schoolhouses except by permission of this Board, I propose to abide by the law.

Alderman Fitzgerald—School festivals are held every three years, and the probabilities are that some who are now in this Board and the School Committee will not be members then, and I think it would be better to refer the order to the Board of Aldermen three years from today, and instruct them to instruct the School Board in their duties in this matter.

Alderman Clark—I hope this order will not be passed tonight, but laid upon the table to enable us to ascertain whether it is necessary to give permission to hold a school festival. If the School Board desires the order passed, I shall be happy to vote for it; if it is not necessary I shall not vote for it. I move that it be laid upon the table.

Alderman Thompson—If that motion prevails I hope the Alderman will be a committee of one to ascertain whether such an act was passed or not. Here is a copy of the act as it stands upon the statute book. I don't know how he is going to ascertain. Perhaps he had better apply to the City Solicitor.

The order was laid on the table.

PERMIT FOR LANTERN.

Alderman Robinson submitted a report from the Committee on Police in favor of granting a permit to R. M. Field to place a lantern in front of the Boston Museum on the usual conditions. Accepted.

Adjourned on motion of Alderman Burnham.

SALARY OF SUPERINTENDENT OF DOVER-STREET BRIDGE.

The order to fix the salary of Superintendent of Dover-street Bridge at a rate of $2500 per annum from April 1, in full for services of himself and assistants, came down with the non-concurrence of the other branch in the reference to the Committee on Retrenchment.

The question was put on receding from the former vote of the Council. The President was in doubt and ordered a division, but a quorum did not vote, and pending action discussion ensued.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I have understood since the last meeting, that this Superintendent is obliged to hire three assistants and pay them out of the salary he gets; so that if he pays each man $500 apiece for three assistants, the Superintendent is allowed only $1000 for his salary. I also understand that neither the Superintendent nor his assistants have been allowed to draw pay since the first of April on account of their salary not being regulated, and it was for that reason that it went through the Board of Aldermen, that the men may receive the salaries due them.

Mr. Jackson of Ward 16—I am perfectly aware that the salary is not too much. Besides the assistants there are two horses to take care of, and in reality they have quite as much work to do as the Superintendent of Broadway Bridge, which is operated by steam, and, besides which, very many craft pass under it without opening the draw—for instance, all the tow boats—whereas the draw of Dover-street Bridge has to be opened for every vessel or boat that passes through. I think the salary is quite small enough.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—The question is not whether the salary is too small or too large—it may well be that the salary is too small. The action of the Council, last Thursday evening, was dictated by the principle that it is right to establish no salary without its being referred to a committee on salaries. The custom is that that shall be the case. I made the motion to refer this order to the Committee on Retrenchment last Thursday, stating as the reason for so doing that we had adopted the Retrenchment Committee as our salary committee. That committee having fixed the salaries for this year, and the City Council having adopted their report, it seemed to me that we were entitled to a report from that committee before fixing this salary. It is true that they fixed one or two superintendents' salaries at a higher rate, and gentlemen connected with the City Council think that the duties of this Superintendent are as great of those of other superintendents. I am not quite prepared to say that if the committee fixed the salary at $3000 I should vote for it, or that I should not; but I do think it is a safeguard that all these things should be done decently and in order. The action of the Board of Aldermen, in refusing to refer this to the committee, I think, with all due deference to them, with the brief consideration that they gave it, could not be approved, so far as the saving of time is concerned. If they had referred it to the committee they could have given us a report tonight and the order could have gone to the Board of Aldermen next Monday. It may have been done for the sake of giving us one more snubbing. We have referred several matters to committees, but the Board of Aldermen have non-concurred, and we have quietly followed their leading. I think the Council have gone far enough in that matter. If there is a principle involved, I hope the Council will stand where it is. If we have done right in referring it to the committee, let us send it to them.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I trust the Council will recede. In looking into this matter I am informed that the Bridge Committee have delayed fixing this salary some time until the completion of the bridge to ascertain the amount of labor in removing the draw. After their careful consideration, the knowledge they have is as good as any the Retrenchment Committee could obtain in regard to this salary. These men have had no pay during this financial year—since the 1st of April; and it is hard to keep them out of their salary so long for the sake of standing upon our dignity.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I entirely concur with the views of the gentleman from Ward 17, and I hope the Council will recede. The remarks of the gentleman from Ward 9 remind me of the story of the Dutchman who went to mill, carrying his grain in a bag on one side and a stone in a bag on the other side. One day his boy went to mill and divided the grain between the two bags. The miller said to him, "Your father, grandfather and great-grandfather carried that grain on one side, and now I want none of your new-fangled notions around here." It seems to me the gentlemen are just like that. Here is a new salary; it has never been fixed before. The gentleman wants it referred to the Retrenchment Committee. Retrench on what? Perhaps it might be well enough to refer it to the Salary Committee; but here is the Bridge Committee, who know just what is to be done, what the duties of other superintendents are, and can compare the salaries together. I don't think we will be much more enlightened if we send it to the Retrenchment Committee, or any other committee. Because we send other salaries to the Salary Committee is no reason why we should send this one to them. If gentlemen understand that this salary is small enough for the duties performed, or large enough either, I say we ought to recede and let the men get the money for what they are doing. What is the use of carrying it backwards and forwards, when we will get the same report we have now?

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—In the report of the Retrenchment Committee, in regard to bridges, I find these words:

"The committee are not prepared to recommend any salary for the Superintendent of Dover-street Bridge, that bridge not having been opened for public travel."

At that time we did not know what the duties would be, and could not make any recommendation. But as we were competent to fix the salaries of the other superintendents, it seems to me we are competent to fix this one also. As the bridge has been opened for a considerable time, if those men are so poor I fail to see why the Committee on Bridges could not have made their report earlier, instead of waiting till now and trying to rush it through before it is referred to the proper committee. It is not whether the salary is high or low, but whether it is courteous and just that the matter should be referred to the committee who fixed the other salaries. We are not to blame by delaying the payment of those poor men by trying to refer it; but those who delayed making the report are to be blamed if any one is. I believe we will be justified in non-concurring.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I hope we shall non-concur. The Council are equally responsible with the Board of Aldermen in fixing salaries. This salary has not been referred to any committee of this branch, or any committee having salaries in charge. The Committee on Bridges is entirely composed of Aldermen, and it is eminently proper that some committee composed in part, at least, of members of this branch should consider what this salary should be. The Retrenchment Committee reported a list of salaries for this year which was substantially adopted. It is to be supposed, and I have no doubt that that committee acted upon certain rules and principles in determining upon salaries, and this salary should be determined upon the same rules, and it ought to be made high or low, as these salaries were determined to be high or low. It seems to me that the Retrenchment Committee is the proper one to refer it to, to see whether this salary is fixed upon the same scale as the others.

Mr. Reed of Ward 17—Dover-street Bridge is conducted upon the same principle as Federal-street Bridge. More vessels pass through Federal-street Bridge than through Dover-street Bridge. The salary of the Superintendent of the Federal-street Bridge is $2700, and he pays for his assistants. The Committee on Bridges carefully considered this matter and made the salary $2500. I have looked into the matter and satisfied myself that the committee acted wisely, and as the gentleman from Ward 17 [Mr. Sampson] has said it has been considered by this committee, and I hope we shall concur.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 16—It seems to me from the remarks of the gentleman that we may well doubt whether $2500 will be sufficient. I am in doubt whether the salary is large enough or not. It seems to me we are justified in referring this matter to the committee to see whether the salary is sufficient or not. I hope we shall not recede from our former action.

Mr. Jackson of Ward 16—In reply to the gentleman last up, I would satisfy him that the Superintendent is satisfied with the amount awarded by the committee, and considers it fair compensation compared with the salaries received by the other superintendents of bridges. I think that to give them any less would be doing them injustice. I would be perfectly satisfied to have it increased if I thought it was necessary; but when parties filling positions are satisfied with the amount awarded we ought to be satisfied, and if there is any change to be made I anticipate that some of us would go in for reducing. The amount awarded by the committee being fair, I don't think we ought to delay action any further. If I understand the matter, such business has been transacted heretofore without referring it to the Retrenchment Committee. I don't know whether we ever had such a committee before. I think we can get along at such a late day now without referring it to them, and I trust that any member of that committee will not feel lighted that the Bridge Committee fixed this salary. I know those gentlemen want the money, and it is time they had it, and the matter has been put off long enough. I hope we shall recede from our former action.

The Council voted to recede by a division—34 for, 15 against—and the order was read a second time and passed in concurrence.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

A report came down with a resolve that the work on Mystic Valley Sewer should be done by day labor and by citizens of Boston only, and with an order authorizing and recommending the Boston Water Board to have the work done by day labor, providing that such persons only shall be employed, also a minority report recommending the passage of the original order on the subject.

The question was upon giving the resolve and order a second reading as amended.

Mr. Beeching of Ward 1—I simply want to say a word or two in behalf of the committee who had that matter under consideration. They were unanimously in sympathy with the object of the original order, but the question came whether it was wise and judicious to take the matter entirely out of the hands of the Water Board. This matter was considered very carefully, and the committee thought that the present being an extraordinary time—so many men being out of employment—they might depart from the very wise and judicious rule requiring that on all work, the expense of which should amount to ten thousand dollars or more, proposals should be advertised for, but in this case, under the extraordinary circumstances of the present time, they thought it might be proper to depart from that rule. The Water Board could not do this work in any other way but by contract, unless they were authorized by the City Council. The objection to the original order was that the Water Board would be instructed to have this work done by day's labor. That was regarded as objectionable. It was taking the matter entirely out of the hands of the Water Board; and should an emergency arise that would require them to depart from it or that might make it necessary to depart from that instruction, their hands would be tied, and notwithstanding any emergency that might arise, they would be obliged to have this work done by day's labor. The members of the Water Board were present with the committee when this matter was considered, and they were in sympathy with the object of this order. The committee thought if the authority was given the Water Board to depart from the usual course they might have their work done by day's labor, and the most judicious course under the circumstances was to authorize the Water Board to do the work in that way. It now comes from the Board of Aldermen with an amendment which I think rather improves the order; and that is that the Water Board be authorized "and recommended"—not instructed—to have this work done by day's labor. It is supposed that the work would cost more—but not a great deal more—to have it done in this way than it might if it were done by contract. Taking this view of the matter the committee so reported, and it was the wisest thing they could do under the circumstances. I hope the report of the majority of the committee will be adopted.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—Having signed the minority report and having conscientiously signed it, I propose to tell my reasons for doing so. I have had some conversation with the gentleman who offered the order. I believe he offered it in good faith and for a laudable purpose. He believed that on account of the number of unemployed men in the city of Boston today the city could hire good labor at a smaller price than it ever could before, and another reason was that the city could get a better job done. The order was referred to the Committee on Water, of which I am a member. I did not expect to see any objection to it. The three commissioners were there. One of them in a very emphatic manner declared, and persistently declared, striking his hand upon the table, that unless they had an order from the City Council they would be obliged to do it by contract. Another member of the commission framed his words to show that in the face of a resolve passed by the Council, he, for one, would not feel justified in going against the wishes of the City Government. The other member remained present without expressing any opinion whatever, and he never did express any opinion. Mr. President, those are the facts, and I believed, as I do now, that unless the Water Board are instructed, the Mystic Valley sewer will never be built by day's labor. There has been so much talk about the Mystic Valley sewer that any gentleman here unacquainted with the facts might imagine that it is a monstrous job. It is not larger than a drain on a large farm. About 15,000 feet in length are to be dug to the depth of ten feet from the basin of the Mystic River to the Woburn Branch, and from that a little drain is to be dug up to Woburn, where there will be fifteen inch-pipe laid. They only propose to spend about $70,000. One of the members of the commission and some members of the committee thought they would be obliged to procure very able superintendents. Why, sir, it is ridiculous to think that superintendents are so scarce in the city of Boston that they cannot be found for a little job like that. For that reason I was obliged to differ from the majority. The committee were not unanimous in any part of it. Two votes were taken; the first one stood 2 and 2; one of the honorable Aldermen refused to vote. They were unwilling, even, to say to this Council that it was their intention to do this unless they were compelled to do so. An amendment was offered which would shut off the fear that the laborers would make a strike and run the price up to $3 or $4 a day, and it provided that the work should be done at the lowest price paid by the Water Board. The only danger in the minds of a majority of the committee seemed to be the taking away of some of the dignity of the Water Board. One of the commissioners said he would not do it by day's labor unless he had a positive order. The other says he don't know, but he would not like to go behind the expression of the Council. The other one remained without giving any expression.

Mr. Fraser moved to amend the order by inserting the words "and instructed" after the word "recommended."

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—Believing as I do that the order offered by the majority of the committee is surely to attain precisely the same object, and that it is much more courteous and desirable in every way, I trust that it will be passed. When this matter was first suggested to me by the gentleman from my ward who offered the order, I immediately called upon the Water Board and asked them concerning it, and I consulted with the entire board. They expressed the idea to me that an arbitrary order from the City Council, compelling them to do so, would not be according to their ideas of courtesy, but at the same time if we passed the resolve saying that this was the feeling of the City Council, there is no reasonable doubt whatever in their minds that the work would be done in that way. I saw two members of the Water Board—a majority—who assured me that it would make no practical difference which order prevailed. The question is, which is the true order to pass as a matter of precedent and courtesy to the Board of Water Commissioners. Believing that the workmen will obtain all the work they want by either order, and that the order of the majority will accomplish the same purpose as the original order, I intend to vote for the one report by the committee.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—It is very strange that the Water Board make two different statements. I have more respect for those gentlemen than to believe that. I waited upon the President of the Water Board some two weeks before I offered the order and he offered to favor it. I also waited upon the board in their room, a week before I offered it, and they had no objection to continuing the work by day's labor if they got the order from the City Council to do so. Now, sir, as it comes from the Board of Aldermen I see no value in the order at all. Before I offered this order I consulted with the members of the Water Board and got their views on the question. I intended to offer no offence in the order, as has been intimated. There was no offence there. They felt that it was not an arbitrary order. I have waited upon the gentlemen since, and they made no such statement to me, and I am ready to apologize to the gentlemen if I have offended them. They were perfectly satisfied. One member, however, stated to me that he wanted a positive order. That gentleman was Mr. Cutter. I also went to the Engineer, who was perfectly satisfied with it; and to be sure I was right before offering the order, I went to the City Solicitor, and he told me it was the proper way to offer it. I do not see where the offence is. I don't believe in any order that has not some foundation to it. If we pass a resolve that it is the sense of the Council we leave it just as it is now. I offered an order that the work be done by the day, and that none but citizens of Boston be employed upon it. My reason for doing it is that when I come to City Hall I find it filled with men who are out of employment. In the ward where I live, in Charlestown square, every morning are fifty to a hundred men looking for work. I thought that, as the city of Boston is going to do this work, we might employ many of those men, knowing it can be done as cheaply by day's labor as it can be by contract. I don't say it will be done as cheap directly, it will cost a little more; but indirectly it will come back into the city treasury, as it will enable the laboring men to pay their grocers' bills and rents, and in that way the landlords will be able to pay their taxes. I thought it over some time, and offered the order in good faith. If we merely express the opinion of the Council in this matter, I should like to know what it amounts to. I do not think it amounts to a great deal. I know we expressed our opinion as the sense of the Council that the pay of laborers in the Paving Department should not be reduced some two years ago—that it should not be done; but it had no effect upon the Committee on Paving. I believe this order should be binding, and that the minority report should be adopted by this Council. I don't care which report is accepted; all I want to say is the city of Boston should employ its own citizens. I believe that if there is any profit in it, the city of Boston should have it, and if there is any loss the city of Boston should bear it. That is the best way. The city will get better work done by hiring good men—not politicians—who know what a day's work is, and who will exact a day's work from every man, if they have the power to hire and discharge them. That is what I believe in.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 offered an amendment to the order by inserting after the words "day labor" the words "and that the labor be divided pro rata through the several wards of this city."

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I am opposed to the amendment for this reason: It will be impossible to do it and it will be against the interests of the city. How does the gentleman suppose a man is going to get from Ward 24 to Winchester in time to do a day's work without furnishing him with the means of conveying him there? I hope no such amendment will prevail. I believe in having men do the work without any regard to where the man comes from so long as he is a citizen of Boston. I don't believe in dividing it up among the wards. I should judge from the amendment that the gentleman did not offer it in good faith.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I did offer the amendment in good faith. I do not know why men can not go from the outlying wards out there as well as they can go there from Charlestown. There has certainly got to be no means for conveying them to and from the place of work. I do not know why men cannot get them from the city proper without having some conveyance. I do not see any hardship in it. On the contrary, it seems to me it will be dividing this work up properly. If it is to be done by the laboring classes, it is perfectly proper that it should be divided up between the different parts of the city.

Mr. Beeching of Ward 1—I hardly understand the purport of the term "pro rata." Does that mean according to the number of inhabitants in a ward, or according to the number of laborers in a ward.

Mr. Wilbur—According to the number of laborers.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope the amendment will not prevail, as it is evidently done for delay. If we make any amendment, it will necessarily have to go back to the Board of Aldermen. There is no material difference in either of these orders. Either will accomplish what we desire to do, and that is that the citizens of Boston should be employed, and the work shall be done by day's labor. No section is to be expressly favored, and no portion of the city should monopolize this work. I think the gentleman's [Mr. Wilbur] ward has been as much favored as any other section of the city.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9—It seems to me that this matter is all wrong; that we commenced wrong in the introduction of this matter, and that we shall never get right. The more we talk about it and the oftener we send it back either to the committee or to the other branch, the further we get into the mire, because the inception of it was wrong, and because we attempted to legislate upon a matter which was never intended to be legislated upon. We are a large city—the representatives of a large constituency—and details like these should be left to individuals and to the heads of departments to carry out. I do not see any good to come out of it. I do not see that it is going to be of any practical benefit or that any good can come out of it. I think it is an improbable thing for us to do anything about, and if it were proper I should move to indefinitely postpone the matter. I make that motion.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I trust this last motion will not prevail, and in fact have n't the least idea that it will. I believe that we discussed the general merits of this question pretty thoroughly at the last meeting of the Council, and it is unnecessary to do so now. It was the sense of the Council by a large majority that, if we could do something for the large number of workmen, and if we could do this job at only a little more expense by day's labor, and give employment to the citizens of the city, we should do it in that way. Believe that the large majority of the Council think that this is the correct way. I don't believe it is necessary to discuss it tonight. As my colleague who offered the order said he did not care which one of the reports is accepted, and as I believe that the majority will accomplish the purposes in a more courteous way, I hope it will pass. I would remind my colleague that if he wants to get this matter through, that the Board of Aldermen have passed it in a certain shape, and if we concur that will settle it; if we non-concur it will go back, and perhaps they will non-concur and delay the whole matter. If we want this thing carried out, we should simply concur in the report of the majority of the committee, and the matter will be final.

Mr. Beeching of Ward 1—I want to say a word in explanation of what I said before. From the remarks of the chairman of the Water Committee in this branch [Mr. Fraser], there seems to be a little discrepancy between my statement and his. I am satisfied, from what I witnessed while the Water Board were present, that they are in sympathy with this move; and if the recommendation of the majority of the committee passes here, I have no question but it will be done by day's labor unless some insuperable obstacle should occur to prevent it. I am satisfied that the majority, if not the entire board, are in sympathy with this. The gentleman states that the Commissioner said he would not do it by day's labor unless we passed an order instructing them to do it. I did not so understand him. I understood him to say he preferred to be instructed. But the committee thought that not desirable. One member of the Board did not commit himself, but I thought he was in sympathy with this order. If the recommendation of the majority passes I have no doubt it will be done by day's labor.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I don't know anything by signs or imaginings. All I can tell is what a man says. When he says anything that I understand, I suppose that he means what he says. I have no idea of imputing to the gentleman from this branch who offered the majority report, that he said anything that is not right, because I consider him a gentleman of veracity. But I do state again that I did sign this minority report conscientiously, believing that there was no other way to get those commissioners to do this work by the day and employ the laborers of Boston, except by an order. It is a well-known fact, and the commissioner stated it again this afternoon, that he did desire an order. The other one never opened his mouth; he might have smiled at what was going on, and he might have thought a great deal; but he said nothing. I was astonished when I got into the committee, because I believed from what I heard during the last month that at least the Aldermen were in favor of this matter. After all the speeches they have made during the last month I supposed the Aldermen would jump at anything to give the laboring men work; but I found it very different. They have used all their eloquence to give the laboring men work. Here is a little job of only $70,000; it is only seven times what the city spends for the Fourth of July, and it is not three times the cost of a junketing "bout" in the old times. But they merely want to authorize the Water Board to do it. The commissioners do not say they are opposed to receiving any order, and they do not consider that an indignity will be attached to it. They are willing to receive an order telling them and instructing them; and unless we do instruct them, there will be many December storms before the laboring men of Boston get employed on the Mystic sewer.

Mr. Jackson of Ward 16—I rise to place myself right upon this subject more than anything else. I do not propose to detain the Council very long. I was present that day and took a special interest in this matter, and I am perfectly willing to accept the order as it comes from the Board of Aldermen; that is, I would do it were it not for one thing, and that is that one of the commissioners stated distinctly and decidedly that he would not do any work in his department by the day which called for an expenditure of more than ten thousand dollars, without being ordered and instructed by the City Council to do so. Were it not for that statement by one of the commissioners, I would be perfectly willing to accept the order as it came from the Board of Aldermen. But I know this to be the fact that they will not do it, without we instruct them by an order, unless we do that it becomes a dead letter. According to the ordinances they are obliged to call for bids on any work to be done, the expenditure for which will be over ten thousand dollars. Now this resolving and saying this is the sense of the City Council, so and so, does not make it binding upon them to do it. It is for us to order and instruct them to do it, and they stand ready to obey. The commissioner stated distinctly in my presence that he would not, and that he is not ready to do it where it calls for an expenditure of over ten thousand dollars. That is the reason why I signed this minority report. If we intend to do anything for the benefit of the laboring man, I hope we shall put this order through as recommended by the minority; otherwise I don't see how it will amount to anything. I leave it to the gentlemen of the committee if they do not remember the statement made by the commissioner, that that was the reason why they would not do it by the day. I understood him to say so distinctly. I hope the order offered by the minority will prevail, if we intend to do anything for the benefit of the workingmen.

Mr. Beeching—I am sorry to take so much of the time of the Council in this matter. I certainly think the gentleman who has just taken his seat is putting it rather strong. I am very positive the member of the Water Board never stated what the gentleman presumed him to say. He stated that they could not do the work in any way other than by contract unless they were authorized to do it. And that is why the committee voted to authorize them to do it in this way. I am positive he never said he would not do it unless he was instructed.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—Has the gentleman [Mr. Beeching] no doubt thought in his own mind that if we pass the order of the majority the work will be done by day's labor, unless some emergency occurs to prevent it—

Mr. Beeching—I stated before that I had not the least doubt that if we passed the order the work would be done by day's labor, unless some insuperable obstacle was in the way.

Mr. Pratt—I cannot imagine the insuperable obstacle in the way of carrying out this order, as proposed to be amended by the gentleman opposite [Mr. Fraser]. If there should be an insuperable obstacle, I think an order could be put in to relieve the Board. Why should we not instruct the Water Board to do just what we mean? We pass the resolve—just what we mean—and then leave to the Board to do just as it has a mind to. The city of Boston is full of laboring men who are unemployed. This work requires no particular skill, no laborers of rare attainments. Certainly there are plenty of laborers in the city of Boston who are competent to build sewers and who will be pretty liberal in offering to do any work at which they may be employed. I think we ought to adopt the amendment offered by the gentleman opposite. Suppose the work is well worth doing at all, it is worth doing at a fair rate of wages. If we can go out fifty miles from Boston and get men at fifty cents a day, I do not believe we ought to do it, when there are so many men in Boston willing to work for a dollar and a half a day. I believe in paying good men a fair rate of wages, and in this case, and in such a time as this is, we ought to give the preference to the citizens of Boston. I hope, therefore, that the motion to indefinitely postpone will not prevail, and that the amendment offered by my friend opposite will be carried.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I believe in this report as proposed to be amended by the gentleman at my side [Mr. Fraser]. In company with the gentleman from Ward 3 I met one of the Board of Water Commissioners and said to him, "Suppose we pass the order recommended by the majority, will not the work be done by the day?" Said he, "I don't know; if I wanted it done so I would say so." I feel so tonight. I feel that I want this work done by the citizens of Boston, and I am willing to say so. I do not think the Water Board will take it as an offence or as something we ought not to do. I think they will take it in the sense that the gentleman does. He said that if he wanted a thing done he would say so. I believe in the amendment also. It is our duty to look out for the citizens of Boston. I think the fairer way will be to accept the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 20. We have twenty-five wards and they will get so many laborers apiece. I have some men in my own mind in my own ward, and I think that ward would get its share. I shall vote for the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 20.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I am sorry that the members of the Water Committee so differently interpreted what the commissioners said. I have no guess work about it. I wrote it down when he said it. One of the commissioners said, there and then, said he, "Gentlemen, if you wish us to do this work as we would do our own work, and do it in the interest of the city of Boston, we will do it by contract." Whether that means what he said I don't know.

Mr. Jackson of Ward 16—I hope the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 20 will not prevail. It will look like trifling with the commissioners and the committee. I take it for granted that if the order of the minority be granted the commissioners will do what is right by the advice of the committee, and that the laboring men of the city of Boston will have a right to go there and get employment. Parties from Roxbury and Charlestown cannot go down there and get more than their share of the work, but those who go will get what work there is. The amendment is virtually saying to the commissioners that we cannot trust them, and must bind them to do certain things. If this order passes as passed to be amended the work will be done by the day, and all sections of the city will be represented in the employment of laborers.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I do not see that my amendment is going to trifle with the feelings of the commission in any way. They wish to be instructed how to build this sewer, and if we instruct them they will build it by the day. I do not see why we should not instruct them to employ men from the different wards of the city. I do not see any trifling with them in that respect. I am perfectly willing to amend the amendment still further, if it is in order, to leave it to the discretion of the commissioners to divide the labor, as they may see fit, among the different wards.

The President—That would be equivalent to withdrawing the amendment.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—It seems to me that this thing might be reached more definitely if we insert after the words "citizens of Boston" the words "recommended by members of the City Council." Then we should make sure that we shall have the patronage.

Mr. Pratt—The suggestion of the gentleman who has just spoken strikes a responsive chord. I do not forget, and I suppose there are some others here who do not forget, that not many months ago the Committee on Paving, consisting only of Aldermen, instructed the Superintendent of Streets to give no one employment on the streets on the recommendation of members of the Common Council; and I suppose the gentleman had the idea that if we pass this order in a loose sort of way, by some technical arrangement the Board of Aldermen would get the opportunity of recommending all the employes. I am not in favor of the amendment offered by the gentleman last up, or the amendment offered before [by Mr. Wilbur], and I hope both of them will be withdrawn or defeated, and that we shall pass the order as proposed to be amended by the gentleman opposite [Mr. Fraser], in a sober, earnest, sincere sort of way, without any trifling about it. Now, sir, it is said we are making the city of Boston a charitable institution by passing such orders as these. I say we are not. With ten times, yea, fifty times, as many laborers as there are opportunities for labor, if this work is done by contract it will be done by laborers outside, and it will be the same old, old story of laborers coming with tin pails from Providence and taking away work from the citizens of Boston. As times are now, with so many men with wives and families waiting for something to do, and who would be glad to get a week's employment at the lowest rate that a respectable contractor would be willing to pay, I say it is no more than right that the city should employ its own men, as other cities and towns about us are doing.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I would ask the gentleman [Mr. Pratt] what arrangement those men from Providence could make for car fare. The last time I went to Providence they charged me a dollar and twenty-five cents.

Mr. McGaragle—They might walk up.

Mr. Wilbur's amendment (to divide the labor pro rata among the wards) was adopted by a division 23 for, 20 against.

Mr. Fraser's amendment (to insert "and instructed") was adopted, and the question was on giving the amended resolve and order a second reading.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I want to suggest to the gentlemen having charge of the order that, if it is passed in its present shape, it might put the Water Board in a very disagreeable position. While I am not prepared to offer an amendment to correct what appears to be a defect, I would suggest it, and perhaps they can clear it up. If I remember the order aright they are authorized and instructed to do the work by day's labor, provided none but citizens of Boston are employed. The effect of that proviso is that they are not so authorized unless all the employes are citizens of Boston. If they should make a mistake—and a question of citizenship is one that it takes a great deal of law and two or three juries to decide—and employ men who are not citizens of Boston, all their authority to do the work by day's labor would be gone; and any citizens who may be dissatisfied with this work might make the Water Board some trouble. It is only fair that the committee should get the order in such a shape as to save the Water Board that trouble.

The amended order was read a second time. On motion of Mr. Fraser, the yeas and nays were ordered, and the order was passed—yeas 40, nays 9.

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Danforth, Dee, Doherty, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, O'Donnell, Pratt, Reed, Roach, Roberts, Spenceley, Thorndike, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—40.

Nays—Messrs. Coe, Crocker, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Rnffin, Sampson, Thompson, Upham, Wolcott—9.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Brown, Burke, Cross, Day, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, J. J. Flynn, Hubbard, Howes, Mullane, O'Connor, Pearl, Perham, Pope, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Shepard, Sibley, Snardon, Sonther, Stone—22.

Later in the session the subject was again brought up.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 moved to reconsider the vote passing the order in regard to the Mystic Valley sewer, hoping it would not prevail.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I was about to make the same motion, hoping it would prevail. I should like to strike from it the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 20 in regard to distributing the labor in each ward. Without that amendment the order amounts to something, and it is liable to give work to a few laboring men living in the city of Boston. With the amendment it is a complete burlesque, and I believe the gentleman who offered it must know it. I do not believe it will pass the Board of Aldermen in that shape. It will be found entirely impracticable to carry it out. Suppose they commence work on a particular location, according to this order they must take so many men from each ward; and when they begin somewhere else they have got to take so many more men from the wards; and if there are not men enough, work cannot go on. It will make any amount of red tape and become a complete burlesque. If this Council do not believe in the order, or do not want to do anything for the laboring man, let us stand up and vote upon the merits of the question; but do not let us delay it two or three weeks or defeat it in a back-handed manner.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I hope the reconsideration will not prevail. In regard to my amendment they may employ twenty-five men from one ward at a time, or take them from all the wards if they chose, and they could be changed and men from other wards put in their places, and the work will be more equally distributed than it would otherwise be. I believe the amendment is what it should be.

The reconsideration was lost. Sent up.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Orders to remit taxes on forfeited estates, for 1876, viz., 154 Shawmut avenue; lot 4 West Brookline street; lot 22 Oliver street. Severally passed in concurrence.

Order to pay at the rate of $500 per annum the assistant in the City Architect's office, heretofore paid at the rate of one dollar per day. Passed in concurrence.

FIRES FOR MAY.

The Fire Commissioners submitted the report of fires and alarms for May. Sent down.

COMMISSIONER ON SINKING FUNDS.

A communication was received from George P. Denny, resigning the office of Commissioner on the Sinking Funds. Accepted. Sent up.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 stated that the Council had twice elected Mr. Peabody, and as there was no other candidate, he thought it well for the Council to again express its preference. On his motion a ballot was ordered. Francis H. Peabody received 45 votes, the whole number cast, and was elected. Sent up.

THE FIRE OF WEDNESDAY EVENING.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 offered an order—That Messrs. —, with such as the Board of Aldermen may join, be a committee to inquire into the causes of the fire and loss of life at the corner of Shawmut avenue and Pleasant street on the 6th inst., and also what further means, if any, should be taken for the protection of life and property in similar buildings.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—I hardly see the necessity of that order. There will undoubtedly be an inquest on this fire, which will give us all the information that is necessary; and in regard to inquiring into what steps may be necessary to prevent such accidents in future, the law passed in 1874 provides for it, and makes it the duty of the Inspector of Buildings to look into it. If the Inspector has been negligent in this matter, I think the fact will come out at the inquest. I do not see how a committee of this Government can go into the matter as it should be investigated. It would be virtually two inquiries into the same matter. The law is very explicit. It says (page 127)—

"It shall be the duty of the Inspector of Buildings to inspect all dwelling houses now erected in the city of Boston, occupied by two or more families on any of the floors above the second floor from the level of the street, and any building now erected and occupied as a hotel, boarding or lodging house."

It goes on to state his duties very explicitly. If he has not attended to them, the facts will be brought out at the inquest; and I do not think a committee of the Council can go any farther than the Inspector can. The act goes on to say—

"It, in his opinion, such building is not provided with proper facilities for the escape of such persons in case of fire, he shall immediately serve a notice in writing upon the owner or owners, agent or other party or parties having an interest in said building, requiring such facilities to be provided without delay."

I do not know, of course, how much duty he may have to attend to, and whether he has sufficient force to do it. But it seems to me that this law having been passed several years ago, if he had a sufficient number of assistants to perform the duty, it ought to have been done. As I said before, the inquest will show where the blame belongs; and I think it can be more properly attended to in that way than by any committee of this Council.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I know very well that the law is very explicit in regard to means of escape from buildings in case of fire. But here is the fact that this building caught fire and there has been a loss of life. It seems to me it is a neglect of duty on the part of the Inspector of Buildings, or some one, and that a committee ought to inquire into this matter; and if the Inspector is to blame they can say so in their report. I did not know whether there was going to be an inquest or not. It is said there are quite a number of such buildings, and the committee can investigate other cases. I do not see the harm in passing the order, for we can get some information from it.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope the order will pass. In conversation with a member of the Government he told me that one of the Assistant Inspectors went there and supposed there were two buildings. If that is the case, it is high time we had an investigation.

The order was given a second reading and put on its passage.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I have always been opposed to the appointment of any committee on such subjects; but it seems to me that this demands something more than a passing notice. Here is a building in which two lives were lost, and perhaps more. It will require a great deal of investigation to find how the fire started, and to learn if the Inspector has really been negligent of his duty. In conversation with him today, he said that one of the assistants, Mr. Frye, had been there, and supposed it was two houses, as it had two entrances close together. One entrance led down stairs by the cellar door, and the other led up stairs. There was a good means of escape by the roof, but in this case the whole stairway was on fire. One gentleman told me this morning that the fire started in the stairway, and he got upon the roof and was saved. It seems to me there has been negligence somewhere. If there is any other building where it needs only a match to set it on fire and cause a loss of life, it seems to me it should be thoroughly inquired into in time to prevent accidents like this.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I think myself that something ought to be done. I know we have a very good Inspector, but at the same time he has a very large work to do. A short time since, in looking for an office on the burnt district, I went into a number of those large and magnificent buildings put up in Congress and Federal streets, and noticed that in several of them, in order to get sufficient room to make the building pay, the lofts were divided into offices, and the only entrance to the rooms was by narrow stairs and small entries; but they had elevators and they said there was no trouble about getting up and down stairs, as one could ride in the elevator. Now, if there is fire, there is liability to be trouble with those elevators and narrow entries. A great many of those buildings are occupied in the upper stories for manufacturing purposes, and it would be almost impossible for people in the fifth and sixth stories to get out in case of fire.

I don't think those buildings are safe without some rear stairway in addition to the main entrance, and if those buildings were constructed within three years under the eye of the Inspector, it is my opinion, having been for fifteen years in the real-estate business, that they are unsafe and that something ought to be done.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I trust the order will not pass as it now reads, as the gentleman from South Boston [Mr. Pope] has said an inquest will be held upon this case, and probably it will determine the facts a great deal better than any committee of the City Government can. It is pretty well known from the experience of last year that any committee appointed by the City Council is limited in the scope of the investigation it can take. It can compel no one to testify. With a coroner's jury it is different; they can summon any one and take testimony under oath, and the facts they elicit as to the fire itself will be worth more than any this committee could take. After they make up their verdict, if it is necessary for the City Government to take action in regard to its officers, it may be well to take some such step; but before that I think it will be unnecessary and futile. In relation to the investigation of other buildings, I think that is a good idea, though the statutes provide amply for that. I therefore move to amend the order by striking out all in relation to fire and loss of life.

Mr. Howes's amendment was lost.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—It seems to me hardly worth while for us to pass this order at present. We had better wait until we get the result of the inquest and then we can act with definite knowledge. I move that the order lie upon the table, and then we can bring it up hereafter.

The order was laid upon the table.

DUTIES OF FIRE COMMISSIONERS.

Mr. Spenceley offered the following:

An Ordinance

To amend an Ordinance in relation to the Fire Department.

Be it ordained, etc.

Section 1. The fourth section of the ordinances in relation to the Fire Department is hereby amended by inserting the words "providing for the" after the word "of" in the first line.

Mr. Spenceley—I will just call the attention of the Council to the ordinance on page 328, section 4:

"The duty of extinguishing fires and protecting life and property in case of fire shall, within the city of Boston, be intrusted to the said Board of Commissioners."

What I wish to add there is the duty of "providing for the extinguishment of fires," etc. If gentlemen who are familiar with the statutes will look at this ordinance they will see that one is a complete violation of the other. The statutes give the power to the Engineer of the Fire Department of Boston, and they have supreme control at a fire. The commissioners themselves so understand it. In conversation with them the other day they said the engineers had supreme control at a fire. We have the opinion of Mr. Healy upon this subject. He has been asked the question—

"During the progress of a fire, are the Fire Commissioners authorized to exercise authority over the firemen or to assume direction of the work of extinguishing fires, or are the engineers vested with sole authority?"

Mr. Healy says—

"I think the Fire Commissioners have such authority. By statute (Acts of 1850, chap. 262) the City Council is empowered to establish a fire department in such a way as they deem proper, to determine the number of officers and men, and to prescribe the duties of each, etc., etc.; and by city ordinance (Laws and Ordinances, p. 338) the duty of extinguishing fires and protecting life and property, in case of fire, is intrusted to the Board of Commissioners. They are also authorized to appoint, employ and discharge both officers and men."

All I wish is to have this referred to the Committee on Ordinances, and they will look into the matter.

The ordinance was referred to the Committee on Ordinances. Sent up.

SALARIES OF CLERKS IN FIRE COMMISSIONERS'

OFFICE.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 offered an order—That the Board of Fire Commissioners be authorized to fix the rates of compensation to be paid to their clerks after the first day of July next for the remainder of the salary year, provided that the amount allowed by the City Council for that purpose shall not be exceeded thereby.

Ordered, That sections 2 and 3 of the order passed March 27, 1877, establishing the clerk and office clerks of the Board of Fire Commissioners be repealed on the first day of July next, when the preceding order takes effect.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—This order is offered for the purpose of killing two birds with one stone. There is a vacancy in the office of the Fire Commissioners, caused by the appointment of Mr. Longley to be a commissioner. His salary was $1350. He had been in the office a long time, and naturally and fairly should receive a larger salary than any new clerk coming in to fill the vacancy. The Fire Commissioners wish to have power to fill the vacancy at a salary somewhat reduced from that received by Mr. Longley; but by the present order they are obliged to fill that position at precisely the same salary. This order was also offered for another purpose—to make a correction in the action taken by the Committee on Retrenchment. It has been called to my mind, since our report was adopted and the orders passed, that we had done a real injustice to Mr. Smith, the Clerk of the Fire Commissioners. I have not the honor of his acquaintance, and never spoke to him except to call at the office and ask if the commissioners were in. As a member of the Retrenchment Committee, I am free to say that I think we made a mistake in reducing this salary at all. In this case, the commissioners have a certain amount to pay for clerk hire, which they are obliged to pay to some one. They can pay this new clerk a smaller salary than Mr. Longley received and, with the remainder, make Mr. Smith's salary what it should be without taking any more money from the city treasury. It is simply allowing the commissioners to pay their clerks what they think they are worth, and not compelling them to pay a fixed salary blindly. I am entirely willing to have it referred to the Committee on Fire Department or the Retrenchment Committee if that is necessary. I am certainly of the opinion that there is not one member of the Retrenchment Committee who would not say we made a mistake in Mr. Smith's case. As I said, I was anxious to have the bill pass as a whole, and in case there was any error I would be perfectly willing to make any correction in my power. I have the list of salaries paid to the clerks of other boards. Mr. Smith's is the lowest, and I have the best reasons for believing that his salary should be graded more nearly on an equality with the others than it is. If we can rectify the mistake without taking anything out of the city treasury I hope it will be done. When the Fire Commissioners first came into office they fixed the salary of the clerk on an economical basis. They commenced it at $1500, with the intention of raising it in a reasonable time. If they had raised it to $2000 last year, in all probability we should have cut it down to $1500; but as it was not raised, I think we did an injustice by reducing it. I think the order might as well pass, but I am perfectly willing to have it referred to the regular committee, who I believe will report in favor of its adoption.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I desire to substantiate what was said by the gentleman from Ward 3. I have been acquainted with the duties of Mr. Smith, and I think he is as hard-working a clerk as there is in City Hall. I thought of the matter at the time the committee reported, but I thought we might as well swallow half of their mistakes and do the right thing hereafter. The other clerks in City Hall have more salary than he. The clerk of the Board of Health has $2200, the Water Board $1800, Street Commissioners $1800, and Mr. Smith, has just as much work to do. I do not think it is fair and right.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 20—I hope the order offered by the gentleman from Ward 3 will pass, and I take great gratification in agreeing with him upon this point. I am glad, sir, that the arguments and points of fact made so long ago by me were not entirely cast away, but had their effect upon even the opinions and obdurate hearts of the Retrenchment Committee. I was a little at a loss to hear the gentleman say it was to kill two birds with one stone, but I see it now. One bird is the injustice he did to the Fire Department and through that to the city; the other bird is the Retrenchment Committee; but there are twelve or thirteen stones that have been thrown at them already. I hope the gentleman will feel encouraged; and if he sees any other department where injustice is done, I hope he will remember the old couplet—

"Whilst the light holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return."

The order was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I hope this order will be referred to the Retrenchment Committee. It is proper that they should finish up their work, and as they admit that this is one of the things they did not see at the time, and as they do see it now, I hope they will have the privilege of fixing it. I move its reference to the Retrenchment Committee.

Mr. Vose of Ward 24—I hope that order will not be referred to the Retrenchment Committee. We have had two or three orders referred to the committee during the last three or four weeks, and you might as well have referred them to the Bunker Hill Monument. You cannot get a meeting of the Retrenchment Committee; you cannot get it called together. I do not believe in referring orders to a committee when you cannot get the chairman of the committee to call the committee together.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I hope the order will prevail, and not be referred to a committee. I concur most heartily in what is said about Mr. Smith's ability. After the statements made I think we shall be justified in passing the order.

The Council refused to refer the order to the Retrenchment Committee.

The order was passed. Sent up.

Subsequently Mr. Spenceley moved a reconsideration, which was lost.

VISIT TO SUDBURY RIVER.

Mr. Vose of Ward 24 offered an order—That the City Messenger be requested to make arrangements for a visit of the City Council to the works now being constructed for the introduction of water from Sudbury, on Friday, June 15; the expense of the same to be charged to the appropriation for Incidental Expenses.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I was talking with one of the commissioners last week, who said that, if the City Council intended to go there, now would be the best time. Two sections have been let out; the shorter one was commenced two weeks ago, and the other will be commenced next week; they would be under way soon, and he thought the best time to go would be this month.

Mr. Vose—The reason I offered the order is that the Water Board and engineers think that if the City Council intend to visit Sudbury River they should do so as soon as practicable. I have no feeling in the matter. I simply offer it as a suggestion received from them.

The order was passed to a second reading, and on motion of Mr. Vose the rule was suspended and the roll was called on the passage of the order.

While the roll was being called, Mr. Pierce of Ward 18 raised the point of order that Mr. Pratt was not in his seat when he voted.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 raised the point that the gentlemen from Wards 9 [Mr. Crocker], 24 [Mr. Pierce] and 7 [Mr. O'Donnell] were not in their seats when they voted.

Mr. Pratt [resuming his seat]—There are so many vacant seats tonight, I supposed I might occupy any of them.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 and Mr. Crocker of Ward 9 both resumed their seats and voted no.

Mr. O'Donnell of Ward 7 said he happened to be in the seat next to his, and wished to repeat his vote, no.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 changed his vote from nay to yea.

The order was rejected—26 yeas, 19 nays (two-thirds being necessary):

Nays—Messrs. Brintnall, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Dee, Howes, Kelley of Ward 6, Kidney, Mowry, O'Donnell, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Reed, Sampson, Thompson, Upham, Warren, G. B. Webster—19.

LABORERS IN THE PAVING DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 offered an order—That the Committee on Paving be instructed to divide the employment of laborers pro rata among the different wards.

Mr. Sampson—I offer that order in the spirit of the order just passed in reference to the Mystic Valley sewer, because there has been great inequality in the distribution of the labor. I suppose there is hardly a member of this Council who has not been importuned by poor men seeking employment. Many of us cannot spare the time that other members of the Council and the members of the Board of Aldermen do, and those of us who are not here constantly and who are not persistent in our efforts, fail to get employment for men. Therefore the present system is not treating the workmen with the same degree of fairness.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—I hope this order will prevail. I can state from my own experience that there are many laborers in my ward who have come to me to get work for them. I have been able to obtain employment in the Paving Department for only one man, and I think he was kept there three weeks. Under the old method the Superintendent of Streets had the authority to employ men, but it has been taken by the Committee on Paving, and they control it. I live in a ward which is overrun by workmen seeking employment.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I would ask the ruling of the Chair upon what power the Council has to instruct the Paving Committee.

The President—The Chair thinks it has no power to instruct them.

Mr. Sampson—What power have we to instruct any committee if we have no power to instruct the Committee on Paving? We have just passed an order instructing the Water Commissioners.

The President—The Chair thinks it is scarcely a parallel case, because the order in relation to the Water Commissioners is to be passed by both branches of the City Council.

Mr. Sampson—That is an order which is to pass both branches. It will be sent up.

The President—The Chair thinks the Council cannot instruct the Committee on Paving.

Mr. Sampson—I cannot see the point. If we can instruct the Water Commissioners, we can instruct the Committee on Paving.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—If that order is passed, would it not be the instructions of the City Council? I apprehend that the City Council can instruct them. It will be an order passed by both branches of the City Council.

The President—The Chair does not rule upon the question as a point of order.

Mr. Spenceley—I am glad the gentleman from Ward 17 has offered this order. I think he must have another colored friend to bring up here to City Hall. For the last three weeks I have not passed through one of the streets at the South End but a colored brother has elevated his hat and said, "Give my respects to Mr. Sampson." I am glad the gentleman has got to the point of offering the order.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9 moved to add that "no laborer shall be employed except upon the recommendation of some member of the City Council."

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—I hope the amendment will not prevail, as it will have the effect of killing the order entirely.

The question was put on Mr. Crocker's amendment. The President was in doubt. Mr. Thompson called for the yeas and nays. Lost. Mr. Crocker's amendment was put, but a quorum did not vote (4 for, 30 against); but on a second trial it was rejected—4 for, 40 against.

The order was passed. Sent up.

Subsequently a motion to reconsider, by Mr. Pope, hoping it would not prevail, was lost.

PETITION PRESENTED.

Mr. Barry of Ward 22 presented the petition of H. A. Carberry et al., for increased wardroom accommodations in Ward 22. Referred to Joint Committee on Public Buildings. Sent up.

DUTIES OF RETRENCHMENT COMMITTEE.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 offered an order—That the Committee on Retrenchment be and they are hereby excused from any further services.

Mr. Webster—It does seem hardly necessary to back up that order by any lengthy remarks. We have had a great many matters referred to that committee, on the part of the Council, which as a matter of right and courtesy, if nothing else, should have been so referred; and immediately upon reaching the Board of Aldermen they have refused to concur with it in every instance. Being opposed, as a matter of conscience, to having our names used in that way, I think our duties might close.

Mr. Webster read the section of the committee's report stating that in a short time they would report on other matters besides salaries, and continued—

The matter has stood for three or four months, and if we were going to report at all it should have been done. It being impossible to have anything referred to that committee, and as we are laughed at and burlesqued, I think it would be a relief to the Council to excuse us.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I hope the committee will not be excused until we have the benefit of the reports which they promised to bring in during the earlier part of the year. Should we fail to elicit any more reports from them, I hope the committee will stand as a monument for what it has done.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I hope this committee will not be excused. There are gentlemen who have feelings besides the committee. Who will our learned friend [Mr. Thompson of Ward 9] have to move to refer matters to if the committee is excused? Like Othello, his occupation will be gone. Another thing, there are matters like this clerkship in the Fire Department which may need to be attended to, and I like to see the committee take the back track when they can do it honestly. The Water Inspectors of Boston want something done. They get three dollars a day, while those in Charlestown get four. I hope the gentleman from Charlestown will see to that and other matters too.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I believe our duties have fairly come to an end. To make this matter one of serious discussion and not of nonsense, we abolished one clerk in the office of the License Commissioners, and we claimed a saving of $1200. The city of Boston recognized that saving on the part of the committee and gave us credit for it. It was afterwards voted by the City Council to have that same officer employed at the same salary. We also made a saving of some $5000 in the Police Department, for which we received credit, but it was afterwards proposed to change the system somewhat and to increase the expense $15,000. I contend that every matter which should properly be referred to that committee has been refused to be referred to them, and I can only say that I should be happy to resign, and have my friend from Ward 21 substituted in my place, as I said in the first place.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I have heard many strange things in regard to this Retrenchment Committee. First they were intending to report upon other matters besides salaries, and it has been stated that it was impossible to have a meeting of the committee because the chairman would not call them together. That is a curious state of affairs and should be investigated. I would offer as a substitute for the order before us the following:

Ordered, That the Committee on Retrenchment be requested to report whether it is, as alleged, impossible for them to hold a meeting.

Mr. Pope—How does the gentleman expect to get them together to make up their report?

Mr. Crocker—That is their business, not mine.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Before the vote is taken I should like to reply to the remarks of the gentleman from Ward 19 in relation to the reference of matters to the Retrenchment Committee. It seems to be the cause of considerable pain to the gentleman that matters should be referred to that committee, because he differed, in good faith, no doubt, from the judgment of other members of the Council with regard to the desirability of doing business in that manner. It may be that the gentleman from Ward 19 has more time upon his hands, and can be about City Hall and look up matters more than others, so as to prepare himself to vote upon them when they come before the Council. I, for one, have other duties to perform, and I am not fully prepared to vote upon all matters which are brought in here. When matters come before us from a committee, we vote upon them depending upon the judgment of the committee. But upon matters offered by individuals it is not for us to rush them through without inquiring into them. Half a dozen gentlemen present may know the facts—for instance, the gentleman from Ward 19 may have time to look up those matters individually, but some of us have not had the time, and we are entitled, by parliamentary privilege and custom, to the judgment of a committee. It has been my misfortune to move the reference of certain matters to the Retrenchment Committee, and it has been the judgment of this body to so refer them; but the Board of Aldermen has differed from us and refused to make the reference. I believe the Committee on Retrenchment did a good work, upon the whole. I differed from them in the form in which they did the work. I thought a very serious evil was going to arise if we took from the heads of departments the control of the appropriations for clerical assistance; and I believe the Council and the committee are coming to understand that it would be better to make the appropriations and leave the distribution of these appropriations to the heads of departments. I was sorry the order allowing the Fire Commissioners to fix the salaries of clerks did not include the heads of other departments. I cannot let the remark of the gentleman from Ward 19—although he made it in jest—pass without some serious reply. I think no such business is transacted by this Council in a parliamentary manner without referring it to a committee.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Spenceley.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,
JUNE 11, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS.

Weigher of Coal—Newell Butler.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

The following matters were considered on orders of notice for hearings:

Sewers. On proposed construction of sewers in Wyman street and Centre street; also in Savin Hill avenue and Sagamore street; also in Jamaica street and White avenue. No objections, and recommended to the Committee on Sewers.

Removal of Trees. On proposed removal of trees from the sidewalk on School street, between Arcadia and Amory streets. No objections, and recommended to Committee on Common on the part of the Board.

Middlesex Railroad Location in Haymarket square. On petition of the Middlesex Railroad Company for a turn-out track on the westerly side of the Boston & Maine Railroad station in Haymarket square.

Mr. Powers, president of the company, said this matter was heard last year and recommended, but no report had been made, although no objection was made. The object is to have a car at the Boston & Maine Depot on the arrival of every train, and the petition is made at the very earnest solicitation of the officers of that road.

Benjamin Dean appeared for the South Boston Railroad and said they did not oppose the location, although it might have a bearing on other matters pending. He suggested that the custom of putting in a petition without any plan did not enable interested parties to know what was desired.

Mr. Powers said he had followed the custom which had prevailed for several years.

The petition was recommended to the Committee on Paving.

Middlesex Railroad Location at Old Colony Depot. On petition of the Middlesex Railroad Company, for tracks in Cove street between Beach and Kneeland streets; and for turnout tracks at the Boston & Albany and Old Colony Railroad stations.

Mr. Powers explained that it is proposed to run a regular depot line between the Fitchburg and Old Colony depots to meet each train upon its arrival, to do which it is necessary to have a turnout track. In this, Boston is behind every other city in the country. The officers of the Boston & Maine and Old Colony railroads desire it. The proposed location will enable the Middlesex cars to make the shortest run by the most direct route.

Mr. Doherty said the track there would virtually close his store and prevent his teams from unloading. It is a little side street, twenty-five feet wide, and teams have to pass there to avoid the cars. He would not object, if the track is necessary; but this is the most absurd thing ever asked for by any horse railroad in this city, and any committee would be satisfied of it in five minutes.

Mr. Dean, for the South Boston road, opposed the turnout in front of the Old Colony Depot. Because of negotiations extending over a year they obtained the right to place two cars on this location from the Old Colony road, now the Middlesex road asks for the same location. But there is room only for two cars, and the use of it by two corporations is entirely impracticable. This is the first time he had seen the plan and he had had no time to talk with the officers of the Old Colony road. His company had considered this location and found two difficulties, viz., the narrowness of Cove street and the necessity for double tracks in Federal street.

Mr. Powers said he had seen the Old Colony officers three times and they never objected to it in any way. He was not particular where the track is laid, so that the accommodations for cars are given; but such a location was positively necessary for a depot line. It will save six or seven hundred feet to locate it in Cove street. If they get this location, they are willing the South Boston road should use it, as they did not desire anything they would not be willing to allow their neighbors to use.

Mr. Dean produced a plan of this route, asked for by the South Boston road a week before the Middlesex road put in their petition. It being on the land of the Old Colony road, that company must decide between them.

Mr. Doherty said every occupant and owner on Cove street had signed the remonstrance, and objected to suffering because of a quarrel between the two corporations. This little side street is all the place they have to load and unload their teams. It was crowding them too much, and infringing upon the rights of citizens.

Mr. Powers said the plan allowed eleven feet five inches between the curb and track in Cove street, in front of Mr. Doherty's store. He had not seen the plan of the South Boston road. He had been told by Old Colony officers that no company should have an exclusive right to the location on their land.

Mr. Dean said the negotiation was for an exclusive right to the location at the Old Colony depot.

Mr. Powers also explained the proposed location on land of the Boston & Albany Railroad Company at their depot.

Mr. Dean said his company had made a similar application, but the Albany Railroad officers said there were so many cars running that they would not give the location to any one, but would to the South Boston, if to any.

Mr. Powers said the vice president of the Albany road assented to it today, and had assented to it over a year ago.

The petition was recommitted to the Committee on Paving.

Middlesex Railroad Location in Beverly Street. On petition of the Middlesex Railroad Company, for additional tracks on Beverly street to connect with their track on City square.

Mr. Powers explained the location which was granted by the Aldermen of Charlestown and Boston just prior to annexation. They had struggled to get along with one track, at great inconvenience. The draw on Charles River Bridge is ponderous and dangerous, averaging six break-downs a year. It was to prevent delay from accident on the bridges.

The matter was recommitted to the Committee on Paving.

South Boston Railroad Location at Old Colony Station. On petition of the South Boston Railroad Company for a side track on Kneeland street, near the Old Colony Railroad Station.

Mr. Dean explained that this was the same matter which had been explained in the hearing on the Middlesex petition.

Recommitted to Committee on Paving.

[Included in the order are the usual conditions.] Also, upon condition that said tracks shall be removed and the streets placed in good condition to the satisfaction of the Superintendent of Streets, as soon as the proposed new bridge on Columbus avenue shall have been completed. The Metropolitan Railroad Company is hereby authorized to enter upon and use with its horses and cars the temporary tracks located by this order on Chandler street to the same extent that said tracks are used by the Highland Street Railway Company.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered the following as an amendment to the order:

And provided further, that in case the Metropolitan Railroad Company shall use the said tracks, hereby located, they shall pay one-half the expense of laying and removing said temporary tracks in lieu of all other compensation.

Alderman Fitzgerald said it was but a temporary track, and if it is used by any other company it should bear its proportionate share of the expense of putting the track down and putting the street in good condition afterward.

Alderman Robinson said he supposed the companies would settle that among themselves, but there was no objection to the amendment, and he would accept it.

The amendment being accepted, the order was read a second time and passed.

CHELSEA BRIDGE.

Alderman Thompson, from the Committee on Bridges, submitted an order—That the Committee on Bridges be authorized to rebuild Chelsea Bridge; the expense to be charged to the special appropriation provided for said object. Read twice and passed.

PUBLIC PARKS.

At 4½ P. M. the Board took up the special assignment, viz.: Consideration of report of Special Committee on Public Parks (City Doc. No. 44), with orders to appropriate $1,000,000, for purchase of land for that purpose; to be raised by a loan for a period not exceeding thirty years, at a rate not exceeding five per cent.

Alderman Slade—When this matter was last before the Board I asked to have it laid upon the table for two weeks, to see if the Board could not come to some agreement. In the meantime I have prepared an order which I wish to offer as a substitute, and which, it seems to me, may possibly meet the views of a majority of this Board:

Ordered, That the sum of $1,000,000 be and hereby is appropriated for the purchase of lands for public parks, said land to be purchased by the Park Commissioners upon the Back Bay and South Bay only, the plans of purchase and price of the lands to be recommended by the Park Commissioners and approved by the City Council before the completion of the purchase.

Ordered, That the Treasurer be and hereby is authorized to borrow under the direction of the Committee on Finance, the sum of $1,000,000 for the purchase of lands for park purposes, the certificates of indebtedness to run for the longest term of years allowed by law, not exceeding thirty years, and to bear interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum.

Alderman Slade—Of course I have not got the power or inclination to make anything like a speech upon this subject. The ground has been well gone over by those who favor the parks and by those who are opposed to them. For one I believe that something ought to be done, and I don't know why it may not as well be commenced this year as hereafter. It is well enough known by every person who drives or who lives within the neighborhood of the Back Bay or the South Bay that the spot near where the commissioners have located a park is now, and has been for years, a stinking nuisance. We know well enough that something has got to be done to preserve the property and protect the people who live upon the Back Bay and the South Bay. I have been frequently asked if the Board were not going to abate the nuisance upon the Back Bay. If the people are going to live there we have got to abate that nuisance, for it is intolerable during hot weather. If anybody has examined that land when he will see that it has been a stinking hole for years, and used for the drainage of the up country, and it has lodged and festered there until it has become a place which the Board of Aldermen must, sooner or later, take hold of. I think myself that we can do no better than to take hold of this property and cleanse and purify it. At the same time we will put there something that will be not only pleasant and agreeable and sweet, but will be a pleasure to all the people as a parkway. If a hundred acres, more or less, are taken there from this slough hole in the Back Bay, it will come in direct connection with the Boston Common through Commonwealth avenue, making probably in the vicinity of 200 acres of a very beautiful park and driveway located in the portion of the city where it is now and always will be needed, and which will accommodate the most of the people of the North and West ends and Charlestown. The Charles River embankment would be the best thing, but that is out of the question, as the expense would be so enormous that the people shrink from it at the present time. If we had the power and authority to do so, I do not believe we would be justified in taking hold of so expensive a project. South Boston Point is not a slough hole, and the park is not needed there at the present time. There are plenty of open lands for people for pleasure grounds there. East Boston is similarly situated. Then as for a park out in West Roxbury, there are about 500 acres proposed by the Park Commissioners. With the beautiful surroundings of the city of Boston, north, south, and west, and even east,—it is one continuous park now and will be forever,—let the city build as fast as it will, and a series of splendid parks will always adorn the suburbs. I don't believe myself that it is necessary, or ever will be, to put 500 acres in one park in any one place. Twenty-five or fifty acres for pleasure grounds and playgrounds would accommodate more people than 500 acres in one lot. Those lands out there are now garden lands under cultivation, especially those not in the hands of speculators at the present time, and they can be utilized for several years to good purpose. These lands upon the Back Bay are good for nothing to build upon, and only fit for the purpose to which we propose to put them. In the direction of Brighton the city has a magnificent park there today, in the reservoir and a driveway around it, and it is sufficient to accommodate thousands upon thousands of people advantageously, and will be for many years to come. I cannot see the necessity for purchasing the 160 acres that the commissioners propose out there. Mr. Mayor, I don't doubt that all these lands, or most of them, at least, will be taken up for park purposes, but it need not be done this year. Let that remain for those who follow us. Perhaps the next generation will take hold of it; but I don't think the people today are willing that this City Government should entail upon them so much expense as they would by going the whole figure. I have looked this matter over pretty thoroughly. I have consulted with men who don't know whether they are going to get another dollar or not, and they think something ought to be done, and the sooner the better. I think this order would give satisfaction to four-fifths of the people. We shall do great good to people living in the vicinity of the Back Bay and South Cove districts. It is being built up solid on the Back Bay and the building is slauting that way, and in all probability will go there. I believe we ought to look out for it. The longer it is put off the more destruction it will do to property and the less the city will receive in the way of taxes. I think myself that money can be well laid out upon the Back Bay, but I don't think it will take a very large amount. I would not advise the Park Commission to go to a very great expense in beautifying this land at the present time, but to sweeten up that district and make it a suitable place for playgrounds for young people, and any purpose that it might be used for in common. I understand that the Harris estate at West Roxbury and the estate adjoining it, covering a hundred acres altogether, have been offered to the city for twenty-five years at no rent at all, provided the city will take care of the taxes for twenty-five years. If it was understood that the city would remit taxes on the adjoining lands lying idle for speculation, I believe the city could get all the parks it wants for the next twenty-five years for nothing. That is my opinion, and if anybody would give it careful study I think he would find that to be a fact. With all these facts staring me in the face I am convinced that the City Council should take hold of this subject and start parks upon the Back Bay and South Bay. I think this order covers the ground very fairly—that whatever land they take and price they make the commissioners should report to this City Council, so that no advantage will be taken by anybody and nobody will be cheated. If this order is passed I think it will give satisfaction to the people, and that is where our responsibility rests. As I said in the beginning, I do not propose to make a speech, but in my humble way to give a few of my ideas.

Alderman Robinson—I regret exceedingly that an order is offered which cuts out the centre of the city. The subject has been discussed and talked over in the Board of Aldermen, so that everybody understands the whole question; but this going to the Back and South bays and discharging the centre of the city is something I cannot understand. I therefore move to insert “and for the West Roxbury Park, so called.”

Alderman Fitzgerald—I suppose there is some understanding among the members of this Board who are in favor of parks as to what is to be done this afternoon, and I presume that an order of some kind has been concocted and prepared to be passed through this Board, as the result of something in the shape of a conference. I take it for granted that something of this kind will be passed. I know there was some informal gathering of the clans here in favor of parks in certain sections, and I can imagine how, by a system of log rolling, as we call it in the Legislature—you go for my park and I will go for yours—a park scheme can go through. I understand that was why the order was prepared originally in the shape of an omnibus bill, to please everybody from Charlestown to Dorchester, South Boston included. But we now have settled down to three parks; the Jamaica Pond park must wait a little while longer, and Charlestown has been left completely out in the cold, as the commissioners say there is no place there for a park; East Boston I do not hear mentioned at all, and South Boston is well enough—it has the Point and a bath-house for men and women, and can get along some time longer. But the Back and South bays must be taken care of. Now, sir, I venture to say that if we pass an order about Back Bay you would hear no more about parks. I hope that every friend of parks, who wants an arboretum around the city of Boston, will not vote for the Back Bay park, because there will be no more demand for a park when it is established, or, rather, when the land is sold, for that will be an end of the park agitation. Now the proposition is that we should have these three parks. Why not introduce an order in addition, or increase the sum proposed to be appropriated? I see by the report of the commissioners, who are very modest in their estimates, that the price of the land for the West Roxbury park alone will be nearly $1,300,000 for 485 acres, and for the Back Bay park $927,000. The South Bay park will cost something in the neighborhood of $395,000—nearly $400,000. Thirteen hundred thousand, seven hundred thousand and four hundred thousand make nearly $2,500,000. If we are to have these parks, why not have an order introduced that the Treasurer be allowed to issue scrip and sell the notes of the city of Boston to the amount of $2,500,000, payable, as they say, in not more than thirty years? Why not put it as it really must be—not more than ten years? Why put it at thirty years, when we cannot sell bonds for park purposes for more than ten years? There is n't a member of this Board but knows we cannot issue scrip longer than ten years for the improvement of parks; and the only thing for which you can issue scrip for thirty years is water. Sewer bonds can be issued for twenty years, and this kind of scrip must be not longer than ten years. To be sure, they tried, or somebody did, I don't know who to get a bill through the Legislature allowing the city to issue park bonds for thirty years, but failed. Now, why not put in an order that the Treasurer be authorized to issue scrip for three millions of dollars, to buy lands for park purposes, for a period not exceeding ten years, because that is the longest period allowed by law? Why not put in “not exceeding 300 years.” We have just as much right to issue 300-year scrip as we have to issue thirty-year scrip. We can only issue a ten-year loan. I agree with the Alderman that of all the places in the city of Boston, West Roxbury is the only place where a park ought to be located. Gentlemen who favor taking land on the Back and South Bay for park purposes, and no other, certainly cannot have the idea of what parks mean for the amusement and recreation of the public; and they leave out the great only natural, great suburban park we have in Boston, and that is the West Roxbury park. Now, the argument used is that there are fetid odors arising from the Back Bay. Here is the report of the Committee on Sewers, who say that $75,000 will remove all those odors, until the completion of the intercepting sewer. I should be in favor of that, and I think the $75,000 will be well spent, if it will destroy the use of the grand argument for spending four or five millions of dollars on the Back Bay. The cause of the nuisance on the Back Bay is not the old matter that is lying there in the sun; but it is the new matter that is continually oozing out for exposure to the sun and air, and after six or seven days it is not poisonous. It is only the new matter that accumulates that is poisonous and obnoxious to the people around it. When the gasy matter has been extracted from it in the course of five or six days, it is not poisonous. It may be offensive to the eye, but it is not deleterious to health. It is the new matter that is deleterious, and $75,000 will obviate all that and destroy that nuisance which is interfering with the health of the inhabitants in that district. I should be in favor of spending that amount down on the Back Bay in order to obviate that. The gentleman well says that the people cannot afford to bear this great burden at the present time. If they can afford to bear one million dollars, I say the ten who are in favor of parks cannot do better than locate one in West Roxbury, which is a park today. The Austin Farm, which was purchased at great expense, and Forest Hills Cemetery, are close to it, and there you would have a park second to none in the United States. Nature has made a park of that. Talking about the poverty of the taxpayers of the city of Boston, I have a few facts which speak for themselves. I find from the Registry of Deeds that from 1843 to 1868 inclusive the number of tax deeds recorded in those twenty-five years was 3350; from 1869 to 1873, inclusive, the number was 1674; in the years 1874 and 1875 the number was 4169, or an average of 2000 for each of these two years. In 1876 alone the number of tax deeds recorded was 3171, representing the sales of real estate for non-payment of taxes—so that last year there were as many tax deeds recorded, lacking 380, as in the whole twenty-five years from 1843 to 1869. That, sir, speaks volumes in itself for the capacity of the taxpayers of the city of Boston to meet the debts which the city has been incurring during the past few years. Now, this Government came in with a great flourish of trumpets as a Government of retrenchment, that was to cut down everything. We have reduced salaries, from the City Clerk down. We did it because the times demand it and people expected it, and because the taxpayers were poor. We inaugurated this City Government with a determination that, so far as we could, the taxes of the city of Boston, instead of being raised, would be lowered at the end of this administration; that what was not absolutely necessary to be done should not be done, and only a positive necessity would compel the city government to enter into any scheme that would tend to raise the tax levy next year or any other year. Our taxes have increased enormously—altogether out of proportion to the increase of population. I see in some of the papers, but one city in the Union can boast a heavier tax than the city of Boston in proportion to population; whether it is so or not I don't know; it is paraded in the papers as being so. But I hold that it is poor economy and retrenchment to cut down the salaries of our officials eighty or ninety or a hundred thousand dollars, and enter into a grand scheme for which there is no necessity. If there is no necessity for the West Roxbury Park for years to come, then I say, with ten times more force, that there is no necessity for filling up the Back and South Bay. If a park be needed for the people of Boston; if the whole people of Boston need recreation; if we need some place where the hard-working man should recreate his weary brain, in the language of the Alderman opposite, then I say the West Roxbury park is the place to invite him to go to. If there be any need of inviting the inhabitants of Boston out to that grand suburban park—which has no equal in the United States—I say there is no need of filling up the Back and South Bay for recreating the people. If it be that the health of the inhabitants suffers for the lack of sewerage, then $75,000 will be all that is needed to protect them until the completion of the great sewer. I hope that neither the order as it is, nor the original order, will pass this Board.

Alderman Robinson—My object in offering the amendment has been pretty nearly described by the Alderman who has just spoken. South Bay is now one sheet of water. If I understand the locality aright, it is where the dirt was taken out and now forms the ground on which the United States Hotel and the Boston & Albany Depot now stand; and I have never heard about its being specially unhealthy about that particular spot. I have had many people in South Boston tell me they did not need a park there; that they got along very well with Independence square and the salt water at the Point. The question in regard to removing the smells from the Back Bay is one of sewerage and not of parks. The questions of sewerage and parks have had to be taken into consideration by every city of any considerable magnitude almost from time immemorial. This West Roxbury Park could have been purchased for about $1000 an acre. It is a park of itself. Now, I think there is sufficient rock and stone there; and next winter if we could have men go there we could get out stone enough for the roads, and give employment to a hundred men. It seems to me it will not be necessary to enclose that park with a fence; but we can lease the greater part of it to the present owners, and that would probably return some portion of the money necessary to expend in the purchase. I did not propose and do not now intend to make a speech on parks; but when I see a measure to discard the only place that is already a park, and which, with its 485 acres, in connection with the Austin Farm and Forest Hills Cemetery—a better park cannot be found upon the face of the earth—and that was put aside for the sink spot upon the Back Bay—which, as I said, is more in the nature of drainage than parks—then I offered that amendment to the order.

Alderman O'Brien—I shall vote with pleasure for the amendment of the Alderman from Dorchester. I should have voted with pleasure for the order offered by the Alderman opposite [Alderman Slade] because I believe it is time to make a beginning, and it makes very little difference where we begin if we only make a beginning. In all the line of parks, this appears to me the most proper place to make the beginning. The Alderman on my left [Alderman Fitzgerald] of course opposes parks in any shape. When the whole scheme was proposed to this Board he denounced it as a measure beyond the reach of the citizens of Boston. When but a small portion of the scheme is presented to the Board he denounces it as a land speculation of the people on the Back Bay. Well, Mr. Mayor, I have heard that talk before. It always comes up in this hall when the park question is considered. Are the thousands of petitioners who have asked for this scheme residents of the Back Bay? Are the thousands and thousands of citizens who have met in Faneuil Hall and advocated this measure residents of the Back Bay? Have the Water Power Company and the people of the Back Bay such potent influence on our citizens that they can twist them to advocate anything they please? The whole thing, Mr. Mayor, is a farce. It is merely a denunciation, and there is no reason for it. The Alderman speaks in glowing language of the park located five or six miles from this spot, and I cannot help calling the attention of the Board again to what he said two years ago in relation to this matter:

“Just fancy a poor man upon the South Cove, after his work is done, taking his children forth on a summer evening, marching to Corey's Hill when the thermometer is up to 90°; just imagine these people of South Boston and the North End going forth on a summer's evening to enjoy the benefits of the park which Boston, in its wisdom and philanthropy, has furnished for the laboring classes. It is all well, sir, to put it down upon paper; but you will find that the public parks established upon that grand plan will not be so much benefit to the people whom you propose to benefit, as it will to those who can ride in carriages. If I am rightly informed, the parks of London are scattered through an immense city, and not in the suburbs where you have to ride five or six miles to reach them. Is not that so?”

Well, now, I have no doubt the gentleman opposes the park scheme today precisely on the same principle that he opposed it two years ago; and that is all it amounts to. Certainly the reason for forcing these poor people from the South End and South Boston to go five or six miles to this beautiful park in the suburbs exists as much today as it did two years ago. As for any understanding in relation to this matter, we have had none. There was an informal meeting of gentlemen who were thought to be favorably disposed toward making a commencement; but after a session of about an hour we could not agree upon any particular plan. I think we ought to agree. If I read this Board of Aldermen aright every man in it is in favor of parks. There are only two men in this Board who are opposing the commencement of the work of parks at the present time. There are five men in this Board who are willing to make a beginning upon a small scale. There are five men in this Board who favor the entire plan, and I think, Mr. Mayor, that it would be very unwise for us, who are generally largely in favor of parks, to allow this opportunity to pass without inaugurating the system. If we have ten men here who are in favor of parks, who are willing to vote for a beginning, why should not we commence? I shall therefore cheerfully vote for the amendment offered by the Alderman from Dorchester; if that is defeated, I shall vote for the order offered by the Alderman opposite, and I hope we shall come to a vote today, and do something.

Alderman Fitzgerald—This is the second time my friend on the right has referred to my speech. I am glad that it has such an attraction for him; but I should advise him not to repeat a good thing too often. It might spoil. As I said before, I am opposed to any parks at all.

Alderman O'Brien—Would n't you vote for the West Roxbury park?

Alderman Fitzgerald—I will not. I said decidedly I should not vote for any parks. I said I hoped the whole thing would be defeated, and I think I expressed myself decidedly upon that point, because I believe that this is not the time and this is not the year. If I felt that the city of Boston could not make as good a bargain next year, or the year after, as it can now for any one of these parks, I should not hesitate to vote for it. If I felt that the city of Boston would not be as liable two, three or four years from now to make the same kind of a beginning, I should not hesitate. But, sir, I feel that the citizens of Boston can afford to wait, and that the land can afford to wait, and that we can buy as cheaply three years from now as we can today. If the city of Boston will be as liable—that is if the rose-colored tints which some of the aldermen have given of the commerce of Boston turn out to be true; if we make any perceptible progression after the panic ceases and business revives, so that the laborers have work and everybody is satisfied; if everything goes on as well as they picture it—why, of course, we can afford to begin this grand system of parks. If our citizens can ferry their way out, as some of the Aldermen say, we can begin. But I feel that real estate will be cheaper next year than it is this year, as it is cheaper this year than it was last year, and as it was cheaper last year than the year before; and that those people will be only too glad to sell their land to us on the Back Bay, and West Roxbury, and everywhere. They will only be too glad to sell it to us. That is why I am opposed to beginning anything this year. I feel that the taxpayers cannot afford to enter upon this grand scheme. If I take the same view that some gentlemen do, and if ten men here are in favor of parks, why not borrow ten millions of dollars at once? Why not take it by piecemeal? Why not take them all and issue a five or ten million loan? According to your calculation, it will be only a small amount of that. I cannot see it. And I do say, and I repeat it here, that all the lobbying that has been behind this question has come from the Back Bay; that the men who were behind the Faneuil Hall meeting were in the interest of the Back Bay, and I know it. I speak what I know. That meeting was got up, managed and put through, and the speakers were got, and the vice presidents and all were got up by men in the interest of this Back Bay park, and by men who own land on the Back Bay. That is not an assertion, but it is what I know to be true. I know that members of this Board are honestly in favor of it. I know that my friend, Alderman O'Brien, is strongly in favor of parks, and has been since he became a member of this Board. The Alderman opposite [Alderman Clark] makes no bones at all, and has always been in favor of parks. I speak of the men outside of this Board, who worked those meetings. I say I know the true inwardness of those meetings. I know who got the speakers, because some conversation was had with myself about being one of the speakers at the Faneuil Hall meeting. I know all about it. It is a mere difference of opinion as to when we should begin this park scheme. I say that when real estate is idle and unproductive because people cannot pay their taxes and are obliged to let it go without being able to pay $75 taxes, and it is sold by the city of Boston to provide a revenue for carrying on this Government—I say when that occurs, it is time to pause before going into any grand scheme of speculation.

Alderman Wilder—I merely wish to say that I believe it is time to stop advertising in the Board of Aldermen the poverty and decay of the city of Boston. The statistics of our trade, the condition of our citizens, although laboring under the general depression of business, do not warrant our advertising to the world these things as facts from official sources which are not facts. We are not in that distressed and poverty-stricken condition that gentlemen argue here in order to carry their points; and the people know it. I am quite satisfied myself to vote for the amendment of the gentleman, although I was struck two weeks ago with the remarks of the gentleman on my right [Alderman Burnham] as he pointed out the necessity of something being done in these two points, when he said "the must be stamped" upon those two points; it struck me as the most potent argument that had fallen from any man's lips at this Board. I am more satisfied with this last order, for myself, than I was with the order of the Park Committee. This order proposes to appropriate a million of dollars; and how? It instructs the Park Commissioners, who have so long labored in this work, to come back here to the City Council with a proposition. They have selected certain localities. The lines are defined. They will come back here with certain pieces of land, at a certain price, and then it will be our province to act upon it. No man, I believe, can by any possibility say that the citizens of Boston are not fully and entirely guarded in any appropriation that we make by the passage of that order; because not one dollar of the money can be expended, not a single purchase can be consummated, until every piece of land is defined and its price agreed upon satisfactorily to this City Council. Therefore I shall with pleasure vote for the amendment offered, although I am free to say that just so far as I intended to go and believe I should go this year was sustained by my colleague from South Boston in the proposition he made two weeks since.

Alderman Slade—I was going to make some remarks rather in the direction of those which the Alderman has just made; and that is this eternal sickly talk about the poverty of the city of Boston. If real estate is going down lower next year than it is, and lower the year after than then, and three years after it will be lower than it will be two years from now, then where are all these poor people, that gentlemen speak so flippantly about in this Board, going to? If it is true, every piece of property in the city of Boston will have to be sold for the taxes. But it is not true. I don't believe in this talk about the taxes of the city of Boston being so much greater than anywhere else in the world. I own real estate in New Hampshire that is taxed double what it would be here in Boston. I believe that taxes are as low in Boston as they are anywhere. I believe that the business of the city of Boston has been carried on in such an economical manner that we are really behind the times. What is the occasion of all these people being out of employment? We are not trying to do anything; everybody is lying back upon his oars and saying, I have got no money, and I am not going to try to do anything. The city of Boston is not so poor, and the people are not so poor. Every dollar's worth of property that was here five years ago is here today. It has not been destroyed, and it is of value. As I said before, I am sick of this talk of poverty. When I came to Boston, thirty years ago, I travelled all over the city three months trying to get a man to employ me for my board. I thought it hard; but it has been just as bad since; except just after the war, when everybody had got money. Many people fail nowadays because it is fashionable. People who have not saved anything out of the prosperous times were brought up with a round turn; but it is coming around all right after awhile. I am sick of this talk about poverty. It will destroy any man's business if he keeps telling about his being poor and unable to earn anything; and such a man is going to fail if he lives. I, for one, being a servant of the city of Boston, am not going to stand up here and talk in that direction.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I am sorry the gentleman is sick. If I state facts it is not my fault. I am sorry he is changing his mind about this park question. Mr. Mayor, I do not believe that the City Council of Boston should act in the manner in which an individual does who feels, who knows himself that he is almost bankrupt, and yet drives a coach and four, puts the best side toward, and runs into expense for the sake of obtaining credit and deceiving the public, and trying to deceive himself. I believe that the truth should be told about the city of Boston as well as about anybody else. I am not afraid to stand up here and state facts; and if people are sick it is not my fault; it is the fault of the facts before me. I stated that the number of tax deeds given for estates which the city of Boston sold for taxes last year was equal to the aggregate number of estates sold for twenty-five years, from 1843 to 1868. That is a fact. If any gentleman is sick because he hears it, why, then it is not my fault. When I first spoke on this subject I stated that the debt of the city was $44,000,000; if that makes people sick it is not my fault. I spoke about the empty houses; and the Alderman opposite referred to them; if that makes people sick, it is not my fault. I came here to speak what I think to be true, and I am not afraid to state it in any place or time. If gentlemen are sick, I am not to blame. If I present facts which cannot be contradicted, gentlemen have a right to put a rose color upon it. I am not to blame if they are sick; but the facts are to blame.

Alderman O'Brien—The population of the city of Boston in 1840 was 120,000. For some years after 1840, the population did not increase so very rapidly. But the gentleman winds up his comparison with 1868. Why did not he give us a complete and full comparison? Why does he leave out from 1868 to 1877?

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have them here.

Alderman O'Brien—Don't any one know it takes more houses to accommodate 350,000 inhabitants than it does 120,000; and that the sales for taxes must of necessity be more today than they were ten or twenty or twenty-five years ago? The larger the number of your houses, the larger will be the number of sales for taxes. I believe that the city of Boston has collected all her taxes today within some $400,000. I read in one of the New York papers, a week or two ago, that the collector of that city said there were over $10,000,000 due the city of New York for taxes, and that he was not going to press the citizens of New York for it, because business was a little depressed and he did not like to hurry them. He said the taxable property of the city of New York was good for ten times the $10,000,000 for which it was taxed, and he would deal with them liberally. In the city of Boston we act differently. If a man don't pay his taxes within a limited time, we sell his property; and I have sometimes thought it was a wrong principle to act upon. I believe that the city of Boston, instead of asking these tax-title buyers to come up and interfere between the poor man and the city of Boston, to buy his little estate; and charge him ten per cent. and several sums of money for other purposes, that it would be far better if the city of Boston took the risk and made that little estate pay its taxes, just as they do in New York, when the owner feels that he cannot pay them. That is what I believe ought to be done. These tax-title buyers, who come up here and stand between the poor man and the city of Boston, and get their ten per cent., are the sharks that I despise. If we dealt more liberally with our citizens, I think we would be far better off today.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I agree with the Alderman, that if we could find some means to carry on the city of Boston when the citizens refuse to pay their taxes, to allow them five or six years to run, it would be an admirable and an excellent thing. But how can we do it? The interest on parks must be paid; the park debt must be paid, and the interest on other debts—$44,000,000—must be paid. If John Jones owes taxes, and comes to the Collector and says he would be much obliged if he would let him go for a year or two, and John Smith comes and says he will be much obliged if he will let him go a year or two, where would our laborers get their pay? Where would we go? There is no other way to keep the Government moving but to sell the property outright and take the amount of the taxes. The law is more humane; it gives the owner the right to redeem. It was only the necessities of the case that caused the passage of this act. Now, the Alderman spoke about the tax titles, and asked why I did not give the other years. I gave the number for twenty-five years prior to 1868; and $120,000 multiplied by 25 would be equal to the taxes which three millions would pay in one year; and because they did not pay, these 3350 tax deeds were given by the city of Boston; while in 1876, when the population of Boston was 340,000, or ten times less than 3,000,000, the tax deeds given by the city were 3171, or nearly equal to that amount. I gave the whole number of tax titles from 1843.

Alderman O'Brien—What was the number in 1840?

Alderman Fitzgerald—I did not go back as far as that. I give the number for twenty-five years; 3350, and the number for last year was 3171. The number for twenty-five years would be equal to the taxes which three millions of people in the city of Boston would pay in one year; $120,000 a year for twenty-five years would be precisely the same as $3,000,000 for one year. Last year the deeds for tax titles recorded were 3171. Does not that speak volumes for the ability of the citizens of Boston to meet their taxes with diligence, even with these things pressing them in the face? If there is anything which tends to show the depressed condition of the people it is the manner in which the Alderman denounces those little men who fleece the citizens of Boston by handing into the Collector's office the money which the property owners cannot pay.

Alderman Clark—The taxes of the city of Boston have never been paid with more promptness than during the past year.

Alderman Fitzgerald—You mean that the revenue from taxes has been paid in.

Alderman Clark—I mean taxes have been paid by the people themselves into the city treasury with as much promptness as within the past twenty-five years. A very large amount of property was created by this tremendous real-estate excitement in the suburbs of the city, and which has been sold, and added immensely to the number of sales to satisfy taxes; but eighty per cent. of those sales have been made of land not in the heart of the city, but in the annexed territory. It was bought and built upon for speculative purposes, and in that way an immense number of tax totals has been run up. But the property within the limits of the city of Boston—you will find there has hardly been a sale where property has passed out of the owner's hands on account of the taxes not having been paid. That, I venture to say, has been the case during the last three years.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Does the Alderman state that as an opinion or a simple assertion, or does he know it to be so?

Alderman Clark—I speak it as an opinion backed up by a pretty strong personal knowledge. Now, Mr. Mayor, I do not propose to say but a very few words upon this subject of parks. I have had my say upon the subject; my views in regard to parks are well understood by the members of this Board and the citizens of Boston generally. I am in favor of the scheme of parks recommended by the commissioners, and if I can obtain that, I am willing to commence and take them as far as I can. I believe that the citizens of Boston demand that this Government should commence a system of public parks. We cannot ignore the fact, Mr. Mayor, that eighty per cent. of the large taxpaying citizens of Boston are tremendously in earnest in regard to this measure; that they have petitioned this Government for parks, and that they expect this Government to take an initiative measure this year in regard to the establishment of public parks. The entire medical faculty of Boston have recommended that something be done to improve the sanitary condition of the Back Bay and the South Bay. You may do what you choose to take sewage from there. You may expend your $75,000, but what do you get? You still have a thousand acres of land that are a nuisance, and the gases arising from that locality render it exceedingly unhealthy in any part of that territory. It is a pest hole, and will continue to remain so until something is done to improve it. This sewer will carry the matter a little farther out in the Charles River; it will do nothing more, nothing less. Now, what is the use of spending $4,000,000 to build an intercepting sewer? for all that is necessary is to get this matter into Charles River. You can do that; you are doing it today. All the sewage of the city of Boston goes into the Charles River, or is landed on the flats of the Back Bay on Beacon street. It is proposed to carry all this matter out into tide water, where it will go off. By taking this matter off the flats you do not get rid of the nuisance, and if you get rid of the nuisance you have still got five or six hundred acres of flats there which you cannot get rid of until the territory is treated precisely the same as the territory below Charles street and the line between West Chester park, now extended, which has been filled up with good clean earth; and the taking out of this sewage matter which comes down from Roxbury will not remedy the evil. You have got five hundred or a thousand acres which will be a nuisance, and will remain a nuisance so long as they are in a filthy condition. I am in favor of this entire system of parks, and I shall vote for the amendment of Alderman Robinson, or I will vote for the original order; and I will vote for any order that will carry with it eight votes of this Board of Aldermen, because it is necessary to have eight votes in order to make this appropriation. Now, the Alderman asks why not put in the whole amount? No one is fool enough to imagine that this system of parks is going to cost only a million of dollars. We do not want a million of dollars this year, and I do not believe in expending a dollar until we get the right to make a loan for thirty years to cover this expenditure. If we had gone to work earlier in the year we would have got that right this year. That is why we asked for only a million of dollars; it is simply because we don't want it. I doubt whether they will need a million dollars this year. It has got to pass both branches of the City Government, and if it passes we have got to go to the Legislature to get authority to make a loan for thirty years.

It is constantly charged by the opponents of parks that this is entirely a scheme for land speculation. Every man, woman and child, and all the physicians—commencing with Dr. Edward H. Clarke, who has given the subject more study than almost any other man in the United States, and is backed by all of the most eminent physicians of Boston, who say that this improvement is absolutely necessary in order to improve the sanitary condition of the city—are charged with being land speculators, because they come here and recommend that the city of Boston take the initiative toward the improvement of this property. Then, again, it is charged that all the mercantile firms are land speculators, solely interested in selling a few thousand feet of land on the Back Bay. It is charged that the meeting in Faneuil Hall was got up by land speculators.

Alderman Thompson—The meeting on the 6th of June?

Alderman Clark—Not the 6th of June meeting, but the meeting of two years ago. If I remember, that was a pretty respectable body of men (I was not present). It was addressed by such men as Joseph S. Ropes who lives at West Roxbury and possibly may own a dwelling house. It was addressed by Rev. Mr. Bodfish, and, possibly, he is a land speculator; he is a most eloquent speaker. I have heard him one or two times since, and I don't believe he is a land speculator, or will be benefited by laying out a park on the Back Bay or anywhere else. Now, Mr. Mayor, the city has a very large interest in at least commencing the improvement of the sanitary condition of the city of Boston. We have it from the best medical and engineering sources in the country that the sanitary condition of the city cannot be improved as long as we are surrounded with thousands of acres of low marsh territory; and that the best way to improve the sanitary condition of the city is to begin the improvement of these marshy districts. Therefore, I am in favor of taking one hundred acres, more or less, on the Back Bay, as an initiative step in the improvement of that territory, which is a public nuisance, and which has depreciated all the property lying within half a mile of that district faster than the dull times. Not only the Back Bay, but the South End is injured by the stenches that arise from this 500 acres of low marsh land. This constant charge that the entire population of Boston are interested in land speculation, I think, is about played out; and, I hope that before the Alderman makes another speech upon that topic he will study carefully the names of the people who have signed the petitions for public parks. If it were necessary I could call no less than a hundred names of the best taxpayers who have been to me and expressed themselves in favor of making a commencement toward public parks. I must say that a great many are in favor of this inner system on the Back and South bays, inasmuch as the Charles River embankment is out of the question at the present time. They look upon it in a sanitary light and for the improvement of the sanitary condition of the city, and I believe that if the city begins its real estate will improve there, and instead of the pestilential odors, we shall have in the vicinity of Newbury street what we have on Commonwealth avenue and the Public Garden. I am strongly in favor of the order introduced by Alderman Slade, although I had not the slightest idea that he proposed to offer it, until a few minutes before the meeting of the Board this afternoon. It will be noticed that the Back Bay and South Bay are intimately connected. The Back Bay borders upon West Chester park street; Swett street is a continuation of West Chester park street, and the South Bay comes and borders upon Swett street; so that these two large parks will be connected by those magnificent avenues, West Chester Park street extended and Swett street; and it will accommodate those classes of people that the Alderman [Alderman Fitzgerald] was so anxious about a few years ago. As he says, after they get through a day's labor they can go out on the Back Bay, or South Bay, and not be obliged to climb Corey's Hill, or any other hill, to enjoy the breezes of the evening. I am afraid the Alderman has not been across the Common or Public Garden this year. I doubt very much whether there are not members of this Board who have not been upon the Common or Public Garden this year. If he had been out there, especially on Sunday afternoons, he would have seen the class of people who do not want to take their little ones and climb to the top of Corey's Hill, or any other hill; but they come from the North, South and West ends, and enjoy the Public Garden and Common. If he had seen them he would come to the conclusion that the Common and Public Garden have not been established in vain. The rose-colored tints in which I am credited with having portrayed so vividly were statistics taken from the commercial records of the principal commercial paper in the city. I took it from the Commercial Bulletin, which is a reliable sheet. I presume that the Boston Post or Advertiser had the same. During the previous meeting, when I made some remarks upon this subject, I stated some facts showing the increased commercial prosperity of the city. I take it that the increased exports and imports are an index that business is reviving.

Those were actual facts, and I understand that the increase has gone on in an increased ratio. When the Alderman goes back to the primitive days of the city of Boston, forty or fifty years ago, I wish he would give us an account of the amount of business done in the city of Boston then, the amount of sales of some of the dry-goods and grocery houses of forty years ago, and show us what the business of Boston was in those primitive days. I profess to be somewhat progressive, and hope to see the city of Boston increase from year to year as it has increased from year to year. I shall vote for the amendment to the order and keep voting until I see something pass that will look to an establishment of parks. I had prepared a substitute which I proposed to offer myself if everything else failed; but I believe this one is better.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I am surprised, if I am the only opponent of parks here, that the friends of the park measure should think it worth while to answer that argument which I brought forward, and are so concerned about it. In answer to the gentleman opposite about the land speculators, and Mr. Ropes and Mr. Bodfish and other merchants of Boston being called land speculators, I did not mean any such thing. Have you ever seen the Punch and Judy show? The little people who look on think it is Punch and Judy who are talking. They make all kinds of noises and play their parts admirably, and people think it is Punch and Judy. Now, in the park matter, it is not the man who is talking, but the people behind. Those gentlemen who speak bear the same relation that Punch and Judy do to the fellow behind who is pulling all the strings. That is the idea I intended to convey in connection with the park question; and I cannot better illustrate it than in that way. I know there are a great many persons who favor parks; but I said that the meeting was particularly engineered by a certain class of men. I know that the gentlemen who sat upon the platform were honestly in favor of parks; and the men who spoke were. I do not know whether those who gathered there were in favor of parks or not. They want to hear the speakers, Mr. Ropes, Mr. Bodfish and others; if it was upon any other question, if it was upon the Turkish war, they would come just the same, because I believe Faneuil Hall will always be filled if people speak there. The size of the meeting is no indication. I simply rose to vindicate myself against charges of that kind, because I did not intend to say that those gentlemen were simply speculators.

Alderman O'Brien—Merely a word or two. The gentleman stands up here in the interest of the taxpayers, solitary and alone, and opposes parks. But is it because he believes it is for the interest of our taxpayers? I regret to say that he stands up here solitary and alone, while ninety per cent. of the taxpayers of Boston have spoken for parks in Faneuil Hall; ninety per cent. of the taxpayers of Boston have petitioned for parks; and during the four or five weeks that this subject has been before us, has he heard of a single remonstrance from the taxpayers of Boston against the action of this Board in favor of a park scheme? I am sorry that the men whom he represents do not come here with their remonstrances, and did not hold public indignation meetings and support him, standing solitary and alone as he does, advocating only the Narrow Gauge or the Lynn Railroad.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I always remarked, sir, that wherever a cause is not a good one, wherever a cause cannot be based upon its merits, it has been my experience in the Legislature and elsewhere, that piles of petitions, mountains high, came in in favor of it; and that is the case more especially where any speculation is underneath the whole of it; there you will find plenty of petitioners, plenty of force and plenty of enthusiasm, in favor of it. All firmly believe that if the park question could be voted by the citizens of Boston today it would be defeated overwhelmingly, and instead of three thousand votes it would receive less than it did before, when it hardly got half that number. Three thousand out of 50,000 anxious for parks! With all their engineering, with all their working, that those men who came up on that day only 3000 voted for it. In that bright June weather only 3000 friends of parks had the nerve to come up. I firmly believe it would be refused today, and instead of 3000 the vote would be 1000. If, with all their interest and with so much hard work, they could not accomplish more than 3500 votes last June, twelve months ago, it seems to me that the ninety per cent. of the tax payers of Boston must have been away.

Alderman Slade—Being one of the 3500 or 3700, all I have to say is that they were about 1500 majority, and the 50,000 or 60,000 others who did not come at all gave their consent by silence.

Alderman Clark—That is pretty effectually answered; better than I could have done it myself, although I rose proposing to do it. I would state that the number who voted upon that occasion was the same as when we were in danger of having Chelsea thrust upon our hands; so the people took as much interest, to say the least, in the park question as they did when they were in danger of having Chelsea annexed to the city of Boston. Now, the Alderman said that if we produced such eminent speakers upon any occasion, it does not matter what, they will fill Faneuil Hall to overflowing. Now, Mr. Mayor, I pretend to say that is not so. I have known times when very able Republican speakers got together and did not fill the house. Then, again, I have known eloquent speakers to come to Faneuil Hall without filling it, and I doubt very much if those same gentlemen had been called upon to address a Democratic meeting whether they would have filled it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is never empty on such occasions.

Alderman Clark—I recollect when gentlemen not particularly celebrated for eloquence met there to speak on parks, without being advertised to any extent, and the hall was overflowing with taxpayers of the city of Boston. It shows the great interest taken in this question; that the people are in earnest about it, and that they do not mean to let it rest until a system of parks is commenced.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I should like to ask the Alderman if the silence of the 50,000 who did not vote against the annexation of Chelsea gave their consent, and whether he would argue upon the same premises.

Alderman Thompson—I am not in favor of the order as presented to the Board. I am in favor of a park on the Back Bay, provided it can be obtained at a proper price. But, sir, judging from the remarks made here, we would suppose that the entire city of Boston is in favor of this scheme of parks as presented by the commissioners. I maintain that there has been a great change in the minds of the citizens since the vote was taken; and I believe, with the Alderman opposite, that the facts he presented are the cause of the change. I don't believe a majority of the citizens of Boston favor parks, because they cannot pay the interest on their mortgages, and the savings banks have to take the property. The Alderman who spoke a few moments ago [Alderman O'Brien], wondered why there was no opposition to parks. I want to remind him that today a most respectable citizen went to him and remonstrated against parks. The Alderman forgot that when he spoke; and if he desires any more information in that line, it is perfectly easy to obtain it. Now, sir, this question has been presented wrong end foremost from beginning to end. The committee came to the Board of Aldermen with an order appropriating $1,000,000 for the Park Commissioners to spend wherever they please, and commit the city to this entire scheme. Now, sir, that was absurd from the commencement. I believe that the Board of Aldermen are intelligent gentlemen and understand a proposition of that kind. I believe that the City Council, as the guardians of the city treasury, should have the appropriation of that money, and be held accountable for its expenditure by the citizens. I believe that the gentlemen composing the Park Commission are as satisfactory as any commission can be. I do not think three more acceptable gentlemen can be found in the city of Boston who are more worthy of confidence than those gentlemen are. But I do not propose to place this million of dollars in the hands of those gentlemen that propose to put it into the hands of the Park Commissioners. Does any one here know who will constitute this commission six or eight months from this time? It is the Park Commission which is to spend this money. I would not have a single dollar spent for parks until I knew the quantity of land to be purchased and the price to be paid for it; and I rose for the purpose of offering an amendment to the order by inserting in the last line "by a two-thirds vote of the City Council"—that no money shall be spent except by vote of two-thirds of each branch of the City Council.

Alderman O'Brien—When I alluded to remonstrants I spoke of public remonstrants. I know I was introduced to a well-known Boston citizen today by the Alderman from Charlestown. He introduced me to him because he desired to throw cold water on my park enthusiasm. He was a gentleman who has grown up here in Boston, has retired from business, and is one of the most illustrious examples of the wealth and prosperity of Boston. Every year of his life he has been richer and better off than he was the year before, and he comes up here a millionaire in his old age and joins that army of croakers that are so numerous today, looking ahead and thinking that nothing but ruin and disaster to the prosperity and business of Boston; that is the fact, Mr. Mayor, a leading distinguished millionaire, who has been wealthier every day of his life since he has lived in Boston, comes up here and says that if we establish parks it will ruin our city. I remember that gentleman when he was in business years ago; and when the crops in the West and the crops in the South looked so well as they do today, calculated upon doing fifty per cent. more business that year than he did the year before. He knew that when they had good crops West and good crops South, and good crops all over the country, his business would be prosperous; and that was the way he conducted business when he was in business years ago. Well, now we have had a signal example of the turn in business matters here in this city within a week. An advertisement in the Boston papers calls together business men from every section of the country—from the West and the South and the Southwest and the States of the Pacific. And what did they come here for? Why, they came here to attend a public auction sale of boots and shoes, not any of your ten or fifteen thousand dollar sales, but a sale amounting to two million and a half of dollars. And what was the result? Why, if they had offered $5,000,000 worth at that sale every bale and every package of it would have been purchased, and the prices paid for those goods were perfectly satisfactory, more than satisfactory to the men who owned the property. Well now, what is the use of standing up here and joining, as I said, that great army of croakers that have been so numerous here for some year or two past? I believe with the Alderman opposite that it is time this croaking should stop.

At the request of Alderman Wilder, the Mayor read the amendment offered by Alderman Thompson.

Alderman Wilder—I was quite confident that the Alderman had failed to read the original order, or had quite misunderstood its character. If I understand what that order means, no purchase can be completed, no money paid, until after the gentleman has by his vote approved of the price and the purchase. He said he would not vote for this order because he wanted to cover that ground. It does cover it. And then the gentleman has seen fit to offer an amendment, which I hope will not pass. In the first place it is well known that no money can be appropriated except by a two-thirds vote; and when men do something to forward an object or purpose, after having well considered and done it once, they expect that that something is concluded and completed. Now, I can quite conceive, Mr. Mayor, that it would be beyond the power or possibility of any commission or anybody else to purchase any particular parcel of land, that the final defeat of its purchase might not be accomplished; at least it would be jeopardized by this unusual manner of doing things, coming back to a two-thirds vote again on a particular thing after the usual two-thirds vote had been passed for the appropriation. It is very easy to see the purpose of the order. The gentleman is opposed honestly and conscientiously—perhaps it is all right—but he is opposed to doing anything in this direction this year. There is another gentleman in this Board who is entirely opposed to doing anything this year, or perhaps ever; he stands right up and tells us so in language that we cannot misunderstand. He does not stand up here and say he is in favor of parks, and then construct so flimsy a bridge to retreat over. He means just what he says, and I respect him as such a man. I have the highest respect for the intelligence, and bow with deference to the legislative experience, of the gentleman from the Charlestown District, but he knows perfectly well what his amendment means. It means defeat by indirection; and he underrates the experience and intelligence, I believe, of any gentleman at this board if he does not know that they understood it just as well as he does. I hope the amendment offered by the gentleman from Charlestown will not be adopted.

Alderman Thompson—I appear here this afternoon free and untrammelled, and speak that which I believe is in the interest of the city of Boston. I have no pecuniary interest in lands anywhere to bias my judgment. I have only to do that which I believe to be for the interest of the entire city. I am not interested pecuniarily, save what I am assessed for taxes, not holding land in any direction—and that, I am sorry to say, all members of this Board in favor of parks cannot say. Now, sir, in regard to my position on the park question, I stated I was in favor of a park at the Back Bay, provided the city could come into possession of the property or of the land there at a price, and that is the only park I would favor. I would favor that park for this reason: In consequence of the unhealthy condition of the territory, first; then because it is more accessible to the population, second; and, thirdly, because to the city of Boston the property would appreciate faster than any other section. That is my position, and I hope gentlemen will not misunderstand my position. I am right there and I will not vote one dollar from the city treasury until I know the quantity of land they propose to take and the price they propose to pay. Now, if this order is adopted, an appropriation is made, I only ask in this park business the same custom, the same rule, the same order that is required in all other appropriations that pass the City Council. For everything a two-thirds vote is required. Now they propose to make this blind step, to appropriate a million dollars which the Park Commissioners are going to plant somewhere, we do not know where; but they are going to do it; they are going to do it in West Roxbury, in South Bay and in Back Bay. What do I know about that? How do you know what price they are going to pay for it? I have had a little experience, sir, in behalf of the city, within a short time, in endeavoring to obtain property for the city, and in trying to buy land. I find that when the city of Boston goes into the market to find land for schoolhouses, they are expected to pay thirty-three and one-third per cent. more than the Assessors' valuation. The city is under these circumstances and in some instances expected to pay seventy-five per cent. more, but I find that a little delay is very healthy in such cases; and it occurred to me, when this question came up, if we had a reservation here by a two-thirds vote it might place the city in a more healthy condition. I think that this amendment of mine would be of great value to the city for parties who have land for sale realizing that they have got to come to the City Council and get a two-thirds vote, and believing that there are independent members enough of the City Council to vote for nothing but what is offered at a fair price, that the city will get a fair price, or land at a fair price offered to them, sooner than if the appropriation is made by a majority vote from the City Council. Now we know that the majority of this Board are in favor of parks, and I do not know but a majority are in favor of the entire scheme. Consequently the gentleman is opposed to any vote as it is required in any other corporation. When I am asked to appropriate so much money or to vote for an appropriation, I know what the appropriation is for and what the price is to be; for a schoolhouse so much; and for land so much. That is simply why I wish the same rule adopted here; we are to know what we are going to pay before we vote for it.

Alderman Clark—I wish merely to suggest this fact; that the Alderman will understand that this order cannot pass without a two-thirds vote. No appropriation can be made except by a two-thirds vote of the City Council, so there is no occasion for this amendment, and I hope the Alderman will withdraw it. It is a fact well known, of course, by every member of the Board that no appropriation of money can be made except by a two-thirds vote of the City Council; and it is well understood by every member of this Board except himself—and he would understand it if he was disposed to—that not a dollar of this appropriation of a million dollars, when once appropriated, can be expended by the Park Commissioners except by the consent of the City Council and the approval of his Honor the Mayor. This appropriation once made, the Park Commissioners then go to work and see what they can get a territory on the Back Bay for, and they report it to the City Council, and it is for the Board of Aldermen then to say whether they will buy it at ten cents a foot or fifteen cents a foot, or at no price at all, whether on the Back Bay or in West Roxbury or elsewhere. The appropriation is made in precisely the same manner that every other appropriation is made. The appropriation that was made for this schoolhouse lot that he has been at work at all this spring; out in Brighton, was made three months ago, the money was all ready to be expended when he had bought the lot and the lot had been accepted by the majority of the City Council, and not by a two-thirds vote.

Alderman Thompson—The money was appropriated two years ago.

Alderman Clark—He says two years ago, but it does not make any difference if it is forty years, if the appropriation has been kept good. They cannot spend a dollar of it until the lot has been agreed upon by the Committee on Public Instruction, a price has been agreed upon, and it has been reported back to the City Council and passed on by them by a majority vote.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Does the Alderman mean to say, if we pass this appropriation bill, and the Park Commissioners come here and ask that we confirm a certain sale of land, that it requires a two-thirds vote?

Alderman Clark—No, sir, that is what I object to; that it requires a two-thirds vote. I say that all that it should require is a majority vote, and all that any man would ask for if he is disposed to favor parks in the least degree. So this all amounts to nothing, putting in that last amendment that the appropriation of a million dollars should be made in the usual way, which requires a two-thirds vote, and then that you have got, in order to make the first purchase, in order to expend $100,000 out of that appropriation, to come back here and go all through the getting the two thirds vote again. I say it should be expended just as the money appropriated for the Paving Department is expended. We appropriate a million dollars, and sometimes a million and a half dollars, every year for the Paving Department. An order comes in to expend $10,000 or $40,000 of that appropriation, and it is passed by the Board of Aldermen by a majority vote; that even does not go back to the Common Council for concurrence. The Common Council have had their hand in making the appropriation, but they have not a word to say in regard to the expenditure of this million of dollars; they cannot say a word about it; we can dump the whole of it into South Boston or East Boston, or on the top of Bunker Hill Monument, if we please, and the Common Council cannot say a word about it; and all it requires is a majority vote of this Board of Aldermen. Now, I say it is unfair for any man who professes to be in the slightest degree in favor of public parks to object to this order as offered by Alderman Slade; because it proposes that the Park Commissioners, before they can spend a single penny, shall come back here and report their plans and the plans have got to be approved, the price agreed upon, the price approved by a concurrent vote of both branches of the City Council. So much for that. It shows that there is no occasion for any such amendment, nor for any man here to say, I want to know precisely what they are going to do before I vote upon it. Your million dollars, after it is appropriated, cannot be touched until after you have voted to take a piece of land here or somewhere else; your million dollars is all safe, and if at the end of twelve months it is not used, you have got no interest to pay on it and you have got no loan to pay. Now, this eminent citizen who came down here and recommended the Alderman from the Twenty-first Ward to do nothing in regard to parks, went out of business forty years ago, to my certain knowledge. He never has been in business since Doane street was the principal dry-goods jobbing street in the city of Boston. He retired then on a competency of $50,000 or $75,000, possibly $100,000, and he has grown rich undoubtedly. He has had a good deal added to his wealth by the increased value of real estate on the Back Bay and elsewhere. But if the business men of Boston were of that particular type I should want to move my business down to Newburyport, or up to Concord, N. H., or down to Fall River; I certainly would not stay in Boston a great while. He is a most worthy man, but he retired from business at the age of fifty, and thought he was too old to continue. I do not believe he ever paid a dollar for any railroad in the interest of the city of Boston. He sent his money to the West, and ignored the fact that Boston was the place that should grow. He is, perhaps, one of those gentlemen who write articles for the Daily Advertiser, and signs them "H. T. P.," or something of that kind. I have had quite a number of gentlemen come to me who are opposed to public parks. It is not to be supposed it is unanimous. There are some enterprising, smart, go-ahead business men who doubt the expediency of public parks at the present time. I should have quoted different representative men from those the gentleman from the Bunker Hill District has quoted. I merely rose to state that which I supposed was perfectly plain to the members of the Board—that this appropriation of $1,000,000 requires a two-thirds vote of both branches of the City Government; and that not a dollar of that appropriation is to be expended until we know just exactly where it is going to be spent, just how much per foot or per acre is to be paid for the land, and after we have voted by a majority vote here to take that particular piece of land, and that a certain amount shall be paid for it. So there is not the slightest occasion for the two-thirds vote, as proposed by the Alderman in his amendment.

Alderman Burnham—The Alderman from the Charlestown District, so far as he stated his own personal relations to park matters, and so far as he stated certain opinions he had on the subject, has also stated certain convictions I have in relation to parks; and but for the sanitary idea which attaches to this order, I would vote against every order and every amendment, for this is not the year to do it; and if the order is pressed in its present form I must so vote today.

I do not, however, fail to see the beauty the Park Commissioners had planned to stamp upon the topography of Boston. Their planning is not undervalued or unappreciated; but because of the changed circumstances while the planning has been going on—because the vast cost coming with the present existing burdens would be a load too heavy to be borne—because we owe on a basis of inflation and business prosperity, and must pay on a basis of shrinkage and business prostration, and because we must run the gauntlet and meet our "prime necessities" at a cost of millions through this business prostration, be it longer or shorter, I cannot go for it. Now, I believe that in passing the orders before us we commit ourselves to the spending not of a million dollars only, but of millions. In passing the orders we begin the work, and I, for one, am not ready. I shall vote nay on these orders or amendments; and in voting nay, I shall be told that I am one of the croakers, and that I desire to kill the park scheme. But I desire no such thing. I would not dispose of the matter in so summary a way, for I seek to know just what Boston needs for all time, and having found that out, I would seek to have those wants supplied; but if the want was a great towering necessity, casting its shadow forward through the coming years, I would seek to inaugurate a system for supply that should reach forward over the years. If I understand it, the park scheme will live—it is not to be voted out of sight by one City Government. Although we do not enter upon it now, this generation will honor the Park Commissioners, because from their thought and planning will yet come forth the germ of the true park system of Boston. Enough has been said to show that for years we need to be in no haste about the construction of park pleasure grounds. Enough has been said to show that if the nuisance of Back Bay had not existed, or if it did not now exist, or if it could be removed even now, the people would be willing to take years to plan for public parks. I believe the nuisances in the South and Back bays are the centres from which come the pressure to launch out into this vast expenditure, and truly they are for cause. We have been told by members of this Board that they were elected to this City Government to favor parks, and they should do so to the end. Now, I would ask the question, were they not, rather, sent here to devise some means to sweeten, purify, make healthy the Back Bay location, where millions on millions have been invested in houses which the intolerable stench of a great cesspool (if allowed to be continued) will make uninhabitable? Is not that what the constituents of the members of this Board whose dwellings are in that location desire of them?

Now, I want to say right here, we can do it and not be in a hurry about the park scheme. I can bring reliable engineering authority to show that it can be done. I can show that in the intercepting of the sewage now flowing into Stony Brook, and in the inspection of all house drains sufficiently thorough to detect all imperfect drainage, in the caring of the deposits already made, and in the deepening of the Charles River outlet, we can control this evil for at least ten years to come, perhaps longer—at any rate control it until we can build our great intercepting sewer, and without haste lay out and grade our park lands. It is estimated it can be done for the comparatively small sum of $125,000. We can wait then one year, or five years, and not abandon schemes for making healthy and beautifying our city. We can wait because we shall not lose a dollar by waiting. We can wait because economy bids us do so. We ought to wait, that more investigation of the future sanitary condition of our city should be made—as related to existing evils, hereditary evils—and be dealt with as their importance demands. What do the Park Commissioners say (City Doc. 42, 1875, p. 1)? "In selecting and recommending lands for public parks for the present and future needs of the city, the commissioners have been guided by the following consideration: Fourth—Sanitary advantages or the selection of such lands as would probably become unhealthy if neglected or built upon." Now, Mr. Mayor, in our very midst are lands and creeks and flats, not that would probably become unhealthy, but that are today as unhealthy as hundreds of broad acres of decomposing, festering filth-deposit of a great city under the heat of a summer sun can make them, urban centres of annoyance, disease and death.

Will we take off our thought from them to put it upon suburban acres of greensward and forest that for parks will fall into our hands any time within ten years as cheap or cheaper than today, keeping our interest account in view?

In City Document 105, 1874, the commissioners say, "These outer parks need not be improved until the growth of the city makes it necessary." City Document 42, 1875, p. 4, the commissioners have felt that the Back and South Bay parks were, in fact, matters of prime necessity rather than choice, in a sanitary sense, and that no suburban parks, however beautiful and extensive, would at all compensate, either now or in future years, for the want of open spaces in these low and dangerous localities, bordering as they do upon the most densely inhabited parts of the city. Now, can any man doubt our first duty if we move at all in the direction of parks. Referring to our sanitary condition, the commissioners, in the report of 1874, say, "Nothing is so costly as sickness and disease. Nothing so cheap as health. Whatever promotes the former is the worst kind of extravagance; whatever fosters the latter is the truest economy."

I say, then, Mr. Mayor, let us grapple with our self-evident prime necessities. First, let this matter go back to our Park Commissioners again; call their attention to page 23 of their 1875 report; let them read that—

"South Bay Park is situated nearly in the centre of population, exclusive of East Boston."

That—

"Its location will redeem the adjacent unoccupied region from its present unenviable reputation, by offering the attraction of a common and public garden to a neighborhood sorely in need of such refreshing elements. As a purely local necessity, this park takes precedence of any other recommended."

Let them read in reference to the Back Bay park:

"Great and increasing anxiety, as you are aware, is felt by the authorities, the medical profession, the citizens at large, in regard to the present and future condition of the Back Bay flats, as affecting the general healthfulness of the densely populated parts of the city lying to the eastward."

Let them read that the report of the first commission—

"Especially directs attention to this locality as likely to affect, for good or ill, the sanitary condition, not only of the immediate neighborhood, but of a large part of the city."

And again—

“While sanitary considerations have been the primary motive in making this location, such as may be called artistic have not been lost sight of.”

And again—

“Unpromising as all this region is, it is certainly not so bad as was the space now occupied by the Public Garden a few years ago, and it can be transformed from its present dangerous and unsightly condition into a healthful and attractive form at a reasonable cost.

Let us have from the commissioners a new plan of the territory bounded by West Chester park, Boston & Providence Railroad, Ruggles street extended to Brookline avenue, by Brookline avenue to the Boston & Albany Railroad, and by the Boston & Albany Railroad. Make it one-half land and one-half water, it need be—raise the one by depressing the other—making available, in a large measure, the creeks and water spaces now existing, by forming them into artificial lakes and ponds. Let us have a plan of the territory bounded by Boston and Swett street and East Chester park extended, drawn so as to carry its line along the upland instead of across the marsh. Let us have a plan showing how East and West Chester park becomes a parkway across the city.

Let us make definite lines; calculate the number of acres of land; know the number of acres of water; know the sanitary estimate of such a breathing space in the centre of our city. Let us know the cost. Let us know whether such a system completed will not be beautiful enough for Boston, and save us $1,000,000 of outlay.

Instead of rushing into this scheme by a beginning now in so much uncertainty, let us take time and commit ourselves only to a scheme that is mapped out, and measured, and estimated, and known to be the right thing. There are some who believe that South Bay park should be 150 acres; the bounds I have indicated give it; then there are 300 acres of water adjoining if we go down to Dover-street Bridge; 450 acres of breathing space in the centre of the city is no small object to be sought and gained. Then, too, the boundary indicated for the Back Bay park is on a broader scale than we have contemplated. We should know if it is possible there to have such an extended breathing space. We have not the estimate of the cost, and therefore I contend we do not know it today, and I contend that only more investigation will bring it out—and I feel we should not act until we have it. I, for one, am not prepared to act, and, if we must vote today, must vote against the order, although I array myself among the enemies of the park scheme.

Alderman Slade—It seems to me that the argument of the gentleman is entirely covered now. He can be an adviser of the Park Commissioners; I can be, so can every one else. If the gentleman can show the Park Commissioners that it is necessary to take any one hundred acres on his South Bay, if he can make them believe it, they will come here and report it. Nothing will be done until they come here and report just what they propose to do with the plan of the land and how much it is going to cost. That is why the order is left in that way. It is simply furnishing the money and giving them something to work upon, we can all advise them on all points we think of; and of course they will be glad to get that advice. Now, in the matter of sewerage, of course it is all very fine to talk about putting a sewer through this territory; but you come down and live at the West End, where I live, or clear down at the North End, at low tide, and you will try to see if the sewerage cannot go some other way. At the same time I am not going to fight against this because we cannot have Charles River park. It is the best thing, almost the only thing, that will relieve the North End at the present time; but we know we cannot have it, and I am not going to stand up here and growl because I do not get just what I want. It may be that this whole system, so far as it goes, hinges indirectly upon sewerage. It might, perhaps, very well, all of it go together. But when it comes down to a fine thing, the people who live on the Charles River at the North and West End have something to complain of as well as anybody else. I think this place is the place to begin. I hope, if we go back to the commissioners in that way, they will then ascertain what is the feeling and what is the want of the City Council, and so far as it is in their power that they will comply with it. I believe that my order will give nearly universal satisfaction to the people. I have consulted with a great many people who I know are opposed to it, but without a single exception I do not know of a man who opposed this. I do not know but somebody is going to make a dollar out of it. I hope they will. One thing is certain: Three or five years ago you could not have bought Back Bay lands for less than twenty-five or thirty cents per foot, and today there is no doubt you can buy it for ten cents, and I don't believe we are ever going to get it much less. I think we ought to commence, and I think the people are expecting us to do something in this direction.

Alderman Gibson—It seems to me that this project, so far as the Back Bay and South Bay are concerned, is a part of the sewerage matter, and it strikes me that we are too far in advance. It is proposed to do this on account of the sanitary condition of these districts, and I am not prepared to say myself that I should not do it for that reason after the Committee on Improved Sewerage shall report. It is useless to attempt to go out and buy up those lands with only a million dollars. The advocates of parks claim that it is a sanitary measure, and I contend that we should not do anything in regard to it without any knowledge of what the Committee on Improved Sewerage have in their minds. If we should go on and select a location for a park it might not be a proper place to carry out the recommendations of that committee. I would not say that I shall object to taking a hundred acres or more of that Back Bay hole and make a continuation of the driveway to the reservoir from Commonwealth avenue. That would be a park scheme that I would favor, but in these times I am opposed to it. After the committee shall report where they propose to put this great sewer, then, it seems to me, will be the time to go to work to buy land for parks, and not till then. Therefore I propose to vote against the order.

Alderman Thompson—One word in answer to my friend on the left. It was certainly the past week that I regretted extremely that there had not been a similar provision in the matter of purchasing ground for a smallpox hospital, that it should come back to the City Council before the matter was to be concluded, which came so near being consummated—I will not say, sir, within an ace—by which $22,000 is to be paid for what $4000 would accomplish; to be located in the beautiful section of West Roxbury, simply because a commission was intrusted with this power. If that had been consummated, I for one, would have regretted it, as nearly all our citizens would. But when I was told of that fact I saw the necessity more and more of having some such clause as I propose in this order. Now in regard to this man of straw that my friend on the left built up here, referring to this respectable gentleman—

Alderman Clark—I beg the gentleman's pardon. I did not refer to the gentleman as a man of straw. I said he was a most worthy and estimable citizen.

Alderman Thompson—Well, he was an old gentleman who had retired from business twenty-five years ago. He was one of the most active merchants twenty-five years ago, and then he retired from the dry goods trade. I should not have thought of the fact, but he did not come up here to see me; he came up to see the members of the Board of Aldermen, and tell them that if they voted for this park scheme he had paid his taxes, or would, this year, for the last time in the city of Boston. That is what he came to tell them. But the Alderman alluded to him as not being interested in railroads. To show how little the Alderman knows in regard to some of his fellow citizens, I will tell the Alderman that this same gentleman has been a director in every railroad running out of the city of Boston within twenty years, including the Boston & Albany, of which he was a State director. He has been a director in the Worcester Railroad, the Eastern, the Boston & Maine, the Boston & Lowell and the Fitchburg, this same gentleman who is an “old foggy” today. I ask the Alderman if that is not an indication that he is a live man in the city of Boston, when we know how many of us have tried to get into the direction of railroads and have not succeeded. It is a remarkable fact that this same gentleman has been a director in all these roads running out of Boston, and a very active man. The only thing I know against him is that he once consented to be a Democratic candidate for Mayor of the city of Boston. That is the only one I know in regard to this man. Perhaps the Alderman may have had that in his mind, or perhaps he was not aware of that fact. I can tell him a great many more things about this gentleman. In regard to the amount of business which this man did, he did retire twenty-five years ago, but I really believe and I know that it probably exceeded that of some half-dozen mercantile firms in the city who have their places of business. He retired when he was fifty years old. I retired before I was fifty, but I do not propose to sit still because I am not in a business firm. The Alderman knows I do something once in a while. This gentleman expressed the sentiment of a great many of our citizens at this time. I tell you the sentiment in favor of the entire park scheme is changed. I know there is a feeling in favor of the Back Bay Park, to a certain extent, with regard to a sanitary point of view, but to a limited extent. The citizens today want that great caution should be taken by the City Council in creating debt on the part of the city. We have not yet, sir, come out of this financial difficulty or this embarrassment. The gentleman tells here about croaking and all that sort of thing. Why, sir, when we go to the bankruptcy offices at the United States Court, are we not reminded of the real facts that exist, that everything is depressed, and that it is as much as a person can do to keep out of the bankruptcy court? And yet we are told we are croaking, when all these facts exist—we cannot help it. We have got to look at things as they really are. We cannot assume that they are something different. We meet them every day. Until times have changed, it is not prudent for the city to launch out and spend its eight or ten millions on public parks. I am in favor of securing one or two hundred acres of land on the Back Bay, if it can be had at a satisfactory rate; but I would not have the city commit herself there. Why have gentlemen forgot the verdict rendered against the city a few days ago? Now I am there reminded again of the position the city is placed in in regard to all these matters. I had the honor of being the chairman of the sub-committee to consider this very subject of Northampton street property that was thrown upon the city, and the price the city was compelled to pay for it. We appointed experts, selected three disinterested men who decided what we should pay for that land so surrendered in 1875. Those gentlemen were above the Assessors to quite a small extent, and they returned seventy-odd thousand dollars, and with interest $82,000. The parties took that same claim to court, and they came out instead of with $82,000—and I do not think there is a member of this Board who would give $40,000 for the property—the city was compelled to pay $144,000 if the verdict is sustained. That is the way the city of Boston is treated. Now, I do not propose, myself, to have the city commit itself to any scheme. If gentlemen have land to sell, let them present it, and if the price is fair and the land is located right, then I would vote for it; but I went without.

Alderman O'Brien—In relation to this Northampton-street district, it would be well to remind the Board that this district the city took possession of by act of Legislature, and if the owners of the Northampton-street district were not satisfied with the betterment after the filling by the city of Boston, then the city of Boston was compelled by law to take the territory, or at least, the owners had the privilege of surrendering. Well, now what does the city of Boston do? When we were called upon to fix the value of that territory the question was asked, "Shall we fix the taxable valuation of Boston on that property at the time it was taken or shall we appoint three experts to fix the value on it. The city of Boston, or, at least, the committee who had charge of it, thought it was best to appoint three experts in order to get all the information that was possible on that subject. Those three experts went on and valued that property two or three years after the assessed valuation. That is, they were fixing the valuation of property that the city had fixed the valuation of two years previous, and their valuation was some $75,000, I think, less than the assessed valuation of the city of Boston at that time.

Alderman Thompson—The gentleman is wrong, and if he will allow me I will set him right. They fixed the value of this particular property for 1875, when the land was surrendered to the city.

Alderman O'Brien—Well, that is precisely what I say. I go today and fix the valuation on property in 1875. Well, now, how can my judgment be clear in fixing the valuation on property two years ago? Well, the city of Boston, by an order passed through the City Council offered the price decided on by these experts, and the owners would not take it and it went into court. What was the effect on the jury? I think it was a sorry day for the city of Boston when that order passed the City Council. Here the city of Boston had been taxing that property for years, compelling these men to pay taxes. As long as they were receiving taxes it was all right; as long as they were forcing citizens to pay taxes their valuation was all right; but as soon as they had to take possession of the land then their valuation was all wrong, and they went to work and reduced it $50,000 or $75,000. Well, now, is not that a lame argument to go before any jury in the city of Boston with? As long as the city of Boston was forcing taxes from the people the valuation of their property was right, and when they had to take possession of the property they were not bound by their own valuation. I say it was a sorry day for Boston when that order passed this Board. If I had given it more consideration should never have been a party to it.

Alderman Fitzgerald called for the yeas and nays and Alderman Robinson's amendment was lost by a tie vote:

Yeas—Aldermeu Breck, Clark, Dunbar, O'Brien, Robinson, Wilder—6.

Nays—Aldermen Burnham, Fitzgerald, Gibson, Slade, Thompson, Viles—6.

Alderman Slade's amendment was lost by a tie.

Yeas—Aldermeu Breck, Clark, Dunbar, O'Brien, Slade, Wilder—6.

Nays—Aldermen Burnham, Fitzgerald, Gibson, Robinson, Thompson, Viles—6.

The question then came on the original order submitted by a majority of the committee, and Alderman Clark offered the following as a substitute:

Ordered, That the Treasurer be and he hereby is authorized to borrow, under the direction of the Committee on Finance, the sum of $600,000, for the purpose of purchasing land for a park and streets connected therewith; said money, or so much as may be required, to be expended by the Park Commissioners in the purchase of not less than one hundred or more than one hundred and fifty acres of land or flats, situate within the area bounded by Parker street, Huntington avenue extended in the direction of Tremont and Francis streets; Longwood avenue, Brookline avenue and the Boston & Albany Railroad with approaches from Beacon street west of Chester park; Boylston street extended from Chester park, westerly, and Huntington avenue extended; said park to be of such shape as not to require other adjoining lands to make it symmetrical and to be bounded on all sides by public avenues to be taken from the land purchased, the price to be paid for said lot not to exceed ten cents per superficial foot, the city agreeing to assume and pay all betterments that may be assessed upon other land owned by the sellers at the time the purchase is consummated benefited by establishing the park or laying out the streets connected therewith.

Alderman Clarke—My object is to give those who are in favor of voting for a Back Bay park and nothing else an opportunity to do so at a fixed price—the price not to exceed ten cents per superficial foot, the amount not to exceed one hundred and fifty acres. I move that the order be laid on the table till the next meeting.

Alderman Fitzgerald—We have discussed this matter for three or four successive meetings, and not a single member of this Board can be better enlightened on this subject than he is tonight. It is simply prolonging this question. There is not a member of this Board who has not made up his mind how he is going to vote and what he is going to do, and the Board will be no more enlightened after twenty-five weeks from now than this evening. I think the sooner we dispose of this matter the better it will be.

Alderman Clark—This is a new proposition entirely. Gentlemen have expressed themselves in favor of doing something on the Back Bay, and I offer this order to give them an opportunity during the present week to make up their minds whether or not they are willing to vote an appropriation for the improvement of that territory. It is a different question; and although we have had several weeks' discussion upon the general subject, I think it is proper that we should take another week to consider this proposition, and I think no injury will come to the city thereby.

Alderman Gibson—I should like to know more about this sewer. It seems to puzzle me. If this district comes within the province of that sewer I don't know but I would favor it. All the arguments have been to connect this sewer and park together, and for that reason I should like to have the order referred to the Committee on Improved Sewerage and have it work in connection with that.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If it be in order, then, I would move that it be referred to the Committee on Improved Sewerage.

Alderman Clark—I must say, Mr. Mayor, it will be a very impertinent order.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I did not mean to say that. I think it is no more impertinent than for the gentleman to say so, or than it is for him to make the motion. I want to tell him that nothing is impertinent that is parliamentary in this body.

The Mayor ruled that the motion to table took precedence.

The order was laid on the table.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

The resolve and order that the work on Mystic Valley sewer should be done by day labor and by citizens of Boston only, and authorizing and recommending the Boston Water Board to have the work done by day labor, providing that such persons only shall be employed, came up with amendments to authorize and "instruct" said Water Board, etc.; also "that the labor be divided pro rata among the different wards of the city."

The question was on concurrence in the amendments.

Alderman O'Brien—This order contemplates a very large expenditure of money now. When our taxpayers feel it so burdensome to pay taxes when our real estate is so generally below cost, I would ask the Alderman from Charlestown if this large expenditure of money merely to improve the Mystic Water Works—this large sewer that will take two or three hundred thousand dollars to build—if now is the time when we ought to commence; and if it had better be postponed until a more favorable opportunity.

Alderman Thompson—I am very glad the Alderman made these inquiries, especially if he believes in them. I am very certain he would not make them if he had acquainted himself with the Mystic Water Works. It matters little or nothing to the city of Boston whether this sewer is built or not. The citizens of Boston will have very little money to pay towards its cost. A section of the city pays a portion of it, but the cities of Somerville, Chelsea and the town of Everett pay the most of the money, although the city of Boston has charge of the works; so the gentleman's question does not apply with any force to the citizens of Boston. The cities of Somerville, Chelsea and the town of Everett have contracts with the city of Boston for the supply of Mystic water for a number of years; they pay full rates and have a certain amount returned to them, which is supposed to go towards paying the interest of the debts they incur in laying their water pipes. When the entire debt created by the building of the Mystic Water Works has been paid, then these people are to have their water rates the same as the citizens of Charlestown. This adds so much to the cost of the Mystic Water Works. It does not come out of the city of Boston, and it does not require a great deal of calculation to see that the expenditure of this amount, which is very proper to purify the waters of the Mystic sources, when the property could probably be sold today at a handsome profit, and it will, no doubt, be sold some time or other to Cambridge or Somerville. The water works not only pay interest on the debt, but they turn in a large amount to the city treasury towards the liquidation of the Sinking Fund. I do not see how the Alderman could make any question of that kind.

Alderman O'Brien—I knew I should draw something hopeful from the Alderman from Charlestown. I never knew him to speak of hard times when money was to be expended within the limits of Charlestown; but when the Back Bay, polluted with filth, the stink from which pervades the South End and the West End, when that section is to be benefited, then the Alderman feels that the times are too depressed to spend one dollar for any purposes there. I knew he would take a hopeful view when any money was to be expended within the limits of Charlestown.

Alderman Thompson—This is not to be expended within the limits of Charlestown. It is to be spent within the limits of Woburn and Winchester.

Alderman O'Brien—It is for the benefit of Charlestown.

Alderman Wilder—I hope the Board will concur in one of the amendments, but not in the second one, for the reason given by the Alderman [Alderman Fitzgerald]. I can see how a division of the labor pro rata among the wards will work injustice. I am told that they desire to be instructed to employ the men by days' labor, and shall favor it. I ask for a division of the question.

Alderman Clark—Before the vote is taken, I wish to make an explanation, as I think there was a misunderstanding by some members of the committee as to what was said by the Commissioners in regard to being instructed. I did not understand them to say that unless they were ordered to do it by days' labor they should do this work by contract. One of the commissioners, Mr. Cutter, said—in fact, all of them so stated—that unless they were authorized to do this work by days' labor, they would be obliged to do it by contract, according to the ordinance, it being an expenditure of over $10,000. Mr. Cutler also stated that if he was going to do this work himself in the most economical manner, for the least amount of money, he should do it by contract; but it was a question in his mind whether or not, under the present circumstances, it would not be best to do it by days' labor; but he should prefer to be ordered to do it, and then the responsibility of paying $100,000 for what might have been done for $75,000 would rest upon the City Council and not upon the Water Board. That was the only reason why he personally should prefer a direct order—simply to be relieved of the responsibility of having a piece of work cost $100,000, which might have been done for $70,000 or $75,000. Mr. Sawyer, President of the board, stated the same as Mr. Cutter; that, of course, unless they were authorized to do it by day labor, they would be obliged to do it by contract. It is a very simple matter to be understood by any one who will read the ordinance or the statutes under which the board was created. Mr. Sawyer stated that if they were ordered to do it by day labor, of course they would be obliged to do so under any circumstances whatever. There might something arise to prevent their doing it by day labor if ordered so to do; but if they were authorized to do it by day labor there could be no possible doubt but what they should do it just as cheerfully as though they were ordered to. If the Board see no objections to a piece of work done by days' labor costing two or three hundred thousand dollars, which, if done by contract, would cost much less, they must take the responsibility. It seemed to me at the last meeting to be more proper to recommend that it be done by days' labor. I merely rose to explain this matter; as by reading the remarks in the other branch I got the impression that the idea was conveyed there that one of the Commissioners said that unless he had a direct order to do this by day's labor, he would certainly do it by contract. Having that understanding, I make this statement; and I should like the other member of the committee, who was present, to state whether or not his understanding was the same as mine. I hope we shall not concur in the amendment distributing the labor pro rata among the wards, for the reason already given, and that we shall adhere to the vote we passed authorizing and recommending that it be done by day's labor.

Alderman Thompson—What the Alderman stated is precisely as I remember it. In committee I was in favor of the labor being done by citizens of Boston; since then the people of Somerville claimed to have some of their people employed, but they did not persist in it. I should like to have it done by day's labor; but at the same time I don't propose to order the Water Board to do it by day's labor. I desire to have it left in their hands, so as to prevent combinations which may be made against them. If the City Council pass an order recommending that it be done by day's labor, and it is left discretionary, they would not be troubled with any of these combinations; and we can safely trust it to them. I should certainly object to the other amendment.

Alderman Clark—One reason why Mr. Cutter said if he was going to do it himself he would do it by contract, was the fact that the contract for a section of the Sudbury River conduit was awarded for $48,000, and the bids ranged from that sum to $102,000, showing that the work can be done much cheaper by contract than by day's labor.

Alderman O'Brien—I am not disposed to leave this matter to the discretion of the Water Board. If we leave it to their discretion they will do this work by contract, because they would not want the trouble that may arise from employing men by day's labor. If they are not instructed they will not take this responsibility, and I shall vote to instruct them. If they are the right men in the right place they will be able to do this work by day's labor as cheaply as they will by contract. Therefore, I hope this Board will vote to instruct them and take the responsibility.

Alderman Thompson—It makes no difference whether it is done by day's labor or not, so long as it is done by citizens of Boston. The commissioners are not afraid to take any responsibility. They do not wish to shirk any responsibility, and the Alderman misrepresents them when he talks in that style. They stated to the committee that they simply wish that the City Council should recommend that this work should be done by day's labor, and they would endeavor to carry it out. At the time of our meeting Mr. Davis, the City Engineer, was out of the city, and we were desirous of seeing him, as we might learn if there was any objection to this course. It was suggested that a certain combination might be made if they were confined to one course; whereas, if they were not, they could endeavor to carry it out without the people attempting to make these combinations if there was an opening to avoid them.

Alderman O'Brien—What combination does the gentleman refer to?

Alderman Thompson—Combination in the price of material, in the price of labor, in anything; and some other combinations were suggested by the Engineer that might be made.

Alderman O'Brien—The order does not contemplate the manufacture of brick and other material. They can contract for all the material they use.

Alderman Thompson—It was the opinion of the committee that they should have discretionary power, and that the City Council should state that they preferred to have the work done by day's labor, and in that case the board would endeavor to do it.

Alderman Clark—The Alderman from Ward 21 says if they are the right men in the right place they can do it as cheaply by day's labor as they can by contract. Now, he ought to know that they would not be justified in employing labor at a dollar a day, as a contractor will do. I want to know if he is willing to pass a vote instructing them to employ men at a dollar a day. Unless they can employ men at a dollar a day they cannot do it as cheaply by day's labor as by contract. I do not propose to instruct our board to employ men at a dollar or a dollar and fifteen cents a day; and I wish it to be distinctly understood that I am in favor of paying laborers a fair compensation for their services.

Alderman Thompson—That is my position.

Alderman Slade—I got up to state that that was my position, too. If this is let out by contract it is known that the contractors will hire men at a dollar a day. If they employ laborers I believe they should be paid the same as they are paid in the Paving Department—$1.75 a day. I don't believe in crowding everything into the ground and making everything lower and lower. The city gets work done lower than anybody else, and $1.75 a day is low enough pay for any man to get, and board himself and family.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If the sentiment of the City Council be that the work should be done by day's labor, I think they ought to assume that responsibility. I can see how the commissioners would be open to criticism on either side. In the first place, if you pass that order and they give it out by day's labor, people will find fault that they did not do it by contract, because they could do it cheaper, and they could shirk the responsibility by saying that the City Council did not order them to do it. Therefore, I say it is proper that the City Council should assume the responsibility and order them to do it by day's labor. For that reason I shall vote to instruct.

Alderman Clark—I would not cast such a reflection upon any board within these walls as I think it would be, after passing the order we did at the last meeting, giving our views and authorizing and recommending that it be done by day's labor.

I will not vote to order them to do a certain thing after we have once passed a resolution authorizing and recommending them.

Alderman Wilder—I do not consider that passing this order will be the slightest reflection on them. We shall only recede from our former vote and give them instructions because they desire it. If I were in their place, I would desire the same thing, for the reason stated by the Aldermen. I should be willing for the Government which gave the order to take the responsibility. I do not think there is any fear of any possible combinations among the laborers to prevent their doing it.

Alderman Thompson—The Board must have forgotten that this is not exclusively a Boston matter. Everett, Chelsea and Somerville have something to say, because they pay a part of the cost. I knew there was some reason against it.

Alderman O'Brien—Will the Alderman explain? I understood that they refused to pay, because the sewer would not answer their purpose.

Alderman Thompson—The gentleman don't understand it again. He is speaking about the use of this sewer by the towns of Woburn and Winchester; I say it is Somerville, Chelsea and Everett have to pay for it. I knew there was some reason why we should give the commissioners latitude in this matter. Suppose those people should say it was not properly built; they may refuse to pay their share of the cost. The commissioners can look into the contracts with those places, and if there are no objections, of course they will do it by day's labor. In view of the claims of these outside parties, it is not safe to pass an absolute order like this. If there are no legal objections, they will do it by day's labor.

Alderman Wilder—I confess to the logic of the Alderman and shall change my views. I see very good reasons for not instructing him.

Alderman Slade—Would n't they go a little farther, and ask for the privilege of employing their own laborers?

Alderman Burnham—The Alderman has given us some good reasons, and we should act understandingly. That we may take time to consider it, I move that the order lie upon the table.

Alderman O'Brien—I should like to know a little more about those contracts. The Legislature empowered us to build; and what contracts prevent us from doing it? The people of Somerville and Chelsea ought to be thankful for having the water purified.

Alderman Burnham—Because we have legislative right to build that sewer, we have no right to pay an exorbitant price for doing it. Suppose we pay $2.75 per day for labor; are Somerville and Chelsea to pay for that exorbitant price, when labor can be obtained for $1 per day, if the work is let out by contract? Therefore I renew my motion to lay upon the table.

Alderman Thompson—These delays are depreciating the value of the property. The Legislature has authorized the city of Boston to build this sewer. The contracts with Somerville, Chelsea and Everett provide that in case of an increase of the works, or additional engines, or anything of that kind to carry on the works, they shall pay their share of the expense. One or two years ago a new main was carried from Malden Bridge to Chelsea, and the cost of that went into the cost of the Mystic works. If I could have my way I would do several things to perfect the Mystic works, and a great deal can be done to make it a valuable source of supply for Boston. All these expenses must be borne to a certain extent by those parties who contracted for water with the old city of Charlestown, and they have certain rights in the matter. If we give the commissioners discretionary power they can take this without contract to the City Solicitor, and if there is no objection they will perform the work by day's labor. If there are objections, if there is anything that is coming up hereafter to trouble the city of Boston in regard to this settlement, the work must be done by contract. If the order is laid upon the table it will cause unnecessary delay.

Alderman O'Brien—I do not see that the contracts the gentleman speaks of have any force upon this question. The Mystic Water Works are in our possession; parties take the water and agree to pay a certain part of the expense of keeping it up to the given standard. When we build this sewer we do it by our best knowledge, by day's labor, knowing it will be better built in that way. That will be the best judgment expressed by the City Council, and they cannot go behind it. No contract will prevent us from doing what we think is right and proper.

Alderman Thompson—The gentleman should see the contracts before giving his opinion.

Alderman O'Brien—By instructing the commissioners we merely take the responsibility which the Alderman from the Back Bay says they are not inclined to take. I believe there is nothing in that contract that will interfere with us in any way.

Alderman Burnham—With the explanation of the gentleman from Charlestown, who, I believe, ought to understand the Mystic Water Works, I will withdraw the motion to lay on the table.

Alderman Clark called for the yeas and nays, and the Board voted to non-concur in the amendment instructing the commissioners—yeas 4, nays 7:

Yeas—Aldermen Fitzgerald, O'Brien, Viles, Wilder—4.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Burnham, Clark, Dunbar, Robinson, Slade, Thompson—7.

Absent—Alderman Gibson.

The Board non-concurred in the amendment to distribute the labor pro rata among the different wards, on motion of Alderman Fitzgerald.

Sent down.

SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Alderman Slade presented the petition of E. S. Johnson et al., and Fairbanks, Brown & Co., et al., that Daniel C. Hunt be appointed a deputy sealer of weights and measures.

Alderman Slade—At the last meeting the Board were unfortunate in not electing a single person who understands the sealing of those scales. Our Superintendent is a new man in the work, and of course does n't understand it very thoroughly. These scale manufacturers feel the importance of having somebody there to seal scales, and therefore I move that the Sealer be empowered to employ Daniel C. Hunt until otherwise ordered, upon the same salary that he has been receiving.

The Mayor requested Alderman Slade to reduce the motion to writing.

Subsequently Alderman Slade offered an order—That until otherwise ordered, the Sealer of Weights and Measures be authorized to employ Daniel C. Hunt as an assistant in his department, the compensation to be at the rate at present established.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I ask that that order lie over.

Alderman Slade—I hope the order will not lie over, when I say the office is full of business and there is really no one to do it.

Alderman Viles—I think that order had better lie over. The Committee on Markets met to nominate candidates for Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures. We first nominated Mr. Hunt, who had been in the office many years. The Sealer asked us to nominate Mr. Hunt, saying he knew nothing about it. We also nominated George W. Close, who had been an assistant in the office. But so many candidates had been promised positions in that office that we were obliged to nominate two others with no experience. I did my best to elect Mr. Hunt and Mr. Close; but the Board thought differently. Hence we have four men in the office who don't know anything about the duties of the position; and I don't know that we should employ a man to teach them.

Alderman Clark—It seems to me it is a humiliating position for the City Council to be placed in, if we have in that office a Sealer of Weights and Measures, a clerk and four assistants, none of whom know how to balance a scale or seal a measure. It is a pretty humiliating sight for this Board of Aldermen to contemplate. The proper way for us to do is to require the principal or the assistants to resign the office in order that we may appoint some one competent to perform the duties. This order virtually contemplates another Sealer of Weights and Measures.

Alderman Viles—It is an instructor.

Alderman Clark—Until this year it was done by one principal and two assistants; and now we have one principal and four assistants, and in order to perform the duties we have to appoint a man to teach them their duties. I think we had better pass an order requesting them all to resign.

Alderman Slade—It is really as humiliating to me as to anybody else. I don't think I should favor this appointment, if this petition had not come in from the merchants and manufacturers by whom I have been waited upon several times this week. I know and we all know that out of all those elected, there has n't been one who knows how to seal scales properly. That being the fact, and Mr. Hunt having been in the office as an assistant for twenty years, I thought we could not do better, for the time being, than to employ him as an assistant. We can do it under the ordinance. Perhaps some one of those gentlemen may resign; I cannot say whether they will or not, but, for the time being, when there is so much business in the office, I think it is due to ourselves and the city to correct this mistake by putting that man in temporarily.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The position of affairs being, that whereas there are now five in the office where there were only two last year, and we propose to give a thousand dollars to the incumbents of this position, you are obliged to have an additional sealer to teach the sealer himself and everybody else. Now it is just as ridiculous as if we elected a City Clerk in the place of our present excellent City Clerk and then voted that he should be kept there and paid to teach the other man his duties. For one, as a member of this Board, I will not consent to any such thing as that. If the Sealer of Weights and Measures, after a month or two, does not know enough about the office, he had better resign and let some one else get into the place.

Alderman Wilder—The Sealer of Weights and Measures is competent to do his business, and is doing it to the satisfaction of the people who are employing him. But he alone cannot do the whole work. He asked the committee to nominate Mr. Hunt, together with one other gentleman whom he especially named; but for some reason—I don't know what—Mr. Hunt was not elected, although I believe every member of the Board knew the importance of the confirmation of Mr. Hunt. This forenoon he had the office full of scales, and today he has sealed several coal scales. He has one man who has partially learned the business, and one of the four elected is rendering some assistance. The Board, in their wisdom, elected two or three men who are utterly useless in that office until they can have some knowledge of the business. It requires a mechanic, and they are not mechanics, and they are not suitable for it. In my judgment, one or two of those gentlemen will, within a few days, tender their resignation, when they come to find that they made a mistake in the positions they applied for. I hope this order will pass, for many reasons. The Sealer of Weights and Measures is a personal friend of mine, and I am personally, to a certain extent, responsible for his appointment to the office; and I am willing to assume that responsibility. He will do his duty to the satisfaction of this Board or any who choose to investigate, or he is the kind of man who will resign without being invited. But his hands are tied. He is placed in an extraordinary position, and which this Board would never have placed him in if they had understood the matter well enough. But it is well understood that we did elect one or two men who are notoriously physically incapacitated from performing the duties of the office. I beg the Board of Aldermen to pass this order to employ a man who can perform a nicer job than the present sealer.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The order is that until otherwise ordered, Mr. Hunt be employed a man to be Sealer of Weights and Measures, and for which we are to pay. At the least we ought to let this order lie over until we can investigate the subject. Another reason is that one or two of those gentlemen are going to hand in their resignations within a few hours, and—Alderman Wilder—We don't know that.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If Mr. Hunt has been there up to the present time, I should be favorable to paying him.

Alderman Thompson—It seems to me that if the gentlemen who have been elected sealers do not understand the business, they had better resign and let some one else be elected in their places. If they require assistance they should employ Mr. Hunt to assist them, and not the city of Boston. Under the circumstances I do not think we should employ a teacher for them.

Alderman Viles—Can any one give us information whether Mr. Hunt is in the office now, doing the work?

Alderman Wilder—He is not there, and has not been there since Friday.

Alderman Viles—I have been told he was there: The order went over.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman O'Brien, and stood adjourned till Tuesday, June 19, at 4 o'clock P. M.

CITY OF BOSTON.

JUNE 14, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Order to remit tax for 1876 on lot of land forfeited and numbered 4 West Pembroke street. Ordered to a second reading.

Order to release to Samuel H. and John C. Hunneman estates on Eustis and Renfrew streets and Harrison avenue, as therein set forth. Ordered to a second reading.

Order to expend $628.76 additional for grading of squares on Commonwealth avenue. Ordered to a second reading.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

The resolve and order (amended by the other branch) authorizing and recommending the Boston Water Board to construct the Mystic Valley Sewer by day labor came down with the non-concurrence of the Board of Aldermen in the amendment instructing said Board to do said work by day's labor, and to divide the labor pro rata among the several wards of the city.

The question was—Shall the Council recede from its former vote?

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I was in hopes that the Board of Aldermen would have concurred with the Council. There has been a good deal of talk about that Mystic Valley sewer, and in looking over the proceedings of the Board of Aldermen, the other evening, I find it was put through under an implied mistake. Certainly, some of the honorable Aldermen, who spoke upon the subject, have either strained the truth very far, or made entirely false statements. I waited on the Water Commissioners, some time during the week, to find out whether I could, if possible, have made a mistake in interpreting their meaning at the meeting of the Water Committee; and I would ask permission of the Council to have the following communication read:

The President read the following:

BOSTON WATER BOARD OFFICE, June 14, 1877.

John W. Fraser, Esq: Dear Sir—Your note of the 13th inst. has been received, asking for answers to three questions therein contained—

First—Is there any contract in existence that the construction of the Mystic Valley sewer by day's labor would affect?

The only contracts we know of are those made by the city of Charlestown with the cities of Somerville and Chelsea and the town of Everett, for a water supply; we hand you a copy of one of these contracts (and they are all alike), from which you can judge whether or not they would be affected by the construction of the Mystic Valley sewer.

Second—Do the Water Commissioners object to an order from the City Council to have the sewer built by the day?

This board do not object to an order from the City Council to have the sewer built by the day.

Third—Is there any false statement made by me of your views before the Water Committee?

None that we know of.

Per order of the Board,

W. E. SWAN, Clerk.

Mr. Fraser—There appeared to be a good deal of doubt in the minds of the members of the committee as to what the commissioners said at that meeting, and I thought I would ask those questions; and I think that answer to my note is positive proof. I stated here, that unless this order was passed directing them, they never would build this sewer by the day. The Council will notice that I have made no false statement of anything they said or did before that committee. I do not believe anything could be more conclusive than that. My principal object in bringing in the minority report was to employ the great mass of laboring men; and I believe that the gentleman from Charlestown, who offered the order [Mr. Kelley of Ward 3] had the same object in view. I was positive then, as I am now, that they would not do it unless we ordered them. When the order was going through, the other evening, Alderman Thompson stated (page 425 of the proceedings of the Board of Aldermen) in talking about this contract, and he gave the Board of Aldermen to understand, that there was some contract in existence which would seriously interfere with it. I find that it is a contract made by Charlestown with Somerville, eight years before the Mystic Valley sewer was ever thought of. I have shown it to all the legal gentlemen here tonight and they do not see anything whatever in conflict with doing it by day's labor. I do not like to impute any wrong motives to the Aldermen; but I am unwilling to trust the laboring men in the possession of some Aldermen, I don't care how high-toned they may be; for I find that some of the Aldermen, last fall, having charge of departments in City Hall, undertook to "bull-doze" laboring men and keep them away from their voting places. That envelope is indorsed and written by one of the heads of departments to his employes. For that and several other reasons, I want this Council to express, by their vote, that they want this work done by day's labor. Alderman Thompson says in one place that combinations might arise, which would affect the building of this sewer; he says the City Engineer was out of town and could not be seen by the committee; but in answer to a direct question by Alderman O'Brien he states that the City Engineer did suggest some combinations. I was also astonished that the Board of Aldermen appeared to have so little interest in the Mystic Valley sewer; some appeared not to know that such a thing was going on at all. I am assured by some of them that if we non-concur they will not adhere to their former vote, but consent to order the Water Board to build the sewer by the day. I hope we shall adhere.

Mr. Beeching of Ward 1—Being a member of the Water Committee, I was apprised of all that transpired at the meeting when this matter was discussed and the report made up. I have nothing to say in regard to this controversy with the Aldermen. I speak in behalf of those who use this water. It is used in the locality where I live. It was proposed to build this sewer to purify the water; an order for it was put through here over a year ago, and it was expected that the sewer would have been built last year, but through some oversight it was not located right, and they had to go to the Legislature for an act enabling them to build it where they now propose. In regard to building it by day's labor, I am satisfied, from what transpired in the committee, that the commissioners—they being there—are in sympathy with this order; and I have no question but, if we recede from our former action and concur with the Board, that this sewer will be built by day's labor, unless there is some obstacle that cannot be surmounted. No obstacle appears; none is likely to arise, unless, as it was suggested, there might be a combination among the laboring men to get higher wages than the city ought to pay. That was the combination spoken of; they thought it might be done, perhaps; that if it was to be done by the laboring men of the city of Boston alone, they might combine so that the price of labor might be very much increased; and for fear of anything of that kind, it was thought best by the committee that the whole matter should not be taken out of the hands of the commissioners, but that they should have some discretion in the matter. The president of the Water Board thought it the better way to give the commissioners some discretion, so that if they found an obstacle in the way of finishing it by day's labor they could do it by contract. They could not do it by day's labor unless so authorized by the City Council. The ordinance requires every piece of work amounting to over $10,000 to be done by contract. That was why the committee reported an order authorizing them to do it by day's labor. It went to the Board of Aldermen and they added that they be authorized "and recommended" to do it by day's labor, which made it stronger than the committee reported. I have no question that, if we concur with the Board of Aldermen, this work will be done by day's labor, if it can be so done. I hope we shall not recede from our former action, but concur with the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—The whole trouble appears to be to find what the opinion of the Water Commissioners is—whether or not they will really do this work by day's labor, if we concur with the Board of Aldermen. Every gentleman here can refer to the proceedings of the last meeting of the Council, where I publicly stated that they would not, and did not intend to do it by day's labor, unless ordered. In answer to the question put to them, if I made any false statement of their views, they said, None whatever. What more positive proof does this Council want than that over their own signature, "Per order of the Board, William E. Swan, Clerk." I stated publicly that they did not intend to do it, and I expressed their views, as I heard them, as near as I could; and they stated that I expressed them correctly. It shows that they do not intend to do it, if we concur. It is intended to have them go to work right away, that the people from Charlestown and East Boston may have pure water. Every gentleman here knows that that is a direct, positive answer—that they do not intend to do it without an order.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—There seems to be some misunderstanding between the gentleman from Ward 6 and the Water Board. As the ordinance now stands, they cannot do this work by day's labor, and unless we authorize them to do it by day's labor they cannot do it in any other way than by contract. That is where the mistake arises. I have no doubt they told the gentleman that, unless we pass an order of this kind, they should do it by contract. But, as I have said before, having spoken with them all, it will make no difference which order passes; in fact, the gentleman from East Boston has expressed my views so clearly I will not say any more. But I have taken the pains to get the opinion of the Water Commissioners in black and white, and that there may be no question what those opinions are, I will read a short letter:

BOSTON, June 14, 1877.

Hon. T. T. Sawyer: Dear Sir—From several conversations which I have had with the members of the "Water Board," I infer that if the City Council should pass the order in relation to the "Mystic Valley Sewer," as reported by a majority of the Committee on Water, your Board would cause the work to be performed by day labor, unless there should arise some legal, or other, obstacle which you cannot now foresee. In other words, it is the desire and unanimous intention of your board to carry out the wishes of the City Council in the matter. Is my inference correct?

Yours in haste,

GEORGE B. WEBSTER.

And their answer is—

OFFICE BOSTON WATER BOARD, }
June 14, 1877. }

George B. Webster, Esq.: Dear Sir—I am authorized by the board to say that your inference is correct.

TIMOTHY T. SAWYER,

Chairman.

Mr. Webster—If there could be anything plainer or anything more needed to satisfy the Council what the board intend to do in the matter, and that they will do it as we want it done, if they possibly can, I should like to know what it could be.

The President—The Chair deems it his duty at this time to state that section 6 of the ordinance in relation to water requires that any work to be done by the Water Board, involving the sum of $10,000 or more, shall be done by contract. Our joint rules also state that no order which is not in the form of an ordinance shall suspend, amend or repeal an ordinance. The Chair thinks this cannot be done without amending the ordinance.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—The City Solicitor has given an opinion, within the last six weeks, that an order does repeal or amend an ordinance. Now in regard to this order. I had an humble part to do in getting the appropriation for this sewer, believing that it was right and just and proper, and best for the interest of the city of Boston to build the Mystic sewer. I believe the order first put in here was about right. If an order is good for anything, why pick the bones all out of it and handle it so delicately, for the sake of somebody else? The City Council made the Boston Water Board; and with all due respect to them, now why should there be so much consultation and expressing of opinions backward and forward? We have the right to instruct them just what we want to have them do; and I propose, for one, to assume that right and act upon it. I hope the Council will not recede. I would not give the snap of my finger for that order from the Board of Aldermen, because the bone is taken right out of it. If you pass an order instructing them, according to City Solicitor Healy that ordinance is repealed. We had him before the committee on that point, and he stated that to be his opinion, and it has been acted upon accordingly. Now, why not pass this order, if we want it done by the day? If the Council do not want it done by the day, don't pass the order. It went to the other branch, and somebody objected to the instruction, because somebody's feelings might be hurt, and somebody's authority might be taken away. I believe in passing the order as it was originally offered; and if the Board of Aldermen do not see fit to concur they assume the responsibility.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—At the last meeting of the Council it was stated by a member of the committee that one of the commissioners desired the City Council to order them to do the work by the day. Since that time I have had an interview with another member of the Water Board, who, it is said, made no statement at the meeting of the committee; and he told me that he was not at all sensitive about the matter; he preferred that the City Council should direct the Water Board to do it by day's labor; he thought they had a right to do so, and that they should do it; and he preferred that course rather than that the City Council should only give them authority to do it. That is what two members of the board think, and the other member is in favor of having it done by the day. I think all three members of that board would prefer that the City Council should instruct them.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—My colleague from Charlestown states the matter peculiarly. He says, let us adhere to the order as originally passed. Now, the order as offered here did not pass at all. It was referred to the Water Committee; a resolve and order was reported by the majority of the committee, and the Board of Aldermen adopted the report of the committee to whom we referred it. I believe that either order will accomplish the purpose. If we are really sincere in desiring the work done by the day, we can attain that object through an order authorizing them, just as we can by one directing them. With those two amendments saddled on it the Board of Aldermen will never concur with us. We cannot find fault with them; they took it just as it was reported to them, and accepted that report. Now, do we want to keep backing and filling for a month or two, and letting it be delayed, when we have the strongest testimony that they will do it as we want them to do it? I contend that if we concur with the other branch it will end the matter. If we want it done by day's labor, we can effect that object by concurring with the Board of Aldermen. If we want to mix the matter up and let the contractors get it, let us adhere to the amendments. At any rate, I want a square vote, so that folks may know what we mean. Those who vote to non-concur will delay the measure, and in all probability defeat it. The question of changing the word "recommended" to "instructed" is a very small one, when either will practically amount to the same thing. If we are really sincere, and want the laboring men to get this work, I fail to see why we should not concur with the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Fraser—I was in hopes I should not be obliged to refer to it, but in conversation with a gentleman connected with the Water Department this forenoon, I found that one of those bugbears of the Aldermen came from the cities of Somerville and Chelsea; that they thought they were entitled to their pro rata share of the labor, and the Aldermen were in favor of giving it to them. I know it is just as easy for a man to be hungry in Chelsea and Somerville as it is in Boston; but in this matter I believe that charity should begin at home. I think it looks a little suspicious where so many ideas come from the Water Board. I am aware that they are trying in every way to avoid a direct answer, saying they will not do it. I failed to get that much out of them. But I stated here that they would not do it; and they say I stated it correctly. I am satisfied that if it goes down stairs again the Board of Aldermen will concur with the Council. But Alderman Thompson led them astray. He said—

"It was the opinion of the committee that they should have discretionary power, and that the City Council should state that they preferred to have the work done by day's labor, and in that case the board would endeavor to do it."

I should like to know how any gentleman in this hall can say that that was the opinion of the committee. When that question came up, the vote stood two to two; one of the Aldermen refused to vote. This appears to be a game where everybody tries to get out of it the easiest way he can. They profess to want to help the laboring people and give them work; but the only chance to give them this work is by a direct order from the City Council. One of the commissioners said, If you pass a resolve, we will take legal advice upon it, whether we should do it by contract or not. I am told that ten citizens can put an injunction upon them if they attempt to do it by contract after we pass a direct order to have it done by day's labor.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should imagine that the question of a direct order is a very small one. The gentleman who last sat down said that the laboring men of Boston should have the work to do. I understand that the people of Chelsea and Somerville have got to pay their proportionate share of this work; they might feel that they are justly entitled to a share of the work if it is to be given out to laboring men. I understand that the assessment is not to be put upon them directly; but the city is in receipt of a large sum of money from them annually, which expires after the conduit has been paid for. But if this expense can be charged to the construction of the conduit, they have got to pay their proportion.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I think this matter is assuming about as tangible shape as the Sinking Funds. The gentleman from Ward 6 makes a statement and has read a written communication from the Water Commissioners, stating what he said in the Council last week was substantially correct. He stated very positively that they would not do it unless ordered to do so. The gentleman from Ward 3 brings a communication from the same board, that in all probability they would do it if we pass the resolve. I should like to know how any gentleman here can vote intelligently upon those two reports. I think somewhat as the gentleman from Ward 3 said, that we have been backing and filling for a good while; but I think the Council has been doing all the backing and the Board of Aldermen all the filling. Now, it seems to me that what we want is simply to say that we want this work done by the Water Board by the day, and that we so desire; and I think they will then feel that they are instructed so to do. We don't know that it will be done by a resolve. Another point is that by delaying this matter we are keeping the citizens of Somerville and Chelsea and East Boston from pure water—if this sewer will give them pure water; but still they want to give it a trial. I think that delays are dangerous, and I feel like non-concurring with the Aldermen and sticking to our original order.

Mr. Beeching of Ward 1—I do not know whether there is any conflict between the communications read by the gentlemen from Wards 6 and 3; that is for the Council to judge. The question of the gentleman from Ward 6 to the committee was, "Did I make any false statement to the committee?" That is as I understood the reading of it.

Mr. Fraser—"In the Council. Was there any false statement made by me in the Council of their views before the Water Committee?" And after having the proceedings of the Council before them and referring to them carefully, they said, "none that we know of."

Mr. Beeching—I fail to see the contradiction. As I remarked before, I think too much time has been wasted upon this matter. I think there is no doubt, from the communication made to the gentleman from Ward 3, that they will do it by day's labor if we authorize them to do it. Being largely interested for the community which I represent here, I am anxious that this thing be done at once, and that it shall not be going back and forth upon a little quibble. Let us have the sewer just as soon as possible. The gentleman intimates that it may not make the water perfectly pure. It will improve it, and the nearer we get to pure water the better we shall like it. I am as anxious as is the gentleman from Ward 6 that the laboring men should have a chance to do the work.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—Two things seem to be clear. One is that the Aldermen and the majority of the Water Committee are satisfied that the Water Board, if they are allowed and recommended to do so, will have the work on the Mystic sewer done by day's labor. The other point is that we are attempting to pass an order which conflicts with an ordinance, as the President some time ago called our attention to it. Now, I have a simple suggestion to make in respect to this, and that is that, instead of insisting upon our former action in regard to this order, and also instead of concurring with the Aldermen, we drop the amendments which we passed last week, and amend the order by striking out the word "ordered" and inserting the words, "Be it ordained by the Board of Aldermen and Common Council," &c., so as to make it an ordinance. If we pass the order as it is now, either with or without the amendments passed here a week ago, it is an order conflicting with an ordinance; and I think we should certainly have enough respect for the rules under which we transact business here to observe them when we have them immediately called to our attention. For that reason I think we should not try to pass an order in violation of the rules. On the other hand, if we pass the order as it comes from the Board of Aldermen, it is simply an order giving leave, or recommending, and not an order of instruction; or, in other words, merely empowers the Water Board to do otherwise than they are compelled to do by the ordinance. The consequence will be that, after the passage of such an order, they will find themselves compelled to do it by contract. I hope gentlemen will allow the order to be amended so as to make it an ordinance, and I should then be willing to consent that the word "recommended" be used in place of "instructed," and to leave the rest of the wording as it was passed by the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—In this connection may I ask what is the status of the amendment to our rule by which an order is not to qualify an ordinance?

The President—The Chair does not remember any such alteration of the rules.

Mr. Mowry—I had the impression that an amendment was introduced by which no ordinance could be changed by an order, and that it might have been referred to the Judiciary Committee. I did not know what the status of the amendment was.

On motion of Mr. Fraser, the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Council refused to recede from the amendments—yeas 21, nays 37:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Burke, Crocker, Day, Dee, Felt, Hibbard, Morrill, Mowry, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Thordike, G. B. Webster—21.

Nays—Messrs. Barry, Blodgett, Brintnall, Brown, Clarke, Coe, Cox, Danforth, Duggan, Fagan, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, Reed, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Sibley, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—37.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Cannon, Cross, Doherty, Fernald, Hiscock, Howes, Loughlin, Mullane, Pope, Roberts, Smardon, Thompson, Upham—13.
Sent up.

DUTIES OF RETRENCHMENT COMMITTEE.

The order to excuse the Retrenchment Committee from further services, with pending substitute of Mr. Crocker of Ward 9, that said committee report whether it is true, as alleged, that it is impossible for them to hold a meeting, was considered under unfinished business.

Mr. Crocker—With the consent of the Council, I will withdraw that substitute and offer another:

Ordered, That the Joint Special Committee on Retrenchment of Municipal Expenditures be requested to report upon the subjects referred to them which have not been included in any report already made.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 moved the indefinite postponement of the subject.

The President ruled that the amendment took precedence.

The substitute was adopted.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 renewed the motion to indefinitely postpone. Lost.

The question was upon the passage of the order as amended.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I rise to a question of privilege. The reporter made some mistakes in my remarks at the last meeting, which I wish him to correct. In regard to my saying that "There are gentlemen who have feelings besides the committee," and "who will our learned friends have to refer to?" I said "learned friends"; and I did not reflect upon Mr. Thompson more than upon other gentlemen. Another mistake was in regard to the salaries of the Water Inspectors, which are $3 in Charlestown, and in Boston $2.75. He reported them as $3 in Boston and $4 in Charlestown. I should like to have those mistakes corrected.

The order as amended was passed. Sent up.

PERSONAL EXPLANATIONS.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I rise to a personal explanation. The gentleman from Ward 19 has made his explanation, and I may make mine. As this matter of the salaries of the Mystic Water Inspectors has been alluded to a good many times, I perhaps may say a word or two in regard to it. For some reason or other the Retrenchment Committee neglected to reduce the pay of the Mystic Inspectors. It was either a clerical error or else a mistake on the part of the committee—which, I don't know. I will be responsible for the mistake to the extent of one-eighth, being one-eighth of the committee. The fact of my being from Charlestown has nothing to do with it; and I leave it to the committee records to show it. When the matter was first called to my attention I was surprised that it was so. The chairman of the committee told me afterwards that he intended to introduce an order correcting the mistake, and I told him I would support it; and I did not feel called upon to say any more. It having been alluded to nine or ten times already, I hope this explanation will be sufficient. If any member of the Council or of the committee recollects any action in the committee whereby he got the idea that I intended to make any discrimination in salaries, I would like to have him make the statement.

Mr. Vose of Ward 24—I would like to say, sir, following the practice of a learned profession, that I see the quarter of my friend from Ward 3 and go him a half better.

Mr. Spenceley—It is said that an open confession is good for the soul; and I think the gentleman has got on the right track. But I would like to know when it has been alluded to nine or ten times. It was only brought up once before. I think this committee ought to be kept in force.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—While the gentleman from Ward 3 is confessing, I would like to know why, when the matter was called to his attention, on the night of the passage of this order in the Council, he could not then make any explanation, except to say that he could not explain, or had not brains enough to explain, the whole bill? On the very night the bill was passed in this branch I called attention to that fact and offered an amendment—I think I did, or some other gentleman offered one—that the pay of the Inspectors in Charlestown and Boston be the same. I think the amendment was offered, and the gentleman refused to have the report amended in that particular, and persistently pushed it through.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I rise to another personal explanation. It was deemed by the committee best to accept no amendment at all. I had signed and agreed to the report and to support the document as a whole. I admit that there were some errors in the report. In regard to the gentleman's allusion to brains, I can only say that when we are both ready to be put under the sod, I shall be glad to have a post mortem examination, and have our brains measured.

Mr. Pratt—If it be allowed, I should like to ask one more question in relation to the personal explanation of the gentleman; and that is why—in the face of the statement which he has just made, as to his pledges in regard to the report, when I charged from my place here, on the evening referred to, that the gentlemen of the Retrenchment Committee had pledged themselves, one to another, that they would carry this report through as a whole, right or wrong, just or unjust,—he denied that there was any such thing in the committee?

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I would rise to one more explanation. Not recollecting the fact that he charges, I cannot at this time deny it.

Later in the session Mr. Pratt said—I desire to say, in qualification of the remarks made a few moments ago, in regard to the gentleman from Ward 3, that in looking over the report of the proceedings when the salary bill was under discussion, I find that the question to which I referred [in regard to the agreement] was asked directly of another member of the committee, and was asked by me, as I stated. I do not find it reported that it was asked directly of the gentleman from Ward 3, although my recollection is so. As this record does not show it, I withdraw it.

VISIT TO SUDBURY RIVER WATER WORKS.

Mr. Vose of Ward 24 moved to reconsider the vote of the last meeting by which was rejected the order for a visit to the Sudbury Water Works.

The reconsideration prevailed, by a division—32 for, 15 against.

Mr. Vose moved to amend the order, by making the time Tuesday, July 10, instead of Friday, June 15.

Mr. Blodgett of Ward 8—That is a long way off, I move the order lie upon the table.

Lost, by a division—17 for, 30 against.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17 thought a good deal of information could be gained by visiting the works, as he had done on the visit to the proposed park sites, and they would thereby be enabled to vote more intelligently, if the subject came to the Council.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 explained the route of the visit last year, and thought the Council could get a very good idea of the works by going up there, which they could not get unless they visited them.

Mr. Vose's amendment was adopted.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 thought such an expenditure at this time would be rather a foolish one, although he did not wish to deprive the new members of the opportunity to see the works, which are so far advanced that little can be seen. It is unlike the visit of two years ago, when the Council was considering the large expenditure to complete the works.

Mr. Spenceley asked why it was necessary for Mr. Wilbur to go down to Deer Island—where he understood the gentleman had been today—and why he could not have communicated with the Directors for Public Institutions? Members ought to know something more of subjects that come before the City Council.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 said the money had been voted and the works partly built, and so far as the City Council is concerned they might as well visit all the engine and school houses built within the last twenty years. If the Council want to have a nice little time and feed, say so.

Mr. Spenceley said that perhaps Mr. Howes might want to have a good time seeing the water works, but other gentlemen might not care so much for the good time as for information. He did not. They should see what is going on. They ought to know more about the schoolhouses. If they all knew about the Adams Schoolhouse it would not stay there long. If they visited the Fire Department he thought they would have voted more cheerfully to give the firemen a vacation when it came up. Matters are referred to committees because members know nothing about the subjects; and if they heard and saw more of these things they would know more.

The order was passed—yeas 39, nays 17:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Clarke, Cox, Day, Dee, Duggan, Fagan, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Hibbard, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Perham, Pope, Pratt, Roach, Ruffin, Shepard, Spenceley, Thorndike, Vose, E. R. Webster—39.

Nays—Messrs. Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Felt, Ham, Howes, Mowry, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Sampson, Stone, Warren, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—17.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Cannon, Cross, Doherty, Fernald, Hiscock, Loughlin, Mullane, Pearl, Reed, Roberts, Sibley, Smardon, Souther, Thompson, Upham—15.

Sent up.

Subsequently Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 offered an order—That the City Messenger be requested to invite the members of the Water Board, the City Engineer and assistants, and the reporters of the proceedings of the City Council, to attend the visit of the Council to Sudbury River on Tuesday, July 10, 1877. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

SCHOOLHOUSES.

A request was received from the School Committee for immediate arrangements so that teachers and pupils may enjoy the benefits derived from the centralization of the Allston School. Referred to Joint Committee on Public Instruction. Sent up.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

By Mr. Howes of Ward 18—Petitions of George P. Baldwin, for leave to surrender to city a certain tax title to estate on Columbus avenue, and that the money paid therefor be refunded; and Isabella C. Jordan, to be compensated for personal injuries caused by a sled on Boston Common. Severally referred to the Joint Committee on Claims. Sent up.

CLAIMS.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Claims, with an order—That there be allowed and paid to Robert Higgins, for compensation for personal injuries received by him, caused by a defect in Eutaw street, near the corner of Marion street, the sum of $800, upon his giving to the city a release and discharge satisfactory to the City Solicitor from all costs, damages and expenses incurred in consequence of said injuries.

Ordered to a second reading.

ARMY AND NAVY MONUMENT.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 submitted the following:

The Joint Special Committee on Army and Navy Monument, who were requested to consider and report in what way the Army and Navy Monument shall be dedicated on the 17th day of September next, having carefully considered the subject, beg leave to submit the following report:

As the occasion will be one in which all military organizations, both active and veteran, have a peculiar interest, the committee are of the opinion that these organizations should be given a prominent place in the ceremonies of the day. They therefore recommend that arrangements be made for a military parade and procession, in which the Grand Army of the Republic, the Massachusetts Commandery of the Loyal Legion, veteran soldiers and sailors and all civic organizations be invited to join, and which will be escorted by the First and Second brigades, M. V. M.

Your committee have conferred with the representatives of the several organizations, all of whom expressed themselves in favor of such a parade and procession, and it is believed that a very fine display will be made. The railroad companies will transport uniformed bodies at reduced rates, which will afford an opportunity for all organizations in the State to visit the city and join the procession at a very moderate expense. The committee also recommend that arrangements be made for suitable dedicatory services at the monument, including an oration, etc. They also recommend that the President of the United States, the State authorities and the officers of the army and navy stationed in this city, be invited to participate in the observance of the day.

An approximate estimate has been prepared of the expense which the city will be called upon to bear, amounting in the total to $22,500, and the committee respectfully recommend the passage of an order appropriating that amount.

FRANCIS THOMPSON.
CHARLES W. WILDER.
LOWELL B. HISCOCK.
JAMES J. FLYNN.
JAMES H. NUGENT.

Committee.

Ordered, That the Committee on Army and Navy Monument be authorized to make suitable arrangements for dedicating the Army and Navy Monument on Boston Common, on the 17th of September next, at an expense not exceeding $22,500; to be charged to the appropriation for Incidentals.

The question was on giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10 moved that it be laid on the table.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the order will not be laid upon the table. It will lie over one week anyway. It should not be laid on the table anyway, because if these arrangements are to be made it should be done immediately, and the Council should pass the appropriation as soon as possible. If we are to have the celebration, the sooner we know it the better for the committee to make the arrangements. It is not treating the committee with proper courtesy to lay it on the table. I did not intend to press the order this evening, knowing it would lie over one week.

The motion to lay on the table was lost.

The order was passed to a second reading.

BUILDINGS TO BE INSPECTED.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 18 offered an order—That the Inspector of Buildings be requested to examine the building called Hotel Fred, situated at No. 72 Sawyer street, and said to be owned by C. J. Spenceley, which is claimed to be insufficiently supplied with means of egress, and report if said building is safe.

The order was passed to a second reading.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I do not know what animosity the gentleman who offered the order has against me. I hope the order will prevail, and that the building will be inspected. It was built within the last year, and if it is not built in the way in which it ought to be built, it is the duty of the Inspector to know it. He has been there very often and seen the building. I think any gentleman can see the point of the gentleman from Ward 18. I am surprised at it myself; and surely I am ashamed for him. But still if he wants to have the building inspected, I hope it will be done.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 18—I was requested to offer the order. I have no feeling in the matter in any shape or fashion.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 moved to strike out the words, "said to be owned by C. J. Spenceley." Carried.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I move that the order lie on the table. If anything needs to be inspected in this building, all the gentleman has to do is to call the attention of the Inspector to it. I do not see the necessity of passing the order. It is like showing too much feeling, and I don't think it fair to drag anybody into the Council. If there are any grievances to be rectified let it be done in a proper way.

The order was laid upon the table.

Subsequently Mr. McDonald of Ward 12 offered an order—That the Inspector of Buildings be, and he hereby is, requested to have the building No. 267 Federal street, corner of East, wherein gunpowder is offered for sale, inspected at once; and if, in his judgment, said gunpowder is dangerous to be sold on those premises, that further sale of the same be prohibited.

Mr. McDonald—The lesson which we have just received from the Shawmut-avenue fire should not be forgotten; and it surely never will be by the friends and relatives of those who lost their lives at that sad catastrophe. In order to prevent a repetition of the same, I offer this order tonight that these premises might be inspected wherein is this gunpowder. I know they are occupied by quite a number of families, and I think it should be looked after. It is a tenement house, with thirty or forty families in it; and I firmly believe it is no place for gunpowder to be sold. I therefore trust that this order will be passed, and that the premises will be examined immediately.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope the same disposition will be made of this order that was made of the other one. If gunpowder is stored there, it is done by license from the Fire Commissioners. If there is anything wrong about that house, I hope the gentleman will go to the Inspector and make a complaint.

On motion of Mr. McGaragle, the order was laid on the table.

UNSAFE BUILDINGS.

Mr. Barnard of Ward 24 offered an order—That the building owned by the city situated on Mill street, Ward 24, known as the Tide Mill, be removed, as it is in an unsafe and dangerous condition. Referred to Joint Committee on Streets, on motion of Mr. Barnard. Sent up.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Boston Land Company vs. Boston, Winthrop & Point Shirley Railroad Company. On petition of the Boston Land Company, for assessment of damages for the construction of the Boston, Winthrop & Point Shirley Railroad over their estate, which was considered on an order of notice for a hearing, no one appeared to object.

Alderman Clark, from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board, submitted an order adjudging said damages at five dollars, and requiring said railroad company to give a bond of $5000 for the payment of such further damages as may be awarded to the petitioners from said railroad company. Order read twice and passed.

South Boston Railroad Company. On petition of the South Boston Railroad Company, for leave to lay down tracks in Canal street and in Market street, which was considered on an order of notice for a hearing, Mr. Crosby, president of the railroad company, appeared and said the object of the location was to enable the cars, in passing from the northern depots towards South Boston, to go along the southwesterly side of the Boston & Maine Depot, to accommodate passengers there, instead of their having to cross Haymarket square to Merrimac street, as they do now when they wish to take a South Boston car. Canal street is fifty-six feet in width, and there is ample room for the hacks to back up to the depot on one side of the street and for teams to back up to the stores on the other. There are no stores opening on Market street and the cars will not interfere with traffic. The plan presented at the last meeting by the Middlesex Railroad Company interferes with this one; but the South Boston Company are willing to have it straightened. The president of the Metropolitan road had intended to carry out this project, and the South Boston Company will not object to the Metropolitan cars using the location.

Mr. Powers, president of the Middlesex road, presented a plan of the location at that point, asked for last week, which was asked for last year. He suggested that the connection he proposed would be a straight one, instead of a curve as proposed by the South Boston Railroad Company, who do not object to it.

E. W. James desired a condition put in the order that the track be built in one year, and that the company pay its proportion of repaving Market street.

P. A. Collins appeared for the firms doing business on Market and Canal streets, to remonstrate against the location, and submitted a remonstrance signed by J. S. Paine, A. Hoyt & Sons, William F. Wade & Sons, and others. The objection was that the track is not needed, and it will be a great inconvenience and injury to the firms doing business there, as there are many heavy teams which pass there. If they have the tracks they must get rid of the hotel coaches or else stop doing business there. Canal and Market streets are overcrowded already.

Mr. Crosby said they were there with the assent of the officers of the Boston & Maine road, and Mr. Furber would have appeared but for the death of his wife.

The subject was recommitted to the Committee on Paving.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions, etc., were referred in concurrence.

Order for Committee, on Retrenchment to report upon any unfinished matters in their charge. Passed in concurrence.

An order for the removal of the "tide-mill" on Mill street came up referred to the Joint Committee on Streets. Concurred.

ALLSTON SCHOOL.

A request of committee for the centralization of the Allston School came up referred to Joint Committee on Public Instruction, as follows:

Whereas, In School Committee June 8, 1875, and Feb. 29, 1876, two several orders were adopted requesting the City Council to furnish additional accommodations for the Harvard, now Allston School; and

Whereas, An appropriation was made by the City Government in the early part of the year 1876, to purchase a lot of land upon which to erect a building for the accommodation of said school; and

Whereas, The City Council, although invited with the authority and supplied with the means to purchase a lot of land for the purpose mentioned, have down to the present time omitted to do so; and

Whereas, In consequence of the want of a suitable building to meet the wants of a rapidly increasing district, the expenses of the city have been increased by the employment of two additional teachers, $1600, the hire of two separate buildings, $800, and fuel and janitor service, $514, amounting in gross to the sum of $2914; and

Whereas, By colonizing the school in four separate buildings, much of the efficiency of the prinincipal of the school is lost, and the time of the pupils sacrificed, therefore, be it

Ordered, That the City Council be requested to make some immediate arrangement whereby the benefits that would result by a centralization of the Allston Grammar School may be enjoyed by the teachers and pupils belonging to said school.

Committee on Eighth Division.

Alderman Thompson—That communication is intended as a reflection upon the action of the Committee on Public Instruction. In the fourth whereas they state that the City Council have authority to purchase land for the schoolhouse, and the committee thought they had until Saturday afternoon. I desire, personally, to state the facts concerning this matter which has been intrusted to the Committee on Public Instruction and by them referred to a sub-committee. It came before the committee last summer after the appropriation had been made and was referred to a sub-committee of which I had the honor of being chairman, and Councilman Pearl, who is also in the Common Council this year, was associated with me. In the month of August we advertised for proposals from those who desired to sell land to the city for a school site, and we had several proposals. Unfortunately, the district is peculiarly situated. The Boston & Albany Railroad runs through the centre of the district, so that there are but three more pupils on one side of the track than on the other, and the parties living on each side of the road want it on their respective sides. The committee were limited to a very few lots. In answer to their advertisement they found that parties were asking from seventy to eighty per cent. more than the Assessors' valuation, and consequently they did not deem it wise to recommend the purchase of those lots by the city. The season wore away, the winter came, and the matter went over to this City Council. Early in the year the subject came before the committee and was again referred to a sub-committee, who have endeavored to procure a lot for this building. I do not know how many visits the sub-committee have made with a view of securing lots. At their request the members of the School Board for that district designated some five lots that they would be satisfied with; the committee took the City Architect there and he condemned three of the lots as unsuitable. The parties required the same price, seventy to eighty per cent. above the valuation of last year, and probably a larger per cent. this year. The committee, in connection with the members of the School Board, found no difficulty in obtaining a desirable lot on the other side of the street. Meantime, while the sub-committee were devoting themselves to this matter, the members of the School Board were writing to each of the members of the Committee on Public Instruction, and reflecting upon the conduct of the committee. It was no longer than Saturday last, without knowing that that communication had been sent to the City Council, that four members were out upon this very business, among them the President of the Common Council; and those who were present heartily approved of every step that the sub-committee had taken. I am happy to say we begin to see our way out of this difficulty. Parties realize that they cannot expect the committee to recommend the city to purchase land at those exorbitant rates, and they have come down in their prices. Just before closing a trade the committee were informed that before it could be done the matter must go back to the School Committee to be approved by a majority of that board. That is very singular action on the part of the School Board, when they have appointed a committee to designate what lots they will be satisfied with, and when the committee of the City Council get ready for the purchase of those lots, then to be informed that it must go back to them for their approval. Now they [the City Council] have no authority to buy the lot, and I desire that that communication be sent back to the source whence it came, that the School Board may give the City Council that authority which they say we have; and then I hope to be able to settle it. It is a very difficult thing for the city to purchase a site for a schoolhouse lot, because we must take such lots as are designated by the School Committee. Up to the present time the Committee on Public Instruction supposed that they had the authority; but they have not. Neither I nor the Committee on Public Instruction desire to take one step further in this matter until we are clothed with authority. My predecessors on the committee had the same difficulty in selecting a site for a schoolhouse in South Boston, and it was some four years before they were able to make a purchase. It is in consequence of there being restricted to sites approved by the School Committee. The Committee on Public Instruction fully approve the action of the School Board, and there has been no one matter in which I have taken more pains and endeavored more earnestly to perform my duty than in this. If the Board approve my course in this matter I hope they will let the communication go back to the School Committee to make good their statement in the fourth whereas. When this communication was presented to the Common Council the preamble was not read; if it had been understood, I am of the opinion that it would not have been allowed to come to us in this form.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope we shall keep up no wrangle with the School Committee in this matter. I presume it is a device by which the School Board want to get the City Council to give accommodations for that district. What Alderman Thompson said is correct. The committee refused to pay an exorbitant price for the land, because they believed it would be cheating the city. What he says of the approval of the School Board is true, because the amendment to the city charter establishing the new School Board makes it obligatory upon that board to approve the site for the location of a schoolhouse. It is the sixth section of the act creating the new School Board.

"Whenever, in the judgment of the School Committee, a new building or any addition to or alteration of a building is needed for school purposes, of an estimated cost of over one thousand dollars, they shall make a statement in writing to the City Council of the necessity of the proposed building, addition or alteration; and no contract for the purchase or lease of land, or for the erection, purchase or lease of any building, or for any addition to or alteration of any building for school purposes, shall be authorized by the City Council until such statement has been made, nor until the locality and plans for the same have been approved by the School Committee or by a sub-committee thereof, duly authorized to approve the same."

The sub-committee on schoolhouses can approve it. The Alderman's friend from Charlestown—Mr. Capen, I believe—is chairman of that committee, and I think there would not be any great difficulty, especially when they have selected four or five lots which we can buy. While I thoroughly agree with the Alderman in his views, I hope he will find some other means of gaining his object than sending it back. I move that it be laid on the table if the Alderman does not object.

Alderman Thompson—I do not know as I object to the communication being laid upon the table; but I desire the School Board to make the assertion in the fourth whereas true and correct. I desire them not to come here and state that we have authority, when we have not. On Saturday afternoon we had pretty much come to the conclusion of the trade, and were very much astonished by the members of the School Board informing us, "Gentlemen, you must not go too far, because you have got to go back to the School Board for their approval." As a member of that committee I do not propose to take another step until I have the authority. We have had enough boys' play about this. It requires a great deal of time, and there are embarrassments enough outside of the School Board without embarrassing those who have this in charge. It is one of the most difficult things the committee have been occupied with. We do not propose to go out and say so and so. We want the authority to act when parties are ready to meet us. We do not want to go back and submit our views before we get their approval. When they have designated a lot for us to buy, we want to go on and buy it. I want the School Board to approve one of two lots, and then the committee can go on and buy one.

The communication was laid on the table.

Alderman Thompson moved that the School Board be requested to approve one of the lots selected by their sub-committee, that the committee may go on and complete the arrangements now under way for the purchase.

The motion prevailed and was sent down in the form of the following order:

Ordered, That the Board of School Committee be requested to indicate to the City Council which of the sites in the Allston School District, selected by their sub-committee for a new schoolhouse, will be satisfactory to said School Committee; and that the City Council be informed at an early day of the result of their choice.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

The resolve and order relating to labor on Mystic Valley sewer came up with the adherence on part of the Common Council to their amendments, by which the Boston Water Board are "instructed" to make use of "day-labor" and to divide the same pro rata among the several wards of this city.

Alderman Thompson—When this matter was returned to the Council I notice that my action was criticised somewhat by an esteemed personal friend, a member of the Water Committee, who was present at our interview with the Water Board. He stated (page 427 of the minutes)—

"When the order was going through, the other evening, Alderman Thompson stated (page 425 of the Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen), in talking about this contract, and he gave the Board of Aldermen to understand, that there was some contract in existence which would seriously interfere with it. I find that it is a contract made by Charlestown with Somerville, eight years before the Mystic Valley sewer was ever thought of. I have shown it to all the legal gentlemen here tonight, and they do not see anything whatever in conflict with doing it by day's labor."

I will read a little farther; but meantime I have a communication which I will read to the Board. Having had considerable experience as a member of the Mystic Water Board for several years, and a member of the Committee on Water, it occurred to me, a week ago last Monday, in the latter part of the evening, when this question was under consideration, that there might be complications with parties who use the Mystic water and are interested in the works. I have in my hand the Somerville Journal, published on Saturday, June 16, and in the records of the Board of Aldermen of Somerville I find that—

"The regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen was held on Monday evening, all the members being present, and Mayor Belknap presiding. * * * Hon. C. E. Rymes sent a communication to the Board, calling their attention to the fact that the city of Boston had voted to construct a sewer in Mystic Valley, and to employ none but Boston laborers. It was voted to send to the City Council of Boston the following resolve."

That was at the very time I was speaking of this matter. I knew nothing of it, although I called attention to the subject. The resolve is as follows:

"CITY OF SOMERVILLE,
IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN,
June 11, 1877.

"Whereas, It appears by a report of the proceedings of the Board of Aldermen of the city of Boston, at a meeting held on the 5th instant, it was ordered, 'That in the construction of the proposed sewer in the Mystic Valley, the Boston Water Board be authorized and recommended to have the work done by day labor, provided that none but citizens of Boston shall be employed,' thereby varying from the prudent and careful manner in which said city usually causes the construction of its public works by proposal and contract;—the purpose of said proposed sewer to be the preservation from impurities of Mystic Lake, from which this city is supplied with water; and, whereas, by the terms of an existing contract between the town of Somerville and the city of Charlestown (since annexed to Boston), whereby the city of Somerville will be entitled to a modification of the water rates to be charged, or percentage of return thereon, upon the liquidation of the water debt of said city of Boston, incurred by the construction and completion of the Mystic Water Works, all additions to said debt will necessarily postpone the time at which the water rates to be received will be sufficient for the payment of said debt, the inhabitants of this city, by payment of water rates to said city of Boston, becoming largely thereby the payers of said debt, it is

"Resolved that the city of Somerville respectfully request the city of Boston to use such means in the construction of said sewers as will cause the work to be done in the most economical manner compatible with a proper construction of said sewer; and that all provisions looking to an exclusion of residents in Somerville from laboring on the works, be abrogated; and the Committee on Water, in connection with the Water Board of this city, are authorized and instructed to confer with the proper authorities of the city of Boston in relation to the subject matter of this resolve."

The preamble and resolve were passed last Monday about the time we were considering the subject here. [Reading]:

"The regular meeting of the Common Council was held on Wednesday evening. * * * Papers from the upper branch were concurred in."

I presume that in due course we will have that communication here. That answers the objection I raised, and which the legal members of the Council could not see had any bearing. The Councilman goes on to say—

"I do not like to impute any wrong motives to the Alderman; but I am unwilling to trust the laboring men in the possession of some Aldermen."

Now, all the members of this Board of Aldermen have voted that the work of constructing this sewer should be performed by the laboring men of Boston, and I do not see where that applies with any force. [Reading]:

"I don't care how high-toned they may be; for I find that some of the Aldermen, last fall, having charge of departments in City Hall, undertook to 'bulldoze' laboring men and keep them away from their voting places."

Well, that undoubtedly refers to one Alderman who was a member last year, but who was not returned this year. I am quite sure it does not mean me. [Reading]:

"For that and several other reasons, I want this Council to express, by their vote, that they want this work done by day's labor. Alderman Thompson says in one place that combinations might arise, which would affect the building of this sewer; he says the City Engineer was out of town and could not be seen by the committee; but in answer to a direct question by Alderman O'Brien he states that the City Engineer did suggest some combinations."

Now, Mr. Mayor, without explanation, what the Councilman says is strictly true, and without explanation it places me in a very inconsistent position. At the meeting of the committee, when this matter came before them, I desired the City Engineer to be present, but was informed that he was out of town. As we discussed the subject I inquired what does the City Engineer say about this? and that was the answer given me—he said so and so. From those proceeds it would be made to appear that I stated that he was not there and afterwards said he was there. But that is the way it came about. Later on the same gentleman says—

"I am satisfied that if it goes down stairs again the Board of Aldermen will concur with the Council. But Alderman Thompson led them astray."

Now, I don't know whether it is a compliment to me. If it is a compliment to me, it certainly is not a compliment to the other members of this Board if they were led astray by me. I simply stated, the other evening, what I really thought, and the action of the Somerville City Council seems to substantiate the position I took. [Reading]:

"He said [referring to Alderman Thompson], 'It was the opinion of the committee that they should have discretionary power, and that the City Council should state that they preferred to have the work done by day's labor, and in that case the board would endeavor to do it.' I should like to know how any gentleman in this hall can say that was the opinion of the committee. When that question came up, the vote stood 2 to 2; one of the Aldermen refused to vote."

I don't know. I should not say I refused to vote. I might not have answered, yea or nay at the time, but I have expressed my opinions and given my reasons; and I think it was thoroughly understood by the members of the committee that we stood 3 to 2. I did not know that by not saying yes or no it was to be implied that I was undecided. It was my opinion that some discretionary power should be given the Water Board. Now, I maintain that there is quite a point in this position. We can act as we have already done—pass a vote that the work shall be done by the laboring men of Boston; but when we come to order the Water Board to do it by day's labor, I think that is very different from giving them discretion to do it by day's labor if they choose. They can do it by day's labor if we take the position that we did the other night; but when we come to order them to do it by day's labor, they have no discretion at all, and we must take the responsibility for the whole of the change. The Councilman goes on to say—

"This appears to be a game where everybody tries to get out of it the easiest way he can. They profess to want to help the laboring people and give them work; but the only chance to give them this work is by a direct order from the City Council."

Well, I don't know that I want to get out of anything. I am willing to state my position and what I believe is for the interest of the city and for the laboring men. We have expressed our opinion about the laboring men, and propose to give them work. But it is not for our interest to interfere with other parties who have some rights. Now, I desire to say, in my position as a former member of the Mystic Water Board, that we have had these parties with us several times, when they have petitioned to have their water rates reduced, or, rather, a large percentage allowed to them; and we have told them it was but a question of time when the debt would be paid and then they would have their rates very much reduced. We have given them to understand that they were mutually interested in keeping the rates at just what the citizens of Boston were paying; because when the debt was paid off they would participate in the reduced cost of water. That is the position the Mystic Water Board have taken when the subject came before them on several occasions; and even at the present time those places have petitions before the Water Board for the reduction of their rates, and that will be the position this Board will probably take, for I see there is no other. When the contracts are once changed and when the gate is once opened there is no knowing where it will go to. My opinion is that the Water Board cannot reduce them until the debt is paid. Now, I hardly know how to get out of this difficulty unless a committee of conference be appointed. I am quite sure the members of this Board do not want the laborers taken pro rata from the different wards. That will make a great deal of trouble; and I don't think the Council desire it. In regard to this communication from the city of Somerville, I think, as a matter of courtesy, we should consider this matter carefully; and perhaps it would be wise, in view of the embarrassment, to have a committee of conference. If any member objects to it I hope he will make some proposition.

Alderman O'Brien—After we have heard the resolutions of the aldermen of Somerville I don't know that there is any alternative but for this Board to step down and ask them for instructions how we shall do our work. As I look upon it, the aldermen of Somerville have no more to do with this business than the man in the moon has. We have a right to construct our sewers in our own way, and the aldermen of Somerville have no right to interfere whatever. If the Board desire to build this sewer by day's labor, the only alternative for them is to instruct the Water Board to do it. If they do not instruct the Water Board to build it by day's labor they cannot do it except by contract, unless they set aside an ordinance, and that they would not do on the recommendation of the Board of Aldermen. Have the Aldermen read the ordinance creating the Water Board? That explains this matter precisely, and it would be well to consider it. Section 3 of the ordinance creating the Boston Water Board provides that said board "Shall have and exercise all the powers vested in, and shall perform all the duties prescribed to the Cochituate Water Board and the Mystic Water Board by statutes and ordinances now in force, subject, however, to the authority of the City Council, from time to time, by ordinances, orders and resolutions to instruct said board, and to change and limit its powers."

The very ordinance creating the Water Board says that if we want them to do a thing, we must instruct them by ordinance, by an order or a resolution; and if you want this work done by day's labor you will have to instruct them, or else it will not be done. I do not believe in doing the city work by day's labor, as a general thing. I believe in doing it by contract. But when I know that the town of Brookline is building a large sewer by the day, and that they will not employ any one in connection with that work except a citizen of Brookline; when I know that laboring men can scarcely cross the Brookline line, looking for employment, because they consider it dangerous to do so; when I know that the city of Newton is carrying on great improvements and will employ none but citizens of Newton; when I know that Cambridge and even Somerville employ none but their own citizens, I say we ought to protect our laborers and give them work, and no others. It is our work. I do not believe in it as a principle; there is a little too much Know-nothingism about it. Still, I look upon it, at present, as a protection, and I believe we ought to protect our laborers and give them this work, when all the surrounding towns and cities are doing the same act towards theirs. I repeat again, that we should take the responsibility in this matter. We have no right to recommend the Water Board to set aside an ordinance. They cannot do it on our recommendation. We must instruct them according to the letter of the ordinance that created them; and if you want this work done by day's labor you will have to instruct them, and I hope the order will pass as it came to us from the Council. I will except the pro rata amendment, because I think it will be a difficult thing to manage. I wish to instruct the Water Board, but I would consent to the pro rata amendment rather than have the work delayed longer.

On motion of Alderman Wilder the question was divided.

The Board concurred in the amendment instructing the Water Board to perform the work by day's labor, and on motion of Alderman Fitzgerald non-concurred in the amendment to distribute the labor pro rata among the wards. Sent down.

PUBLIC LANDS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Lands:

Report and order to cancel bond of $2401, No.

2368, given by Stephen H. Tarbell, Feb. 10, 1870, for land on East Fourth street, upon the surrender of the same; and to issue a new agreement to John Carew with all conditions of the previous one, excepting the reference to the time for building upon said land, and for a bond of $308.28, payable in eight annual instalments at six per cent., from July 2, 1877. Order read twice and passed. Sent down.

Report and order to cancel bond No. 2428 given for land on Albany street and East Newton street, amounting to $4819, upon his surrendering the agreements received from the city; and to issue two new agreements in the name of Martin Hayes, with all the conditions in the previous ones, except the one relating to the time for building on said land, upon his giving two bonds of $3207.40 and $1920.82 respectively, payable in four years at six per cent. from July 2, 1877. Order read twice and passed. Sent down.

Report and order—That the two lots of land upon Albany and East Dedham streets, which the city has agreed to convey to Richard Leeds or his assignees, be conveyed to G. A. P. Darling upon the payment by him of all sums due on account thereof, and upon the terms and conditions set forth in said city's agreement to said Leeds, dated June 1, 1871, except that no time be fixed within which a building shall be erected on said lots. Order read twice and passed. Sent down.

SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The order for the Sealer of Weights and Measures to employ Daniel C. Hunt as an assistant in that department at the usual salary, $800, was considered under unfinished business.

The question was upon the passage of the order. Alderman Slade—I do not know, certainly, as that order need be passed after all. I offered it the other day when it seemed to me that it was necessary for the sealers to have this additional help. They have got along very well this week, they say, and are under the impression that they will get along without help. I do not care to press the order at all, and move that it lie upon the table.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Would it not be better to indefinitely postpone the order than to have it lie upon the table and cumber the order of proceedings?

Alderman Slade said he did not object to the indefinite postponement, and on motion of Alderman Fitzgerald the order was indefinitely postponed.

Later in the session Alderman Dunbar submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Salaries, to whom was referred the order providing that the Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures shall be paid by fees, and who were also requested to report an order establishing the salaries to be paid such officers, that having considered the subject, respectfully recommend the passage of an order—That the salary of each Deputy Sealer of Weights and Measures be established at the rate of $1000 per annum, beginning with the date of appointment and qualification, and continuing until otherwise ordered.

Councilman James H. Danforth, a member of the Committee on Salaries, respectfully dissents from the foregoing report and recommends the passage of the order referred to the committee, in a new draft, as follows: That the Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures shall receive for compensation the fees as set forth in section 14 of chapter 51 of the General Statutes, and when the amount of fees which each Deputy Sealer shall receive exceeds the sum of $1000 per annum, the residue shall be paid into the city treasury.

On motion of Alderman Dunbar, the order was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Alderman Clark—I believe the Retrenchment Committee made a report recommending that this salary be $800, which the assistant sealers have been receiving up to the present time. Now here is a launch into extravagance before the year is ended—raising the salaries from $800 to $1000. Mr. Hunt has been receiving $800 since the 1st of April, and he is a competent man; and here it is proposed to give four incompetent men $1000—men who acknowledge themselves unable to balance a scale or seal a measure. It seems to me that the minority report will better accomplish the end sought for than to fix a salary, because in order to get some pay they have got to do some work, and go around town and see that every scale is properly balanced and every measure properly sealed. I believe that the labor would be performed more promptly and satisfactorily if they received pay in fees than it would if they are paid by a fixed salary; at all events, I should hope we would not commence increasing salaries in this direction, for I do not think it would be judicious under the circumstances.

Alderman Wilder—I would ask the Alderman if there is any law by which a sealer of weights and measures can collect fees.

Alderman Clark—I have no doubt there is such a law. I am not prepared to answer the question, because I have had no occasion to look it up and get informed upon that point. I presume the Alderman from the Twenty-first Ward is posted in such matters and can answer that question.

Alderman Wilder—I believe I am warranted in saying, not upon the authority of the City Solicitor personally given to me, but from the City Solicitor through the Sealer of Weights and Measures, that there is no such law for the collection of any fees for that service except in certain cases for sealing coal scales, something that cannot be transported to the office. There is a very small fee allowed to be collected for the usual amount charged for transporting weights and the necessary implements to and from the location of the scales for the performance of the work. This may be wrong information; it came to me second-hand, not from the City Solicitor.

Alderman Slade—The law, as it was changed by the Legislature this year, seemed so dark that the committee could not understand it; and the City Solicitor was brought before the committee to give his views upon it, and he admitted himself that in some instances it was liable to a different construction, and suits might possibly arise out of it, when both parties might think they are right. The committee were of opinion that the duties should be paid for by salaries instead of by fees. I have no doubt that fees can be collected where we pay no salaries; but if we pay a salary, then the fees cannot be collected. Now, for myself, I do not believe that it is best to pay the salaries by fees. The majority of the committee were of that opinion. I believe if it is necessary that scales should be sealed once a year to protect the public that the public should pay for it. When I know, as a dealer—and I am using scales every day—that my scales are correct—and if I don't know it I want to know it, and every honest man will—I do not know why I should be called upon every year to pay more or less dollars to protect the public. I think this is one of those cases where the public should pay the salaries. It is for the public protection, if there is any protection at all. The Board of Aldermen will generally recollect, I think, that when the fee system was in force several years ago, it caused a great deal of ill feeling among dealers and merchants having new scales, to have a sealer step in every year and seal his scales and charge him fees when he knew his scales were correct; and there was so much dissatisfaction among dealers in that respect that the city changed the system and paid the sealers by salary. I trust the city will continue in that way; for I think the point is that if it is proper that the public should be protected, the public should pay for that protection. I am satisfied that my scales are correct, and so is every man who is honest. If a man is dishonest, you may seal his scales every day and he will be dishonest still. So far as the salaries are concerned, the two assistants to Mr. Reed got $800 a year; but they had no authority to seal scales, as the seal had to be put on everything to make it legal. Now the deputies have the same authority to seal a scale with the sealer himself. I trust they will be paid by salaries.

Alderman Clark—In answer to the question whether there was any law for them to charge fees, I will read section 14 of chapter 51.

"In those cities or towns where a salary is paid to the Sealer of Weights and Measures no fees shall be charged for such services. In other cities and towns the said sealers shall receive the compensation set forth in section 14 of chapter 51 of the General Statutes."

Now, Mr. Mayor, section 14 of chapter 51 says—
"Each sealer of weights and measures, including the deputy of the treasurer and county treasurers, shall receive a fee of three cents for every weight, measure, scale, beam, or balance, by him sealed, except platform balances. For sealing each platform balance weighing 5000 pounds and upwards, the sealer shall receive one dollar, and for each platform balance weighing less, fifty cents. Every dealer shall also have a seasonable compensation for all repairs, alterations, and adjustments, which it is necessary for him to make."

That is the answer I make to the question. The statutes of the State provide for fees to be charged. It seems to me the scales and weights would be more likely to be sealed if they have to collect fees for their services than if they are left at a salary of $800 a year. We have a right to pay them a salary, or they have a right to collect fees.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope the Aldermen will think this matter over before they vote to pass this order. It is true, as the Alderman has said, while the Retrenchment Committee reported this salary at $800, it was so small they thought it would not be just to cut it down, and they did not raise it; and the Chairman of the Board of Aldermen very justly says he hopes this Board will not increase a salary which the committee did not increase. He was under the impression that they cut it down, which they did not. They cut down the salary of the sealer, but not that of the deputy. I only hope and wish that the Alderman on the other side will go with the Retrenchment Committee in all their measures and be as zealous in upholding their cause as he is on this occasion. I think with him that fees would be better than a salary; it would be less expensive to the city. I advocated it in the Retrenchment Committee and when this question first came before the Board; and I am of the same opinion now. The weights and measures can be sealed and adjusted and the fees collected, and if the parties refuse to have their weights and measures adjusted there is a penalty of ten dollars affixed by the statute. Any persons who refuse to have their weights and measures sealed have to pay double fees when the sealer has to go to their houses or stores; and together with the penalty there is a certain amount to go into the hands of the complainant. I shall vote for the minority report, and if that fails I shall move that the salary be fixed at $3 for each working day.

Alderman Slade—It may possibly look like a saving to the city, but to the people of the city it is no saving. The men doing business have got to take four or five dollars apiece out of their pockets, while if paid by the city it would not be a cent apiece for each man. I do not like the idea; I do not think it is right. If the scales are to be sealed to protect the public, the public should pay for it. It is an extra burden and I do not think the dealers should be compelled to hear it.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved to substitute the minority report for that of the majority.

Alderman Clark called for the yeas and nays, and the minority report was substituted for that of the majority—yeas 7, nays 4:

Yeas—Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Fitzgerald, O'Brien, Robinson, Thompson, Viles—7.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Dunbar, Slade, Wilder—4
Absent—Alderman Gibson.

Alderman Wilder called for the yeas, and the minority order was passed—yeas 7, nays 4—the same as before. Sent down.

ASPHALT PAVEMENT.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Ordered, That the Committee on Paving be authorized to pave Columbus avenue from the Boston & Albany Railroad Bridge to West Chester park with asphalt pavement; the expense thereof, not exceeding $3.50 per yard, to be charged to the appropriation for Paving.

Alderman Thompson—That order seems to be written in a different manner from orders usually. I should like to know the amount that it is expected to expend under that order.

Alderman Robinson—It was not intended that the order should take its second reading tonight, but to lie upon the table until further notice. The committee are not yet decided about the asphalt; but they believe that asphalt will be better for that street than granite blocks.

Alderman Thompson—The chairman did not answer my question. It is to be done at $3.50 a square yard; how many square yards are there?

Alderman Robinson—I have an idea that there are about 18,000 square yards, and it will cost between $50,000 and $60,000.

The order went over.

SUPERINTENDENT OF PERMITS FOR OCCUPATION OF PARTS OF STREETS.

Alderman Breck offered an order—That the Mayor be authorized to appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Board of Aldermen, a competent person to have charge of permits for the occupation of the sidewalks for building purposes; under the supervision of the Chief of Police; the compensation of the person so appointed, not to exceed the sum of four dollars per day, payable monthly from the date of his appointment, and to be charged to the appropriation for Police.

Alderman Breck moved the reference of the order to the Committee on Police.

Alderman Clark—Does that order contemplate adding one more member to the Police Department?

Alderman Breck—It does not. It makes the duties so that we are not obliged to take another man from the police force. This officer is very necessary in putting up new buildings, and he has to go wherever the Chief sees fit to send him, and this saves him one man on the police force. We need every man we have there.

Alderman Clark—But I understand that the man who has had charge of that department was a police officer, and I think the office should be filled by a policeman. It does, as I claim, add one man to the police force of the city of Boston, at a cost of $1000 a year, and makes an increase of sixteen men instead of fifteen. If one man was taken from the department to perform that duty why not take another man from the department in his place? Let us put the thing as it is. It is adding one man to the Police Department.

Alderman Robinson—It is to be referred to the Police Committee; but it has not been acted upon.

Alderman Clark—But I want that question decided before it is referred, with all due respect to the committee. It adds one more man to the police force. The man who has had charge of the building permits has resigned or been discharged, and this is to fill his place. I should presume it was necessary for a man to be clothed with police power to fill that place.

The order was referred to the Committee on Police.

VACATION SCHOOLS.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald the Board took from the table the order to appropriate $2000 for Vacation Schools, amended (by this Board) so as to provide that said sum be taken from school expenses instead of the Reserved Fund.

On motion of Alderman Thompson the Board voted to adhere to the amendment. Sent down.

MUZZLING DOGS.

On motion of Alderman Breck, the Board took from the table the report on subject of muzzling dogs and killing such as are numuzzled (City Doc. No. 58).

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the question was divided on the passage of the following orders:

Ordered, That the City Clerk be directed to publish annually in the newspapers of the city, a description of the disease in dogs known as rabies, together with a request that dog owners will notify the police of the appearance of any sickness in their dogs, and that they will chain the animals up until the nature of the disease shall be ascertained.

Ordered, That the Committee on Police be authorized to make suitable arrangements for capturing all dogs found running at large unmuzzled, unless accompanied by their owners or keepers, and for killing such dogs in some painless manner after keeping them in a suitable place for a period of not less than three days, during which time the owners of said dogs may redeem them upon payment of a suitable fee.

The first order was passed, and the second was passed by a division—8 for.

VENTILATION OF COUNCIL CHAMBER.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the Board took from the table the report of minority of Committee on Public Buildings in favor of an improved system of ventilation of the Common Council Chamber, at an expense of $3000 (substituted for the majority report "inexpedient" to legislate), which came up referred to Committee on Finance; the question being on Alderman Fitzgerald's motion to non-concur in said reference, and to substitute the majority report for the minority report.

The motion to substitute was lost.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved to recommit the whole subject to the Committee on Public Buildings, who had seen the sentiment of the City Council as expressed in their votes, and the committee wished to recommend some plan. They may devise some way of ventilating the Council chamber without spending $3000. The difficulty was in sniting the wishes of every one in a large hall like the Council chamber.

Alderman O'Brien urged the necessity of speedy action, as the work must be done during the vacation season. The reference means delay. Members of the Council have looked into it, and the ventilation of the chamber ought to be improved. Alderman Fitzgerald denied that the motion meant delay, and in order to meet the objection moved that the committee report in a fortnight from yesterday.

Alderman Thompson opposed the reference, as the matter had been considered since early in the year, and various plans had been under discussion. He had letters from the Sergeants-at-Arms of Massachusetts and Vermont, speaking of the satisfactory working of the Tudor system of ventilation, which the minority report proposed to adopt.

Alderman Fitzgerald wanted the matter reported upon by the committee, and not by one individual.

The subject was recommitted to the Committee on Public Buildings.

PUBLIC PARKS.

Alderman Fitzgerald presented two petitions, as follows:

BOSTON, June 15, 1877.

To His Honor the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen—The undersigned, taxpayers of the city of Boston, in view of the large expenditures which must necessarily be made to insure the health of the city by an improved system of sewerage, respectfully petition that all action on the question of parks be for the present postponed.

Alderman Fitzgerald—On that list are some twelve or fourteen of the names read here the other day which were selected from the thousands and thousands who signed the paper for parks, and they were named as conspicuous among those in favor of parks. Among those who were on that list are gentlemen who are in opposition to parks at the present time. I simply call the attention of the Board to it in order to show the direction of public sentiment—not because they are opposed to parks, but because they consider the time inopportune on account of the great expenses to be incurred by the city of Boston. I presume that a still greater number of signatures could have been obtained to the petition from among property holders who have previously signed a petition for parks. In connection with this question I would state now that I have noticed during the week a systematic attack upon some two or three Aldermen of this Board, because they have chosen to differ from the views put forward by certain daily papers in this city. We have been called demagogues and I don't know what, simply and solely because we have not taken the views in relation to public parks which they entertain. Scarcely a day passes but there is not some little squib about it in the papers. But I don't care. If it proves anything to my mind, from what I saw in a paper this morning, it proves that that paper is in favor of sewerage. It said that a certain Alderman of this Board spoke about the filth exhaled from a certain place on the Back Bay, and that after four or five days it ceased to be dangerous to health after exposure to the sun, and it was the new matter which oozes from the sewers; and it called attention to the fact that the prince of Wales, after spending one night near a bath tub, was attacked with fever, and said that probably this Alderman would think it a piece of extravagance to make the necessary repairs upon the bath tub. I think, Mr. Mayor, although they did not know it, they were unwittingly in favor of what I advocated—and that is sewers. The repairs should have been made on the sewer and not ou the bath tub. I think precisely as the gentleman does who wrote that article. Several other articles have been written about members of this Board. The other members can take care of themselves, just as I can. We have been called demagogical and unprincipled because of our views. I stated the other day that certain tax deeds had been recorded.

The paper said I played a trick upon the Board in placing figures giving the tax deeds for twenty-five years, when I should have given them for every year. The list I gave here was given to me not with any view of its use in relation to parks; none whatever. It was prepared by the Assistant Register of Deeds, for the purpose of showing the necessity of indexing them, and was given to a gentleman who spends most of his time in that office. It was prepared to show the necessity for the county of Suffolk spending some money to index the tax titles. I gave it here as they gave it to me. The Alderman says that the deeds are mostly of estates outside of the city proper. I have here in a report of the Committee on the Treasury a long list of real estate, covering I don't know how many estates from 1872 up to the past year, which the city has bought. The two years have elapsed, and the committee recommend that they be placed in the hands of the city. They have gone out of the hands of the owners. To be sure if an estate is sold the owner can recover the amount from the treasury for a certain time. I also referred to the ninety-two estates sold for taxes in the gentleman's own ward in 1876, more than in Wards 2, 3, 4 and 5 altogether. In the city proper a very large number of estates were sold. I simply gave them as tending to show that I had no intention of misrepresenting the facts, and I gave the facts as they were given to me. I very well knew that every member of this Board knew that the population of the city was less twenty-five or thirty years ago than it is today. I made an arithmetical calculation to show that in thirty years 100,000 people will pay as much taxes as 3,000,000 will in one year, and to show the increase in the tax deeds recorded. My position on public parks now is precisely what it was two years ago. I can see how a man may vote to obtain authority to lay out parks, and consistently vote against parks now; but I voted against getting the authority then. I believe with the estimable gentlemen who have signed the remonstrance that there are other questions pressing upon us and other large expenditures requiring our attention more than parks.

Alderman O'Brien—In relation to the gentleman's remark about the newspaper press I would say that the newspapers generally take a very prominent course in relation to all great improvements; either one side or the other. If he complains of any remarks of the newspapers about the opponents of parks, what should the men say who stand up here and advocate them? They have been called land speculators and rings, and it has been said that they are trying to swindle the city and force it to take property. I do not think anything could be said more harsh than has been said about the men who stand up here and advocate parks. They are said to belong to the ring, and to be land speculators, and everything of that kind. Now, I don't think anything that has been said in relation to the opponents of parks is half so bad as what has been said by the newspaper press in regard to those advocating them. I do not know any class of people who are worse today than the men who own land in the line of parks laid out by the commissioners. I met a man today who is a large owner in the line of the Parker Hill Park. He says his place is crowded every holiday and every Sunday, and he has no protection whatever. When the Committee on Parks went out there they found a base-ball club playing ball there, and even on that week-day they found some fifty or sixty people, and the owner could not keep them off. He went down to the police station and got a detachment of police to protect him, but they could not keep the intruders from this Parker Hill Park that has been selected by the commissioners. There is a wealthy gentleman out in Roxbury who used to go down to the seashore every Sunday, but he tells me he has to come up from the seashore on Sunday to protect his property. Ten thousand people find their way out to Roxbury or in that neighborhood; even over the line of railroad on Washington street, that I live upon; and the men who own property in that neighborhood are puzzled how to protect it.

Well, now, I don't think it is fair for the newspaper press to call all those men land speculators, and say that they want to force land upon the city at a high price. That is precisely what they have said. Another thing—it would be impossible for these men who own land in the line of parks to sell their property even in more prosperous times. No member of this Board would select a house lot in the line of any of the parks laid out by the commissioners. He would not lay a foundation or build a house that might possibly be taken from him in a year or two. You have placed a ban upon their property and they cannot do anything with it. Those are the men whom the newspapers call land sharks, and who are trying to force their land upon the city. I should not have said a word about it if the Alderman had not risen and complained about the attacks upon members who oppose parks.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I do not complain.

Alderman O'Brien—We are both in the same boat, and they have said harsher things of the Aldermen who stand up here and advocate parks than they do of those who oppose them.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I want it understood that I do not complain. The liberty of the press, or rather the license, is such that they can deal with public men, and say what they please. I do not complain at all. I simply rose to answer a misstatement of facts in regard to me and my position. If a paper which is notorious for its fairness, and has great weight on that account, chooses to attack persons for speaking their honest opinions in a public and legislative assembly, I say it is so much the worse for the paper and not for the individual. The individual can bear it, if the paper can. I do not complain, because I can take care of myself. I am in favor of sewerage and whatever is absolutely necessary, but I do not consider parks a necessary article, and therefore I am opposed to them this year.

Alderman Clark—I did not propose to say a word about parks tonight. We settled that matter a week ago; but there is an order on the table which I propose to call up at the proper time. So far as the Alderman has been attacked, that is a matter which concerns him. I have no doubt the public press have criticised me and others pretty severely. It is a right they assume, and I suppose they have a right to criticise any man who occupies a public position. The remonstrants who have come here agree that the sanitary condition of the city is paramount to everything else; I agree with them, and in that view offered the order I did a week ago. If any gentleman thinks the sanitary condition of the Back Bay does not need improvement, let him go down there some afternoon and see people obliged to shut their windows to keep out the stench. I want to correct a statement made in the Transcript one week ago, which was incorrect, though not intentionally, I presume. It was stated in the Transcript that it will cost six million dollars to fill up the park on the Back Bay. I suppose they made a mistake of one or two ciphers, and with the permission of the Board I will read some figures I have here. The 100 acres at ten cents a foot, without the filling, will cost $435,000. The filling of 180,000 cubic squares at three dollars per square will be $540,000, making the total cost of the land and filling to grade seventeen, $975,000, instead of $6,000,000. Those figures are based upon the supposition that it will be filled up solid to grade seventeen; but fifty per cent of the land will probably be wanted for a water basin. The estimate was made in City Hall upon calculations by the City Surveyor and City Engineer. Half the filling would cost $270,000, making the total cost $705,000, if the water basin is desired.

I make that statement simply because it is stated in the public journals that those hundred acres would cost six millions of dollars. If it is filled up to grade 17 the entire hundred acres will cost only $975,000 for solid land for a hundred acres. The Public Garden was only filled up to grade 13. Then another cat in the meal was the clause in which it was proposed to relieve abutters from betterment assessment. Now, it struck me that, if you take away a man's land from him for one-half what the city is taxing it for, it is nothing but right to relieve him of betterments.

But I am willing to forego that clause, and consent that the city assess betterments. There is no ring about this. It is to remedy a very great evil which can be remedied in no other way, and at the proper time I propose to show it. There is not a full Board tonight, but at the proper time I propose to call up the subject.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Clark.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

JUNE 21, 1877...

Regular meeting at seven o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions referred in concurrence.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions for compensation for personal injuries, by Ellen Geary, from defect in sidewalk on Prince street; by Patrick H. Roden, from defect in plank walk in Blackstone street. Severally accepted in concurrence.

Order for appointment of James A. Cogswell and Samuel Deering as Field Drivers and Pound Keepers for Brighton District. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report and order to cancel a bond of Stephen H. Tarbell of $2401, for land on East Fourth street, and to issue a new agreement to John Carew, as therein set forth. Order read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report and order to cancel the bond of $4819, for certain land on Albany and East Newton streets, and to issue two new agreements to Martin Hayes, as therein set forth. Order read twice and passed.

Report and order to convey to G. A. P. Darling two lots of land on Albany and East Sharon streets, on the terms, etc., therein set forth. Order read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order requesting the School Committee to indicate which of the two sites selected by their subcommittee for a new schoolhouse in the Allston District will be satisfactory. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

The reports and order on the subject of ventilation of the Common Council chamber came down for concurrence in the recommitment of the whole subject to the Joint Committee on Public Buildings.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 said this matter had been under consideration almost five months and the committee had investigated almost all the systems of ventilation, and after the vote of the Common Council adopting the minority report, he thought, perhaps, the recommitment would gain a unanimous, if not a majority, vote of the committee. Although the year is half gone, if the chamber is ventilated, those who come here after the present members will receive some benefit from it.

The Council concurred in the recommitment.

The order to establish vacation schools at an expense of $2000 came down with the adherence of the other branch to the vote of May 28 that the amount be charged to school expenses, School Committee. On motion of Mr. Coe of Ward 23, the Council voted to adhere to its former vote for the transfer of said amount from the Reserved Fund. Sent up.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order to remit tax for 1876 on lot of land forfeited and numbered 4 West Pembroke street. Passed in concurrence.

Order to release to Samuel H. and John C. Hunneman, estates on Eustis and Renfrew streets and Harrison avenue, as therein set forth. Passed in concurrence.

Order to expend $628.76 additional for grading of squares on Commonwealth avenue. Passed in concurrence.

Order to pay Robert Higgins $800, as compensation for personal injuries caused by a defect in Eutaw street, on his giving a release and discharge satisfactory to the City Solicitor. Passed. Sent up.

VISIT TO SUDBURY RIVER.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 moved to reconsider the vote whereby was passed the order for a visit, on the 10th of July next, to the works for the introduction of water from Sudbury River, hoping the motion would not prevail.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 hoped the reconsideration would prevail. The work is nearly completed and there is scarcely anything to be seen. It is not as if the Council were to be called upon to appropriate money for the work, and needed information upon which to act intelligently. If they are going to satisfy curiosity and spend a pleasant day, let it be so understood, and let it be put in the right light. Plans for the system of improved sewerage will soon be ready, and then it will be necessary for the Council to obtain information, and that would afford an opportunity for a pleasant trip down the harbor to the proposed site of the outlet, and thereby be enabled to vote more intelligently, while they would enjoy the pleasure of a trip down the harbor.

Mr. Fraser always liked to see things put right. A great majority of the Council want to know how the money is being spent on the new water works; but few of them know where the works are. Since the order had been passed he had had some conversation with the Water Board, who told him there was a great deal to be seen.

Mr. Wilbur called for the yeas and nays. Lost. The motion to reconsider was lost. Sent up.

ARMY AND NAVY MONUMENT.

The order authorizing arrangements to be made for dedicating the Army and Navy Monument, on the Common, on the 17th of September next, at an expense not exceeding $22,500, was considered under unfinished business, and on the call of yeas and nays on the passage of the order it was defeated—yeas 35, nays 22; a two-thirds vote being necessary.

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Brown, Burke, Cox, Day, Dee, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Loughlin, McDonald, McGaragle, Nugent, O'Connor, Pearl, Perham, J. H. Pierce, Ruffin, Sibley, Spenceley, Stone, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster—35.

Nays—Messrs. Blodgett, Brintnall, Cannon, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Felt, Hibbard, Howes, Kidney, McClusky, Morrill, O'Donnell, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Sampson, Upham, Wilbur, Wolcott—22.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barnard, Clarke, Cross, Doherty, Mowry, Mullane, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Reed, Shepard, Smardon, Souther, Thompson, Thorndike—14.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I rise at this time to make an explanation to the Council, if there is no objection. I desire to state that the Committee on the Soldiers' Monument have endeavored to get this matter before the Council at the earliest possible moment; and, from the vote which has just passed, it is very evident that the Council do not intend that the Soldiers' Monument should be dedicated on the 17th of September. I do not, myself, intend to move a reconsideration, nor do I believe any other member of the committee will do so. I merely rise at this time to state that the matter now is before the public, who will know that it is the opinion and wish of the Common Council that this monument should not be dedicated on the 17th of September.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I voted "no" on this question, not because I was not desirous that the monument should be dedicated with proper and appropriate ceremonies; but I do not think it advisable and expedient, under the circumstances, to have so large a sum appropriated. I hope—and if no one else does it, I will introduce an order later in the evening—that the committee will be authorized to spend a reasonable sum for this purpose. I think that the majority of this Council desire that this monument shall be dedicated appropriately, properly, and respectably; but I think a great many citizens and members of the Common Council agree with me that it is too large a sum. That is the reason why I voted "no." Perhaps that is all that is necessary to state at this time, but it should not go out, as the gentleman from Ward 13 stated, that the Common Council do not intend to have this monument appropriately dedicated or the occasion properly celebrated. I think the Council do mean to have it done, but I do not think it wise to appropriate so large a sum.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I believe it should go out that the members of this Council have voted not to appropriate this amount of money for the dedication of this monument; and it would have been more manly in any man who voted against this to have called upon the committee to make some explanation of the cost and the details of this expenditure, rather than to vote against it. No one rose in his seat and questioned the amount asked for by the committee. If any one had, the members of the committee would have been ready and willing to give every explanation in their power as to how this money is to be expended. But it appears that men are prejudiced against it. I have heard them myself; members have talked about the dedication of this monument, and I was asked a question by a Republican member of this Council what the politics of a certain member was, whether a Democrat or a Copperhead, because he did make an objection last Thursday night. I said he was a Republican and was elected here as a Republican, and that I did not believe any Democrat would oppose the expenditure of this amount. The gentleman has risen in his place here after voting against it, but still no reasons were given before the votes were taken, and the committee was never asked to give any explanation of the cost of dedicating this monument. I say that before this vote was passed, if any man was not ready to vote upon the question it was his duty, if he believed that the monument should be dedicated at all, to have arisen in his place and asked for some information from some member of the committee; but they failed to do that, and went on and voted against the order, and I say it is no more than just to the people of Boston that it should go out that the Common Council of Boston has refused to appropriate the amount of money which the committee asked for for the dedication of that monument. I say so, and I do not care who voted for or against it. But the yeas and nays are there, and let the public and people thus judge who is right and who is wrong in this matter.

Later in the session, after the disposition of the order for a visit to the Sudbury River Water Works, Mr. Beeching of Ward 1 moved the suspension of the rule in order that he might move a reconsideration of the vote whereby was rejected the order in regard to the Army and Navy Monument.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10 called for the yeas and nays. Lost.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I hope this reconsideration will prevail. I was in hopes that some one would rise and ask for an explanation before the vote was taken.

Mr. Beeching raised the point of order that the matter before the Council was on the suspension of the rule.

The President ruled the point well taken.

The rule was suspended.

Mr. Beeching—I make this motion in order that we may get some explanation from the committee having this matter in charge. I think I voted understandingly. I do not think the appropriation is any too large for the purpose. If we are going to dedicate that monument to the memory of the men who fell in the war we ought not to look for a moment at the small sum of $22,000. If I had thought that the sum was too large I should have voted against it, and I would ask the committee to give us some explanation in regard to the programme from the committee in order that we may judge whether it is sufficient.

Mr. Wilbur raised the point that Mr. Beeching was talking on the main question, when the reconsideration was under consideration.

The President—The motion to reconsider opens the debate upon the main question.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23 raised the point that Mr. Beeching had not yet made the motion.

Mr. Beeching made the motion to reconsider.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—As a member of the committee, I should never have made that motion, nor do I believe that either of my colleagues on the committee would have done so, but would have allowed it to have gone to the public as being rejected by the members of this Council; and they would have done so, as I said before, for the reason that when the matter was before the Council no member who voted against it objected to the passage of the order or asked for any explanation. Now, sir, after several weeks' consultation with the head of the Grand Army of the Republic, General Sargent, and with Mr. Everett, who represents the Masons; Mr. Cushing, who represents the Odd Fellows; and with the representatives of all the different organizations in Boston, the committee were enabled to judge what would be the expenses of the parade on that day. After careful consideration they figured the expenses to be about $22,500. In the first place it will be seen that two brigades will be in camp at Framingham about that time. The committee thought the least they could do for them would be to pay their fare to and from the city of Boston, and also provide bands and a collation for them—give them say fifty cents a man for the collation, in order that men coming from the western part of the State and having no hotel to go to, might be provided with a collation before they went to their different homes. The Second Brigade is composed mostly of citizens living in the western part of the State, and they will be obliged to remain here that night, so the committee thought the least they could do would be to pay for their band and give them their transportation and a collation. The committee thought that they ought to do for the First Brigade exactly what the State allowed for them when they turn out next Tuesday to receive the President. The men volunteer; the State pays for their transportation and for the officers' horses and the artillery horses, and also allows them so much for rations that day. The committee thought that the city ought to do just about what the State allowed for those men. That would amount to about $6500. Now, sir, everybody knows that the members of the Grand Army are poor and cannot afford to pay for a band; they cannot afford to be at any great expense for turning out on that day. The committee made arrangements with the different railroad superintendents for one-third fare for the Grand Army, which is much better than they could do for other organizations. The committee thought the city ought to pay the fare of the members of the Grand Army. It is said there will be about 8000 men in line that day, and the committee thought that a band for each thousand men—or eight bands—and to furnish them coffee and rations along the line, could be done at an expense of about $6500. The Masons propose to pay for their own bands and carriages; but the committee thought they ought to pay for the bands for some of the encampments of Odd Fellows, which would amount to $450. The committee figured that the expense of bands for temperance, charitable, and some other organizations would be about $750. Then for the expenses of the chief marshal and his aids, the getting up of flags and stands, etc., the committee allowed about $1500. It was also the intention of the committee, as they report in the order, that the President, cabinet, and such other dignitaries as the committee thought proper, should be invited, and the expenses in entertaining them and the expenses of the City Council would amount to $5000. The contingent expenses of this committee, the putting up of stands, etc., would amount to $2000, making an aggregate of $22,500.

Mr. Wilbur—Is it intended to invite members of the Grand Army of the Republic from all over the State?

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—It is.

Mr. Wilbur—While I voted no on this question I did so not for the reason that I did not want the monument dedicated in a proper manner. But it seemed to me that $22,500 was a great deal of money to spend for the dedication of this monument. It seemed to me that this monument is not a State affair, but is a local affair for the city of Boston, and that the dedication should be done here in a creditable manner, but at a great deal less expense than $22,500. I have had some conversation with the chairman of the committee which has this matter in charge, and he stated to me that to dedicate the monument and carry out the programme that is now contemplated by the committee, could not possibly be done short of $22,500. While I believe that the committee will act judiciously and economically, it seemed to me that it was a great deal of money to spend in this direction. I cannot see why those invitations should be extended to the Grand Army from all over the State to assist in dedicating this monument. There have been monuments erected in different parts of the State, and in towns and cities which have not called for or contemplated so large an expenditure. I hope that this programme, if it is carried out at all, will be carried out with credit if it takes $30,000.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—Twenty-two thousand five hundred dollars is quite a sum of money. At first thought it seemed to me to be a good deal for the purpose, and it seems more when we don't know about what is going to be done with it. But I voted for this sum, and was willing to pin my faith on the sleeve of the committee, believing that they did know something about the subject. I am somewhat surprised at the vote. The gentleman who just sat down was willing to vote for $30,000 if necessary. Some think we should have a creditable amount, and it is a matter of individual opinion with each member what is creditable. I was on the committee when they got up the monument in Charlestown. It was a small place and a small affair, but I brought in an order for $4000 there in our little town.

Mr. Blodgett of Ward 8—A one-horse town.

Mr. Sibley—Well, it was a pretty fast horse, and he kept up pretty good courage, too. We carried it. That was in 1872. The Grand Army came, and it was a pretty large party. I never heard that Charlestown was any poorer for it, and we had a pretty good time for a "one-horse town." We gave a collation; it was cheap, because it had to be, and they were satisfied. Now that I see this monument is to be erected, if I were wealthy enough, I would give $22,500 myself to have it dedicated. We have waited a good many years, but it has n't been completed. The same man, Martin Milmore, did the work in Charlestown, and has done pretty much all the work on Commonwealth avenue. I don't believe Boston will be any poorer for making this appropriation. I believe it has been fully explained, and I hope the order will pass. Of course it seems to be a large sum. I would not vote for it unless there was a reason for it, and I would not vote against it unless there was some reason to make me oppose it.

Mr. Beeching of Ward 1—I think the sum is none too large. One gentleman has said that monuments have been dedicated at much less cost, which is very true; but this one will be regarded throughout the State differently from any other. It is erected by the city of Boston in memory of the men who fought and fell in the war. Boston is the capital of the State, and the eyes of people in all parts of the State are directed hither; they expect something more in the dedication of a monument here than they would in a country town or a small city. It is very fitting that we should have the military join in the procession. The military will be in camp at Framingham, and all the city will have to do is to bear their expenses from Framingham here.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—One brigade only.

Mr. Beeching—The city could not do less than pay the expenses of those men who join in the procession on that day. After hearing the explanation of the chairman of the committee, every gentleman must be satisfied that the programme proposed cannot be carried out for a less sum. Now, if you think this sum is too large, and that something smaller would answer, we can call upon them to report a smaller sum. But those opposed to this sum have not proposed any other; they do not propose to amend the order by cutting down the appropriation. After looking at the matter in all its phases, and hearing the explanation of the committee, it appears to me that every gentleman in the Council must be satisfied that the sum is not too large to carry out the programme.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—I think that many of us will feel better prepared—I certainly shall—to vote upon this matter if we can have time to look over the figures presented by the chairman, and examine the subject more carefully in many respects. While I voted for the order, and shall do so again if it comes up, I now move that it be especially assigned to the next meeting at eight o'clock.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope that motion will not prevail, because, if the programme is to be carried out at all, and if any money is to be expended, it should be appropriated immediately, in order that the committee may do something in relation to selecting an orator for that day. He may take two months to prepare himself, and there is only a little over two months in which to do this whole business. This matter has been before the Council for some time, and I hope it will not be laid over, as there will be nothing gained. The committee have been into this matter thoroughly and had the heads of the different organizations before them. They figured the expense down to the least possible amount. The only thing for the Council to say is that they do not want it done, and the committee would be perfectly satisfied.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9—It is no easy matter to get up the programme for any celebration, and I can see that one of this kind is of considerable trouble. The committee have given it great consideration. I know nothing of their action, except what I have seen in newspapers; but I have seen from time to time that the citizens are more interested in this matter than usual, and this in a measure takes it out of the business which usually comes before the Council and makes it a matter of more importance. I conceive it to be a matter of considerable importance. If we are going to dedicate that monument from which we expect such great things, I think it should be dedicated with appropriate and imposing ceremonies. You cannot possibly get along with that dedication next September without having the Masons present. That venerable body must be there, and if they come let them come in force. Let the dignitaries of the best and oldest societies be there. Then comes the Loyal League or the Grand Army of the Republic. What kind of a celebration would it be if you did not have them there? Those are the people to be there. Let us have every veteran of the army and every cripple, everybody who took part in the war. Let us stop our wrangles and have our soldiers present. Then, in addition to that we want our present military organizations. Going over the items as laid down by the member of the committee, I ask which of them you could leave out? It comes at a season of the year when they can all come up here and will be near at hand. I conceive that when you start this thing, when you get prominent people interested, such as the Masons and the Grand Army, and when the heads of other organizations have signified their willingness to cooperate—for they all know it is going to be a great affair, and they want to be counted—I can see how all the charitable and temperance organizations will want to be out and take part in the procession. I say, let them come. It is going to be a benefit to the city of Boston. Everybody who comes from the western part of the State, every man who brings his children or his wife or friend, makes business for the railroads, circulates money among the tradesmen, and generally infuses business among the people of the city. Looking at the matter from that aspect, I can conceive how it is going to be a very good thing for the city. When once you have started, I cannot see how you are going to take one item from this statement of the committee. It has had mature consideration. I would not say cut off the temperance organizations and military. I say let us have that programme as a whole and make the celebration as a whole. If the President of the United States should be here we ought to have an occasion worthy of our guest. He will bring with him several distinguished guests, and let them see what the city of Boston can do in the way of a street celebration. This matter has not taken us by surprise. When the celebration of the Fourth of July was considered, we cut down that appropriation because it was argued that we were going to have a big celebration on the 17th of September, and we made preparations for it accordingly. If you commence making preparations now, let it be understood that you are going to have a large celebration; everybody will be interested in it, and they will believe it is going to be a great affair and one that we will be proud of.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 20—I certainly see the propriety of disposing of the matter before us in a very prompt time, and I shall also be very glad to vote in favor of reconsideration. I voted against the appropriation, and therefore, perhaps, am a subject of the feeling which was shown by the member of the committee against those who did so vote against it. But I wish to set myself right upon this matter, although perhaps the Council will think I did vote that way because I do not desire to see the monument dedicated in a proper, becoming and liberal manner. I sincerely hope that when the reconsideration prevails the committee will give us items, and that we will have the figures and details proposed. I did expect that the fit of economy which was so strong upon this branch of the Government during the first part of the year would soon be over, and I expected that those who favored retrenchment early in the year would soon show themselves willing to expend as much money as our predecessors have done. This seems to be the opportunity of showing it. Now, with all our professions this year, I think we ought to see what would be the lowest sum for which we can dedicate this monument. When the corner stone was laid, with a good deal of ceremony and circumstance—as we all remember, a few years ago—the President of the United States was present and some of his cabinet, and the Masons and other societies took part in the procession and the day was made an occasion of a very imposing ceremony.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Did I understand the gentleman to say that the President of the United States was here at the laying of the corner stone of this monument?

Mr. Pratt—If my recollection serves me, he was.

Mr. Flynn—If my memory serves me he was not at the laying of the corner stone of this monument, but that he was present at the laying of the corner stone of the new Post Office.

Mr. Pratt—At any rate those organizations were present which are invited to the dedication. As the laying of the corner stone of a structure is considered an event of comparable importance with the dedication of a structure, I think the best we can do is to compare the cost of laying the corner stone with that proposed for the dedication. On turning to the details as given in the Auditor's annual report for 1871-2, I find that the total expense to the city for laying the corner-stone was $5078.50. Now—

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Will the gentleman please read the items of expense, what it cost and how it was incurred?

Mr. Pratt—The item is entitled "Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument. Expenses attending the laying of the corner stone of a monument on Boston Common, Sept. 18, 1871, to be erected by the city of Boston to perpetuate the memories of her sons who gave their lives to their country in the late Rebellion:

Bands of music for escort, First Brigade, M. V. M. and G. A. R.....	$2,012.00
Advertising.....	688.20
First Battalion of Artillery—horses and salute, and horses for the cavalry band.....	670.00
Carriage hire.....	474.00
Platforms, music stands, printing and small items.....	309.10
Marshal's expenses—horses, hats, badges and gloves.....	247.75
Decorations.....	100.00
Silver plate and engraving.....	85.00
Expenses of committee—Refreshments.....	$466.45
Carriage hire.....	26.00
Total.....	$5,078.50

Now, Mr. President, I have no further remarks to offer upon that statement. I simply wish to make a comparison between these figures and those of the committee, and ask for further explanation from them. I understand the explanation very well so far as made. It strikes me that in the small items they have made a very faithful explanation, whereas the large items have been glided over very rapidly or not touched upon at all.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—Have the committee under consideration any other plan than this? and can they suggest any plan by which it can be done for a smaller sum?

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I do not know what the committee would advise or suggest. They reported their plans to the Council, and what they propose is to have them ratified by the Council. The Grand Army have been invited. It is true the expense of laying the corner stone was about $5000; but no collation was furnished and the transportation of the Grand Army and the militia was not paid. I understood the gentleman to read that at the laying of the corner stone the amount spent by the Grand Army and the militia was 2000 and a few odd dollars. As I said before, the committee propose to do exactly what the State is doing for the troops who receive the President—pay their transportation, give them a collation and pay for their bands. These are three items which they propose to expend for the militia alone. The committee have made arrangements with the railroads to bring them in at one-third fare. Then the committee thought they ought to provide bands for the other organizations, if they give their time on that day and pay their own transportation.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—Although I do not agree to the idea currently advanced here that a member of the Council should not vote against a measure unless he gets up and makes a speech against it, I shall give a little explanation of my vote, and why, as at present advised, I shall vote against it again. I think it is too large a sum to spend for such a purpose. We started out as an economical City Government; we endeavored to retrench; we cut down salaries—or the City Government did—no doubt causing great embarrassment to many gentlemen, and saving only three or four times as much as is proposed to be spent in this celebration. Now, it seems to me that if the city is poor and wants to economize, one of the first points and not the last to economize in is in this matter of a grand celebration and procession. If we want to save money, we may well dispense with this luxury of a great procession and celebration—dispense with its greatness; not dispense with it altogether, but simplify it and make it no greater than the one we had before, which for ought I know was perfectly proper and satisfactory at that time. For one, I did not see why five or ten thousand dollars might not provide a sufficient celebration for these economical times, and in that view I voted against spending so much money. I would not vote against five or ten thousand dollars, but it seems to me we ought not to vote for so large an expenditure for luxuries this year.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—I made the motion to assign because I thought we might get some additional light, and I did not believe a delay of one week would make any material difference in the selection of an orator. I should be very sorry to see this matter defeated, and I think that by a little delay we will be more likely to carry through a liberal appropriation than if it is forced through tonight. I hope that some of those who voted in the negative will be ready to vote for some sum, and perhaps some may be able to propose a plan to carry out the celebration for a less sum, and if so, some of us may vote for a less sum. I hope we shall postpone it one week before finally passing upon the matter.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I do not understand that they are obliged to spend this $22,500 if they can get along without spending so much. I think we can trust this committee with that sum to spend for this celebration if they need it, and if they can get along for less I believe they will save it. By the way, I wish some of the gentlemen who propose it would tell us which of these organizations we should cut off. I know it is very easy for gentlemen to get up and say you can cut off thus and so; but it is hard to decide which shall be cut off. I believe the sum is not too large to spend for the dedication of this monument, when we spent $5000 in laying the corner stone. We all know it is much easier and costs less to get married than to keep house. Laying the corner stone was like getting married, and now we are going to keeping house in the matter. We are going to set up a monument for what the soldiers did, and I hope it will be done in good shape and style, and I don't believe it can be done for less money. I believe in retrenchment. I think the committee have retrenched. I had an idea they would ask for $25,000. The position of some gentlemen here reminds me of the man who went to the grocery store. The grocer charged him two cents more on a pound, and after beating him down two cents the man thought he got it cheap, while the grocer only sold to him at the regular price he charged others. If the committee had brought in an order for $25,000, some one would have tried to cut it down to $22,000; and if $22,000, they would have tried to make it $17,000. The committee have investigated the matter and know what it will cost. Another point: I don't believe it is a local monument, and for Boston alone. I don't believe there is a heart beats in Massachusetts but will feel a pride in the soldiers' monument on Boston Common; and the people of the State want to have a part in its dedication. Their hearts will throb and their eyes grow bright when they look at it, because it is one of those things that commemorate the acts of the soldiers of the whole State and not Boston alone. I hope it will not be assigned, but that the order will be passed tonight.

Mr. Pratt—I want to ask the gentleman from Ward 19 what he thinks of the item of $5000 for refreshments?

The motion to assign was lost.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I hope the reconsideration will prevail. Whatever is to be done ought to be put under way, and we should know what is to be done, and there is not too great time for preparation. If it is brought before the Council again by reconsideration I shall offer an order that that amount be reduced to $10,000, and I hope an order with exactly the same phraseology, appropriating that amount, will be passed.

The reconsideration prevailed, and Mr. Richardson offered the following as a substitute for the original order:

Ordered, That the Committee on Army and Navy Monument be authorized to make suitable arrangements for dedicating the army and navy monument on Boston Common on the 17th day of September next, at an expense not exceeding $10,000; to be charged to the appropriation for Incidentals.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I am rather sorry to see the spirit manifested by the concluding remarks of the gentleman, intimating that if he cannot have his own way he will not do anything.

I am wholly in sympathy with the spirit and idea which prompts an appropriation for this monument and its dedication. I trust, and all of us trust, that it will be a beautiful and just tribute, not only to the heroic dead, but a monument teaching a lesson and an example, and encouraging and exciting the patriotism of the people. But it is a mere question of amount. It is a question of judgment in this matter, and it is useless for the committee to say that the opinion of others ought not to be considered. I for one had no impression or suspicion that the committee had laid out the dedication ceremonies upon so large a scale. I had no idea that they intended to invite the President of the United States and the cabinet here. This is a monument for the city of Boston. The cities around Boston and in various parts of the State have had their celebrations, in which they took a just pride. It seems to me it is undertaking to make a great display which other and poorer municipalities could not undertake, and it is trying to eclipse them. Other cities—Charlestown, Worcester, Springfield—have had their monuments dedicated. I had no idea it was intended to invite the Grand Army from the western part of the State. I supposed it was a local affair. Just think, the entire cost of the monument, from the granite foundation laid six years ago, including the bronze statue, will be only $75,000; and here the committee propose to expend, in a three or four hours' ceremony, nearly one-third as much as the entire cost of the monument on the Common, in an occasion that will take but two or three hours and then fade away from the sight and recollection of the people. I am stingy in nothing that is to be placed upon Boston Common, for a longer or shorter period, that will remind generations present and to come of the heroism of the soldiers, and I am not parsimonious in anything that will excite coming generations in devotion and heroism for their country; but I am opposed to spending $5000 in gunpowder and beer. I think that $10,000 is enough. It will be proper and appropriate to dedicate this monument, and so far as I have had any conversation with citizens I think it would meet their views.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—What instructions would you give to the committee, and how would you have this $10,000 expended? Would you invite one organization like the Grand Army, or different organizations?

Mr. Richardsou of Ward 10—My intention is to confine it to the people in the city of Boston. I would not invite the President of the United States here on that occasion. It is a local affair. There are a great many people in our own city and State who do not believe in erecting a monument to perpetuate internecine strife. I am not one of those, but the feeling exists. The objection might be raised that the President is the President of the South as well as of the North; that he would come to assist in erecting a monument to perpetuate the recollection of the war upon the South. I cannot say what organization I would advise to be invited, but at the same time I think the monument can be properly erected by confining it to the limits of Boston and to invitations to those organizations which happen to be in Boston and its vicinity. I have no feeling in the matter. It is not a feeling of principle, but of individual judgment. It is just as the different members of the Council look at it. It seems to me that $10,000 is enough. If the majority differ, I am content.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—With my limited information I do not agree with the gentleman who has just sat down. There may be such a feeling; but on the Seventeenth of June, 1875, we had a good many men here from the South. My associate in the Council from Ward 25 that year—now Ward 5—was at that time colonel of the Fifth Regiment. They met the Fifth Regiment from Maryland, who came over to Charlestown in a body, and the first thing they did was to decorate that soldiers' monument with flowers. I was among them for two days, except some four hours and a half a day, and heard them talk. I was about all the while with these men from the South. It has also been my pleasure to know many shoe merchants from almost every large town in the country, and whatever may be their views in regard to men; I have never heard one man speak against a monument, and I have shown more than a score that monument in Charlestown—it is so near Bunker Hill—and they all spoke of it with praise. I do not know how men feel about these little bickerings; but I know how Boston and Massachusetts felt, and I know how the Grand Army felt in 1872. The Commander of the Grand Army is a resident of Boston, who desires to have them come. I hope they will come. If there is a body in the world who wants to come, let them come. We will say nothing about the Masons. I am glad that they propose to pay their own bills. I do not believe it can be done much short of $22,500. It sounds very large until we see what is going to be done. If we don't wait the Grand Army, cut off that; and if we don't wait the Odd Fellows or Masons, very well; only give us some plan. The committee have worked upon this. It is six years since the corner stone was laid. It has been long maturing. The members of the Grand Army will soon pass away. I hope every cent that is necessary will be appropriated, and, if necessary, that every cent of this will be used. I believe that Boston will be no poorer. Talk about retrenchment; pass that over to us and make comparisons! Gentlemen, I have no fears. I did what I believed my duty then, and I do what I believe to be right now. I don't question any man's motives at all. If we use but $10,000 it is only a matter of opinion. I hope the order for $22,500 will prevail.

Mr. Beeching—The arguments of the gentleman who offered the substitute are not so weighty as I should expect to hear from him. One reason he assigns for a small appropriation is that it should be a local affair. Well, I think it ought to be a State affair. This is the capital of the State, and more will be expected of Boston than of a country town or small city. I do not think a large monument will cause the jealousy on the part of the towns that the gentleman intimates. After listening to the gentleman, it does not seem that his arguments are sufficient to cause the appropriation to be cut down to so small an amount. People expect more from Boston in this line than from a town. People of other places will want to come here and help celebrate the dedication of this monument, and to induce them to come here we must have something worthy of the occasion. I do not see how we can lop off anything from the programme and make such a celebration as the city of Boston ought to have upon the occasion. I hope the substitute will not prevail.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I am inclined to believe that the impressions of the gentleman from Ward 9 against having an immense celebration here on the 17th of September are more general than some gentlemen of the Council give the people credit for. I think a large number of people in this city are disposed not to see too great a celebration made to perpetuate the memories of the late war. Certainly, sir, I am one of the number, and that is the reason I voted against the appropriation. I believe in the sentiment of Mr. Sumner in relation to the battle flags at the State House; while it may be right and proper to erect monuments to the memories of the soldiers who fell during the war, I think it would be in better taste if we did it in a quiet and becoming way, showing sorrow rather than exultation. If we cultivate this feeling here, there is no reason why the South should not do the same thing. The people of Columbia might have a celebration and invite all the soldiers of the State; other Southern States might do the same thing, and instead of the memory of the late war dying out, and the country forgetting that there was a war, we shall have these constant celebrations to remind us of what we wish to forget. For that reason I voted against it, and hope it will be confined to Boston itself.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—I trust the substitute will not prevail. It is cutting the appropriation down too much. Even if only the Grand Army were invited and their expenses paid, as proposed by the committee, I hardly see how it can be done for that sum, if they turn out as the commander has intimated—with about 8000 men. If we pay their transportation even at one-third the regular rates, and also furnish them a collation costing fifty cents apiece, it seems to me it would about use up our $10,000, and we should have nothing left for other expenses. It does seem to me that all the soldiers in the State should be invited to participate in this celebration—or rather this ceremony, for I do not like to call it a celebration. As has been already stated, this being the capital of the State, I think it is right and proper that, in dedicating our monument, we should recognize all the veterans of the State; and, if any invitation is given, I hope it will not be limited to the organization known as the Grand Army of Boston, but it will be to all men in the State who fought in that struggle. I do not think the feeling of animosity will be increased by this ceremony; neither do I think it is going to be a jubilation, as has been intimated. I certainly hope it will not be. At least, I do not think the feeling of animosity comes from the soldiers, for among the first to extend the right hand of fellowship to the Southern soldiers were the soldiers from the North, and I think that feeling is maintained to a great degree at the present time. It will probably be the last occasion on which we will have an opportunity to do anything in a public manner to show any great respect for the memories of the soldiers, and I think it is proper that this ceremony should be conducted in an imposing manner, and that all methods that can be adopted to make it impressive should be properly provided, and the expense, so far as is necessary, paid by the city. I believe that if we show our appreciation of the efforts of those men to whose memory this monument is erected, it will have a good effect upon many generations to come. I do not believe that the money spent in the celebration of the Fourth of July, even though many thousands of dollars have been spent in squibs and fire-crackers, has, on the whole, been badly spent. When the time of trial came at the opening of the war, I believe that if it had not been for the little cultivation of patriotism in Fourth of July celebrations, we should not have found men to go into the army and maintain the right as we believed it. I believe it was mainly through that. We cannot tell how soon the occasion may demand a similar sacrifice. I believe it is well to show to younger generations that such efforts are appreciated, and that we should do it in a becoming manner. I think myself that this appropriation may, perhaps, be cut down. I am rather inclined to believe with the gentleman behind me, who offered the substitute, that it might not be any advantage to invite the President of the United States. The omission of the item of the entertainment of the President and other invited guests would cut off about $5000; but I do think $10,000 too small.

Mr. Brintnall of Ward 5—I should like to renew the motion that this matter be assigned to half-past eight at the next meeting, for the reason that I do not feel like voting upon it again tonight, and I think there are others of the same view.

The motion to assign was lost, and the substitute was rejected.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10 moved to make the amount $15,000. Declared lost. Mr. Danforth called for the yeas and nays, which were not ordered. The declaration was verified by a division—15 for, 40 against.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 moved to amend by adding "that no organizations outside of the limits of Boston be invited." Lost.

Mr. Pratt moved to amend by adding, "And similar organizations from Vermont and Rhode Island shall be invited." The President ruled the amendment out of order.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17 moved to amend by providing that "All organizations outside of the city of Boston shall pay their own expenses." Lost.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 moved to make the amount $20,000. Lost.

MANAGEMENT OF EAST BOSTON FERRIES.

Mr. Roberts of Ward 4 submitted the following: The Joint Special Committee appointed to investigate the statements which have appeared in the public prints relative to the management of the East Boston ferries, having attended to that duty, beg leave to submit the following report: The committee gave a public hearing to all persons interested in the subject. At this hearing Mr. T. C. Whittemore, formerly clerk of the Board of Directors of East Boston Ferries, appeared and presented certain charges embodying in substance the charges which have appeared from time to time in the papers, and a copy of which is hereto annexed. Mr. Whittemore avowed his ability to prove the charges, and at his request a number of witnesses were invited to appear before the committee. Three public hearings were given, at which statements under oath were made by gentlemen connected with the present and past management of the ferries, and a large quantity of documentary evidence was introduced. Every opportunity was afforded for a full and fair investigation of the matter. Your committee are of the opinion that none of the charges were substantiated. They therefore respectfully report that no further action is necessary on the part of the City Council.

PERMIT FOR WOODEN BUILDING.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 submitted a report from the Joint Standing Committee on the Survey and Inspection of Buildings recommending the passage of an order permitting the authorities of the Dorchester-street Methodist Society to enlarge their church building on Dorchester street in accordance with the application on file.

ACCOUNTS OF TREASURER AND COLLECTOR.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3 submitted the following: The Joint Standing Committee on the Treasury Department, to whom were referred the accounts of the City and County Treasurer and the City Collector, for the year ending April 30, 1877, beg leave to report that they have made an examination of the accounts, and find that they correspond with the receipts and vouchers on file. The cash in the hands of the City Treasurer and bank deposits were examined June 6, and found to be correct. The Treasurer's trial balance to June 6 was examined and found to be correctly taken off and accompanied by the proper vouchers. The cash outstanding upon pay rolls in the hands of the cashier have been examined and found correct. The trial balance and assets of the Dorchester Trust Fund have been examined and found correct. The City Collector's report of collections on account of the city of Boston and county of Suffolk has been examined; the items have been placed to the credit of the several accounts to which they belong and the total amount of collections agrees with the amount received by the Treasurer. The Collector's trial balance to April 30, 1877, was examined and found correct; the amount of collections from May 1 to June 6, 1877, agrees with the amount received by the Treasurer during that time. The amount of all bills said to be outstanding upon the trial balance was compared with the books, and the total accounts and found to be correct. The bonds for public improvements and public lands have been examined and compared with the Collector's trial balance and found to correspond.

Respectfully submitted.

NEHEMIAH GIBSON, Chairman.

PHINEAS J. STONE, Chairman on the part of the Council.

The report was accepted. Sent up.

OPEN-AIR CONCERTS.

Mr. Vosc of Ward 24 offered an order—That a committee to consist of three members of the Council, with such as the Board of Aldermen may join, be a committee to make arrangements for furnishing music on the Common and other parts of the city during the summer months; the expense attending the same not to exceed the sum of $3000; to be charged to the appropriation for Incidental Expenses. Ordered to a second reading.

WIDENING OF COMMERCIAL STREET.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 offered an order—That the Joint Standing Committee on Streets be requested to report on Thursday evening next what action, if any, has been taken in relation to the widening of Commercial street. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

INSPECTION OF BUILDINGS.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 offered an order—That the Committee on the Survey and Inspection of Buildings be requested to consider whether or not the amount appropriated for that department is sufficient to permit of the work being properly performed.

Mr. Webster—In several of the daily papers, especially in the Herald, we find statements to the effect that the Inspector of Buildings has not a force sufficient to carry out the law satisfactorily. It is also stated there and in other papers, that the City Council has reduced the number of employes; and the Herald also states that the Committee on Retrenchment cut down the number of assistants from eight to six. I offer the order for the purpose of having the matter investigated and correcting these errors. With the law so explicit, if it is really a fact that the Inspector has not the force to execute it, and cannot give it the attention it deserves, it would of course be wrong to hold him to a strict accountability for violations of the law. The impression in regard to the reduction of the force is wrong. The amount asked for this year was $18,935, and the committee approved $18,600, showing a saving of $335 in the routine expenses of the department, and the committee say this is subject to such reductions as the City Council may hereafter determine, which left the matter of salaries open. The reduction of salaries in this department by the Retrenchment Committee was $2150, leaving a balance of $16,450. Then the Committee on the Auditor's Estimates, for some reason which I do not understand and cannot comprehend, further reduced this amount by $2450, which is just about within $50 of what is the salary of two assistant inspectors. The revised edition of the Ordinances says that eight assistant inspectors shall be appointed. There have been only seven this year—not the full number. The Retrenchment Committee made no provision for reducing the number of inspectors in any way, but merely cut the salaries down, with the intention, so far as we were concerned, of having the seven remain; but, of course, the appropriation being cut down so much, it was impossible to have all these men confirmed. The fact is just as plain as that two and two make four, that this department is acting with a deficiency of one man's salary. Outside of salaries the expense is $2100 for stationery, keeping horses and things of that kind; and the appropriation was reduced from $22,000 last year, so the committee could not have made any great saving. If we do nothing now and the matter is allowed to remain just as it is, we shall be called upon to make good the deficiency to the extent of one man's salary. Any one who looks over the figures cannot fail to see this. I suppose his Honor the Mayor refused to confirm the other inspector till the matter was settled. On account of that, the Inspector has been deprived of one inspector for seven months, which is equal to the labor of seven inspectors for one month; and having his force reduced by one, he has been very seriously hampered during the year. From all I can learn he has not the necessary force in his office, and if we let it go on just as it is there is sure to be a deficiency. If we need ten men there to carry out the law we should have them. It is poor economy to limit the number of men who should be there to carry out the law faithfully and satisfactorily. This order is merely for the committee to investigate the matter, and I believe, they cannot fail to substantially agree with my statement.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 18—I have certainly learned something tonight, and I am sorry that the City Council has not had the benefit of the gentleman's brain on all the committees. If he had been on this committee such a state of things would not exist, and the City Council would be enlightened. But unfortunately the gentleman is talking upon a subject which he knows nothing about, which is often the case. I have been a member of that committee since I have been in this Government, and I say it here, that there are more men in that office than are required today. He says they cut down two men. They did not touch a man in his office. The gentleman has received the same lesson that we got at two meetings, and somebody has got him to introduce this order. The gentleman may know something about retrenchment, but the inspection of buildings is foreign to his mind.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—Does the gentleman mean to stand here as a member of the committee and assert that the Inspector of Buildings has more help than he needs?

Mr. McGaragle—That is my position precisely. You have hit the nail on the head the first time.

Mr. Webster—Is that the opinion of the committee unanimously?

Mr. McGaragle—I am not speaking for the committee, but for myself. They can speak for themselves.

Mr. Webster—I cannot see what harm it will do to refer the matter to a committee. I have a little common sense, and it does not follow that I should think as he does. I should like to hear from some other member of the committee, and see if he agrees with the gentleman.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I happen to have been a member of that committee for two years, and I must say that my colleague has given me more information than I have ever had before. If the Inspector of Buildings needs more help, he should come to the committee. I cannot agree with my colleague upon the committee in all his statements. I have my ideas and he has his. I know that this year the Inspector of Buildings has got the same number of assistants that he had last year, except one. He had him all winter, and I believe that last year he cut a clerk off, and if he has taken an inspector and put him in place of a clerk, I say he has done wrong. If he has done it I am not aware of it. I asked him some questions in regard to that matter today and he answered me satisfactorily. I believe myself that it transpired today that he thought there ought to be more help. I believe the Council is not to blame for the reduction of the help because the committee gave him what money he asked for, and when it came up here they cut down the appropriation to the amount of the salary of one inspector, whose time having expired the Mayor did not reappoint him, and there it stands today. It does very well for the Herald to make reports and for Mr. Shaw to make statements. If Mr. Shaw has any grievances, they should be made known to the committee, and not to outsiders. I don't know whether the gentleman from Ward 3 got his information from Mr. Shaw, but it reads very much like the instructions we got today.

Mr. McGaragle—I should like to correct one statement. Mr. Shaw has appointed one inspector, and his appointment is in the hands of the Mayor today. If the Mayor has not seen fit to confirm him, the committee are not to blame.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I cannot find fault with the Mayor for refusing to confirm the appointment when there was not sufficient money appropriated to pay for him. He has got to see where the money is coming from. I have also been informed by another member of the Committee on Inspection of Buildings that the gentleman who assumes to represent them does not represent them; and although I am not upon the committee, I think I represent their ideas more nearly than my friend does. I am not standing here to talk for Mr. Shaw or anybody else. My attention was called to the subject by the articles in the newspapers, and I exercise the right which any member has to come here and make a motion in good faith. If the gentleman does not like it he can criticize it; but why he ridicules my course in a matter of this kind, which appertains to the safety of the city, and which comes directly to the question whether the law shall be carried out or be a dead letter, I do not know. It is always customary to ask for information of a committee, and I think it is due to the Council that it should be given.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—As one member of the committee I am ready to give any information to this Council at any time and any place, and I have no doubt every member of the committee will do the same.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should judge it would be necessary to refer this matter to the committee on that department or some other. The finding of the coroner's jury certainly implicates the City Council or the Department for the Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Either the City Council has been negligent in making the appropriation or the committee have been negligent in not informing the Council. I hope the order will be passed.

Mr. Wilbur—I wish to call attention to the ordinance in regard to the appointment of these officers on page 91:

"The subordinate officers of the said department shall consist of a clerk, and such number of assistant inspectors as the City Council may from time to time determine, all of whom shall be appointed by the Inspector, with the approval of the Mayor."

If there is a deficiency in that office, and if the Inspector is complaining that he has not help enough, and notice is taken of it in the papers, this does not seem to me to be the proper way to act upon the matter. It will be time enough for this Council to take action when the Inspector calls for more help and makes his wants known in his official capacity. The order introduced to-night has grown out of the fire which occurred recently in Shawmut avenue, and there was another order introduced to investigate that subject, and which now lies upon the table. I move that this order lie upon the table.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—As a member of the Committee on Retrenchment I would state that we got a statement from the Inspector. We had him before us and asked him a great many questions, and he testified very strongly that he did need more help and was hampered all the time for want of more help. That committee was appointed to determine what salaries could be reduced, what help discharged, and what departments consolidated, and that was the committee to whom he should make his wants known. So they decided not to cut down the number of inspectors. I have no doubt the Inspector has done his entire duty in the matter. We saw fit to cut down the salaries, and I don't see what more he could do. Most of the committee thought that if we did not give him enough help we could not hold him accountable for violations of the law.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I hope the order will pass. If there is anything wrong in the matter I hope we shall get the information.

The motion to table was lost, and the order was read a second time.

Mr. McGaragle—I wish to call attention to city document 28. The amount asked for salaries and running expenses for this department was $18,600, which includes salaries for Chief Inspector, seven assistants and a clerk and assistant clerk. Nothing was diminished in any way from what the Inspector asked for. There has never been any complaint made and I have not been absent from a single meeting from the day it organized. He was asked today about certain articles in the papers, and denied that he gave any knowledge for them. When cross-questioned he said he thought he ought to have an extra clerk, because an inspector sometimes had to be taken off his regular duties to wait upon customers. Previous to the organization of this Government there has never been a day that the chief of that department did not have any help that he required; but today when we pressed him pretty closely he admitted that he ought to have another clerk.

Mr. Sampson read from the appropriation bill the amount of reduction to $14,000 and Mr. McGaragle said they did not reduce the number of inspectors.

The order was passed. Sent up.

HOTEL FRED.

On motion of Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8, the order for the Inspector of Buildings to report on the condition of the Hotel Fred, owned by C. J. Spenceley, was taken from the table.

Mr. McGaragle—At the last meeting I thought the order was not offered in the spirit that it should be. I made some inquiries and found that the gentleman or any other party could have gone to the Inspector and got a full report of that and all other buildings. From the report made by the Deputy Inspector it appears that it is as well built and easy of access and egress as any building in Boston of the same nature.

Mr. McGaragle then read the report of Deputy Inspector Thomas P. Swett, on said building, made April 9, 1877, showing that the facilities for escape without danger, in case of fire, are good; the stoves properly protected, that it is safe to enter in case of fire, and that the staircases are two feet ten inches in width.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 said he waited on Mr. Shaw, who said the building was all right in every way.

On motion of Mr. McGaragle the order was indefinitely postponed.

SALARIES OF WATER INSPECTORS.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 offered an order—That the Joint Special Committee on the Retrenchment of Municipal Expenses be requested to consider and report upon the expediency of equalizing the pay of the Water Inspectors employed in the city proper and in the Charlestown District. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

Adjourned on motion of Mr. Jackson of Ward 16.

HEARING ON PETITION FOR STEAM ENGINE.

A hearing was had on the petition of Welch & Chipman for leave to erect and use a stationary steam engine at 56 Dorchester avenue. No objections. Referred to Committee on Steam Engines.

NINTH STREET.

The report and order requesting the Board of Street Commissioners to lay out Ninth street, provided the unfilled land within its limits can be obtained without cost to the city, and the filled land will be conveyed to the city at the cost of filling at this date, and that the city shall not pay for displacement of tide water, or construction of retaining walls, were considered under unfinished business, the question being on the passage of the order.

Alderman Burnham—Mr. Mayor, there should be no opposition to this measure, and I do not speak upon it because I fear there will be; but the improvement being in the section of the city where I reside should perhaps be explained somewhat by me. The matter is not a new one. It comes from the files of the Street Commissioners.

The petitions for it were signed by such men as Samuel Leeds, A. Stetson, Benjamin James, W. P. Hunt, R. J. Monks, T. Gogin, Benjamin Dean, Henry Souther, Daniel Bradford, the City Point Protective Association and many others, large taxpayers, representative men, who from early manhood to mature age have been personally identified with that part of our city in all its growth and wants. The public hearing on this petition proved that the material interests of our city would be greatly promoted by this avenue, and that the improvement was demanded for the development of Dorchester Bay for commercial and business purposes, the convenience of the people, as well as more direct communication. The Street Commissioners were understood to admit the case clearly made out. They favored the improvement then, as they do now, but it was pushed on to the future by business prostration infusing such a spirit of economy as to set it aside for the time being. It came before our Committee on Streets early this year, and their order now directs that under certain conditions it be done—conditions, by the way, which possibly impose barriers which cannot be overcome. This improvement, if carried out in the spirit of the order, will be an expenditure of only about $25,000, but an expenditure almost wholly for labor, in these times of laborers' need. The gravel from the hills will cost nothing; the hill territory will be improved by the cutting down, and its value correspondingly increased. These are reasons alone sufficient for the order to pass; but, Mr. Mayor, if I can show you that this is an improvement (at so small a cost) which in itself not only meets wants felt today, but meets foreshadowed and greater wants in the future—if we shall have to build this street in the near future—if we, by accelerating business now, are still caring for the future—then the improvement recommended by this order should not be put off again as it has been in the past, and it is not true economy to do it. Five years ago, unoccupied wharves for business requiring large space on the water front could not be found in the south part of our city. Now, all of us believe that Boston must advance. Her future wants there will not differ materially from the past, only in that they will be greater; and here we find sufficient basis for action that shall care for the future as well as for the present.

In the original laying out of the place the maps show that this was intended to be a continuous street; its ends were graded long ago, leaving this spot at the indentation of the shore, where the land connection was broken off, unfinished. This improvement contemplates a straight, level, continuous avenue along the whole shore, to which travel must come, and on which business will locate, because the barriers which have been interposed by the steepness of the hill ever since Washington's forces climbed this territory to fortify Dorchester Heights, will, in its completion, no longer exist. Every member of this Board knows that Telegraph Hill is over one hundred feet above the water—that the hill slopes abruptly down to the water on either side. On the south (the place of this improvement) it is too steep to allow access to the water, and it must remain so, a complete barrier to the occupation of the bay for business until remedied, by the construction of this street along the beach. Early in the history of the place the streets on the north side were graded—the result was, the opening that whole shore to business and increase of taxation as ten to one, in comparison with the south shore. The opening of this shore will do just what has been done on the other side. Again, the system of streets is adhered to by this improvement. The projection and completion of Swett street was an improvement that today commends itself to all. The Alderman of this Board [Alderman Clark] who was so largely instrumental in its construction made for himself a record of which he well may be proud. He saw in it an artery from the life-flow of business across this city that is seen and appreciated now by all—and to be appreciated more and more in all future time.

It cannot be otherwise, it is a heart artery, it goes straight through; it is the natural course between the territory east and west of Fort Point Channel. Now, this improvement is in the line of construction a natural connection of the territory east of Fort Point Channel with this central artery. To admit the benefit of the greater is to acknowledge the necessity of the lesser, as a part of the same system. It supplies a need that however unacknowledged today will continue to exist.

No commercial city but requires large, open waterfront, that can be afforded at reasonable rent. In 1871-72, as I have said, there was great need of such wharf property at the southern part of this city; all there was of such property was occupied. The business that properly belongs to such territory to be done advantageously should be outside bridges and as central as may be. Now, here is one of the localities (there may be others, but I know of none) with the advantage of being within two miles of State street and  $1\frac{1}{4}$  miles of the head of South Bay, to arrive at which you go through nine bridges, while here commerce is outside of all bridges. This matter of bridge openings in a densely populated city deserves careful attention. In the maintenance of bridges there is an exceedingly expensive outlay—the more frequent the opening the greater the wear. To the large community east of Fort Point Channel, daily passing to and from the city proper, and to the large travel to and from the city proper to the Dorchester District, the opening of Fort Point Channel bridges is a great annoyance by the detention, which we all understand. The magnitude of this detention and annoyance will be seen when I call your attention to the last reports of the Superintendent of Bridges. We there find that with Dover-street Bridge closed one-half the year for repairs, five bridges over Fort Point Channel were opened for vessels last year 37,916 times. Each of us knows the amount of detention in one opening; now multiply that by 37,916, and we are astonished at the result. The loss of time is measured by years. I had the honor to make to the last Board of Aldermen a representation founded on facts, showing that a single wharf located in Dorchester Bay saved in one year (in comparison with another wharf doing the same amount of business in the same time, and located above Dover-street Bridge,) the opening of these five Fort Point Channel bridges 1600 times; i. e., one bridge 1600 times.

Now, with this improvement the whole shore is open to wharves that will proportionably lessen the detention, annoyance, and expense of bridges. Without the improvement this whole territory will lie worthless and unimproved. Again, the convenience of the people demands it; 20,000 people live east of Telegraph Hill. Now, I ask, why should this large population longer be compelled to travel over this rise of the hill, and be made to team over it provisions, groceries, hay, grain, coal, wood, etc., or the heavier articles of building material, such as lumber, stone, brick, lime, etc., which they must do, or go round to the north side to find a level conveyance for the travel and transportation which may be had here within a stone's throw of this hill by this improvement, and for the paltry sum of some $25,000?

Mr. Mayor, if the like number of people in the Charlestown District, for instance, were compelled to travel over the side of Bunker Hill, when relief was so easy to be had, would not our worthy representative from that district, in spite of his retrenchment proclivities, complain of the economy that should put them off and refuse so reasonable a request. I think we should hear from him, and understand their requests, and grant them.

I do not believe we should say of improvements like this, they are for the future, and therefore give them the go-by; they are for today as well; they are for business as well now as then. Our planning for public parks is almost wholly for the future; but there is a broad distinction between planning for pleasure or planning for business. Parks for pleasure grounds,—well enough at a proper time,—but wharves for business grounds too. What the use of your parks if we let business die out? What would Boston have been today but for the sagacious planning for business of those who have gone before us? Why, Mr. Mayor, allow me here the digression to say that the sagacious business eye of somebody ought to have seen, long before this, what nature has done for Boston on this south side of her harbor. Here, free of cost, she offers what we are seeking to obtain on the other side by an outlay of a score of million dollars. This sheltered shore might be made a place for commerce that when accomplished would be the pride of our city and the glory of our State. I have only spoken of the locality with the most limited improvement, sufficient, simply, to make a landing place for lumber, bricks, stone, coal, wood, etc., etc. But, Mr. Mayor, the cost of the Charles River embankment in our public-park scheme would pay for the dredging of a channel a thousand feet wide the whole length of Dorchester Bay—deep enough for the largest ships,—and would create 5,000,000 feet of wharf territory, and would bring every railroad line from the West on to the territory, and would build there elevators by the score. Why not some magnificent scheme for business as well as pleasure? When we are wiser we shall have it. But, Mr. Mayor, coming back to our subject, if we cannot see the great things, let us see some of the smaller ones that attach to our business interests—the very small ones, like this, and let it be the policy of this City Government to do them as they come up year by year. I feel I hardly need to have detained the Board by these remarks, for I believe they are ready to give this order, especially under its unusual, rigid restrictions, a unanimous support.

Alderman O'Brien—After looking into this matter, I have made up my mind to vote for it; and although there is not a necessity for it at the present time, I think I can see in the future where it will be necessary. But it is very refreshing, Mr. Mayor, to hear the Alderman from South Boston talk about the future prosperity of Boston, when he is talking only of improvements there. If we would take the gentleman's remarks for the past three or four weeks, I don't believe we would find one solitary instance where he has said that Boston must advance. Today he says that Boston must advance. I agree with him, and am glad to hear him talk in that way.

Alderman Clark—I agree with the Alderman who has just taken his seat, that it is refreshing to hear the Alderman from South Boston speak of the future growth of the business interests of Boston, especially around that particular spot upon which a large coal wharf is located. I believe that business is bound to grow. But he forgets that there is more than enough wharf room around Fort Point Channel to accommodate the fleet of the whole world. It is not necessary to dredge a channel from Burnham's coal wharf to Fort Point Channel, because the city and State are today making arrangements to accommodate the shipping interests there. I admit that parks are for the future, to some extent, and there is no occasion for lugging that subject into this discussion in connection with the passage of this order. The committee had this matter before them some time, and think that if it can be done upon the terms proposed it will be a good thing for the city, although public necessity does not demand it. But it is a good thing to carry out, and the committee were unanimously in favor of it upon those conditions. I am sorry that parks have been lugged into this discussion, for the order would have been passed without any discussion.

The order was passed. Sent down.

SALE OF FIREWORKS.

Alderman Clark presented a petition from the underwriters of Boston requesting the enforcement of the ordinance restricting the retail of fireworks on the Fourth of July, believing it would conduce to safety more than a general prohibition. Read and referred to Committee on Police.

PERMITS FOR OCCUPYING STREETS FOR BUILDING PURPOSES.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following:

The Committee on Police, to whom was referred the order providing for the appointment of a person to have charge of the permits for occupying streets for building purposes, having considered the subject, beg leave to report that the Board of Aldermen has not the power to create the office contemplated by the order, or to appropriate money for its support, and therefore the order ought not to pass. The committee are of the opinion that it would be a great convenience to all persons interested in building operations to have an officer attached to the Department for the Survey and Inspection of Buildings and authorized to perform the duties in relation to occupying streets for building purposes heretofore performed by the Police Department. They would therefore recommend the passage of the following:

Ordered, That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to report an ordinance providing for the appointment of a suitable person to be attached to the Department for the Survey and Inspection of Buildings, who shall have charge of permits for occupying streets for building purposes, instead of detailing a police officer for the purpose.

Passed. Sent down.

POLICE NOMINATIONS.

Alderman Robinson submitted a report from the Committee on Police recommending the confirmation of the Executive appointments of James Driscoll, and the non-confirmation of Frank G. Durham, as police officers. Report accepted, and said nominations confirmed and rejected as recommended.

Geer, 24 Ellery street; and for edgestones in front of estate of J. D. Braman, on Beacon street, near West Chester park. Orders read twice and passed.

Reports and orders for the watering of streets in connection with the abutters, as follows: Chestnut-Hill Avenue, Cambridge street, Market street, Washington street and Western avenue, expense not to exceed $375; Harrison avenue, between Enstis and Dudley streets, expense not to exceed $100; Norfolk avenue, between Hampden and Magazine streets, expense not to exceed $100. Orders severally read twice and passed.

Report and order to grade and macadamize a portion of River street, Dorchester, as widened by the Board of Street Commissioners, expense not to exceed $15,000. Order read twice and passed.

SUFFOLK-STREET DISTRICT.

Alderman O'Brien, from the Joint Committee on Public Lands, offered an Order, That the Treasurer be, and he hereby is, authorized to refund to Joseph F. Dearborn the sum of $186.20, it being the amount of dividend paid to the city of Boston by the Mechanics Mutual Fire Insurance Company, on certain policies of insurance held by said city on estates numbering 67 Emerald street and 72 and 73 Middlesex street, which estates have been conveyed to said Dearborn, who paid the assessments on said policies which were levied by said insurance company in 1873, and is therefore entitled to the said dividend; said sum to be charged to the appropriation for Suffolk-street District. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

ARMORIES.

Alderman O'Brien, from the Committee on Armories, offered an order—That the allowance of rent heretofore paid for the armory of Company D, Fifth Regiment of Infantry, M. V. M., at the corner of Bow and Harvard streets, Charlestown, be discontinued from and after July 1, 1877; and that the armory of said company be established in the old Winthrop School building at the corner of Lexington and Bunker Hill streets, beginning July 1, 1877, and continuing until otherwise ordered. Read twice and passed.

PERMITS FOR STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted reports from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board, recommending the granting of permits to occupy stables by John Shepard, rear 280 Beacon street; Life Baldwin, Sparhawk street; House of Angel Guardian, Ruggles street; Wilson Walker, Maple street; Barker B. Kent, Gates street; severally accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of D. Willard Emery, for abatement of an assessment for a sewer in Masou street. Accepted.

Reports and orders of notice for hearings on Monday next on proposed construction of sewers in Wesley street, Charlestown; Burr street, West Roxbury, at northerly end; Washington street, between School and Boylston streets, West Roxbury. Orders read twice and passed.

Reports and orders for the construction of sewers in North Market street; in Wyman street between Curtis and Lamartine streets; in Lamartine street between Wyman and Centre streets, and through land of Gaffield, Boston & Providence Railroad Company and Willard Q. Phillips; in Moon street between North square and Moon-street court; in Savin Hill avenue between Dorchester avenue and Sagamore street; and in Sagamore street between Savin Hill avenue and Ramsey court. Orders read twice and passed.

Ordered, That there be paid to Charles B. Gardner, assignee, the sum of $2000 in full settlement of the suit of Albert Blaisdell against the town of Brighton and of all suits in which said town or the city of Boston have been summoned as trustees of said Blaisdell, upon receipt of an acquittance and discharge satisfactory to the City Solicitor from said Blaisdell and all other parties interested in said suits arising from the construction of a sewer in North Harvard street in Brighton; the amount to be charged to the appropriation for Sewers.

Alderman Viles—Perhaps a word of explanation should be given. This is a suit brought against the town of Brighton before annexation; consequently Boston inherited it. It has been tried three times; first there was a verdict against the city of $4000 and it was set aside on some exceptions; and twice since the jury have failed to agree. Hon. William Wirt Warren had the matter in charge for the town, and has been before the committee recommending a settlement by paying $2000. It is a complicated affair. The sewer was informally laid by the town of Brighton; the first party abandoned the contract, and it was let to another. It has been in litigation three or four years, and Mr. Warren recommends a settlement. I do not ask for the second reading. The order went over.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses, as follows:

Minors' Applications Granted—Three bootblacks, four newsboys.

Auctioneers' Licenses Granted—D. G. Luce & Co., 286 Washington street; Jacob A. Rich, 245 Tremont street; W. H. Merriam, 172 Washington street.

Innholder Licensed—Melville E. Shorey, 11 Cross street.

Dealers in Second-hand Articles Licensed—Lloyd H. Brooks, 89 Shawmut avenue; John Keenan, 129 Ninth street; John Connolly, 70 Barton street; John McCanley, 48 Berlin street; Daniel O'Flaherty, 94 Portland street.

BERWICK PARK.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Common:

Report of leave to withdraw on the petition of E. Lawrence et al., that the city assume the care of the enclosure in Berwick park. Accepted. Sent down.

BOSTON CATHOLIC CEMETERY.

Alderman Viles submitted a report from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board on petition of Boston Catholic Cemetery Association, that a hearing was given on the 20th, and the committee recommend the passage of an order, That the Boston Catholic Cemetery Association be, and they hereby are, authorized to use for cemetery purposes (or burial of the dead) a certain tract of land situated in West Roxbury, and bounded as follows: Northerly by Weld street, and easterly and westerly by Arnold street, said land having been recently purchased by the association for cemetery purposes. Order read twice and passed.

STREET DAMAGES.

Alderman Clark, from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board, submitted an order to pay Sarah R. Curtis and Dan S. Smalley, trustee, $850 for land taken and damages occasioned by the extension of Wyman street. Read twice and passed.

ASPHALT PAVEMENT.

The order to repave Columbus avenue from the railroad bridge to Northampton street with asphalt, at a cost not exceeding $3.50 per square yard, was considered under unfinished business. The question was on the passage of the order.

Alderman Thompson presented the following, which was read:

The undersigned, in behalf respectively of the Bailey Pavement Company, the Adamant Pavement Company and the Abbott Pavement, beg leave very respectfully to ask you to grant them equal facilities with any other parties representing concrete pavement, whose applications are now before your honorable Board, with a view of placing the same in any of the streets of Boston. There are four different kinds, varying in essential particulars, now under consideration by the Board, three of which we respectfully represent. We are willing and desirous to place specimens of our pavement in any of the streets of the city, in equal quantities with each of the companies whose samples have been exhibited to the Committee on Paving, to remain for such length of time as the Board may determine. As citizens of Boston, we would suggest that no considerable amount of money should be appropriated from the treasury for experiments until it shall have been determined conclusively by the proper authorities that pavements to be adopted are the best, or at least equally as good, as can be obtained in the market to use. And we are entirely confident that in this particular we speak the voice of the whole people.

JONAS H. FRENCH,

Representing Bailey Stone & Asphalt Pavement.

The Adamant Pavement Company,

By GEORGE A. SHAW, General Agent.

Abbott Asphalt Paving Company,

By PAYSON & Co., Agents.

Boston, June 25, 1877.

Alderman Robinson—Every one of the gentlemen whose names you have read, Mr. Mayor, had as full and explicit a hearing as any other parties who came before the committee, and I don't understand why they should send that here unless they wish to block the wheels.

With regard to asphalt pavement, the committee have not felt it necessary to enter into any lengthened or extended report, such as few would read, or particularly understand. The committee have given the whole subject an extended and attentive consideration; they have had several hearings, and of a most interesting character. All the different specimens of asphalt and other pavements possessed in the minds of the different members of the committee a great deal of merit; and those merits were ably presented at the hearings by the several advocates. As an expert, Major General Gillmore, United States Army, a gentleman who is, as he assured the committee, not at all interested pecuniarily in any kind of pavement, came before the committee and gave his views; was ready and appeared desirous of answering any questions asked him by any parties that were present. He examined all the specimens offered, condemned none, but gave the preference to the Grahamite pavement as being in principle, experiment and proof a success, as demonstrated in New York and Washington, and in pavements on the same general principle in European cities. There was also presented to the committee specimens of wood pavement, the great feature of which was, as stated, that, being impregnated with a large quantity of creosote to the square foot, the durability of the wood was rendered at least five times greater, and which was proved by railroad sleepers that had been laid in Europe some twenty-five or thirty years, while the durability of the ordinary sleeper in this country was only about five to seven years. The committee were not in a position to test all this, but the gentleman who presented it did so in a very able and proper manner, which had its full weight with the committee, as in fact the other pavements were fully considered, the committee being actuated by a desire to obtain every information before deciding as to the merits of any one of them over the others. And the members of the committee have come to the conclusion, from the information they have been able to obtain from all sources, that, if asphalt is put down, the preference should be given to the Grahamite, for the present at least, as being from actual trials and tests no longer an experiment.

A piece of this kind of pavement has been down in New York on a street that, for the kind of vehicles that pass over it, would be the same that ordinarily pass over Columbus avenue. It has been laid some four years, and never has had any repairs upon it to this time. It continues intact and unbroken, and, as far as can be seen, bids fair to remain so for several years to come. Yet this was put down over the common pavement. It is not now proposed by any of the advocates of asphalt to put it down on old pavements, though it is contended that even in that case it would be a decided improvement over stone. Parties have been constantly finding out and making improvements in its composition, and putting down, which compensates for the extra expense of taking up the stone, and commencing with a firm and solid base upon which to put the asphalt, and the expense of which does not altogether exceed, in a general sense, the cost of putting down the granite blocks; and when to this an obligation would be entered into that it would be kept in repair for a period of fifteen years, at about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. on the cost, it seems to the committee that the city would be running no risk in making the change from granite blocks to asphalt, as the expense would be no greater, and its repairs year by year very much less. Most of us, gentlemen, in our youth or early life learned to skate, and no doubt all of us, in our eagerness to enjoy the sport in early winter, have gone on the ice when it has been pretty thin, if not unsafe—say three-quarters to one inch of good block ice. We have all of us, no doubt, observed, when exhilarated with the sport, that it bent under us as we passed, frightened a little at first, but soon losing our fears as we noticed that it returned to its place again after we had gone over; and our only fears then were that our folks at home would find out where we had been, and a whaling was in store for us for our temerity. But what I wish to observe is, that this showed the elasticity in water, and a clinging together of the ice that strengthened the precise line over which our skate-irons passed, and enabled it to return to its position again, and only be indented so far as the mark made by the skate. This, Mr. Mayor, seems to me to be the principle that a cushion layer gives to the asphalt pavement—a slight giving way and a return to its place as the weight resting upon it is removed. This is my own idea only—I may be right or I may be wrong—but I cannot but think it forms a very important and useful element in its nature. It is only just, however, to all the parties who offered specimens of their pavements, that each and all claimed this principle of elasticity, though obtained differently than by a cushion.

It was urged in the benefits to be derived from the use of asphalt pavement, that it was comparatively noiseless, only the click of the horses' feet—no jar to the carriage so the noise of wheels could be heard, nothing to prevent conversation or reading of newspapers on the way down town in the morning—that the strength of horses would be saved, or that horses would be able to draw a much larger load; that it was much more easily kept clean; that there was no dust; that it was always dry; that it was more conducive to health in consequence of there being no little spaces in which any unhealthy or impure matter could be deposited; that there was no tremulous jar to trouble a man's head in riding over, as in stone or granite pavements, and it appeared to me and I think that it did also to the other members of the committee, that these alleged benefits seemed very reasonable and just, and they were entitled to the consideration of the Board. It was the one thing upon which all the advocates of asphalt were agreed—and which was not disputed by any one present at the hearing. Much was said about the asphalt of different parts of the world—Trinidad, Neufchatel, Val de Travers—these two last are both in the Canton of Neufchatel in Switzerland—much about their respective merits, but as far as I was able or have been able to form an opinion, I think they are all of them pretty much of the same general character; some may be stronger than others or have less of foreign substances in them in the crude state, but refining would remove all that and assimilate them all.

I have already expressed my views in regard to the piece of Neufchatel pavement on Ludgate Hill, London, and related my own experience of its wear during a period of some three years—viz., that at the end of six months no marks could be noticed on its surface, at the end of a year it seemed just the same, at the end of two years I noticed the marks of carriages, and which at the end of three years were quite observable and marked. But when probably it is remembered that this very street is one where more carriages pass over in any time of day than any other street in the habitable globe, its durability to me seemed to be simply wonderful.

During the hearing, many pieces of pavement in Paris were brought to my recollection by Mr. Andrews, who appeared before the committee for the purpose of showing the benefits of kerosoted wood, and a gentleman who when I was last in Paris was a distinguished American banker—that were of the same nature as this London pavement I speak of—and this gentleman, though urging his own pavement, had the courtesey and manliness not to say one word against asphalt, but said his whole experience while in Paris, and he had given some attention to the matter, was altogether in its favor. Now, Mr. Mayor and gentlemen of the Board, in making a change in the system or kind of pavement—as I have already remarked, the committee have been desirous first rightly to decide whether a change from granite blocks to asphalt was desirable—and if so, what kind was the best. As far as I have been able to find out, and in this my own views are confirmed by the other members of the committee, that though all are good, yet the Grahamite is the best for the street where it is proposed to put it down; that the cost is no greater than granite blocks; that we shall get more service out of it than we should from the granite blocks; that the residents on Columbus avenue would be much better satisfied with it than with granite blocks; that those living in the outlying wards that keep horses would be more pleased to drive over it; and that it would give more and greater satisfaction to our citizens generally, and being of a sufficient length on the avenue so that all passers over it would be obliged to observe it, and very soon to give an opinion upon it and decide in their minds whether it would be desirable in the future to establish that species of pavement rather than cobble stones or granite blocks, or pavement of wood. There is another feature about asphalt that I have not spoken of; that is, when it in the course of time might become uneven by any means, being put down in layers—on the supposition that the base is solid—the top layer, which is the asphalt, can be stripped off without interfering with the under layers, be melted, and be spread over afresh; thus the renewing of the pavement would be comparatively light compared with the first putting down. This is an important feature in justifying the new departure, and was so considered by the committee. In regard to the repairing of the gas and water pipes, it has been represented that the whole layers taken together are so strong that it is only necessary to take up the pavement in certain parts; the other portion would form a cover to a tunnel; any carriages could pass over it without detriment, and all that would be necessary would be holes to get the dirt up through, and ventilation for the men repairing the damage.

I have, perhaps, gentlemen, not entered into the details of this matter as fully as might be done, but I think I have said enough so that all can have a general understanding of the subject, and perhaps more than I know myself. We had Major General Gillmore before the committee, and his evidence was taken down. I do not think any subject was ever given a more impartial hearing than was given on these several pavements. Having had such an impartial hearing, I am surprised that those gentlemen signed that application making such a statement as that.

Alderman Thompson—This Board is asked to appropriate sixty or seventy thousand dollars for a new kind of pavement, and it is natural that they should desire to know its merits over and above what we have had, and which is well known to be satisfactory to a great extent. The chairman of the committee informs us that it will cost no more than granite; and yet he proposes to spend $3.50 per square yard for this new pavement. I wish to inform the Alderman that he can procure all the granite pavement he desires for any and all the streets of the city for $2.50 per square yard. There is a difference of one dollar per square yard, and it is quite an item. Then he does not give any reason why he proposes to give $3.50 per square yard, when the same quality of asphalt is now being laid in Washington for $3. I don't understand that, and I hope the Alderman will explain it. This same asphalt has been tried in the city of New York on Fifth avenue, and we were told some days ago there would be no objection to using it, because in breaking up the streets for sewer and gas pipes, the same article could be made over and the street be as perfect as before. If that is the case, I want him to tell me why it is that on this same Fifth-avenue pavement, which was cut open last season for water pipes, they should repave just that space with granite rather than replace this same asphalt and make the street perfect. I suppose he would say because it was not convenient—because it was not a large enough job. But if that is the case, and we have got to send to Washington every time we want to repair a street, I think we had better consider whether or not there is some article just as good nearer home. It is not my desire to oppose the introduction of asphalt, if it is superior to granite blocks; but if it costs a dollar more I want to know why it should cost that much more and what kind of asphalt is going to be introduced. It seems to me it would be wise for the city to take some street and try each article—give each manufacturer of asphalt pavement a fair trial. I understand there is a very large profit on this work; and if that is the case, we should open it to competition. There is no reason for selecting a manufacturer who charges the highest price, when there is another article just as good. So far as my experience goes I am perfectly satisfied with granite blocks, which cost a dollar a square yard less. I do not think there is any necessity for paving this special street at this time, and I wish to suggest that the committee consider whether it would not be wise to try some more of the kind of blocks which have worn so well there. For my own part I am not prepared to vote for so large an outlay without knowing more in regard to the article.

Alderman Robinson—I have an impression that the expense of granite blocks is quite as much as asphalt, and I have sent to inquire. I have no recollection that granite blocks have been put in that piece before the Fifth-avenue Hotel; but at any rate, that is not a fair sample of what it would be on Columbus avenue, if put down in a proper manner. In making this departure, the committee were actuated by a desire to take the very best they could get, and every person agrees that the Grahamite was the best kind of asphalt pavement made. I have just learned that granite blocks cost about $3.25, a difference of twenty-five cents per square yard.

Alderman Thompson—If the Alderman will give way I would state that the largest paver in the city of Boston, who was before the Bridge Committee, said he would pave every street in the city with granite blocks at $2.50 per square yard. That was Mr. John Turner.

Alderman Robinson—The expense of asphalt depends somewhat upon the thickness of the layers. You can put it down for $2.25 or $2.50 or $3.50; and when it is put down in a proper manner the price is based upon the thickness of the layers. I do not know what the Alderman alludes to about putting down granite blocks on Fifth avenue, unless it was done for an experiment. I passed over it three weeks ago and it was intact; and notwithstanding it was put down on this stone, it bids fair to wear five or ten years longer, and then all they will have to do will be to melt it over and put it down again.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I supposed there was no division of opinion as to the necessity of repaving Columbus avenue. The Superintendent of Streets and the committee consider that an absolute necessity. It has been patched and repatched, and is in bad condition now; it is absolutely necessary repave it, more especially as the horse-car tracks are laid there. The only question is what should it be paved with? I presume that any member of this Board will agree with me that granite blocks are not the material with which to pave Columbus avenue; that it must be paved with a material more noiseless, and more easily travelled over by light buggies and other vehicles of that kind, and that granite blocks are out of the question, so far as Columbus avenue is concerned. When you consider that the Grahamite Company will take up all the pavement and relay it with a concrete foundation, all at their own expense, the cost of asphalt is precisely the same which we pay today for paving with granite blocks. I take it for granted that this Board will not pave Columbus avenue with such a substance as that. I presume that the most noiseless and easiest pavement for horses and vehicles travelling there would be an excellent macadamized road, such as is around Chestnut Hill Reservoir; but the inconveniences arising from macadamized roads in thickly-settled districts more than counterbalance the convenience to horse cars and travellers, and that pavement is also out of the question. Then there remain the wooden blocks and this asphalt. We had one experience in paving Columbus avenue with wooden blocks. It was divided among different companies, giving each a proportionate share, and we see their condition today. One kind is rotten, another half rotten, and the other in a little better condition than that. After viewing the different kinds of asphalt pavements, listening to the claims of each, and hearing the testimony of, I presume, the best expert in the United States—General Gillmore of the United States Army, who had, as he said, no interest in any pavement, and was summoned here as an expert, and his honor was above anything which he was paid for coming here—the committee had the testimony of such a man as he and of Mr. Andrews, who has spent a good deal of time in Paris and knows a good deal about asphalt pavement; and we heard the representatives of other companies—the committee came to the conclusion that asphalt was the pavement with which we ought to pave Columbus avenue. After coming to that conclusion, then it occurred to us, which is the best pavement to lay upon that avenue, judging from what we had heard and from the experience of other places. From what we learned, we decided that the Grahamite asphalt pavement was the best of the three. We had the testimony of General Gillmore, and it may not be amiss to read it. When the members of the Congress of the United States got tired of the Ring in Washington and the coal tar which they called pavement, they passed an act appointing a special commission to select and lay down the best pavement for Pennsylvania avenue, and the commissioners were named in the act, so that those who controlled the Ring in Washington could not control those who were to investigate the different kinds of pavement and select the best, and Generals Gillmore and Wright, of the United States Corps of Engineers, and Mr. Clark, the architect of the Capitol, were the three gentlemen selected. General Gillmore is considered the best expert in the United States upon pavements. They were selected because they were above reproach; and being army officers, their honor was more to them than anything else. They made an examination into the different kinds of pavement, and here is the verbatim report of Gillmore's testimony. He says—

The Alderman read from General Gillmore's testimony to the effect that inspectors were appointed by the commission to see that the contract in regard to the thickness of the layers was complied with; that the inspectors nor the commission never condemned any pavement, and that nearly all the defective asphalt put down by the contractors was taken up by themselves, for they could be seen by anybody; that he knew nothing of the pavements represented by Colonel French and Mr. Shaw; that as commissioner at the Centennial he had professionally examined the Abbott pavement and all the other coal-tar pavements; that they discarded the stone pavement as unsuitable for Pennsylvania avenue, because of its unsuitableness, and the coal-tar pavement because of its short life, leaving the choice between the natural bituminous limestone pavement of General Averill, and the imitation of it, the Neufchatel, and that they divided the work between the two, giving one-third to the latter and two-thirds to the former; of the two the Grahamite did the better work; that if he had to select a pavement again, he would take the Grahamite in preference to all others; that he preferred an hydraulic concrete foundation, as the coal tar may ooze up in hot weather and interfere with the asphaltum, while the other does not, as it has been tried and no oil has been found in it; that there was nothing in the climate of Boston to affect the pavement; that they had some fears of the hot weather, but they had been dissipated; that there is nothing in asphaltum that can hold frost. He then read General Gillmore's statement of the comparative merits of stone and asphalt as follows:

A.—That may be ranged under a great many heads—the merits and demerits of a pavement. I suppose that in the first cost they do not differ much. The asphalt pavement—that is this class of pavement—laid upon six or seven inches of hydraulic concrete would be less costly in New York—nearly a dollar a yard—than stone pavement on a similar foundation. I suppose if you lay stone in the form of sand or gravel, and lay it well, the difference in cost would not be very great, although it might be in favor of stone, a quarter of a dollar a yard or more. I am speaking now of New York prices, so that in the first cost there is not much difference.

Well, in the durability of the two pavements, unless you get an excellent quality of stone, I think that pavement [pointing to the Grahamite specimen] more durable, but if you get some of the very hard rock—

Q.—You say this pavement—which pavement?

A.—I say this class of pavement. I think it is more durable than asphalt pavement—the hard rock—whether laid on concrete or otherwise. Where you have a block of stone pavement, the blocks selected so carefully with regard to thickness and length, and that can be turned over; I suppose you might get a longer life from stone pavement than you can out of this, although as a stone pavement wears it gradually changes into the character of a cobble-stone pavement, wearing off at the corners, and the deposit of mud and filth is quite as great in an old stone pavement as in a cobble-stone pavement.

The cost of maintenance is another element. I do not know what it costs to maintain stone pavements. Of course it depends upon the quality of stone. I suppose the life of a stone pavement is ten or twelve years. The repairs and replacing of worn-out stones and one thing and another might be equivalent to laying a new pavement; and perhaps it would last a little longer if of very tough stone. I think this pavement has a longer life than that.

Alderman Clark—Do you mean the Grahamite pavement or Bailey pavement?

A.—I mean the asphalt pavement. There is only one in this room. I don't know anything about this or that. I know what that is. It is a coal-tar pavement.

Q.—Do you know anything about the wear of the granite blocks used in the city here?

A.—No, sir, not in Boston here. I know they wear very well in New York where they are laid properly. The pavement on Broadway has been down several years, and it is the only pavement laid on a concrete foundation in New York—the one on Broadway below Fourteenth street.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It has cost an immense amount.

A.—It is very costly; it cost seven or eight dollars per yard.

General Averill—Eight and a half.

General Gillmore—Of course you can get a longer life out of a pavement where you keep the top surface even.

The Chairman—The repairs of this pavement—would you simply take off the top?

A.—To repair this pavement?

Q.—Yes, sir.

A.—Take off the top coat so far as the area requires repairs. You do not have to throw it away, but beat it over and put it back.

Q.—So it is something like railroad iron—use it over again?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—So you don't touch the cushion?

A.—But in case you want to patch a pavement you take up the cushion and put it down again.

Q.—So if you repair a street you don't touch the concrete foundation?

A.—Yes, sir; that will last forever if you keep it away from the frost.

Q.—How would you repair it when you have to take up a whole length, in the case of gas and water pipes?

A.—In Washington we made our foundation sufficient to tunnel under it. It is wide enough for a man to go under it.

Q.—In the meantime can you drive over it?

A.—Yes, sir; without any difficulty.

Q.—And it is sufficiently strong to bear it?

A.—Yes, sir; all light traffic can go over it—light traffic.

Q.—It don't interfere with the pavement?

A.—Not at all. There is another point of comparison that may be mentioned, about the healthfulness of this pavement. It has a hygienic value. You have not given much consideration to that aspect of the question in this country. We are satisfied to get a pavement down that is durable and cheap, even if it is rather rough. The old cobble-stone pavement lasted a great many years after it ought to have been discarded, and people see now that it can scarcely be called a pavement. In Europe the healthfulness of a pavement, its hygienic value, is regarded as a very important one; the noiselessness of it; its capacity of keeping all foul liquids from the soil below, and keeping all noxious gases from rising from the soil.

These qualities of this pavement recommend it abroad, so that lengthy medical papers have been written in favor of it. They there refer to this quality of the bituminous limestone pavement. This class of asphalt limestone is less so than bituminous. That accomplishes considerable on the surface which this does not. The pavement is noiseless, so far as any pavement can be. The most noise you hear about the vehicle is the click of the horses' feet upon it; the wheels make very little noise.

In regard to comparing the merits of the pavement of this class of concrete with a pavement of that class, it is less difficult to draw a distinction between them. I suppose if you had as good foundation for that pavement as you would desire to put under this, this would cost a few cents more per yard—probably a quarter of a dollar—because the material is more expensive. I assume that both have equally good foundation. But while that pavement would require to be re-surfaced every three or four years, this one would not require a cent to be spent upon it in that time; and at the end of twelve or sixteen years that pavement would have cost twice what this cost up to that time.

The life of those pavements—the coal-tar concrete of the various kinds—in Washington has been about three and a half years; some have been re-surfaced inside of three years; some have not been re-surfaced in six years; but the life of the wearing coat on top has been about three and a half years. Up to that time not a cent has been put upon the top of the asphalt pavement; and while you have got to spend a dollar a year a yard upon the coal-tar pavement, a dollar a year upon the asphalt pavement will keep it as good as new.

We assume that the foundation is intact all the time.

Alderman Fitzgerald—General, are there any specimens like that presented to you laid down in Washington?

A.—No sir, I don't think there are. I think—

Q.—Have you ever known any pavement called the Bailey pavement?

A.—No sir, I never have.

Alderman Fitzgerald—And so he goes on; and his testimony is decidedly in favor of the asphalt pavement on a level street where houses arc, and where there is a great deal of travel; and his testimony was decidedly in favor of the Grahamite over all. The pavement in New York is not an asphalt pavement; it is coal tar. The Bailey pavement, represented by Colonel French, has not existence at all, save and except in the specimen which was presented to the committee. If members of the Board will take the trouble to examine these pavements and strike them with a sharp hammer, he will at once see the difference between them. While the Grahamite pavement will impact and yield like a piece of leather, when struck on the edge—showing that it is tough and elastic—you will find that the other pavements, if struck on the edge, are brittle and will break away. The hardest pavement for heavy travel would, I presume, be the one represented by Mr. Shaw. In a place where there is a great deal of travel it might be put down with great advantage. But the Grahamite has advantages over all the others, besides its elasticity. It is laid in six inches of concrete made of sand and cement and stone mixed together into a substance almost as hard as rock. On that is put a soft cushion of the same material, but as separate from it as are the leaves of this pamphlet; and over that is placed the upper layer of this hard substance, and in a few hours it can be ridden over like granite blocks. That it is noiseless I know from experience in driving over it. That it is no experiment, as the Bailey pavement is, is shown, as General Gillmore said, by the specimen laid in New York; and that it is lasting is also shown by General Gillmore's testimony and by the fact that it has been used four years in New York without repairs. The reason that granite blocks were put down there is because their works were taken from there to Washington. The city of New York does not pave streets as we do, and the streets are in shocking condition. If the streets of Boston were in the condition of some of the thoroughfares of New York, the papers of Boston would call upon the District Attorney General to indict the city for the condition of the streets. If the company get a contract here, they will have works to supply the cities and towns of New England with that material. I have examined the material, and am satisfied that those parties—who are nearly all gentlemen—do not come for the purpose of cheating people, but have put their money into this for the purpose of giving a good pavement; and I am thoroughly satisfied that, of all the pavements presented to us, the Grahamite is the best to lay upon Columbus avenue, and is best for the people there. Therefore I shall vote for this order, and if it passes, I shall go for the Grahamite pavement.

Alderman Slade—About two months since, the Committee on Paving had their attention called to this matter of asphalt pavement. It was stated that a pavement was being laid in Washington that was probably the best that ever had been laid in this country. I was as sceptical, probably, as any man in this Board in regard to asphalt pavement. I had thoroughly made up my mind that granite rock was the best pavement for a street, and that probably nothing else would receive much trial in this city. A part of the Committee on Paving, with the Mayor, visited Washington for the purpose of examining the different kinds of paving that have been laid there, knowing that it was a place where experiments in paving had been made for many years. I, for one—and I know that my associates did—went there for the purpose of satisfying myself what was the best asphalt pavement, and if any were worth a trial. We rode over the different kinds of pavement, and I guess they have twenty or thirty miles of it in Washington. We examined them thoroughly, so far as we could by witnessing the laying of them on the streets and riding over them. We examined the works of the Grahamite Company thoroughly, their management and their machinery for the manufacture of asphalt, and the laying of it down. In riding along the streets in Washington you can tell the difference between this and any other pavement, as quick as you can tell the difference between coarse carpet and fine velvet. On our return home we stopped at New York and examined the different specimens that this company had laid there. They put up their works there and experimented somewhat in different streets. They acknowledge that in one or two streets they made a failure of it; but they did it in order to perfect their asphalt pavement. The piece on Fifth avenue was the last one laid in New York. It was all done without pay, for they were experimenting, and had the privilege of laying it down free, and they put up their works for the purpose. After getting this contract in Washington they removed the works there, at a cost of somewhere about ten to twenty thousand dollars. I know about this sewer being cut through this pavement in Fifth avenue. Their works, having been carried to Washington, of course they have not got them in New York, not having received anything for their work, and have never been asked to repair it, and of course when it was necessary to cut it for a sewer it was relaid by the city with granite blocks. The repairs might have been made by this company if the city had asked them to do it. It is not absolutely necessary for them to have these works for a small job of repairing; but they were not notified, and they are not to blame, as the city of New York has not paid them a dollar. For two months I have given the closest attention I could, and the best judgment I possessed, to this matter of asphalt pavement, because my great desire and wish is, that if anything that is noiseless can be used to supersede granite block or stone, and that will stand as long, I am in favor of it. This asphalt pavement is as noiseless as a carpet when a person is walking over it, and that goes a great way in my desire to have something of that kind placed upon our streets. Of all the other specimens we have had, not one of the proprietors would allow that his was not dusty; they admitted that it was dusty, whereas no dust can come from the Grahamite because there is nothing in the mixture to grind up, which I think is a great consideration. It being entirely impervious to water, none can go through it and none come up. It is perfectly sweet to the smell, and must remain so as long as it is in a perfect condition. If any member of this department will go into the Paving Department room and examine the different specimens there, I believe that without any instruction he could not make a mistake in picking out the specimen of the best piece of work there. Now, as to the expense. The Alderman has suggested that some person has told him he will lay granite blocks for $2.50 a yard. I have no doubt that might be done; but he certainly would have to pay one-third less price than the city is paying, for labor and every particle of the work. Granite blocks cost 4½ cents apiece, and any one can see how many it will take; and the city has to repair the ground and do the whole work except the laying of the blocks, which are put down by contract. The other work has been cut down to about twelve cents a yard this year, but it is a very small item in the expense of paving. I am sure that this kind of paving will cost no more than granite, let that be what it is. If we can by any means figure that granite paving will cost no more than $3 a yard, I will guarantee that this asphalt will not cost more than $3. That I will guarantee to this Board if it is done. I do not know but enough has been said in regard to this matter. The committee have spent a good deal of time, within the last two months, to overcome the prejudice against any kind of fancy pavement. For one, I am satisfied to rest my judgment on the Grahamite pavement, place it upon the streets and stand by it in the future. The city will not be cheated a cent, and the work will be done at the lowest possible expense for a good piece of work. I would not put down a pavement that cost only fifty cents a yard, because everybody would know it is worth nothing. I would put down the best thing there is at the lowest possible price.

Alderman Thompson—I am not opposed to asphalt if it is the best article; but I desire more light and information upon the subject. I have not visited Washington recently, and if I had I should be better informed than I am now. The gentlemen who visited Washington tell us that General Gillmore and other parties have pronounced the Grahamite pavement superior to anything else; but for the life of me I cannot tell why it is that at this moment they are laying the Bailey pavement there, which has been awarded a contract within three weeks, and that if any more paving is to be done there they would give it the preference over the Grahamite. Is Boston to pay fifty cents more because, General Gillmore says so, when his own city is taking something else? The gentleman is mistaken about dust coming from all the other pavements. That is where they use coal tar or pitch. Other people use asphalt just as well as the Grahamite. The gentleman speaks of these people coming here with no intent to rob any one. We understand they come here to make the best possible trade and the most money they can. In regard to hiring labor at less than the city is paying, in order to supply granite blocks at $2.50, does the Alderman believe the Grahamite Company will pay more for labor than they are obliged to? They will make as much money as they can, and it needs no ghost from the grave to tell us that. The other companies have the same advantage in regard to noiselessness that the Grahamite has; and we all understand that no odors can escape. In regard to striking them with a hammer, I have done so and cannot see any difference.

Alderman Slade—It was stated that Mr. Bailey had been twenty years in the business; but the only pavement he claimed is a small piece laid for trial in Arlington. There is not a piece of Bailey pavement laid anywhere in the United States. If they have a contract, it is probably as a trial; but I don't know that that is the case.

Alderman Thompson—If they have perfection, what more do they want? If the Grahamite, why want the Bailey? If General Gillmore was an expert, it is supposed he should have given information concerning every sample presented to him; yet there were one or two samples of which he knew nothing. I believe all these men make good articles. I suppose if they lay pavement here they will take their works away as they did from New York, and we shall have to send to Washington every time that we want repairs done. If we are to spend $60,000 for a new pavement, we should have more information. In Western cities, I am told, they would prefer granite blocks, and that they think asphalt is not to be compared with them. I understand that the Abbott pavement is a good one, has been many years in service, and that they will lay nothing else in Brookline; and it can be obtained at a much less price. Let us have the best article at the lowest price.

Alderman Fitzgerald—General Gillmore was not familiar with the other asphalt pavements because they have no practical existence in any public streets to any extent sufficient to be noticed; and if they had been presented to him, as a commissioner he would have rejected them. I fancy that the bid of Mr. Bailey is put in here by persons more in the interest of granite than asphalt, and that the whole of it is to kill asphalt as against granite. Mr. Shaw's pavement has never been tried by a large contract. It looks stony and hard, but has never been recommended by use. The committee selected the pavement recommended by the most practical expert in the country. Perhaps the reason the Grahamite company has not got the contract recently may be explained by the statement in the papers that the Ring have again gained the supremacy in Washington, as the contracts were given to certain parties whose pavements were repudiated by the commission. I do not care which pavement is put down, and it makes no difference to me if the order is rejected. As a member of the committee I have my opinion, and I believe that granite should not be laid on Columbus avenue.

Alderman Gibson—When Columbus avenue was paved with wood in 1869 or 1870 it cost $120,000. Different parties laid down different kinds, and they never had any idea of repairing it. That experiment has cost the taxpayers $25,000 a year, and it is a question whether it ought to be tried again. The committee ought to show the Board how that stands. Now they propose another experiment. I have entire confidence in the committee; but General Gillmore has been so long in Washington that I should fear he had become tinctured with the atmosphere that prevails there. I would ask the gentleman about the Chestnut pavement on Columbus avenue.

Alderman Robinson—I think it was stated at the hearing that it rotted quicker than anything else.

Alderman Gibson—I was born in a chestnut country and never saw any rot in twenty years' service. If the gentleman don't know that of his own knowledge, I say it is good and sound. You can pave that street with chestnut at $1.80 a yard, and it will last fifteen to twenty years; while the asphalt experiment will cost Alderman Robrison—The parties are willing to come under bonds to keep the pavement in repair for ten cents a yard for fifteen years. The committee do not desire any experiments, and the Grahamite is not an experiment. These others are experiments, except the Abbott, which is of coal tar.

Alderman O'Brien—The city has experimented with pavements since I can remember, and within a few years every sensible man has settled down to granite blocks as the perfection of pavement, until asphalt has been brought to our notice. Granite is taken from our own quarries, brought here by our own men, and gives employment to our own citizens, and I believe it is the best pavement introduced. It is also shipped to other cities, and it is quite a feature of our trade. But I don't desire to be old foggy, and stand in the way of improvement. The committee have given this attention, think asphalt is the best, and I am willing to try this experiment, although I believe we will go back to small granite blocks of our own manufacture.

Alderman Robinson—Three months ago I was as strong an advocate of granite as the Alderman; but I think the asphalt will give quite as much labor to our citizens, being manufactured here and kept in repair for fifteen years, requiring the employment of many persons.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The labor does not represent one-half the amount expended on granite blocks in the Street Department. If that be an argument, it is as strongly in favor of asphalt. Granite comes anywhere from Cape Ann to Maine, and the laborers of Boston have nothing to do with it. The asphalt has to be prepared here, and fifteen men will get employment on it to one on granite; I agree that granite is best for the principal streets.

Alderman Thompson—I am informed that the Abbott pavement has been in operation ten years, without repairs, and that no other has been laid in Brooklyn for seven years. On the contrary I am informed that the Grahamite has been repaired on several streets in New York. The Abbott company is managed by practical men; whereas, perhaps General Averill and General Gillmore, or who ever manage the other company, to say the least, are not practical, except, perhaps, in obtaining contracts. I understand that Mr. Shaw's pavement has been in existence five or six years and given satisfaction. Before we vote $3.50 a square I hope we shall know which is best.

Alderman Fitzgerald read from the testimony to show that a practical man, a graduate of Brussels, who had experimented in pavements in Paris before coming here, is at the head of the Grahamite works. He also read from a report of Commissioner Van Nort of New York, to show that the Grahamite pavement had not been repaired, and was perfectly satisfactory. He then said, General Gillmore lives in New York, and has nothing to do with it; he testifies as a professional expert. General Averill is the business manager of the company, perhaps knowing as little of the practical works as the treasurers of our mills do of weaving cotton cloth.

Alderman Thompson—Who summoned General Gillmore here?

Alderman Fitzgerald—He was summoned by them as an expert. He has a high character and is known throughout the United States.

Alderman Thompson—If he was summoned by the Grahamite company he would not testify against them, of course, and was going to say everything possible in their favor.

Alderman Robinson—General Gillmore stated that he came as an expert; and he was willing to answer any questions any person chose to put to him; and he did. [The Alderman read a portion of General Gillmore's testimony in regard to the Grahamite pavement.] Every objection brought up here was answered at the hearing.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The best recommendation a pavement could have is the fact that a man like General Gillmore would come here and endorse its superior excellence.

Alderman Robinson read a brief letter from General George B. McClellan, indorsing the Grahamite pavement, and said General McClellan did not write such letters unless he believed in a thing.

Alderman Thompson—It was no more than ten days ago the chairman of the committee said he knew nothing of asphalt; and here in ten days he proposes to instruct this Board all about it. [Alderman Thompson read an extract from Alderman Robinson's remarks when the subject was first introduced.]

Alderman Clark—I should like to know the comparative cost of a macadamized roadway, granite blocks, and asphalt.

Alderman Fitzgerald—We don't know it; we took it for granted that if we attempted to macadamize the avenue all the residents would raise a hue and cry against it.

Alderman Gibson moved to lay the matter on the table one week.

Alderman Clark—If anything is to be done it should begin at once. I am opposed to paving Columbus avenue with granite blocks. We should also pave Huntington avenue and Beacon street with a different material. There may be small places paved with wood, and for travelled streets like this avenue I prefer some noiseless pavement. I know the committee have given the subject much attention, and they must take the responsibility. I shall vote for this order, and let them lay such asphalt as they believe best. I disagree with the Alderman from East Boston that Columbus avenue does not need repairing. It is a great thoroughfare; has many fine buildings upon it, and is an important street as regards residences. This is a large job to give one corporation; but I understand they cannot afford to put up works here for a small one. I was much interested in General Gillmore's testimony, which was given in a disinterested manner. He gave an honest opinion that the Grahamite was the most economical pavement, and believed it would work as well in Boston as in Washington. I shall defer to the judgment of the committee.

The motion to table was lost.

Alderman Robinson related his observation of an asphalt pavement in London, as given at a previous meeting, and again referred to the necessity for paving Columbus avenue.

Alderman Gibson said he had voted for spruce blocks, the best wood pavement; but he rather questioned the propriety of trying another such experiment. He hoped more time would be given for information.

Alderman Clark said that specimens of the Abbott pavement are laid in Commercial and Brimmer streets, subject to heavy travel, and it has worn well.

Alderman Gibson favored asphalt, if it is durable.

Alderman Thompson moved as a substitute that the committee lay 1000 feet, giving an equal share to the four kinds of pavement.

The substitute was rejected—yeas 5, nays 7:

Yeas—Aldermen Burnham, Dunbar, Gibson, Thompson, Viles—5.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Clark, Fitzgerald, O'Brien, Robinson, Slade, Wilder—7.

Alderman Thompson moved to amend by making the price $3 per square yard.

The amendment was lost—yeas 6, nays 6:

Yeas—Aldermen Burnham, Dunbar, Gibson, Thompson, Viles, Wilder—6.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Clark, Fitzgerald, O'Brien, Robinson, Slade—6.

The order was rejected by a division—6 for, 6 against.

Alderman Wilder moved a reconsideration, and proposed to renew the amendment for $3, as he thought $3.50 too much.

The reconsideration prevailed—9 for, 0 against.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved to make the price $3.25, saying $3 would be practically a prohibition.

Alderman Wilder accepted the amendment, and was willing to trust to the integrity of the committee.

Alderman Gibson thought burnettized spruce blocks the best to put down in this avenue.

Alderman Thompson opposed the amendment, and hoped the committee would report to the Board the cost of the different kinds.

Alderman Slade said they must get authority before beginning to negotiate, and they would get it for the least they can. He would guarantee that asphalt would cost no more than granite.

The amendment ($3.25) was adopted—yeas 9, nays 3—Aldermen Burnham, Gibson, Thompson, voting nay.

The order as amended was passed, and a motion to reconsider by Alderman Fitzgerald was lost.

PROPOSED VISIT TO SUDBURY RIVER.

An order came up for arrangements for a visit to the Sudbury River Water Works on July 10.

It was discussed by Aldermen Fitzgerald and Thompson, who thought no information was to be gained, and Aldermen O'Brien, Slade, and Clark, who thought an opportunity for information would be afforded, and laid on the table.

An order to invite the Water Board, City Engineer, reporters, etc., to attend said visit also came up and was also laid on the table.

SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Alderman Wilder moved to reconsider the vote adopting the order of minority of Salary Committee, which fixes the pay of deputy sealers of weights and measures by fees instead of salary.

Alderman Wilder—The general proposition to support that office by fees I believe is wrong. People using scales, and knowing they are right, never pay fees cheerfully. The fees are difficult to collect. The law requires people to seal their scales once a year, and it is not right to compel them to pay for it.

Alderman Thompson—Quite a number of years the sealers came to my place of business and demanded that my scales be sealed according to law, and I paid for them. I think it is just and proper. I see no reason for subjecting citizens to the expense of sealing private scales.

Alderman Viles—I hope we shall reconsider. I don't believe in sending half a dozen men to prey on the community, and sealing scales three or four times a year. I voted for the order under a misapprehension, thinking it was the majority report.

Alderman Clark—I find in the report of the sealer for 1877 that from January 1 to April 30 the total number of scales sealed was 1600, when there are probably five thousand in the city. Those who use weights and measures should be compelled to have them sealed. [The Alderman read from the report to show that this office should be made self-sustaining and that the fee system should prevail.] That is the opinion of the sealer, and that is the reason I voted for fees instead of a salary.

Alderman Slade—The sealer last year complained that one man could not do it; but he has never told me he favored fees in preference to a salary. If we pay them by fees not exceeding $1000, possibly they may stop when they get $1000; whereas if we pay a salary they will do their work faithfully. The scales are really for the public, and the public should pay for sealing them.

Alderman Clark—I cannot see any more reason for the public paying for the sealing than for the scale itself.

Alderman Fitzgerald—One thing seems lost sight of. The scales are as apt to make a mistake against the dealer as against the customer, and it is as much for the owner's benefit to have them sealed. The advantage and disadvantage is as great on one side as the other.

Alderman Gibson—That office has been an easy one for a number of years. It used to be a political institution, with a couple of men sitting there. If the salary is a fixed sum, the men would not travel around the city sealing scales.

Alderman Thompson—I see no reason for increasing the sealers unless some one is to look after the scales, which they will not do on a salary.

The Board voted to reconsider—yeas 7, nays 5:

Yeas—Aldermen Breck, Dunbar, Burnham, O'Brien, Slade, Viles, Wilder—7.

Nays—Aldermen Clark, Fitzgerald, Gibson, Robinson, Thompson—5.

The question then recurred on the passage of the order of the minority (making the pay by fees), and it was rejected—yeas 6, nays 6:

Yeas—Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Fitzgerald, Gibson, Robinson, Thompson—6.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Dunbar, O'Brien, Slade, Viles, Wilder—6.

POLICE NOMINATIONS.

Alderman Robinson moved to reconsider the votes whereby Timothy A. Hurley was confirmed as a lieutenant of police, and William Fotler and Thomas Ryan were confirmed as sergeants of police.

Alderman Robinson explained that the reason for the motion was that the rule of the Board required all such nominations to be referred to the Police Committee. Nothing was known against the appointees, but it was desirable to have the appointments go through the regular course.

Alderman O'Brien said they had been confirmed already, and as the men were superior he would be sorry to see any impediment to their promotion.

Alderman Robinson disclaimed any intention of throwing an impediment in the way.

Alderman O'Brien said the committee did not call attention to the matter when it was going through the Board, and the confirmation was final.

Aldermen Breck and Burnham said the committee knew of no reason why they would not be reported back favorably. They merely wanted to conform to the rule.

Alderman Wilder could see no use in referring, when the committee say the men are all right.

Alderman Gibson did not believe a policeman or constable should be confirmed without an investigation by the committee.

Alderman Clark agreed with Alderman Gibson, though he had no doubt these men were the best in the department to promote. Investigations lately had led to the non-confirmation of some appointments.

The motion to reconsider prevailed 8 for, and the nominations were referred to the Police Committee.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered an order—That the Committee on Improved Sewerage be requested to report to the City Council on or before two weeks from this day.

Alderman Burnham explained that the committee had met to consider the plans and were working on them; but if compelled to report, they could make only a partial one.

Alderman Fitzgerald, having accomplished his object, withdrew the order.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

Alderman Clark moved to reconsider the votes whereby this Board concurred with the Common Council in "instructing" the Water Board to construct the Mystic Valley Sewer by "day labor," also in refusing to adopt the amendment to "divide such labor pro rata among the several wards of this city."

Alderman Clark—One reason I make the motion is because of the discourtesy to the city of Somerville after they have appointed a committee to confer with the city of Boston. Another reason is, the discourtesy to the Water Board, composed of three competent men who are disposed to do precisely as the City Council wish. We have passed a resolution authorizing and recommending that it be done by day's labor instead of by contract, and it seems to me that is all we should do. It was stated at the last meeting of the Council that unless we passed an order instructing them, it could not be done by day's labor. In order to satisfy myself I obtained Mr. Healy's opinion, which is that that order fully covers the ground and gives them every authority they need. The commissioners will do it if there is no legal objection, and at present there is none.

Alderman O'Brien—I am surprised at the impediments thrown in the way of this order. I have every respect for the Aldermen from Somerville, but when they step outside of their limits and meddle with business they have no right to meddle with, it is time to tell them to mind their own business. The time for them to interfere was when the City Council appropriated $200,000 to build that sewer to purify the water. But now, when it is to cost only $75,000, these Aldermen pass resolutions and meddle with things that do not belong to them. The order emanated from our own Common Council, and shall we snub our own Councilmen and bow down to these Aldermen of Somerville? It is wrong to the laboring men to delay this work by amendments and reconsiderations. I consulted the City Solicitor, and according to his ruling his opinion is not as the Alderman says. He said, If you want to speak to a board, the way is to speak according to the language of the ordinance. [The Alderman read the section of the ordinance wherein the City Council retains the power to instruct said board by ordinance or order.] We merely passed a resolution authorizing them to do what they cannot do on our recommendation. The Water Board cannot think it discourteous when we instruct them according to the ordinance.

Alderman Clark—The action of Somerville Aldermen shows they have an interest in this matter, and they would not do their duty if they did not take notice of work for which they have to pay a part, that is going to cost $150,000, when it can be done for $100,000. Mr. Healy says—

“Upon the passage of that order it is my opinion that the Water Board would be authorized to construct the sewer in accordance with the terms of the order.”

This order was reported by a majority of the committee, and the member of the Common Council who first introduced the subject told me it was perfectly satisfactory.

Alderman O'Brien—The Common Council said by a large vote that they want this work done by day's labor. It is not a resolution, it is an order.

Alderman Thompson—The people of Somerville have an interest in this matter, for their water rates are to be reduced when the debt is paid. If the board is ordered to do it by day's labor, they must do it, whether there are legal objections or not.

Alderman Fitzgerald thought they had been arguing about the difference between tweedledum and tweedle-dee.

The reconsideration prevailed—yeas 7, nays 5:

Yeas—Aldermen Breck, Burnham, Clark, Dunbar, Gibson, Robinson, Thompson—7.

Nays—Aldermen Fitzgerald, O'Brien, Slade, Viles, Wilder—5.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the Board concurred in the amendment instructing the board to do the work by day's labor—yeas 5, nays 7—the same relatively as the board.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald the Board non-concurred in the amendment to divide the labor pro rata among the wards.

On motion of Alderman Thompson it was voted to ask for a committee of conference, and Aldermen Breck and Burnham were appointed said committee.

Adjourned on motion of Alderman Thompson.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

JUNE 28, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

ENTERTAINMENT OF DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—I move a suspension of the rule. At the meeting of the Common Council on the 24th of May I offered an order authorizing his Honor the Mayor to extend such courtesies to distinguished visitors to this city during the present year as may be appropriate and courteous. I wish to offer an order to rescind that order, and if the rule is suspended I shall give my reasons therefor.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the rule will not be suspended, but that we shall go on with our business, and at the proper time, if any gentleman has any grievance to state here, he can do so. I think it is not a proper time to attempt anything of the kind. There is not a full Council, and I think the gentleman should wait until the members come in.

The Council refused to suspend the rule, by a division—23 for, 10 against.

The Council proceeded with the regular business, and when the call for motions, orders and resolutions was made the subject was again brought up.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14 offered an order—That the order passed by the City Council May 28, 1877, and approved by the Mayor May 30, 1877, "authorizing the Mayor to extend, in behalf of the City Council, such civilities to distinguished strangers who may visit the city during the present year, as may be courteous and proper," be and the same is hereby rescinded.

The question was on giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—When I offered this order on the 24th of May last, I did so at the request of his Honor the Mayor, who informed me that his Excellency the Governor had sent a message to him informing him that the President would come here sometime this month, and asking what provisions he could make to entertain him. The Mayor also informed me that he wished me to say nothing about this visit when I offered the order. As the members know, when I offered the order it occasioned considerable criticism, and requests were made to me for an explanation, which the Council will readily see I could not give. No other member enjoyed more than I did the discussion which took place, as I knew the members who opposed it would soon find out that they were opposing the entertainment of the President. I was very much surprised myself, shortly afterwards, to hear of a visit from a deputation of merchants to the Mayor requesting him to entertain certain men who came here to attend the sale of rubber goods, and that the Mayor had invited them to attend an excursion down the harbor, which was not contemplated in the order. The remarks made by gentlemen that the order would lead to a great deal of junketing, I then thought very much out of place; but I must confess that I have changed my mind since then. As I said before, I don't think the order contemplated this excursion. The gentlemen who visited the city then did not come under the head of distinguished visitors, and it would have been much more in place, if the gentlemen who made the request of the Mayor, had put their hands in their own pockets and paid the bills, instead of asking the city of Boston to do it. The plea that it would redound to the credit of the city would not be carried out any better by the city doing it than if the merchants had done it themselves; and it was their business to do it. As I do not know how many more such entertainments may take place during the year, I have made this motion to rescind, and I hope it will pass.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—It is very evident that the gentleman from his own conversation and remarks here offers the order because he has not been allowed to junket.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—What conversation or remarks?

Mr. Flynn—I mean what I say. It is very evident that the gentleman feels sore because he was not invited to the banquet last night.

Mr. Pope—If the gentleman will allow me the floor—I had it in contemplation last Thursday night, but had a telegram from a neighboring State and was obliged to be absent. It had nothing to do with the banquet.

Mr. Flynn—I am not here as the champion of the Mayor or anybody else; but I do know that the opinion of the people of Boston is that the Mayor did the best thing he could under the circumstances. He entertained the President, and invited some of the best citizens of Boston to the banquet. I had no desire to be there myself, and I have no fault to find with the Mayor; and I will not censure him by voting to rescind the order. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered by a division—36 for.

Mr. Jackson of Ward 16—I would like to know what the motive is for offering the order to rescind.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—If it is in order, I would explain my motive again, although I think I did so before. I do not know that it is necessary to go into any full explanation. I have stated the facts in the case. I think the remarks made by many gentlemen at the meeting of the Council when the order was offered were correct—although I did not think so at the time—and that a large sum has been spent in entertaining people whom the city of Boston ought not to have been called upon to entertain, and that the same thing may be done again and again. For that reason I am willing to stop it here. I have already been criticised about the city for offering the order, and I propose to set myself right tonight.

Mr. Jackson of Ward 16—This matter has been before us some time and we have had it discussed pretty extensively. Now, that appropriation was made, giving the Mayor authority to do what he pleased with this amount of money, and I, for one, am willing to let him go ahead and take the responsibility.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—What amount of money?

Mr. Jackson—The amount appropriated.

Mr. Spenceley—No amount was appropriated.

Mr. Jackson—Authority was given him to entertain distinguished visitors. I am willing to let him go ahead, and if he does wrong he is the responsible party. I hope the motion to rescind will not prevail.

Mr. Spenceley—I hope the motion will prevail. I see by the Auditor's report that we appropriated $80,000 for incidental expenses, and that it is intended for celebrating the Fourth of July, entertaining distinguished visitors, paying judgments against the city, and other expenditures not provided for. In the way we are going along, I do not believe we will have money enough to get us through the year. I think we want something during the year for the Fourth of July, and there are considerable legal expenses and judgments against the city. If the Mayor is going to spend money as he has for the last few months I don't think we shall have enough to carry us through the year. I hope the order will pass.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—How much money has the Mayor spent for the last three months?

Mr. Spenceley—Two hundred plates at $25 a plate will be $5000 sure, and $900 added to that would be nearly $6000; and that is since May. The same ratio during the rest of the year will carry it up to $25,000 or 30,000. You cannot judge of the future except by the past, you know.

The order was refused a second reading—yeas 25, nays 34:

Yeas—Messrs. Blodgett, Clarke, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Felt, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, McClusky, Mowry, O'Connor, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pope, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Spenceley, Stone, Thorndike, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wolcott—25.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Cannon, Cox, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Nugent, O'Donnell, Reed, Roach, Ruffin, Shepard, Sibley, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—34.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Cross, Day, Fagan, Ham, Mullane, Pearl, Pratt, Sampson, Smardon, Souther, Thompson, Wilbur—12.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Report of Overseers of the Poor. Placed on file. Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of E. Lawrence, Jr., et al., that the city assume the care of the enclosure in Berwick park. Accepted in concurrence.

Order to refund $186.20 to Joseph F. Dearborn, the dividend on policies of insurance of city on estates on Emerald and Middlesex streets, and paid by said Dearborn. Ordered to a second reading.

Report and order to report an ordinance for appointment of a person to have charge of permits for occupying streets for building purposes, instead of detailing a police officer. Order passed to a second reading. Later in the session the rule was suspended, on motion of Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 (who merely desired to get the matter before the committee), and the order passed in concurrence.

Report and order requesting Street Commissioners to lay out Ninth street, South Boston, on the conditions therein set forth. Order passed to a second reading.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

The order concerning employment of labor in construction of Mystic Valley Sewer came down with non-concurrence of the other branch in amendment to divide the labor pro rata among the wards, and an order for committee of conference.

The question was—Shall the Council adhere to the amendment?

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I was in hopes we had got clear of this, and that when the order was originally offered we would take hold of it in a common-sense view. But I have changed my opinion somewhat. For the last fortnight it appears that it has been a matter of veracity between the Council and the Board of Aldermen, and the whole thing hangs on one or two words. I have tried, by every means in my power to be consistent in this matter, making no charges but what I knew I could sustain, and saying nothing that I did not conscientiously believe to be true; and here it comes down again, after the most absolute proof being given to the gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen that it was the will of the great majority of this Council that the Water Board should be instructed. I find, even no later than the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen, that it is a question of veracity between two of the Aldermen. The chairman of the Committee on Water said he obtained the opinion of the City Solicitor, that the order fully covered the ground, and gave them every authority they need, and the Alderman says the commissioners will do it if there is no legal objection. That is very consoling to the Council; but he did not say it was the opinion of the City Solicitor that there is no legal objection. A few moments afterwards Alderman O'Brien said he had obtained a legal opinion of the City Solicitor which was different. I tried to get the opinion of the City Solicitor, but I found I could not do so except by offering an order, and then he will give it in writing. I intend to offer an order so that we will know what is law and what is not law in this matter. I know there are many men suffering because of our not putting this thing through; but, as I have said before, they never will get one day's work unless the Water Board are instructed. If I had authority to state the opinion of the City Solicitor—but he requested me not to do it—I know what his decision would be. I hope the Council will adhere to its former vote, and then I shall be willing to appoint a committee of conference.

The Council voted to insist upon its former action. The order for a conference committee was passed in concurrence and Messrs. Kelley of Ward 3 and Fraser of Ward 6 were appointed on said committee.

Subsequently Mr. Fraser offered an order—That the Committee on Judiciary be requested to obtain the opinion of the City Solicitor as to the legality of the order now before the City Council on the construction of the Mystic sewer. Read twice and passed.

EVENING CONCERTS.

The order for a joint committee to make arrangements for furnishing music on the Common and other parts of the city during the summer months was considered under unfinished business. Passed—yeas 53, nays 0. Messrs. Howes of Ward 18, Vose of Ward 24 and Shepard of Ward 5 were appointed on said committee. Sent up.

VACATION SCHOOLS.

Mr. Wolcott of Ward 11 moved to reconsider the vote of adherence to the vote of May 31, ult., whereby this Council non-concurred in the order to allow for vacation schools $2000, to be charged to School Expenses, School Committee.

Mr. Wolcott—As I had the honor, at a previous meeting of this Council, to move non-concurrence in this amendment, which was carried, I may be allowed a single word in explanation of my attitude tonight. I have seen no reason to change the opinion which I first held as to the best form which this order should take; but I am fully persuaded of the desirability of allowing the School Committee to make this experiment, and I am convinced, further, that the Board of Aldermen will adhere to their action in the matter. It seemed to me that the best way to accomplish the desired object would be to move a reconsideration, and, if that is carried, to move to concur with the Board of Aldermen.

The reconsideration prevailed, and on motion of Mr. Wolcott, the Council concurred with the Board of Aldermen.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 presented the fourth annual report of the Board of Fire Commissioners for the year ending April 30, 1877. (City Doc. 55.) Sent up.

Like the last year, this has been one in which no large fires have occurred, and the losses have been small as compared with recent previous years. The same feeling of security seems to be prevalent among the community, and the Fire Department have, we believe, by their efforts and department, deserved well the confidence that has steadily gained ground since its reorganization. The organization of the department is the same as stated last year, except that two chemical engines have been added, one being placed in the new engine house on Harvard avenue, Brighton District, and the other on Mt. Vernon street, West Roxbury Village, the last-named taking the place of the only band engine used for fire purposes in the city. In the month of March the "crew" of the fire boat was reorganized by abolishing the offices of mate, stoker and steward, placing it on the same basis as the companies of the permanent force, both in pay and allowance. Heretofore the rations have been paid for by the city; the crew now furnish them at their own cost, under the supervision of the captain. The same number of men are employed as heretofore.

The total force of officers and men in the Fire Department consists of—

The buildings of the several apparatus are in good condition, needing only such general repairs as the ordinary wear requires from time to time. As at present organized, the Board feel that the "force" of the department is sufficient for the protection of the city from fires that may occur, and no new houses or extraordinary repairs will be required during the coming year; the ordinary repairs are being done by detailed men from the permanent force, as named in last year's report.

The following new apparatus has been added during the year (included above):

2 engineers' wagons, built at department repair shop.

2 two-wheeled hose carriages, built at department repair shop.

- 1 hose pung.
- 1 jobbing pung.
- 2 repair wagons, fire alarm.

The number of feet of hose on hand in use in the department is a little more than was reported last year. The chemical engines in the suburbs are furnished with a reel containing some 250 feet, giving them the means of getting a stream on a fire from a hydrant or steamer, serving the purpose of a hose carriage as well.

4200 feet of cotton and 1600 feet of small rubber hose have been purchased during the year and 7400 feet of the several kinds have been condemned; the hose in use is not in as good condition as last year, its proportionable value being—

- Reliable, 70 per cent.
- Not fully reliable, 30 per cent.

There are in service of the department, including three in the fire-alarm branch, 137 horses; and they are in good condition, doing their work generally in a satisfactory manner. No epidemic or special disease has prevailed, and the health has been more than average good. During the year ten have been bought, six exchanged or disposed of as unfit for service, and only one has died.

The apparatus repair shop continues to give satisfactory results. A large amount of work has been done in repairs of all kinds and in construction of new apparatus; also for the fire-alarm branch. The most of the labor is still done by detailed men, who respond for duty at fires when called to the locality of their respective companies.

During the year two two-wheeled hose carriages of the "Ryan" pattern have been constructed, at a very reasonable cost, and placed in the service of the department.

The expense of the shop, including the charges for material, labor, tools and running expenses has been.....	$13,580.72

The hose and harness shop has been conducted in the same manner as last year, doing all the work of the department at the very moderate cost of $2,182.92.

Repairing of hose.....	$1,062.30

The fire-alarm branch of this department is in good condition and working quite satisfactorily. An extra wire has been run connecting the alarm bells with the city proper, independent of the "gongs" and "tappers," so that either one or the other can be struck singly; being an additional security in case of a break in the line.

The right to construct a fire-alarm telegraph in the territory formerly known as Brighton, also to extend the same in the West Roxbury and Charlestown districts, has been purchased for the sum of $5000. All the machinery and material to complete the same have been delivered, and the work is now being rapidly forwarded, and by the 1st of June the Brighton District will be in connection with and under the same system as other parts of the city.

During the past year a change in the method of striking the alarms in the Charlestown District has been made by altering the boxes and striking apparatus to conform to those of the city proper, and the alarms from that district are now struck from headquarters, City Hall. It is in contemplation to have the same change made in the West Roxbury District, which, when done, will concentrate all alarms to the central office, and there be struck.

The city continues to be highly favored in the comparatively few destructive fires. The number of alarms compare favorably with those of previous years, this year only slightly exceeding those of last year. It will be noticed that the bell alarms decrease and the still alarms increase in number, which is a favorable indication, as the loss by the last named is manifestly much less than the average of the former.

The increased expenditures this year in the fire alarm statement are in consequence of the extension of the fire alarm in Brighton, on which has been expended some $6400, to May 1, and payment of judgment of court in suit for injuries occasioned by a faller telegraph wire in 1871-2, to amount of $2,814.99, and by the Auditor directed to be paid by this department, and for which no appropriation was made, it being a claim of which this board had no knowledge.

The large expenditures on engine houses in three years, 1871-2-3-4, were made under the direction of the Public Building Department, and were for enlarging and remodelling to fit the needs of the department.

For the last two years the Fire Department has done nearly all the repairs on the several houses.

The year 1874-5 was the first year of the commissioners and of the annexation of Charlestown, West Roxbury and Brighton, bringing with them twelve pieces of apparatus, costing this year to maintain about $43,000, in addition to the expense of the fire-alarm branch. The expenditures show a yearly decrease, and, taken with the decrease in the number of fires and losses by fire, the board may reasonably claim that the department has made a fair record, and is entitled to the commendation that is occasionally conferred on them. The officers and men are entitled to great praise for their good conduct and successful efforts, and it is believed that, by continuing in the course indicated by the previous administration of the board, the property of the citizens will be equally well protected, and the members of the department be fully up to the standard required of them in the performance of their hazardous duties.

ANNUAL REPORT OF AUDITOR OF ACCOUNTS.

The annual report of the Auditor of Accounts (City Doc. 52) for the year ending April 30, was received. Sent up.

The financial affairs of the city continue in a satisfactory condition, with a less percentage of the year's taxes outstanding than at the close of the previous year,—every requirement made on its treasury paid, and the year closes with a decrease of the gross debt, compared with the previous year, of $342,667.71. This is the first time, for a period of seventeen years that there has been any decrease of the gross debt at the closing of the financial year from that which preceded it, each year previously advancing in amount over that preceding it within that time.

The gross debt, April 30, 1860, stood at $8,535,355.37, and each year it increased until the year ending April 30, 1876, standing then at $43,933,165.01, and at the close of the last financial year, April 30, 1877, it was $43,590,497.30, showing the reduction before stated. The amount borrowed for street improvements during these years was, in round numbers, $22,400,000, and for raising and grading of Church-street, Suffolk-street and Northampton-street districts and widening of streets in the said districts, $3,700,000.

The means for paying the debt, April 30, 1860, were $967,175.69, and April 30, 1877, $16,109,973.55 showing the debt less the means for paying the same, April 30, 1860, was $7,568,179.68, and April 30, 1877, $27,480,523.75. Increase of the gross debt in seventeen years, $35,055,141.93; increase of the debt less the means for paying the same during the same period, $19,912,344.07.

The rate of taxation in 1860 was $9.30 on each $1000 of property on a valuation of the city placed at $276,861,000, with a population at that time of 177,902, and, in 1876, $12.70 on each $1000 of property on a valuation of $748,878,100, with a population, in 1875, of 341,919. The increase of the rate from $9.30 to $12.70 on each $1000 during the period mentioned is principally attributable to the increase of the amount of interest payable on the outstanding debt.

The yearly comparison shows that the gross debt, April 30, 1876, was $43,933,165.01, and April 30, 1877, $43,590,497.30, a reduction during the year of $342,667.71. The debt April 30, 1876, less the means for paying the same, was $27,052,777.60, against that of $27,480,523.75, April 30, 1877, which shows an increase of the debt less the means for paying the same during the year of $427,746.15. This is, however, more an apparent than a real increase of the debt less means as compared with last year, and is owing to the percentages required by law for the Sinking Funds this year being met by actual taxation payable to the Board of Commissioners on the Sinking Funds, December 1, 1877, which have heretofore been taken from the balances of appropriations and excess of income, and paid to the commissioners on the 30th of April each year. The amount which will be paid to the commissioners next December, raised by taxation, is $672,700. Another reason why the means for redemption are less than last year, which should be stated, is the fact that bonds held for land sold have been cancelled to the amount of $145,811.49, and the land held for their payment forfeited to the city to be sold again.

During the financial year the new debt created amounted to $2,017,000, and was wholly for the purpose of extending the Cochituate Water Works, and the amount paid and cancelled, with the funds of the Board of Commissioners on the Sinking Funds was $2,275,338.43, and there was paid, under authority of the City Council from balances of appropriations, unfunded debt amounting to $84,329.28.

It is well, in looking into the condition of the monetary affairs of our city, to bear in mind that it is still burdened with a very large debt, a portion becoming due annually for some years to come, and that to meet the payment of the same, by complying with the wise provisions of law requiring its redemption at maturity, still needs large taxation each year for that purpose, in addition to the required taxation for interest on the whole debt and the amount annually actually needed to defray the current expenses of the Government of this extended and populous city.

The well-known fact that the city of Boston, since 1870, has been paying and cancelling its indebtedness as it became due, and at the same time reducing its indebtedness with revenue derived from improvements for which loans were created to carry out, and set apart for that purpose, and that provision is made for a continuation of this sound policy in the future, places the credit of the city very high in the market, with low rates of interest, and any deviation from this course would be one which would greatly impair that credit. Prompt payment of all debts, no renewals of outstanding loans—care and strict economy in expenditures—no borrowing of money except in extreme cases, and then only for improvements of permanence from which our posterity will derive at least as much benefit as ourselves, should be the policy rigidly observed, thereby resulting, as the debt diminishes each year, in relieving the taxpayer of taxation for interest and percentages on the debt, in promoting the welfare of the municipality with low rates of taxation, insuring its prosperity, even in the continuing shrinkages of property yet upon us—not us alone, but wide spread through every community, and in comparatively freeing our city from debt within a reasonable period of time.

The Cochituate Water Works, for the first time since their existence, have, during the past year, contributed $26,480.18 to the fund for the redemption of the debt created for the construction of the said works, that sum being the excess of revenue over the expenses of maintaining the works, and interest on the cost of the same, at the close of the financial year, April 30, 1877.

TEMPORARY LOAN.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 submitted a report from the Committee on Finance with an order—That the Treasurer be and he hereby is authorized to borrow, under the direction of the Committee on Finance, a sum not exceeding $1,500,000, in anticipation of the taxes payable this year, and that all moneys obtained under this order shall be made payable on or before the 30th day of April, 1878.

On motion of Mr. Sampson the rule was suspended, and the order read twice and passed—yeas 54, nays 1—Mr. Morrill voting nay.

REPAIRS ON THE ADAMS SCHOOLHOUSE.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23 submitted a report from the Committee on Public Instruction, with an order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to reduce the Adams School building one story; to clean and paint the exterior of the building, and to furnish new steam-heating apparatus, with fire-proof room for the same; the expense, not exceeding the sum $15,000, to be charged to the appropriation for Schoolhouses, Public Buildings.

The order was passed to a second reading and Mr. Coe moved a suspension of the rule, as it is necessary to commence the work at once in order to complete it during the vacation.

The rule was suspended, the order read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I don't know but what the gentleman who offered this order, or the committee of which he is a member, have looked into this matter thoroughly; but it seems to me that if we spend $15,000 on that schoolhouse it will be almost throwing the money away. When the Committee on Public Buildings were over there some time ago, they thought it was a foregone conclusion that the best way was to tear that building down and put up a new one. If you spend $15,000 on that schoolhouse, it is an old schoolhouse still, and you don't get what you want. I think it will be better to have the Building Committee investigate this matter and see if it is necessary to authorize them to rebuild it. If you spend a great deal of money on an old schoolhouse like that you don't know where it goes to, and it is an old house still.

Mr. Coe—On the Committee on Public Instruction are two or three members of the Committee on Public Buildings. The Committee on Public Instruction visited that building during the past week, and made a thorough examination of it. They found that, although it is an old building, as the gentleman says, yet it is thoroughly constructed, and it is their opinion that these changes can be made as safely as in any schoolhouse in Boston. The proposition is to lower the building and reduce it so that the number of children to remain in it will be five or six hundred, instead of eight or nine hundred, as now; by putting in heating apparatus to remove all danger of fire, and by scraping and painting the outside of the building, to add much to its appearance. The committee were unanimously of the opinion that when these things were done it will be as good a school building as we have in the city. I have no objections to referring the order to the Committee on Public Buildings, if the Council think best, and if there is the slightest objection to passing the order tonight I will move to refer it to that committee. Mr. Tucker, the Superintendent of Public Buildings, Mr. Clough, the City Architect, and Mr. Shaw, the Inspector of Buildings, accompanied the Committee on Public Instruction, and they concur in the opinion that with the changes recommended the building will be perfectly safe.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—As one member of the committee who went over there, I cannot agree with the gentleman opposite [Mr. Spenceley]. I believe the building should come down a story to make it safe. The walls are good except the plastering, and I don't see why they should be torn down. I trust, however, that it would be well to refer it to the Committee on Public Buildings. There are some men on that committee who understand the condition of the building and are competent to judge whether it should come down or not. I must say that if the gentleman says the building must come down, I don't think he made a very sharp examination of it.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2—As the gentleman has no objection to referring it to the Committee on Public Buildings, I think that reference would be proper. The building has never been considered safe. It is poorly built, is located on the side of a hill, and is dangerous in the winter. If it is to be lowered one story, perhaps, as the gentleman from Ward 19 stated, it might be better to build a new one. There is plenty of land on each side of it that can be bought at a cheap figure.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—After the sharp missile from the gentleman from Ward 3, perhaps I ought not to say anything more. I am in favor of taking it down one story, and four more besides. If gentlemen who are acquainted with buildings will go there and see the exterior, and notice the location on the side of the hill, I think they will agree with me that it has no great beauty. I suppose they may go over it and fix up the mastic and put in new heating apparatus, but you will still have an old building. The inside is worn, and the whole building seems to have done good service for the city of Boston. We are proud of our schoolhouses. I don't know how they feel about these things in East Boston. When they lower it one story and take the mastic off and make the building sightly, I think a great deal of money will be thrown away, when you might add a little more and give them a good schoolhouse. I am willing to get along any way, but I think the most judicious and cheapest plan in the end is to build a new one.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I don't think I stated that it is as good as any school building in Boston; but I do undertake to say that in examining those walls I could not see any crack in the building. Mr. Tucker told me the thickness of that wall was twenty inches in some parts; and I think that is as thick as some buildings in Boston. I don't believe in tearing it down because it is old. I believe it can be taken down one story, the plastering taken off, and the building made a good one. To be sure, it won't be as good as some Boston school buildings; but children can get as good an education in it as in any other. The foundation is perfectly level, the bricks are laid upon a level foundation, and there is no danger of the building sliding off. It is a solid bank and the building will rest upon it. It is a great deal more solid foundation than some of the buildings at the South End are put on. If you refer to the Committee on Public Buildings, I think they will not favor the tearing down of the building.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I am glad this matter has come up. Some years ago I had a chance to see the Adams Schoolhouse, and I believe it is one of the greatest rat-traps in the city that the children are intrusted in today. It is a disgrace to the city of Boston, and it is only a matter of time that some accident will happen there. The manner in which the furnaces are placed under the building renders it unsafe, and it has been so for many years. It is only strange that the people of East Boston have consented to send their children there. You can build a new schoolhouse for twenty or thirty thousand dollars. I don't believe you can make this one safe.

Mr. Wolcott of Ward 11—As a member of the Committee on Public Instruction I have no objection to a reference to any other committee, except that the repairs required are extensive and need to be commenced at once. The gentleman who has just taken his seat has not spoken in any too strong terms of the Adams Schoolhouse. The height of the building is very great; the heating apparatus is in an unsafe condition, and has been pronounced so in former years. The experts in the matter, who went with us, stated distinctly that the repairs proposed would render it as safe as any schoolhouse in the city. The walls are twenty inches thick to the top of the building, and that is considered safe. The only danger from fire in the building will be removed by changing the heating apparatus and lowering the height of the building one story. The position of the building is considered particularly pleasant in summer, and the teacher testified that there is no trouble about heating it properly in winter. I think the changes recommended by the committee will meet all the requirements in the case, and that we shall get no further light upon it by the reference.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2—I have another reason for wishing to see this matter referred to the Committee on Public Buildings. I happen to live in that locality, and it is generally understood all about the neighborhood that that building has settled. I never heard it from Mr. Shaw, the Inspector of Buildings; but it is a positive fact that that building does rock in stormy weather. I venture to say it is the poorest site for a schoolhouse in the city of Boston. The hill is very steep, and difficult for children to climb. Without wishing to differ with the committee having this matter in charge, I desire to see it referred to the Committee on Public Buildings, because I think it is really the committee who ought to look into the matter of the safety of the building. As to the necessary repairs and alterations, I think it is well enough for the Committee on Public Instruction to examine into it. In that neighborhood it is generally understood that the building is not safe, and I think it would be satisfactory to the people of East Boston if it is put into the hands of the Building Committee, to make a thorough examination of that part of it.

Mr. Coe—The committee have not the slightest objection to the reference, except that if it is passed tonight it will be in time to make the repairs during the summer vacation, which is necessary. I would repeat what I have already said, that two or three gentlemen on the Committee on Public Instruction are members of the Committee on Public Buildings; that they and the Superintendent and Inspector were with us when we made the examination; and they concurred in the recommendation. I hope this matter will be passed tonight without the delay of reference.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I don't know anything about the merits of this case, but it seems queer to me that the Committee on Public Instruction should come in here and ask for $15,000 to come from the appropriation for public buildings. It is a matter that entirely belongs to the Building Committee, and I think it ought to go to them.

Mr. Wolcott—The settling of the building was fully inquired into, and it was distinctly stated that no evidence of cracks and settling was to be found. In regard to the feeling of the people in that part of the district, the committee heard fully from the members of the School Committee in that part of the city, and they stated that the people are satisfied with the location and will be satisfied with the changes recommended by the committee.

The order was passed—28 for, 24 against.

REPAIRS ON BRIMMER SCHOOLHOUSE.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23 offered an order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to furnish the Brimmer School Building with new steam heating apparatus, with fire-proof room for the same, and to cause the hooks used for hanging clothing in the entries to be removed; the expense, not exceeding $7500, to be charged to the appropriation for Schoolhouses, Public Buildings.

Mr. Coe stated that the repairs are not extensive, and time is not so much of an object; and on his motion the order was referred to the Joint Committee on Public Buildings. Sent up.

REGISTRAR OF VOTERS.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be requested to inform the City Council whether the member of the Board of Registrars of Voters who was appointed during the present year has entered upon the duties of his office.

Mr. Flynn—Perhaps that order needs a little explanation. I understand that the person who was appointed a Registrar of Voters is now a member of the Board of Assessors, and is performing the duties of a First Assistant Assessor in the Dooming Board. I understand that he does not intend to enter upon the duties of Registrar of Voters until after he gets through with the duties of First Assistant Assessor; also, that he claims the right to do his own business in connection with the registration of voters, if he does anything at all. It is for that reason I offer the order at this time, and that he may have an opportunity to resign, or the place be declared vacant, and somebody else appointed.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent up.

SALARIES OF EMPLOYEES OF WATER BOARD.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 offered an order—That the Boston Water Board be authorized to fix the rates of compensation to be paid to their employes, after the 1st of July, 1877, for the remainder of the salary year, provided that the amount allowed by the City Council for that purpose shall not be exceeded thereby.

Mr. Fraser moved a suspension of the rule.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 asked for some information about the order.

Mr. Fraser—This matter has been thoroughly understood by the Committee on Water for some time, and but for negligence on my part it would have been offered before. It has been before the Committee on Water and they have taken action upon it.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I did not hear the explanation given and do not exactly understand the purpose of the order. I supposed the Water Board already had that power asked for. In what respect have they not that power?

Mr. Beeching of Ward 1—The action of the Retrenchment Committee fixed the salary of each employe in the Water Department, and it seems necessary to correct it. One case which I will state will show clearly that it needs to be rectified. The superintendent of the western division received $3000 a year previous to the action of the committee; and they cut his salary down $300. The superintendent of the Mystic Department had a salary of $1800 and the committee cut it down $200. I am informed that the labor, duties and responsibilities of each are equally great; yet one receive $2700 for doing the same work for which the other receives but $1600. I am informed that there are many other inequalities which the Water Board propose to correct. This order is precisely the same as the one passed June 7, authorizing the Fire Commissioners to fix the compensation of the clerks in their department, and will give the Water Board the same authority.

The rule was suspended, and the order was put upon its passage.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—Before voting upon the order I should like to hear from some member of the Retrenchment Committee as to the necessity for it.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I would like to hear from some member of the Retrenchment Committee, for this reason: When they had this matter before them, they had the facts in the case, and knew what the duties of these different superintendents were. I know something of the duties of the superintendent of the western division, but I am not conversant with those of the superintendent of the eastern division. The superintendent of the western division has entire charge of the laying of the new pipe and the whole of the Brighton and West Roxbury divisions. It requires an engineer to have charge of that division, and it seems to me that when the Retrenchment Committee established this salary as they did, they had some reason for it. I hope it will be recommitted to the Retrenchment Committee and let them examine it over again.

The order was passed. Sent up.

DUTIES OF CITY OFFICERS.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 called attention to the rule requiring joint committees to report on all matters referred to them within one month, or ask for further time; and asked for a report on the order offered by him on May 16, for an ordinance requiring all city officers to devote their whole time to the city and not actively engage in other business.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9 said the Committee on Ordinances had not been called together since then until yesterday, when, no quorum was present, as several members were attending the commencement exercises at Harvard College.

STORAGE OF GUNPOWDER.

On motion of Mr. Barnard of Ward 24 the order for the Inspector of Buildings to examine the building wherein gunpowder is for sale, No 267 Federal street, was taken from the table, and Mr. Barnard moved its indefinite postponement.

Mr. McDonald of Ward 12—I hope this order will not be indefinitely postponed. Enough has already been said upon this all-important question, and which should demand our most careful and immediate attention. We must judge of it in an impartial manner and render our verdict accordingly. Gunpowder, we all know, should not be kept in buildings occupied by quite a number of families, as this one is, for if a fire should occur upon the premises the loss of life would be very great. We cannot be too cautious in securing the property of the citizens of Boston, and protecting life at all hazards.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—If the gentleman has reason for thinking that gunpowder is stored on the premises he should report it to the Chief Engineer. This is no place to bring it, and it seems to me there is something personal about it. I hope it will be indefinitely postponed and that the gentleman will carry it where it belongs.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—When this matter was first brought up, it was stated that this matter of storing gunpowder was entirely in charge of the engineer of the Fire Department. After it was introduced I was riding up in the elevator with one of the Fire Commissioners, and told him about it; and he said he thought it a good order to offer, and that it should be referred to the Inspector of Buildings or to the Committee on Fire Department. If the Fire Department allow gunpowder to be stored in a building occupied by families, the matter will come out in the report. It is a serious matter and should receive attention.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—Many things need investigating, but this is hardly a proper place to bring this matter. There are certain officials to attend to this matter, and a short, quick and effectual method is to give it to those officers and have them attend to it. I don't understand that anything has been done in that way, but, so far as I have heard, the matter was brought here first. If the proper officers had been applied to, then there might be a reason why we should take it up; but it seems to be a slow method to set the whole machinery of the Common Council and Board of Aldermen at work.

Mr. McDonald—I assure the gentleman from Ward 19 that I had nothing personal in it. I intended to offer an amendment that all similar buildings be inspected. If the gentleman will turn to page 119 [Ordinances] he will see that—

“No tenement house, or any portion thereof, shall be used as a place of storage for any combustible article.”

I thought this was the place to offer the order, and I assure the gentleman from Ward 19 that there is nothing personal about it whatever.

The order was indefinitely postponed.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Sewers. On expediency of constructing sewers in Washington street, between School and Boylston streets (West Roxbury); in Wesley street, Charlestown; in Burr street, West Roxbury, at northerly end.

Mr. ——— Farnsworth objected to the sewer in Burr street, as it was only asked for by one gentleman, and is not needed by the public. It will put five abutters to an unnecessary expense. Mr. Charles Sellig also objected for the same reason. The subject was recommitted to the Committee on Sewers.

No one else appeared to object, and the subjects were recommitted to the Committee on Sewers.

Metropolitan Railroad Company. On petition for location of tracks in Dartmouth street, and for tracks in Marlborough street to West Chester park.

Mr. Richards, President of the Metropolitan Railroad Company, explained that the object of the first part of the petition is to extend the tracks on Boylston street from Clarendon street, passing the large church and the Art Museum, and turn eastwardly into Dartmouth street, thence by double tracks to connect with the track on Tremont street. People residing and attending the churches in that section desire it, and the Board must see the benefit the public will enjoy in having an opportunity to visit the Art Museum in horse cars.

Mr. Martin appeared to object on behalf of almost every resident on Dartmouth street; no one on the street desires or will use it.

George P. Baldwin said Dartmouth street is about the only street left running west that is free of tracks; it is hardly wide enough for double tracks, and travel on this great thoroughfare will be obstructed by the location.

Moody Merrill, president of the Highland Street Railway, said that if there is such a location granted, his road would like the privilege of running over it. If it is granted it will save the temporary location in Chandler street. The greatest objection to it is the narrowness of the bridge, and he suggested that only a single track be laid on it. They desired to make a complete connection between the Highlands and the Back Bay which is destined to be the most beautiful part of the city. He wished the Board to grant either this location or the small one asked by his road, on which there is to be a hearing next Monday.

Mr. Richards said Mr. Merrill had argued the case so well as to leave him almost nothing to say. The two roads are in accord in this matter, except in one matter. He then took up the next portion of the petition, for additional track in Marlborough street, as far as West Chester park. So great was the growth of population in that section it demands a double track. Any builder will say it is the only place where he can erect a fine dwelling and be sure of a profit. It is impossible to run the cars by single tracks and turnouts as often as the residents there demand.

No one else appeared. The subject was recommitted to the Committee on Paving.

SALARY OF SUPERINTENDENT OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Alderman Burnham presented the following:

The Trustees of the Public Library respectfully petition the City Government for authority to make a contract with Mr. Justin Winsor for his services as Superintendent of the Library for a period of five years from May, 1877, and at a compensation not exceeding $4500 per annum. They regret to state that without such an arrangement the institution will be compelled to relinquish the very important direction of its affairs, dependent upon Mr. Winsor.

WESTON LEWIS.
GEORGE B. CHASE.
OSBORN HOWES, JR.
B. F. THOMAS.
JOHN T. CLARK.
RICHARD POPE.

Alderman Burnham—Representing the Library Committee, I have to say that an exigency has arisen in the management of the Public Library that seems to demand that we should act upon this petition from the trustees at the present time. Mr. Winsor, the Superintendent of the Public Library—a gentleman known to all of us—has been elected by the President and Fellows of Harvard College as the college librarian, and in the communication notifying him of his election he has been requested to give a definite answer by July 7; so unless we act upon it at present, we leave it to Mr. Winsor to make an affirmative answer and thereby lose the services of an officer whom we all understand to be exceedingly valuable to the city. When we know that this election offers to Mr. Winsor a permanent, life-long place; that it brings a salary nearly a fourth greater than he receives at present; brings great relief from the arduous toils in his present employment under the city of Boston, in that his labor will be some hours shorter; that he will receive from two to three months vacation; and that he will also receive a professorship, we cannot but see the great inducement for him to accept this place. Mr. Winsor's friends are urgent that he should accept the position. But there is another side to this matter, and that is the side of the city of Boston. Mr. Winsor, it is well known, has had ten years' experience in the administration of the affairs of this library. These years have been of immense value to the city, as well as gathering great experience to himself as superintendent of a library. He has given the Boston library a world-wide renown and put it in the foremost rank of institutions of that kind; and in doing this he has developed for himself rare qualities as a superintendent. Now, while he can go from this library with great advantage to himself, it seems to me that Boston cannot spare him; that his record being made, Boston still wants and should have his services. Under these circumstances the trustees desired to have him remain, and the committee joined in this request. To this end a conference was held with Mr. Winsor. He frankly said that could his office have a permanence—which it does not now, in the annual election—and could he have a compensation compared with that of other similar institutions, it would be his ambition to remain. It is upon such a state of facts as these that the library Committee, after consultation with the Trustees, have by a unanimous vote directed me to offer an order which I shall shortly present and move that it be acted upon at the present time. The salary proposed in this order is inferior to that paid in similar institutions in our own country and abroad. The Astor Library of New York pays $5000, and Chicago and Cincinnati pay the same. Since Mr. Winsor's employment as Librarian of Boston, it is known that he has received offers to become the superintendent of other libraries at a like sum. The Committee on Ordinances having met today, considered this matter and voted that in their opinion the order I shall offer does not conflict with the ordinance in regard to the Public Library. The Committee on Public Library, in consultation with the trustees, presented an inquiry to the City Solicitor, which I will read:

"The undersigned, representatives of the Public Library and the Joint Standing Committee of the City Council upon the Public Library, are instructed to ask your opinion upon the following question: Whether the City Council has power to authorize the Trustees of the Public Library to make a contract, for five years, for the services of any person employed in the library?"

This was signed by the President of the Board of Trustees and the chairman of the Joint Standing Committee on Public Library. In answer Mr. Healy says—

"In my opinion the City Council can give the authority suggested."

Now, if it is within the province of the City Council to make this contract, and if I have made the matter plain in the few words I have said, it seems to me it is a proper thing to come into this order and ask that the trustees have authority to do what they petition for. If Mr. Winsor's services are so valuable that Harvard College will offer him an increased salary, it seems to me that if the city of Boston can offer him the permanency of a five years' position it should be done. With these remarks I will now present the order; and ask that it may be put upon its passage:

Ordered, That the Board of Trustees of the Public Library be and they hereby are authorized, in behalf of the city of Boston, to contract with Justin Winsor for his services as Superintendent of the Public Library of the city of Boston for five years, from the first day of May, A. D. 1877, at a compensation not exceeding $4500 per annum.

Alderman O'Brien—This appears to be an extraordinary order to bring before the City Council. Sometime ago we considered the salaries of the heads of all the departments of the City Government; we had the President of the Board of Trustees of the Public Library before us, and the facts stated by the Alderman were stated by him—that Mr. Winsor is a very valuable man and very efficient in the performance of his duties. I have no doubt of it. But, Mr. Mayor, I doubt the expediency of bringing in an order of that kind, and saying to the City Council and to the 350,000 inhabitants of Boston that Mr. Winsor is the only man who can fill that position. We have educated Mr. Winsor in that position, and I propose to give some other man a chance. At the City Hospital we have educated men to be experts in their line of business. Take Dr. Williams, the oculist, who has had his tens of thousands of patients to operate upon. It gives him an experience he cannot get in private practice at any price. I propose that we shall become public benefactors in the administration of public business. Having educated him, I say we ought to educate more. I believe there are hundreds of citizens who could fill that place after a few weeks' experience with just as much ability as Mr. Winsor; and if Mr. Winsor has an offer of a position in Harvard College, I should advise him to take it if they are willing to pay him a higher price than the city of Boston does. This would be a bad precedent to adopt. The next thing, another head of a department or superintendent will come in here. It has been said that the head of another department could have five or ten thousand dollars in another city; and I should be willing for him to take his leave and take his five or ten thousand dollars if such an offer is made. After fixing our salaries for the year, I think it would be dangerous policy to adopt this order. Since I have been a member of this Board two positions have been vacated in this City Hall that it was said could not be filled; one by death and the other by resignation. Those positions are better filled today than they were previously; I don't care what is said to the contrary. I believe that any position in the gift of the city can be filled by hundreds of citizens outside of City Hall. It appears to me there is a little too much red tape about this Public Library. The men who instituted that library never dreamed that it was going to be such an expense as it is. One hundred and twenty thousand dollars are appropriated to carry it on every year, of which $60,000 are expended for salaries. While admitting that it is one of the best institutions we have, I believe we expend money enough upon it. I am proud of it, and Boston ought to be proud of it; but still we ought to keep all institutions of that kind down to an economical mark, and not be prodigal in our expenditures. It is a public benefaction, and public benefactions should be conducted with the utmost economy. Therefore, I shall oppose this order.

Alderman Burnham—I admit all the Alderman says about the extraordinary character of the order; and I claim there is a reason for it. The Alderman deals with the present incumbent as though he could readily step out from the Public Library and pick up a dozen individuals who could fill the place as well as Mr. Winsor. That is not a fact. Every man sitting at this Board knows that during the ten years Mr. Winsor has had charge of this library he has exhibited powers and capabilities which have made him the head of superintendents of public libraries throughout this country and Europe; so that if there be a convention of those having to do with such institutions, they honor Mr. Winsor by placing him at the head of such convention, and by appealing to him for advice; and he stands before us as a man whose place cannot be easily filled. The Alderman seems to argue in favor of experience; but he hardly supports the argument by citing the case of Dr. Williams. If his experience is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, it seems to me that experience should be of value to the city of Boston. Mr. Winsor stands before us too valuable a man for the city of Boston to lose—not to say another man might not be found to fill his place. But the fact remains that if Mr. Winsor accepts this position at Harvard College, it will devolve upon the trustees to give a large amount of their time to the affairs of the institution. If another man is placed in the position it may be necessary to employ not only one, but perhaps two, to do the same work. Mr. Winsor is doing catalogue work, which is a wonder, to all who behold it. I refer to the catalogue of the Boston collection; and if he leaves, it will be necessary to employ him to finish that catalogue. I believe this matter is fully understood by the Board, and I cannot think we will prejudice the Public Library of Boston by allowing him to accept the position offered in a neighboring city.

Alderman Thompson—The chairman has stated correctly that this emergency must be met. The question with the trustees in the case of Mr. Winsor is, how are they going to get along without him? The Alderman stated that he was proud of the Public Library. We are all proud of it, and we are indebted to Mr. Winsor for the condition of that library. We have the best library in the country, and we are largely indebted to Mr. Winsor for the position that it holds; and the question is whether we are going to allow Mr. Winsor to leave us after all the experience he has had in that position, and go to another institution—the offer of which is an evidence of his value,—and be compelled to employ two or three persons, as I maintain it will require all of two persons to fill his place. A more industrious man does not live than the Superintendent of the Public Library. He is at his post early and late; and when he returns home he continues to work in the interests of the library until the late hours of the night. To show in what estimation Mr. Winsor is held by the literary world, I will state that at the Caxton celebration which took place in London—a celebration in honor of the man who printed the first book in London, in 1477—which was participated in by the people of the whole world, this librarian of Boston was chosen one of the vice presidents,—showing in what estimation he is held abroad; and at the Centennial Mr. Winsor was president of the Congress of Librarians which was in session for several days. This same Mr. Winsor once refused an offer of $10,000 to go to Chicago, preferring to remain here. Although I dislike any increase of compensation—as this is a reform government—I think it will be in the interest of economy to pass this order. As the chairman of the committee has truly said, we must decide upon this question within a few days, or we lose Mr. Winsor's services, which in my judgment are invaluable to the city. If the Alderman opposite had had a little more to do with the Committee on the Library, I think he would not have reflected as he did upon the Superintendent for the compensation he is receiving. I am sure he would not oppose the order if he had known, as the committee do, the nature and value of the service; on the contrary, I think he would be one of the first to advocate its passage. Under no consideration should we consent to lose so valuable a man as Mr. Winsor. The very fact that the first institution of the country desires his services should be a reason why he should be retained by the city of Boston, which has the largest and best-managed library in the country. It will be a serious matter to the library if we lose him; and, as the president of the trustees truly asked, how can we get along without him? Mr. Winsor's administrative abilities are extraordinary; and although we may find a man to fill a certain position, this is one that cannot be easily filled. It requires not only a peculiar scholarship, but great administrative ability which cannot be found in the ordinary walks of life.

Alderman Fitzgerald—When the Alderman from Charlestown spoke of this being a reform Government, a smile was on his countenance, and I am not surprised, because if we go on at the rate at which we have been going on, rescinding piece by piece the orders reported by the Retrenchment Committee, I think it would be more decent to come out flatly and introduce all of them at once. On the programme of the day is another order that the Water Board be allowed to fix the salaries of their employes. I also understand that the Directors for Public Institutions want to have the same power to fix the salaries of their employes, and from the way it is going along there will soon be nothing of the Retrenchment Committee left but the members. I do not intend to under-value the services of Mr. Winsor. He is an excellent man, and the city of Boston can with great difficulty find one to take his place if he leaves the Public Library. But I do not believe in the order just introduced. It is bad policy in this or any government to so over-value the services of their servants as to make them an exception to the ordinances. The ordinances prescribe that at the beginning of each year, when the new trustees are elected, they shall choose a Superintendent. Five years from today it is possible that the same men may not be in the office at all. Our heads of departments, with a few exceptions, are annually elected. We ourselves are elected annually, and those who are candidates for office know how terrible it is to be subjected to the inquisition of being before the public, and having everything we have done and not done made public. If the members of the Board wanted to remain in office, I presume they would prefer that the term should be three or five years. The Mayor might feel more secure, and there would not be so much threatening if his term was three or five years. The annual election is no great inconvenience to the heads of departments. Now, what do you propose to do? Mr. Winsor is a man of great ability. I agree that it will be a long time before we can fill his place, and it will take some time before we can get a man to come up to his capacity. But is that a reason why we should pass an order authorizing the trustees to make a contract with Mr. Winsor for five years, giving him a salary of $1000 more than he received before we cut down salaries? In 1861 his salary was $2000; in 1871, $3000; and in 1876-7, $3600, until the Retrenchment Committee cut it down to $3200 or $3300; and now it is proposed to add $900 to the salary which he received before the Retrenchment Committee fixed it this year. And why? Because he has been invited to a position for which he will receive a higher salary; consequently we will extend the contract five years simply because he wants to be more secure in his position. Suppose our excellent City Engineer said the city of Chicago wants his services. He possesses peculiar talent, and it would be difficult to find a man to fill his place. Suppose he should say that unless you raise his salary and elect him for five years, instead of one, he would resign and go to Chicago, Cincinnati or New York; and suppose the Committee on the City Engineer's Department should report an order parallel with this. The City Architect is admirably fitted for the position he has held for three years; he has been instructing himself in school architecture, and probably knows more about it than any other architect in the city. Suppose he came to the City Government and said, "I have been seven years with you; I have built so many schoolhouses, and I have received an invitation from the School Board of New York at a salary of six thousand dollars a year. The City Architect has saved the city more than ten times that since he has been in the employ of the city, and suppose the Committee on Public Buildings should come in here and say he knows more about the architecture of schoolhouses than anybody else, and want to hire him for five years. The example it sets to other departments is my chief objection to the order. It is a precedent which might be imitated hereafter. We should hold to our ordinances, and as the ordinance stands we should elect them yearly, but do not make a special exception for an individual because he possesses peculiar qualifications, and has been ten years in the employ of the city. For that reason I shall vote against the order, but I have no objection to raising Mr. Winsor's salary if the committee recommend it.

The order was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Alderman Clark—I agree with what has been said, to a certain extent. It is an extraordinary order and an extraordinary occasion. We have the largest library in the United States, having the largest circulation; and it has at its head the most able superintendent in the United States. It is our duty to do everything in our power to keep him there, and the only way it can be done is to make a contract with him for a series of years. Were I the Superintendent I would not refuse the position offered by the faculty at Cambridge. He is offered a professorship in connection with his duties as librarian, a salary nearly equal to what is proposed to be given him, from three to four months' vacation, and his labors will not be half what his duties are as Superintendent of the Public Library. Mr. Winsor works not from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M., but from 7 A. M. till ten or twelve o'clock at night; he devotes his entire time to the institution, and it is only his pride in it that induces him to remain under the state of things proposed by the order. Now, having this library, its usefulness having been built up under his administration, we are particularly fortunate in having such a man at its head, and we shall be particularly fortunate to keep him, even under these conditions. I have no doubt the Retrenchment Committee themselves thought the salary too small, and doubtless during the year would have advanced it some what. I do not consider $3300 sufficient compensation for the selection of the books for the Public Library, to say nothing of being its chief executive. The libraries at Chicago, Cincinnati and New York—neither of which begins to have the number of volumes and circulation that our own has—pay their superintendents $5000, and have for years. Our Public Library and all its branches are managed to the satisfaction of the patrons. There is no such thing as red tape about this institution to any greater extent than is necessary for safety and for the interests of the whole people. The trustees devote a great deal of time to it; they study its interests carefully; they have talked a great deal and seriously over this question; they unanimously believe it for the interest of all the people of Boston that such an arrangement be made with Mr. Winsor as to retain his services. I doubt very much if a man can be found in three years to fill his place. It requires very peculiar qualifications, all of which are possessed by the present Superintendent. The growth of the library has been wonderful in the last ten years; probably no library in the world has grown with such rapidity and is patronized so extensively by the population. It is the candid opinion of the trustees and the joint committee that this is the most judicious thing to do, and the only thing that can be done, if the people wish to retain Mr. Winsor's services. An arrangement can be made with him for a term of five years at a fixed salary; if not, he will undoubtedly go to Cambridge. But I can hardly see how a man can refuse an offer to go to Cambridge, and remain in the Public Library, with the immense labor he has to perform, even under the conditions proposed by this order. I am sorry we cannot pass this order unanimously. It has been a source of great anxiety to the trustees, and if any other plan could have been devised they would not recommend an order of this description. I will not compare the election of this Superintendent to that of members of the Board of Aldermen and Common Council. This Superintendent can go to Cambridge and fill the office probably during good behavior, with a respectable salary, and with very much less labor than he is giving to this city. His capacity is not questioned. It is simply a question whether this magnificent institution shall be kept in its present high position, with its present able Superintendent, or whether we shall let him go and experiment with others, until we find some one who can possibly manage it after a fashion. I hope the order will pass, that the Council will concur, and this arrangement be made.

Alderman Robinson—I do not know anything about the capabilities of Mr. Winsor; I think I never was in the Public Library but once in my life. I have a library of my own, and do not need the Public Library. But what particular qualifications are required in cataloguing books I am not able to see. I have always been of the opinion that when a person became so valuable to the city or a corporation that they could not get along without him, the sooner that man left the corporation the better it would be for it. When I found that I had a man in my employ whose experience was so great that I could not get along without him, I concluded I had better get rid of his services. I don't believe but that a dozen men can be found to fill this position; moreover, I believe it would be better for him to go to Harvard College and do them some good, as he has done the city. The committee having considered this subject and come to a unanimous decision, I shall not object to the order; but still I do not believe that, if Mr. Winsor left the city, we could not find a man to fill his place.

Alderman Fitzgerald—In order to test the sense of the Board, I move that that portion of the order which gives authority to the trustees to contract with Mr. Winsor for five years be stricken out, so that the trustees will be empowered to raise the salary to an amount not exceeding $4500. Mr. Winsor is a very valuable man to the city, and that is all he ought to ask. If he is so valuable that the city cannot dispense with his services, it would be better to employ him during life, which would be just as sensible an order to introduce as this. I was revolving in my own mind what the library or the city would do if Mr. Winsor died. We will be obliged to meet that emergency some time, because, I believe, Mr. Winsor is not going to live over 100 years; and he is now past half of it. If the Public Library increases as it has in the past ten years, if no man can be found capable of filling the position, where will one be found ten years from now? But my objection to the order is the bad and pernicious precedent it would be. That is my sole objection to it. I think Mr. Winsor has no equal as a librarian in the country; but that will not prevent me from voting against that peculiar feature of the order. Mr. Winsor should abide by the laws and ordinances of the city, and if they do not suit him he ought to leave the city's employ, more especially if new or richer and fairer pastures are opened to him. I have no doubt that if the present trustees are continued in office Mr. Winsor's reelection for the next five or ten or fifteen years will be a matter of form. So long as he does not want to resign I am willing to trust to future City Governments to establish the salary of Mr. Winsor. I shall vote for $4500 on account of the peculiar circumstances, and leave it to other City Governments to continue it.

Alderman Burnham—I agree, to a certain point, with the Alderman who has just taken his seat in regard to passing the latter part of the order. My own mind is made up that it would be greatly for the interest of the Public Library to give to the Superintendent of the Public Library a permanence which it does not now have in an annual election. I do not know but the Alderman's motion will result in our losing that officer, which I very much desire not to be obliged to do. It is with some fear that I see this motion tried against allowing this City Government to do what is the prerogative of another City Government; but it does seem that this case is different from any other that can come before the City Government, and that this Board ought to make some distinction with reference to greater permanence in that direction. The Alderman says he has no doubt if the present trustees are continued Mr. Winsor will be elected many years. That may be, but it seems to me that, as members of the City Council, we could indicate in this direction that we are willing to have it understood that we do favor to a certain extent a permanence in the occupancy of this position by this officer. For fear that the matter will not receive our vote for a contract for five years, I hope this matter may be more fully discussed, and that some gentleman at this Board may propose a shorter time, or perhaps present arguments to this Board by way of adding something in the way of permanence to this office, and that there may be some offer made here to put this matter in such a shape that we shall not fail to retain the services of Mr. Winsor as Superintendent of the Public Library.

Alderman Slade—I hope the amendment will pass. I will vote for the increase of Mr. Winsor's salary, but I cannot vote for the order as offered. Mr. Winsor has no reason to have any fears that he will not be employed by the city of Boston five or ten years longer. He has been the librarian since the library started, elected from year to year with no opposition, and no doubt he will be elected for years to come. Let Mr. Winsor take his chances for ten years, and I have no doubt he will be reelected. I think the salary too low, and that it ought to be increased; but I cannot vote for this order.

Alderman Gibson—I do not oppose the order, but if we have only one man to fill the position we had better look around and see if we cannot get another man for it. That institution is well organized, and if the head is taken away there should be a second to take his place. I believe we have never had but one Daniel Webster, but I do not believe we have only one man fit to be superintendent of a library. If this superintendent has done his duty he certainly has a man to take his place, and if not he has not done his duty. I don't object to the salary. I am willing to vote for it.

Alderman O'Brien called for the yeas and nays. Alderman Burnham accepted the amendment, and the order as amended (simply increasing the salary to $4500), was passed—yeas 10, yeas 2—Aldermen O'Brien and Robinson voting nay.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

A communication was received from the City Council of Somerville asking for a conference on the subject of labor on the proposed Mystic Valley sewer. (The document had been previously read in the Board and is printed on page of the Minutes.)

Discussion arose as to the disposition of the document, Alderman O'Brien thinking that a proposed reference to the Committee on Conference would be like instructing or bulldozing them, and he favored an indefinite postponement.

Alderman Fitzgerald said the conference committee was appointed to settle the points of difference between the two branches, and had nothing to do with this.

Alderman Thompson thought that committee the proper one, as they had considered the subject and made up their report, but had heard of this communication and were waiting for it.

Alderman Gibson thought the whole matter ought to be indefinitely postponed and the Water Board allowed to save money by doing the work by contract.

Alderman Breck said that the conference committee was the proper one for the reference, and Aldermen Burnham, Wilder and Clark opposed indefinite postponement because of the discourtesy to the City Council of Somerville.

Finally, on motion of Alderman Clark, the communication was laid on the table to await the report of the conference committee.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:

Minors' Applications Granted—Two newsboys.
Auctioneers' Licenses Renewed—H. A. Aldrich and twenty-five others.

Victuallers' Licenses Granted—William A. Nickerson, L street, near bath house, South Boston; Caffman Borkawsky, 1201 Tremont street.

VENTILATION OF THE COUNCIL CHAMBER.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted the following: The Committee on Public Buildings, to whom were referred the accompanying reports regarding the ventilation of the Common Council chamber, with directions to report within two weeks, beg leave to submit that they have given the subject due consideration and are unanimously in favor of the introduction of Tudor & Co.'s method of ventilation described in the accompanying report. Messrs. Tudor & Co. guarantee to perform the work for the sum of $3000, their agreement being on file in the office of the Superintendent of Public Buildings. No provision having been made for this expenditure in the appropriation for Public Buildings, it will be necessary to provide that sum, as the balance of the appropriation is only sufficient for the ordinary demands of the department for the coming year. They recommend the passage of an order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to provide better ventilation for the Common Council chamber by the introduction of the method proposed by F. Tudor & Co. on file in the office of the Superintendent of Public Buildings, at a cost not exceeding $3000; the expense to be charged to the appropriation provided for that purpose. Referred to the Committee on Finance. Sent down.

STREET TO BE CLOSED.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered an order—That the Chief of Police be and he is hereby authorized to close Rogers street, South Boston, against public travel during the building of the grammar schoolhouse, corner of said Rogers and Dorchester streets. Read twice and passed.

SURVEY AND INSPECTION OF BUILDINGS.

Alderman Wilder submitted the following from the Joint Committee on the Survey and Inspection of Buildings:

Reports and orders authorizing permits to erect a wooden building by the Eastern Slate Company in the rear of Cambridge street, Ward 4; to erect a wooden shed addition at 813 Shawmut avenue by the Highland Street Railway Company. Orders read twice and passed.

Report on order to consider whether the amount that is appropriated for the use of the department is sufficient to defray its expenses for the present financial year—That at a meeting of the committee convened previous to the commencement of the present financial year, and held for the purpose of taking into consideration the wants of the department, your committee, after due consideration, came to the conclusion that a sum not less than $18,600 was necessary for a proper performance of the work; and the reduction made by the City Council of the estimate by the committee, from $18,600 to $14,000, has materially curtailed the work of the department imperatively required by statute law to be performed; and it is the opinion of your committee that the work should be duly prosecuted, and that the present appropriation is insufficient to secure it. They therefore recommend the passage of an order—That the sum of $4000 be added to the appropriation for the department for the Survey and Inspection of Buildings, and that the Inspector of Buildings be authorized to employ such number of temporary assistants as may be necessary to complete the work of the department, provided that the expense attending their employ shall be included in, and shall not exceed the amount of the appropriation.

Referred to Committee on Finance. Sent down.

Fowle and $32.50 to Joseph Sargent; that $243.13 be abated from the assessment levied upon George F. Woodman, for a sewer in Starr street, and $197.83 of the same amount be assessed upon William B. Fowle and $34.41 to Winnifred Smith; that $43.44 be abated from the assessment levied upon Michael Collins, for a sewer in Parkman street; that $23.15 be abated from the assessment levied upon Harriet M. Boyden for a sewer in Rockland avenue; that $18.46 be abated from the assessment levied upon S. Downer for a sewer in Greenwich street, on account of overestimate of land benefited; that $40.12 be abated from the assessment levied upon Alden Bartlett for a sewer in Starr street, and that the same amount be assessed upon Patrick Oates. Read twice and passed.

FREE FERRIES.

Aldemar Gibson submitted the following (City Doc. 64):

The Joint Standing Committee on East Boston Ferries, to whom were referred the petitions of William A. Simmons and 368 others, J. F. Daue, Grinnell & Co. and 305 others, J. Henry Sears & Co. and 324 others, Nathaniel Adams and 330 others, the Adams Express Company and 462 others, Nathaniel Erskine and 4151 others, F. B. Austin and 250 others, Loughlin Brothers and 268 others, C. A. Shaw and 1211 others, Andrew Hoffman and 733 others, and the East Boston Trade Association, that the tolls presently charged on passengers and carriages of all kinds using the ferries plying between the city and East Boston may be made free to the public, having carefully considered the subject, beg leave to submit the following report:

In the opinion of the committee, the question of freeing the East Boston ferries has now, in view of its bearing upon the commercial and manufacturing interests of the city, become of greater importance than at any previous time in the history of the ferries. It is no longer so much a question of providing the residents of that section with the means of free communication with the city proper, which are enjoyed by the residents of other outlying districts, as of removing a burden upon commerce and manufactures, and thereby advancing the general prosperity; for it will be conceded that the benefits arising from the development of our commercial and manufacturing interests are not confined to any section, but are shared alike by all.

The character of the petitioners and their relations to the business interests of the city are such as to justify the supposition that the question of freeing the ferries is one of general importance. A classification of the petitioners shows that the several business interests of the city are represented as follows:

Merchants, 257; commission merchants, 81; boot, shoe and rubber dealers, 119; hide and leather dealers, 67; bankers and brokers, 48, including nearly all the national banks of Boston; dry-goods merchants, 43; fruit, produce and provision dealers, 61; flour and grain merchants, 22; iron, steel and hardware dealers, 38; wholesale grocers, 43; railroad and transportation companies, 29; express companies, 274; steamship companies, 13; ship brokers and chandlers, 25; wine merchants, 82; drugs, paints and oil dealers, 47; clothing and furnishing goods, 93; marketmen, 65; fish dealers, 25; builders and contractors, 149; teamsters, 24.

The petitions represent a capital of nearly $100,000,000. Among the petitioners will be found the names of many of the principal merchants of the city proper, together with those of 250 business men of South Boston, 269 business men of Charlestown, 200 citizens of Boston proper, and 5283 residents of East Boston.

If we take into consideration the assessed valuation of the petitioners it will be found that but a small proportion of the capital represented upon the petitions is held by residents of East Boston, and, when we consider the heavy interest which the remaining petitioners have in our municipal finances, we are justified in assuming that they would not favor a measure calculated to increase taxation, unless it were for the public benefit.

East Boston is fitted by nature to be the great commercial and manufacturing quarter of the city. It contains within its boundaries the very best locations for manufacturing establishments of all kinds. It possesses ample wharf accommodations. Its water front is constantly scoured by strong currents, which prevent the accumulation of deposits, and preserve a uniform depth of water. Its southwest exposure renders it less likely that the docks and slips will become clogged with ice during the winter.

In short, East Boston possesses the facilities for the successful prosecution of all branches of manufactures and commerce in a greater degree than any other section of the city. Every effort is being made to open new avenues of communication between Boston and the West. The success of these efforts will depend largely upon the facilities which are afforded for shipping the products of the West to Europe.

In the struggle for trade we are brought into direct competition with other Atlantic seaboard cities, and our success will depend entirely upon our ability to offer the best and cheapest facilities for the handling of merchandise. These facilities are—deep water, capable of floating ships of the largest draught, extensive wharf accommodations, and cheap and easy methods of transportation. All these advantages are to be found in East Boston, excepting the last.

Our foreign exports for the year 1876, which amounted to $44,356,844 were almost all shipped from East Boston; it is estimated that three-fourths of the foreign importations for the same year, the value of which, according to the report of the Board of Trade, amounted to $34,983,399, came into East Boston. The value of the importations into the port of Boston for the first four months of 1877 was $14,197,184, and of these $8,000,000 were landed in East Boston.
